Net income for the quarter increased to $46.4 million from $43.9 million for the same quarter last year. Net sales increased to $1.1 billion from $1.0 billion.

The company attributed these improvements to a continuation of favorable pricing and volume trends in its fresh food operations, primarily on the strength of sales and marketing of bananas in Europe. During this period of higher earnings, Chiquita has been accelerating its investment in product marketing and brand development programs in all major business lines to increase long-term growth.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, fully diluted earnings per share increased to $2.12 from $1.32 for the same period last year. Net income for the first six months was $89.3 million compared with $53.6 million last year, and net sales for the six months were $2.2 billion compared with $1.9 billion.

In commenting on the six months results, Keith E. Lindner, president, said that the company usually earns more than 85 percent of its annual profits during the first half of each year. He made the point that results for the first half of 1990 have already exceeded the company's full year earnings objectives and indicated that management is now increasing its focus on product development, marketing and other strategies to promote continuing growth into 1991 and beyond.

DAYTON, OH (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Shopsmith, Inc. (NASDAQ: SHOP) today reported revenues of $10.1 million for its seasonally slow three months ended June 30, 1990 as compared to revenues of $10.6 million for the same period last year.

Because of the increase in operating costs caused by retail store openings in fiscal 1990, the current year's slightly reduced sales volume caused a net loss of $434,000 or $.19 per share in this year's first quarter as compared to a net income of $15,000 or $.01 per share, in the first quarter of last year.

"Along with other firms in durable goods industries, we expect demand for our products to continue to be sluggish in our second fiscal quarter. An attractive offering of new products should boost sales in our traditionally stronger Christmas and Winter selling seasons," said Shopsmith Chairman and Chief Executive Officer John R. Folkerth.

Shopsmith is the leader in the production and marketing of quality multipurpose woodworking tools. The company markets over 1,200 products through mail order and through 43 company-owned stores in the U.S. and Canada.

TRENTON, N.J. (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Campbell Soup Co. (NYSE: CPB) Chief Executive Officer David W. Johnson announced today that the company will play a key role in the Camden waterfront redevelopment project.

"Six months of hard work makes it possible for me to announce that Campbell will participate in a new Camden waterfront project. A 275,000 square foot building will be constructed and operated by a joint venture between Campbell and DKM Properties, a highly-regarded New Jersey developer with experience on a number of projects in the Trenton and Princeton areas," Johnson said.

He made his remarks during a joint news conference with Gov. James J. Florio following a meeting with the governor and other state officials.

Campbell will lease 100,000 square feet in the new building, while the state of New Jersey has agreed to lease 50,000 square feet. The remaining 125,000 square feet will be leased to other tenants by the DKM Properties/Campbell Soup Co. joint venture. The building will be 14 or 15 stories in height.

The new building will be almost 25 percent larger than the project originally planned to be built by Campbell. Work on that project was suspended as part of a corporate-wide review of operations begun when Johnson became Campbell's chief executive in January.

"Knowledgeable individuals involved in the Camden waterfront development suggested to Campbell several years ago that one of the best approaches for everyone would be a partnership with an outside developer.

"We believe that this approach, coupled with a larger building and the high quality public-private partnership with Coopers Ferry Development Association, the state, city and county, will make this project a magnet for additional waterfront development," Johnson said.

The building will be constructed on 13 acres between the New Jersey State Aquarium, which is now under construction, and the GE Building. Most of the land is now owned by GE and used for employee parking. It will be exchanged for land that Campbell now owns north of the GE building, which will become the new parking lot for GE.

Construction of the new building is scheduled to begin by the middle of next year and completed around the end of 1992. Johnson said Campbell has not determined which corporate employees will be relocated to the waterfront site.

"Under both the original and new plans, Campbell always intended that its headquarters functions would continue in Camden. Camden has been our home since Campbell was founded 121 years ago and it will continue to be our headquarters," he said.

Campbell currently has 1,200 employees at Campbell Place and 300 at an office in Cherry Hill. The company plans to relocate the Cherry Hill employees to Camden as soon as feasible.

Revenues for the three months ended June 30, 1990, were $14.5 million, a 79.3 percent increase over 1989 second quarter revenues of $8.1 million. The company's contribution from operations grew 32.7 percent to $2.5 million from $1.9 million in last year's comparable quarter.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, CCA earned $879,462, or $.09 per share, up 70.6 percent from earnings of $515,413, or $.06 per share, in the first six months of 1989. The corresponding six months in 1989 reported revenues of $15.2 million and contribution from operations of $3.3 million.

WILMINGTON, DE (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Invent a human-powered watercraft that reaches a speed of 20 knots for 100 meters, and Du Pont (NYSE: DD) will give you $25,000 this Saturday at Vancouver Lake, near Portland, Ore.

If you can't make it Saturday, don't worry, the contest will continue for two more years.

This, and other prizes funded by Du Pont, are offered by the International Human Powered Vehicle Association (IHPVA), which is administering the contest.

The watercraft competition will be the feature of the 16th annual International Human Powered Speed Championships. The events, which include land vehicles, begin tomorrow at the Portland International Raceway.

The Du Pont challenge is to design and demonstrate a watercraft that can maintain an average speed of 20 knots over 100 meters, powered only by one rider's arms, legs or both. The watercraft can be of any design, provided it is supported by water at all times. It is expected that most entries will be hydrofoils, using pedal-driven propellers rather than oars.

The fastest recorded time for a single-rider watercraft is 16.2 knots, established by the hydrofoil "Flying Fish II" in September 1989 in Adrian, Mich. The vehicle was designed by Allan Abbott of Los Angeles and Alec Brooks of Pasadena, Calif., and ridden by Olympic cyclist Bobby Livingston.

The theoretical top speed for a watercraft powered by one person exceeds 20 knots, but significant technical innovations will be required. Du Pont has funded the prizes to reward such innovations and to encourage the creative use of lightweight materials and composite structures.

If the goal of 20 knots has not been reached by the end of 1992, the $25,000 grand prize will be awarded to the contestant achieving the highest speed.

In 1984, Du Pont and IHPVA jointly sponsored a contest for the invention of a bicycle or tricycle that could reach a speed of 65 miles per hour on level ground. That contest attracted hundreds of contestants around the world, and an $18,000 prize was won in 1986. The winning entry, a streamlined bicycle named "Gold Rush," is displayed at the National Museum of American History (Smithsonian Institution) in Washington.

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Designatronics Inc. (AMEX: DSG) announced today an extension from July 31, 1990, to Aug. 20, 1990, of a tender offer to stockholders of odd lot holdings (from one share to 99 shares) of $1.50 per share above the closing price of the shares of stock on the American Stock Exchange on Aug. 20, 1990. In a letter and transmittal form sent to all Designatronics stockholders on June 22, 1990, Sol Schwartz, president of Designatronics, said: "The opportunity to exchange odd lot shareholdings for cash is free of brokerage commissions and state transfer taxes, which are payable by the company.

Management has set aside a cash reserve out of its current funds of approximately $50,000 to cover the cost of acquiring the odd lot shares tendered by stockholders. The shares so tendered by stockholders will be cancelled by the company. The tender offer transmittal form and stock certificate must be in possession of the company on or before 3:00 p.m. on Aug. 20, 1990."

The company will not accept and shall not be obligated to accept any certificates which aggregate more than 100 shares for the purpose of creating a round lot of 100 shares and an odd lot of less than 100 shares to comply with the above tender offer. The company will not accept and will not be obligated to accept any certificate which aggregates less than 100 shares purchased during the tender period by a shareholder for the purpose of obtaining a premium offered by the company for such odd lot shares. All odd lot stockholders have the absolute right to withdraw this tender offer prior to 3:00 p.m., July 31, 1990 by written communication to the company via telegraph, fax or express mail.

Schwartz explains in the letter that the reason for the offer is to attempt to reduce the cost of servicing this odd lot category stockholder. In a detailed survey of "odd lot holdings" it was found that approximately 30 percent of all stockholders are holding less than 100 shares each and the aggregate of the shares in this category represent less than 1 percent of the total issued and outstanding shares.

NEW YORK (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - British Airways on Friday (Aug. 3) initiates its New York to Glasgow service at the peak of a $400,000 campaign across the U.S. highlighting the new gateway to Scotland and Northern Ireland.

To mark the inaugural flight, Lord King, chairman of British Airways, will be leading a group of VIPs from Scotland and Northern Ireland -- including the Lord Provost of Glasgow -- in a three-day visit to New York. During their stay, they are being hosted by New York area businessmen.

Since the initial announcement of plans to operate the route, the airline has been extremely active in promoting its newest destination to business and leisure travelers alike. As a result, more than 60 percent of the trans-Atlantic inventory from New York to Glasgow in the first month has been sold.

British Airways has mounted an intensive business campaign for the last two months, aimed at heightening awareness of the route and its potential.

In June, some 100 guests -- from the New York, Connecticut and New Jersey travel and media community -- attended a major lunch in Manhattan which was addressed by Eddie Friel, chief executive of the Greater Glasgow Tourist Board, who had been flown out by British Airways for the occasion.

Also in June, the airline conducted a one-week sales blitz, in conjunction with the Scottish Tourist Board, which covered 250 major agents in the metropolitan area.

Working closely with the Scottish Development Agency, British Airways conducted a mailing to chief executives, presidents, and senior vice presidents of 2,100 companies in the Northeast U.S.A. with potential to travel to and invest in Scotland.

In addition in August, a telemarketing campaign will be launched to the 100,000 members of the airline's Privileged Traveller Club, offering 33 percent discounts to members who book to travel from August 6 through March 31.

A $200,000 advertising campaign is also under way, focusing on major New York, New Jersey and Connecticut metropolitan publications.

Heavy emphasis has also been placed on spreading the word on the operation to the large American Scottish community in New Jersey and other parts of the U.S. This summer, for example, British Airways has been a major participant in all important Highland Games and Scottish festivals.

Inclusive tour programs have been developed in conjunction with Liberty Travel, the largest chain of retail travel agencies in the New York area, which will offer vacations in both Scotland and Northern Ireland at highly competitive rates.

NEW YORK (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - To commemorate the 200th anniversary of the adoption of the Bill of Rights, Philip Morris Companies Inc. (NYSE: MO) will sponsor a national tour of one of the original copies of the document.

The historic parchment and multimedia exhibit will tavel to all 50 states as part of the two-year bicentennial celebration of the ratification of the Bill of Rights. Beginning in Barre, Vermont, on October 10, the 16-month tour will conclude in Richmond, Virginia, on February 9, 1992. The Commonwealth of Virginia's copy of the Bill of Rights, which has been recently restored and is generously on loan from the Virginia State Library and Archives, will be featured in the exhibit. The exhibit will be open to the public free of charge.

A 5,000-square-foot pavilion has been specially designed to house the exhibit. The architecture of the pavillion is a balanced mix between aerospace-inspired high technology structural systems and traditional gallery-like display space. Visitors will be greeted by a collection of video images and graphic displays providing historical background on the Bill of Rights. As visitors move into a large, hexagonal-shaped audiovisual theater, they will be surrounded by dialogue that explores both past and contemporary civil liberties issues. Then visitors will enter the Bill of Rights viewing room and be as close as two feet from the environmental capsule protecting the 200-year-old document.

"Documents of such great significance to America's heritage should be seen by individuals of all ages, in all parts of this country. Philip Morris Companies Inc. is providing millions of Americans with this rare opportunity through the Bill of Rights Tour," said Ella Gaines Yates, state librarian of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

She pointed out that Virginia Congressman James Madison introduced a bill of rights to the first Congress in 1789 and that his proposal was strongly influenced by the text of the Virginia Declaration of Rights, drafted by George Mason. And it was Virginia that became the 11th and necessary state to achieve a three-fourths majority for final ratification of the federal Bill of Rights on December 15, 1791 -- now known as Bill of Rights Day.

Specific dates and locations of the national Bill of Rights Tour follow. The 200th anniversary tour is being sponsored by Philip Morris Companies Inc., the world's largest producer of consumer packaged goods. Its major domestic operating companies include Kraft General Foods, Miller Brewing Company and Philip Morris U.S.A.

ST. LOUIS (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Interco Incorporated (NYSE: ISS) announced today that it and committees representing its bank lenders, medium term noteholders and subordinated debentureholders have reached basic agreement on a financial restructuring of Interco's outstanding debt that the committees will be recommending to the groups they represent. The parties are continuing discussions and Interco expects to be in a position shortly to announce the details of an agreement in principle.

In connection with Interco's restructuring efforts, the steering committee of its bank lenders has unanimously recommended to the bank group deferrals of all principal and interest payments due from Interco during the period from July 30 through Oct. 1, 1990. The amounts covered by the principal and interest deferrals include a $3.8 million interest payment which was due but not made on July 30. Interco stated that it understands that a waiver agreement providing for the deferrals has been distributed to the members of the bank group for approval.

Interco has also received from its bank group a waiver of a default under the bank credit agreement caused by the company's deferral of an $8.6 million interest payment on its medium term notes that was due on July 16, 1990. The basic agreement on a financial restructuring of Interco's outstanding debt contemplates that the $8.6 million payment will be made on or prior to Aug. 15, 1990, when the applicable grace period provided by the medium term note indenture will expire.

Richard B. Loynd, chairman and chief executive officer of Interco, said: "As we have stated previously, Interco has four successful core companies. However, Interco's debt is much larger than these companies can support. We believe that the financial restructuring under discussion will alleviate the problems caused by Interco's excessive debt levels and will help to assure the long-term health of Interco and these fine companies."

Interco is a major manufacturer of furniture and manufacturer and retailer of footwear through its four core companies: Broyhill Furniture Industries, Inc.; The Lane Company, Incorporated; Converse Inc., and the Florsheim Shoe Company.

HOUSTON (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Cabot Oil & Gas Corporation (NYSE: COG) today announced a significant increase in capital spending for the remainder of the fiscal year based on improved performance during the first nine months.

Charles P. Siess, Jr., chairman and CEO, said that, while natural gas prices have been disappointing, an increase in sales volumes led to improved earnings in the third quarter.

"Based on improved drilling results and increased cash flow, we will increase capital spending $6 million, or 19 percent, to take advantage of our backlog of drilling opportunities," Siess said.

Net income for the third quarter was $1.6 million, compared to $2.6 million, including certain non-recurring items, for the same period last year. If non-recurring items were excluded, there would have been a loss of $0.3 million for the third quarter of 1989. Net income available to all common shareholders was $0.4 million for the third quarter or two cents per common share.

Earnings for the first nine months were $15.1 million. Net income available to all common shareholders was $13.4 million, or 65 cents per share. Earnings for the same period in 1989 would have been $11.4 million if non-recurring items were excluded.

CARROLLTON, TX (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Computer Language Research Inc. (NASDAQ: CLRI) today announced results for the second quarter and six-month periods ended June 30, 1990. Revenues for the second quarter decreased from $26.1 million in 1989 to $23.2 million in 1990. The company's results of operations reflect a seasonal net loss of $3.5 million, or $.26 per share for the second quarter of this year. This compares to a net loss of $1.7 million, or $.12 per share for the same period in 1989. Net cash provided by operating activities was $12.4 million or $.90 per share in the first six months of 1990.

For the six-month period ended June 30, 1990, revenues decreased $2.7 million, or 3.8 percent from $69.4 million in 1989 to $66.7 million this year. Net income for the first half of 1990 was down from $4.4 million, or $.32 per share in 1989 to $2.0 million, or $.15 per share in 1990.

Revenues in the second quarter and first half of 1990 reflected lower sales to accounting firms partially offset by increased software sales to corporations and increased tax processing services to large banks. Sales of electronic forms systems increased both in the second quarter and in the first half of 1990 compared to last year.

Operating expenses for the second quarter and year-to-date periods in 1990 were slightly higher than 1989. This increase was due primarily to higher noncapitalized product development costs and increased product support expenses. Reductions in selling, marketing and administrative expenditures and reduced costs for producing income tax returns partially offset the higher expenses.

At its July 31st meeting, the board of directors declared the dividend for the fourth quarter, 1990 at the rate of $.03 per share. The dividend is payable Oct. 2, 1990 to shareholders of record on Sept. 14, 1990.

Computer Language Research, Inc. is headquartered in Carrollton, Texas and maintains sales and support facilities in 29 cities throughout the United States. ROY, UTAH (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Iomega Corp. (NASDAQ: IOMG) today announced its new Universal family of Bernoulli removable disk subsystems. The new family includes the smallest, lightest Bernoulli subsystem yet, the Transportable. Each of these new subsystems can work with the entire range of PC, Macintosh and networking environments supported by Iomega. The new family includes a total of 12 products which replace 22 models in the previous line. In the past users required specific models for specific computers.

The company also sets a new standard for removable disk reliability with a 60,000 hour mean time between failure (MTBF) and a new five year warranted Gold Standard Disk. The new subsystems add increased versatility and reliability at up to 22 percent lower prices.

"By simply selecting different adapters," said Iomega President and CEO Fred Wenninger, "our customers can select one subsystem and add unlimited high-performance removable storage to their IBM PC, PS/2 or Macintosh computers. The new Transportable and Portable extend this option to users with limited desk space or to those who do computing on the go."

"In addition," he added, "our commitment to Total Quality Control (TQC) in manufacturing and design has more than doubled our mean time between failure (MTBF), and lowered our costs. This allows us to significantly reduce subsystem prices, making it easier for users to gain Bernoulli's security for their data."

Iomega Corp., Roy, Utah, develops, manufactures and sells high-performance removable mass storage products for desktop computers. Iomega's patented Bernoulli Technology provides unlimited data storage capability by combining the removability of floppy drives with the high capacity and performance of rigid drives. CHICAGO (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Nike President Richard K. Donahue will meet today with Reverend Jesse Jackson of Operation PUSH to share with Jackson information about Nike's minority hiring, philanthropy and business development programs.

"We welcome this opportunity to show PUSH some of the very aggressive affirmative action programs and development programs Nike is involved with and extremely proud of. PUSH and Nike obviously have similar goals when it comes to generating equal opportunity for all citizens," said Donahue.

"Nike is proud of our association with such great black role models as Michael Jordan, David Robinson, Bo Jackson, Spike Lee and John Thompson, all of whom have been featured in our advertising," Donahue said. "This is an outward indication of our inner commitment to the minority community. When PUSH looks beyond the surface at the way Nike conducts business, they will see how deep our commitment goes."

"We also agree wholeheartedly with Rev. Jackson's statement last week that bullets, not shoes, kill kids, and that books, not sneakers, provide opportunity. That is why we are currently running a $5-million Equal Opportunity advertising campaign urging kids to stay in school and stay off drugs. We are certain PUSH can help us make that campaign even more meaningful to the minority community."

Donahue also noted that Nike would use the meeting to correct some popular misapprehensions about the athletic shoe business. Nike has an extremely diverse business selling athletic shoes, clothes and accessories in 17 different sports categories with equal distribution across the U.S. Contrary to statements which attribute large percentages of Nike's sales of higher-priced shoes to urban minority youth, the correct figures are:

"The fact that only 13 percent of our business is with the minority community does not decrease our commitment to that community. That is why 14.4 percent of our workforce is minority and 75 percent of our philanthropic dollars are directed to minority programs. We welcome PUSH's help in making those programs as meaningful as possible," Donahue said.

"Nike looks forward to sharing many of our ideas with PUSH and working out plans that will help both organizations serve the interest of the minority community. Both organizations do that very well even now," said Nike's Donahue.

PLYMOUTH, MICH. (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Construction of a Saturn retail facility (dealership) in the Detroit suburb of Plymouth began today as Retail Partner Don Massey and company officials turned the first shovels full of earth for the future home of "Saturn of Plymouth."

Joining Massey in the ground-breaking ceremonies were Donald W. Hudler, Saturn vice president of Sales, Service and Marketing; and John B. Michaud Saturn UAW Local 1853 financial secretary and adviser to the Sales, Service and Marketing team.

"Don Massey typifies our Saturn retail partners," Hudler said. "They are highly successful retail automotive experts with organizations committed to providing superior customer satisfaction and an exceptional sales and service experience."

The stand-alone, uniform Saturn facilities "will feature new concepts in merchandising and servicing cars including side-by-side sales and service entrances to enhance customer convenience and satisfaction," Michaud said.

"We're focusing on providing a pleasant experience for each customer who walks through the front door of this dealership," Massey said. "This key element of Saturn's philosophy will distinguish us in the marketplace."

Saturn currently plans to have more than 130 retail facilities operations by mid-1991 in 33 states as part of its product introduction. The automaker plans to introduce its cars first on the West Coast, Tennessee and the Southeast this fall, followed by the Central area, and in early 1991, the Eastern area of the United States.

As construction of Saturn's retail facilities proceed, the company's manufacturing and assembly complex in Spring Hill, Tenn., began production of its saleable vehicles Monday.

Saturn Corporation, an independent subsidiary of General Motors, is based in Spring Hill, and Troy, Mich. The company's mission is to develop, manufacture and market a family of high-quality, affordable cars to compete in the subcompact and compact segments of the market. Saturn products will be built at a 4-million-square-foot manufacturing and assembly complex in Spring Hill. The first cars, two-door and four- door models, will be introduced in the fall of 1990.

PITTSBURGH (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - USX Corp. (NYSE: X) net income for the second quarter of 1990 totaled $212 million, or $.81 per common share, on sales of $4.6 billion, compared with net income of $250 million, or $.91 per common share, on sales of $5.0 billion for the second quarter 1989.

The current quarter included special charges to pre-tax income totaling $99 million to recognize a loss from the expected third quarter sale of Texas Oil & Gas Corp. exploration and production properties, provisions for lawsuits, costs of the proxy solicitation and a reserve for potential investment losses. It also included a $112 million favorable pre-tax adjustment to interest accrued for prior years tax issues. The second quarter of 1989 included pre-tax gains of $140 million from asset sales.

USX Board Chairman Charles A. Corry stated, "This year's operating income has maintained the pace of 1989's record earnings, excluding last year's special items and operating profits from businesses sold. These results are encouraging. The long-term outlook for both energy and steel continues to improve. The corporation is building on a three-year trend of improving operations."

Regarding current results Corry added, "Marathon's downstream operations turned in record operating profit this quarter. The Steel segment demonstrated profitability in a very price-competitive market. This is largely attributable to our cost-efficient operations."

Operating income for the second quarter 1990 was $400 million compared with operating income for the second quarter 1989 of $452 million. Excluding the special items and the profits on businesses sold noted above operating income was $428 million in the current quarter compared with $405 million in 1989's second quarter.

The Energy segment reported operating income of $285 million on sales of $3.1 billion in the second quarter 1990. This compares with operating income of $244 million on sales of $3.1 billion in the second quarter 1989.

Marathon Oil Co. reported operating income of $315 million on sales of $2.9 billion in the second quarter 1990 compared with operating income of $257 million on sales of $2.9 billion in the second quarter 1989.

The downstream operating income from Marathon Petroleum Co. (refining, marketing and transportation) totaled $263 million, compared to $169 million in 1989. The $94 million increase is primarily the result of higher refined product margins and sales volumes.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Urcarco, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: CARS) announced today that two lawsuits had been filed against the company in federal court in Dallas and Fort Worth alleging securities law and other violations against the company, certain senior management officials and, in one of the suits, the company's independent auditors. The suits assert misrepresentation in connection with the company's public reports and statements. The company considers the suits baseless.

One suit mischaracterizes a number of the company's factual statements and generally alleges that the company had, until July 23, 1990, concealed from the public a "serious liquidity crisis." The other suit challenges the accuracy of the company's financial statements and methods, generally asserting that the financial statements were not prepared in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. The plaintiffs challenge the company's revenue and income recognition policies and the adequacy of the allowance for loan losses. Each suit seeks class action status.

The company says that, first, the company does not have a "liquidity crisis" and the company has neither concealed nor revealed a "liquidity crisis." The company's liquidity position has been fully disclosed. Presently, the company has approximately $65 million in cash on hand and an available bank line of credit of $45 million, for a total of $110 million of current liquidity. The company continues to experience increased collections on its note portfolio (collections on the note portfolio, exclusive of down payments, were approximately $13.7 million for the three months ended June 30, 1990, as compared to approximately $3.1 million for the three months ended June 30, 1989). The company considers the allegations of the plaintiff regarding a concealed "liquidity crisis" to be groundless, frivolous and in bad faith.

Secondly, the company emphatically believes that the company's financial statements and accounting policies are consistent with generally accepted accounting principles. The division of corporation finance of the Securities and Exchange Commission reviewed the company's financial statements and accounting policies in connection with its customary review of the company's initial public offering filings. The financial statements and methods have been discussed extensively with the SEC and twice used in registration statements cleared by the SEC. In particular, the staff considered and concurred in the revenue and income recognition policies adopted by the company and its method of financial statement presentation. The plaintiffs have failed to allege or provide citation to any authoritative source or accounting rules or regulations promulgated by the AICPA, FASB or the Securities and Exchange Commission in support of its contention that the company's accounting policies are not consistent with generally accepted accounting principles.

HOUSTON, (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - TEPPCO Partners, L.P. (NYSE: TPP) today reported second quarter 1990 net income of $4.2 million, or $0.29 per unit an increase of 22 percent over pro forma net income of $3.4 million, or $0.23 per unit, for the comparable period in 1989. The 1990 improved results reflect an increase in liquefied petroleum gases (LPGs) transportation and storage revenues, as well as interest income from short term cash investments.

Operating income was $12.3 million on revenues of $37.4 million for the second quarter of 1990, compared with pro forma operating income of $12.3 million and revenues of $37.0 million for the same period last year.

The partnership reported net income of $3.6 million or $0.25 per unit for the period March 7, the date of the completion of the initial public offering, through June 30, 1990. Revenues for the period were $49.6 million, while operating income was $14.0 million.

Pro forma net income for the six months ended June 30, 1990, of $4.6 million, or $0.31 per unit, compared with pro forma net income of $12.4 million, or $0.85 per unit, for the comparable six months of the previous year. The decrease is the result of the first quarter impact of unseasonably warm weather in the partnership's market area, delayed gasoline shipments as a result of governmentally mandated seasonal vapor pressure changes, a $1.5 million charge for costs associated with the propane explosion and fire on the LPG pipeline system in North Blenheim, N.Y., on March 13, 1990, and a decrease in profits from inventory sales.

Pro forma operating income was $21.4 million on revenues of $75.8 million for the first half of 1990, compared with pro forma operating income of $30.3 million on revenues of $81.5 million for the same period in 1989.

In other developments, the partnership today announced that the general rate increase of 6 percent filed with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) on June 29, 1990, relating to transportation of LPGs went into effect July 30, 1990, without challenge by the FERC. This follows the previously announced 12 percent rate increase on the transportation of refined products, which was effective June 1, 1990.

The partnership declared on July 20, 1990, a cash distribution of $0.55 per unit for the period April 1 through June 30, 1990, payable August 17, 1990, to unitholders of record July 31, 1990.

ORANGE, CA (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - West Coast Bancorp, a California regional multi-bank holding company, today reported that increased net interest income and lower provisions for loan losses contributed to stronger earnings for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990. In addition, the company's focus on upgrading underwriting standards and improved credit management policies contributed to a 26 percent decline in non-performing loans from a year ago.

John B. Joseph, chairman and chief executive officer, said, "While West Coast Bancorp's progress has been slowed by loan quality problems which surfaced a year ago, our confidence in our long-term position is buoyed by declines in non-performing loans. Loan quality is still a major concern and we plan to continue to focus management attention in this area."

Quarterly Financial Performance

For the quarter, earnings doubled from a year ago to $331,000, or 4 cents per share, from $159,000, or 2 cents per share. Net interest income for the period increased 8.9 percent to $6.9 million from $6.4 million in the second quarter of 1989. However, the net interest margin declined to 5.05 percent, from 5.18 percent last year due primarily to industry wide interest rate pressures. The provision for loan losses decreased by 39.7 percent from $1,649,000 to $995,000 because non-performing loans were much lower at June 30, 1990 than at the same time last year. Loan loss provisions recognized in the first half of 1989 were high as the company responded to a significant increase in non-performing loans during the period. A like increase was not experienced this year.

Non-interest income of $763,000 for the quarter was below $1,058,000 reported in the second quarter last year as a results of decreases in various service charges and fees and sales of loans at Sunwest bank and from the discontinuation of loan origination and servicing activities at West Coast Realty Finance. Non-interest expense increase 9.9 percent to $6,022,00 from $5,480,000 in the prior year.

ROCKVILLE, MD (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Telefonica Larga Distancia de Puerto Rico (TLD), the entity of the Puerto Rico Telephone Authority responsible for long-distance services, has announced a $4.3 million agreement with Contel ASC.

Under the terms of this agreement, TLD will own and operate a transponder on Contel ASC's satellite, ASC-I. In addition, TLD has assumed ownership of time-division-multiple-access (TDMA) terminal equipment presently installed in the Humacao, Puerto Rico, earth station.

"As a result of equal access and our successful joint marketing efforts, the growth in private line and Message Toll Service (MTS) for both voice and data has been dramatic. Our additional satellite capacity, which can provide over 1,000 simultaneous telephone conversations, will help meet the anticipated requirements," said Greg Cortes, chief operating officer of TLD. "The continued use of satellite facilities, in addition to the newly activated TCS-1 fiber optic cable, insures continuity of service between Puerto Rico and the mainland United States."

On Sept. 15, 1988, the Federal Communications Commission granted authority to TLD to become a long-distance carrier between Puerto Rico and the United States, as well as foreign countries throughout the world. With the announcement of the equal access process in Puerto Rico in the first quarter of 1990, TLD became one of the carriers the general public in Puerto Rico can select when making long-distance calls. Last month, the Puerto Rico Telephone Company (PRTC) requested from the FCC the necessary authority to transfer ownership of its two transponders on ASC-I to TLD. The recent contract marks the third transponder TLD will have in service.

"Contel ASC has had an ongoing relationship with both PRTC and TLD for the past nine years," said Salvatore S. Benti, vice president of marketing and sales for Contel ASC. "Through its operating agreements with TLD, Contel ASC shall continue to provide private-line digital satellite facilities to meet the demand for efficient, low-cost communications between Puerto Rico and the mainland. This contract underscores the continuing importance of Puerto Rico as a major gateway in the Caribbean."

Contel ASC, a subsidiary of Contel Corporation, provides data communications networks using satellite-based technology to domestic and international customers. Contel Corporation (NYSE: CTC), a company with more than $3 billion in annual revenues and sales, provides a broad range of telecommunications products and services.

IRVING, TX (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - IMCO Recycling Inc. (NASDAQ: IMRI) today announced second quarter 1990 net income of $1,483,400 or 14 cents per common share on revenues of $13,046,400.

In the second quarter last year, the company had net income of $1,153,500 or 12 cents per share after a non-cash extraordinary charge of $299,900 or 3 cents per share. Revenues in 1989's second quarter were $9,775,200.

The company had 11.0 million shares outstanding in the second quarter this year compared with 9.6 million shares outstanding in the same period a year ago.

Ralph L. Cheek, chairman and chief executive officer, said IMCO Recycling set a new quarterly production record in 1990's second quarter. The amount of material processed during the period rose 29 percent to 97.7 million pounds from 75.9 million pounds in the second quarter of 1989 due to full capacity operations at the company's Morgantown, Ky., facility which opened late last year.

Cheek said IMCO Recycling's financial results "benefited from the high production volume at Morgantown an at our Rockwood, Tenn. plant. Both of these facilities provide deliveries of molten metal to nearby customer rolling mills, and demand for this type of recycling service is strong. However, temporary overcapacity in the industry has reduced profit margins and it has also hurt production volume at plants without molten metal delivery capability.

"We continue to expect the company's 1990 net income to exceed last year's total because of our greater molten metal delivery capability and further significant gains in U.S. aluminum can production and recycling that have been forecast by the industry.

"IMCO Recycling will also be helped in the future by our recently announced program to increase Morgantown's capacity by 50 percent," he said.

IMCO Recycling's first half 1990 net income was $2,593,300 or 24 cents per share on revenues of $25,441,800. In the same period last year, net income after the non-cash charge was $2,570,600 or 28 cents per share on revenues of $19,408,400.

First half 1990 processing volume was 185.2 million pounds, 21 percent above volume of 152.6 million pounds in the first six months of 1989. Tolling activity has accounted for 86 percent of volume in 1990, compared with 95 percent in the first six months of 1989.

IMCO Recycling is the largest independent recycler of aluminum beverage cans and their by-products in the U.S. and is the nation's only publicly owned firm whose activities are concentrated in the aluminum can recycling market.

Revenues for the second quarter of 1990 were $325.9 million compared to $322.8 million in the second quarter of 1989.

For the second quarter of 1990, gas deliveries and electric sales each increased 2 percent, reflecting increased residential and commercial sales compared to the same period a year ago.

NEWTOWN, PA (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - SPS Technologies (NYSE: ST) today reported net earnings for the second quarter of $2,797,000 or $.56 per share, a significant improvement over the $253,000 or $.05 per share, for the first quarter of 1990, but a decrease from the $4,873,000 or $.97 per share, for the same period a year ago. Net sales for the second quarter were $115,403,000, an increase over the $110,621,000 for the second quarter of 1989.

Net earnings for the first six months of 1990 were $3,050,000 or $.61 per share, compared to the $9,126,000 or $1.83 per share, for the same period a year ago. Net sales for the first half were $220,025,000 compared to $220,815,000 for the same six-month period in 1989.

Incoming orders for the second quarter were $110.9 million, compared to the prior year's level of $114.2 million. Backlog at June 30, 1990, was $145.5 million, up from the backlog of $129.8 million at the end of the second quarter of 1989.

Second quarter sales were higher than a year ago in all but one market served by the company. Shipments to the transportation and farm machinery market increased due primarily to the acquisition of Ferre Plana S.A., in Barcelona, Spain, a manufacturer of industrial fasteners, and to stronger demand by European automotive manufacturers.

Sales to the aerospace market increased as a result of price increases and the strong demand for commercial aircraft. Although there has been a reduction in defense spending, its effect on the company's aerospace business was offset by increased sales to commercial aircraft manufacturers.

Shipments to the machine tool and industrial machinery market increased only slightly in the second quarter because of continued weakness in domestic industrial production.

The Assembly Systems Division reported improved second quarter sales due to a high level of business with Ford in Europe and shipments of computer-controlled tightening systems to Iveco trucks in Italy and Cummins Engine Co. in the United Kingdom.

Sales of superalloys and magnetic materials were down slightly due to decreased shipments of higher-value vacuum melt products, lower prices for raw materials used in superalloys, and reduced demand for permanent magnetic materials by automotive manufacturers.

According to John R. Selby, chairman and chief executive officer, "We have made considerable progress in resolving operating problems that have affected profitability, especially in our Aerospace Products Division. In addition, we have been largely successful in implementing price increases that are improving our margins in the aerospace and industrial fastener businesses. Based on these actions, and the strength of our order backlog, we expect further improvements in sales and earnings for the balance of 1990."

WHEELING, WV (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. (NYSE: QWHX) reported net income of $38,479,000 on shipments of steel products totaling 575,271 tons for the second quarter of 1990.

This compares to second quarter 1989 net income of $57,518,000 on shipments of 591,657 tons.

Second quarter 1990 net sales decreased 4.6 percent to $287,129,000 compared to net sales of $301,112,000 in the second quarter of the prior year. The decrease in net sales reflects the 2.8 percent reduction in tons shipped, a 1.3 percent decrease in average price per ton of steel shipped and a lower value mix of products.

Operating costs increased slightly as higher costs for labor, ores and pellets, maintenance and repairs, depreciation and administrative expense were partially offset by the lower volume of shipments. Raw steel production increased 5 percent compared to the 1989 second quarter.

Second quarter 1990 and 1989 results include other income, primarily interest income on short term investments, totaling $15,405,000 and $14,910,000 respectively.

The income tax provision net of extraordinary credits, related to application of net operating loss (NOL) carryforwards, increased from $5,748,000 in the 1989 second quarter to $10,192,000 in 1990. The increase reflects the exhaustion of alternative minimum tax NOLs in 1989.

Six months 1990 net income totaled $74,091,000 on shipments of steel products of 1,084,126 tons. This compared to first half 1989 net income of $103,307,000 on shipments of steel products of 1,173,324 tons.

First half 1990 net sales decreased 7.6 percent to $543,921,000 from $588,642,000 in the prior period due to the decrease in tons shipped.

MARIETTA, GA. (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Healthdyne Inc. (NASDAQ: HDYN) announced today that it has received clearance from the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to market a home care device that acquires a variety of physiological data and transmits this information to a clinician for review and analysis.

Healthdyne anticipates that the device will initially be used by its Perinatal Services Division to care for pregnant patients who are hypertensive, although the device will have several applications to a variety of home care patients. Patent applications have been filed on the device.

Hypertension is a significant contributor to both maternal and infant morbidity and mortality, and it complicates approximately 10 percent of all pregnancies. As a result, many of these hypertensive patients currently require hospitalization on a regular or periodic basis.

A pilot program for the "at home" care of hypertensive patients was previously initiated by Healthdyne's Perinatal Services Division and the results were favorable. To date approximately 50 insurance carriers have reimbursed the company for these services. Home healthcare treatment has substantial cost savings over patient hospitalization.

Healthdyne's Perinatal Services Division has developed a program utilizing this new device which assists obstetricians in the management of hypertensive patients in their homes. The new product will acquire and transmit to a remote location a variety of laboratory data such as urine protein, urine glucose, and urine leukocytes as well as the patient's blood pressure, pulse, temperature, and weight. This patient data is analyzed daily by experienced and highly trained obstetrical nurses who interface with the patient's obstetrician.

Parker H. Petit, chairman and CEO of Healthdyne, commented: "This clearance will allow our Perinatal Services Division to be the first entrant into the second-largest segment of home obstetrical care -- hypertensive monitoring. We feel that this segment of the market can be well-served with our new device and our established network of perinatal service centers. Also, because many of these patients are currently being hospitalized, we feel we can provide a service that will prove to be cost effective. We have spent approximately 18 months developing our device and program, and we feel that it will be a very positive addition to our Perinatal Services Division."

Healthdyne is a national provider of high technology home care medical services, including infusion therapy through its partially owned subsidiary HNS and home obstetrical care through its Perinatal Services Division, and a manufacturer of high tech home care products through its Healthdyne Technologies Division.

(NYSE: GRA) today announced that a subsidiary has acquired the business and assets of Milwaukee-based Forrer Industries, a leading U.S. manufacturer of specialty additives for the masonry industry since 1900. Forrer products are used to enhance strength, water-repellency and other properties in masonry structures.

Forrer joins the construction products division of Grace Specialty Chemicals Co. as a unit of its new masonry products group. Robert J. Bettacchi, division president, said the acquisition is "Grace's first major step in broadening its existing masonry products business." He added that "Forrer has brought some unique products to the masonry marketplace, and we plan to market them aggressively to specifiers and contractors worldwide."

LOS ANGELES (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Fourteen members of Congress today are filing a legal brief challenging what they call an "unprecedented" political gag order imposed by Toyota, the Japanese auto giant, according to Mid-Atlantic Toyota Distributors, Inc.

The members (see list below), including Jack Brooks (D-Texas), chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, signed the amicus legal brief, which is being filed in support of a lawsuit brought by Mid-Atlantic Toyota Distributors, Inc. (MAT) against Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A. in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles.

The Hon. Peter W. Rodino, a former chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, represents the congressmen on this brief. The case is scheduled to be heard on Aug. 13.

The gag order "represents a shocking assertion of private power to interfere in the public process of governance" and "a substantial threat to the ability of Congress to carry out its constitutional function of legislating for the welfare of the American people," the congressmen told the Court.

The document concludes that "The Toyota 'gag provision' threatens effective communication with Congress and should be held invalid and unenforceable as a contract against public policy and the Constitution."

Earlier this month, Rep. McMillen, who represents the Baltimore suburb where the distributor and its 600 employees are based, filed an affidavit in support of MAT, citing the gag order and allegations of fraudulent business practices by Toyota. He said the issue is of "great concern" to the U.S. Congress which may merit investigation.

The congressmen's support comes on the heels of MAT's July 5 lawsuit which charges Toyota with violating its First Amendment rights. MAT lawyers contend that the distributor was forced to agree to the 1987 contract, which includes the provisions prohibiting it from exercising its right to petition elected representatives.

The contested provision specifically bars MAT from attempting "to obtain, directly or indirectly, any political or legislative actions" contrary to any business objectives of TMS.

McMillen, who has said he contacted MAT officials only to be told they could not discuss the matter, said the following issues of the Toyota/MAT dispute are of "great concern to Congress":

-- The gag order by which a foreign company has attempted to cut off the access of an American company to elected officials.

-- The false sales reporting that MAT has alleged in the lawsuit, which can have an adverse effect on American automobile distributors, dealers, and consumers.

-- The problems with the allocation system that MAT has described in the lawsuit, which could have an adverse effect on automobile distributors and dealers.

-- The alleged attempt by Toyota Motor Corporation to circumvent the Voluntary Restraint Agreements limiting imports of Toyota cars into this country.

-- Whether American dealers or distributors need legislative protection from abusive practices of automobile manufacturers."

Today's filing follows two lawsuits filed by MAT, which, as one of only three independent American distributors of Toyota automobiles left in the United States, distributes Toyotas in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia. MAT's lawsuits, filed on June 27 and July 5:

-- Challenge the constitutionality of the gag order provision. -- Accuse TMS of "willfully, intentionally and deliberately defrauding MAT out of profits to which the (distributor) was entitled."

-- Cite fraud, false sales reporting practices, misrepresentations, interference with MAT's distributorship contract and racketeering under federal RICO laws.

-- Ask damages in excess of $400 million. -- Contend that TMS has consistently encouraged false reporting to drive down MAT's vehicle allocations and market share.

MAT officials believe these issues raise some troubling questions about the Japanese car manufacturer's business conduct and practices in the United States. They said that if Toyota's effort succeeds, this may become a practice by foreign companies in other industries trying to strip U.S. businesses of their ability to petition elected representatives when disputes arise over similar agreements.

MAT officials stress that the takeover itself -- which Toyota has set for October 1, 1990 -- is not being contested.

But "it is important that Congress be given access to MAT's information quickly," McMillen added in his affidavit, "I intend to review the information and determine whether it is relevant to any on-going hearings or whether new hearing should be convened."

"No individual has a right to seek to keep Congress from becoming informed about matters of public interest," today's legal brief concludes. "We urge this court to clearly, plainly and promptly declare that 'gag provisions' such as the one involved in this case are unlawful, void and repugnant to our laws and our constitution."

The following members of Congress signed amicus brief in support of Mid-Atlantic Toyota's suit:

Jack Brooks (D-Texas), chairman of the House Judiciary Committee
Helen Bentley (R-Md.)
Howard L. Berman (D-Calif.), of the Judiciary Committee
Benjamin A. Gilman (R-N.Y.)

ENCINO, CALIF. (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Lincoln Bancorp (NASDAQ: LCNB) said that the name of its principal subsidiary, Lincoln National Bank, has been changed to California United Bank, N.A., effective immediately. The previously announced name change had been delayed pending a judge's ruling on a motion filed by United California Savings Bank seeking a preliminary injunction against the use of the new name. This motion was denied by the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California on July, 26 1990.

The holding company is also changing its name, from Lincoln Bancorp to CU Bancorp, to reflect the new name of its wholly-owned subsidiary. This change had been approved by a vote of the holding company's stockholders on June 19, 1990, but was also delayed pending the outcome of the court decision. The common stock of CU Bancorp will begin trading under the symbol "CUBN" on the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation system as of Aug. 3, 1990.

According to John J. Keating, president and chief executive officer of CU Bancorp, "Our new bank and holding company identities should put an end to the confusion caused by the similarity between our old name and that of the troubled Lincoln Savings and Loan Association." Keating said that the confusion had been exacerbated by the fact that he shares the same last name as Lincoln S&L Chairman Charles Keating, although the two are not related.

The newly named CU Bancorp, with assets of $533 million, is the holding company for California United Bank, N.A. As an independent banking institution with two offices, in Encino and Beverly Hills, California United Bank, N.A. provides individualized services focused on the needs of the Southern California marketplace. The bank offers a full range of commercial banking services with a special emphasis on commercial lending to small and medium-sized businesses, and professional and high net worth individuals.

an independent asbestos abatement company, today reported increased financial results for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990.

Quarterly net income increased to $300,660, or 6 cents per share, on contract revenues of $9,845,703, vs. net income of $59,033, or 1 cent per share, on contract revenues of $4,647,557 in the 1989 second quarter.

Half-year net income rose to $558,421, or 11 cents per share, on contract revenues of $17,683,799, compared to net income of $270,579, or 5 cents per share, on contract revenues of $9,701,035 in the same period last year.

The company's backlog at June 30, 1990, increased to $8,771,000, compared with $6,018,000 at the same time last year.

"The combination of significantly more business in the New York market, where most of our work is centered, and the first profitable quarter for our year-old New England operation, produced these results," Joseph P. Donnolo, chairman and chief executive officer, explained.

"Meanwhile, proposed new asbestos removal regulations make us optimistic about the future, in spite of the real estate slowdown in New York and throughout the Northeast," he added.

"Most asbestos abatement contracts are awarded in conjunction with building renovation which would disturb existing asbestos insulation," Donnolo pointed out.

CHICAGO (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - The Bata Shoe Organization, the world's largest footwear company, ended industry speculation today when it stepped into the U.S. marketplace by signing an exclusive distribution agreement for two of its brands with the Ralph Libonati Company, it was announced here at a press conference.

The agreement will give the Springfield, N.J.-based Libonati Company exclusive U.S. rights for marketing, distribution and product development of two of Bata's leading brands, "Power" and "Bubblegummers."

"Power," a performance, athletic shoe designed for cross-training, basketball and tennis, is currently sold in 35 countries internationally. "Bubblegummers" are stylish, fashion-oriented active shoes for children.

"Bubblegummers'" international popularity has spawned several marketing endeavors, including the opening of "Bubblegummers" retail stores throughout the world, and plans for a syndicated cartoon show featuring "Bubblegummers" characters

"With our advanced distribution network coupled with Bata's size and commitment to producing quality, innovative shoes, there's no doubt that both these brands will soon be prominent players in the U.S. footwear arena," said Ralph Libonati, president and chief executive officer of the Ralph Libonati Company.

Libonati said that both brands will be distributed nationally and that his company would become more involved in specifically developing the product for the U.S. marketplace.

The move is seen by many in the industry as a natural marriage; Bata gets the Libonati Company's vast footwear experience and Libonati, in turn, will draw on Bata's size and creativity to offer and develop quality footwear for the American public.

The family-run Bata, headquartered in Toronto, has a shoemaking history dating back nine generations. The company was officially founded in 1894 in Zlin, Czechoslovakia by 18-year-old Tomas Bata. The company moved operations to Toronto following World War II, and today is the world's largest manufacturer and marketer of footwear, selling over 1 million pairs every day.

Founded in 1958 by Ralph Libonati, the Ralph Libonati Company is a manufacturer's sales agency in the sporting goods industry. In 1970 it began handling adidas and soon established what was to become the most successful adidas distributorship in the world. Most recently, Ralph Libonati was president and chief executive officer of Pony Worldwide, a position he held after Libco was acquired by adidas in 1986.

MENASHA, WI (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Banta Corporation (NASDAQ: BNTA) today reported sales and earnings records were achieved during the second quarter of 1990.

For the three months ended June 1990 net earnings from continuing operations were $6.9 million, an increase of 12 percent over the $6.2 million reported for the second quarter of 1989. Earnings per share from continuing operations rose 10 percent to 54 cents from 49 cents in the same period last year. Sales for this year's second quarter were up 12 percent to $152 million, compared with $137 million in 1989.

Last year's second quarter net earnings including discontinued operations were $15.7 million ($1.24 per share) due to a one-time gain of $9.6 million from the sale of Daniels Packaging Company, Inc., a corporate subsidiary.

For the six-month period ended June 1990 net earnings from continuing operations were up 13 percent to $12.8 million ($1.00 per share) as compared with $11.3 million (89 cents per share) last year. Sales were up 12 percent to $306 million from $274 million during last year's first six months. Including the gain on the sale of Daniels, net earnings for the first half of 1989 were $21.2 million ($1.67 per share).

Chairman Calvin W. Aurand, Jr. says factors affecting second quarter results included increased activity in softcover books and manuals. "Demand from the educational markets was broad," notes Aurand, "With several school textbook adoption programs providing added strength. Supplemental educational materials experienced more normal activity compared to lower-than-expected industry performance during last year's second quarter."

The company's graphic/video services segment performed below expectations. Aurand explained that while the prepress and point-of- purchase display operations achieved good results for the quarter, video post-production operations failed to sustain their improved first quarter performance.

Banta Corporation is one of the nation's leading graphic arts companies, offering diverse printing and graphic/video services. It serves publishers of educational and general books, special-interest magazines, consumer and business catalogs, and direct marketing materials. Its other businesses offer prepress services, multimedia and software packages, point-of-purchase materials, single-use products, and video post-production and production services.

LOUISVILLE, KY (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Louisville Gas and Electric Company (NYSE: LOU) earned 74 cents per share of common stock for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared with 75 cents per share for the comparable quarter for 1989. Earnings per share for the six months ended June 30, 1990 were $2.37, compared with $1.75 for the same period last year. For the year ended June 30, 1990, earnings per share were $3.82, compared with $3.93 for the year ended June 30, 1989.

Revenues for the three-month and six-month periods ended June 30, 1990 were $156.6 million and $340.2 million respectively, compared with $147.2 million and $337.9 million for the same periods ended June 30, 1989. For the year ended June 30, 1990, revenues were $679.3 million, compared with $673.3 million for the year ended June 30, 1989.

The Company's revenues for the most recent three-month, six-month and 12-month periods have been enhanced by LG&E's strong marketing efforts to sell electric power to other utilities. For the six-month period ended June 30, 1990, off-system electric revenues were nearly $20 million, an all-time high.

These sales of electricity to other utilities boosted income for the quarter ended June 30, 1990. Earnings for that period nearly equaled the earnings for the comparable period last year, despite a reduction in rates and additional costs incurred as a result of severe storms in LG&E's service area.

Earnings for the 12-month period were affected by costs associated with management initiatives during the period dealing with the Trimble County power plant and a restructuring of the Company's management work force. The Company's strong financial position allowed it to take these initiatives, which will provide long-term benefits for customers and shareholders.

Under the terms of a settlement agreement with the Public Service Commission of Kentucky regarding the Trimble County power plant, the Company made refunds of $2.5 million to electric customers late last year and reduced electric rates by $8.5 million annually on January 1, 1990.

During the last quarter of 1989, the Company incurred a one-time expense of about $6 million, after taxes, with a restructuring of management work force. This initiative has reduced costs for the six-month period ended June 30, 1990 and will continue to produce cost savings in the future.

Louisville Gas and Electric Company also changed its accounting method as of January 1, 1990 to more closely match revenues with expense by recording revenues in the month that the service is rendered. This represents a one-time adjustment to earnings per share of 87 cents for the six-month and 12-month periods ended June 30, 1990.

These results compare with net income of $1.0 million ($0.41 per share) on earned revenue of $99 million for the same period last year.

Results for the current quarter represent a 143 percent increase in income from operations over the prior year, and a decrease in other income from $303,000 in 1989 to $79,000 in 1990. The decrease in earned revenue

The company's Standard Products and PDM Strocal Inc. profit centers also experienced siginificant increases in gross profits during the current period.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the company reported net income of $3.0 million ($1.23 per share) on earned revenue of $178.7 million compared to net income of $1.8 million ($0.74 per share) on earned revenue of $183.9 million in the first half of 1989. LONG BEACH, CA (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - The Walt Disney Company (NYSE: DIS) has submitted a preliminary master plan for PORT DISNEY, an ocean-oriented theme park and destination resort on the Long Beach waterfront. The plan was delivered today to the City and Port of Long Beach in compliance with existing agreements.

Disney officials emphasized that the submittal is the first step in a lengthy development process. Discussions are also under way with the City of Anaheim, and a decision on whether to proceed in either location is not expected until next year.

The centerpiece of the proposed 350-acre PORT DISNEY is a new theme park, tentatively called "DisneySea," which combines a wide variety of Disney-style rides, shows and adventures. Preliminary concepts include the world's largest aquarium, marine research facilities and rides and attractions featuring the myths, romance and mysteries of the sea.

As proposed, PORT DISNEY also would include five resort hotels, shopping, restaurants and a variety of amenities including a cruise ship terminal to be operated by the Port of Long Beach. It would add substantially to the downtown waterfront's accessible shoreline.

In addition to specific roadway enhancements, PORT DISNEY transportation improvements would include land-based shuttles and water ferry service linking the north and south shores of Queensway Bay in downtown Long Beach. A monorail connecting all of the primary activity areas is under study.

PALO ALTO, CA (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Coherent Inc. (NASDAQ: COHR) today announced results for its third fiscal quarter ended June 30, 1990.

	Three Months Ended		Nine Months Ended
	June 30, 1990	July 1, 1989	June 30, 1990	July 1, 1989
	(In thousands, except per share amounts)
Sales	$ 46,919	$ 48,832	$139,161	$148,048

Average common and common equivalent shares outstanding	9,233	9,215	9,278	9,029

Third quarter and year-to-date sales were 4 percent and 6 percent lower than the corresponding prior year periods, respectively. Net income for the quarter and year-to-date decreased to $108,000 and $1,320,000 from $2,402,000 and $6,336,000, respectively, as reported in the corresponding prior year periods.

The decrease in net sales for the third quarter resulted from a 30 percent decline in our Industrial segment sales, a significant portion of which can be attributed to the prior year sale of the company's European YAG marker and trimmer business. Sales in the Medical segment were down by 8 percent while Electro-Optic sales increased by 13 percent over the same period.

The decrease in quarterly and year-to-date net income was attributed to lower sales, higher expenses associated with new product development, lower royalties, and a higher effective tax rate. Also impacting net income comparisons for the quarter and year-to-date periods was the one time recognition in the third quarter last year of a $600,000 pre-tax gain relating to the sale of the European YAG marker and trimmer business mentioned above and a one time pre-tax gain relating to a $2,000,000 licensing fee received during the first quarter last year.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Abbott Laboratories (NYSE: ABT) has launched the first suction sanitization system to promote safe handling, transport, storage, and disposal of infectious body fluid waste in the hospital setting. The announcement was made at the annual meeting of the American Hospital Association.

The new product, SAF-GARD suction liners, are part of Abbott's Receptal product line of waste fluid management systems. SAF-GARD liners contain a germicidal capsule which, when activated, reduces the microbial load in collected body fluid waste by 99.9 percent. The germicide is capable of killing many types of bacteria and viruses, such as HIV, hepatitis B, herpes simplex I, and polio, at room temperature.

"Any time you can decontaminate infectious waste, it's safer for hospital staff," said Roger Stone, divisional director of perioperative nursing at Chicago's Cook County Hospital. "With this product, we'll also decrease the amount of infectious waste going to hazardous waste sites."

According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency: "Infectious waste which has been effectively treated is no longer biologically hazardous and may be mixed with and disposed of as ordinary waste, provided the waste does not pose other hazards that are subject to federal or state regulations."

Microbiological tests performed by Abbott Laboratories confirm that the use of SAF-GARD will destroy 99.9 percent of the micro-organisms present in collected samples.

"The feedback from our hospitals has been positive," said Mike Frisch, senior product manager, VHA Supply Company, Dallas. "We'll see a reduced risk of infection for our hospital workers."

Each liner contains the germicidal capsule plus two valves and locking features that provide two-step hospital safety. Collected fluid is safely stored in the system with special connection locks, one-way valves, and a filter that prevents accidental spilling.

The Receptal SAF-GARD suction sanitization system is part of Abbott's LifeShield line of infection control products. Other LifeShield products developed to protect hospital staff from infection- associated risks include needleless pump sets, fluid system delivery accessories, emergency syringes, and connectors used in IV administration.

Abbott Laboratories is a worldwide manufacturer of health care products employing 42,000 people. In 1989, the company's sales and net earnings were $5.4 billion and $860 million, respectively, with earnings per share of $1.93.

SPOKANE, WA. (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - The Washington Water Power Company's (NYSE: WWP) residential natural gas rates in Washington will decrease an average of $2.97 per month, or 9 percent, on Aug. 1 as a result of a July 30 ruling by the Washington Utilities and Transportation Commission (WUTC).

With this action, the company's Washington natural gas rates will reach their lowest levels since April 1978.

The commission approved the company's natural gas tracker request, which included a 0.587 cents per therm increase for the recovery of the Washington allocation of pipeline supplier settlement payments billed by Northwest Pipeline Corporation.

The tracker also included a 4.735 cent per therm decrease ordered by the commission in October 1989 to refund savings the company achieved through its pipeline interconnection with Pacific Gas Transmission Company (PGT). Both the PGT decrease and the supplier settlement payment increase will remain in effect for three years.

The Aug. 1 rate action, which will decrease rates a total of $4,752,000 annually, is the net result of a July 13 settlement with the WUTC of the company's general natural gas rate request, filed in March of this year; tracking increases; and the PGT refund. The company, in its settlement agreement with the commission, requested simultaneous implementation of the various rate actions in order to minimize the overall impact on its Washington customers.

HOUSTON (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Weatherford (AMEX: WII) today reported a second quarter 1990 net income of $2,142,000, or $0.07 per common share, compared to a net loss of $499,000, or ($0.08) per common share, for the same period a year ago.

Second quarter 1990 revenues increased by 9 percent to $35.8 million from $32.9 million for the same period a year ago.

For the first six months of 1990, the company reported net income of $3,558,000, or $0.12 per common share, compared to a net loss of $1,110,000, or ($0.17) per common share, for the same period a year ago. Six-month revenues were $69.7 million compared to $63.7 million for the same period a year ago, an increase of 9 percent.

Operating income in the second quarter of 1990 increased by 65 percent to $2,648,000, compared to $1,601,000 recorded in the second quarter of 1989. Six-month 1990 operating income reflected an 87 percent increase to $4,936,000, compared to $2,641,000 for the same period a year ago. Net income for the first half of 1990 was also positively impacted by a $2,435,000 reduction in net interest expense, primarily as a result of the November 1989 debt restructuring which reduced the company's debt by more than $41 million.

The domestic oilfield services operations continued to show significant improvement. Domestic operating income for the second quarter of 1990 was positive for the first time since 1982, resulting primarily from firmer pricing and improved domestic rig activity.

International revenues improved for the first half of 1990 compared to the same period last year, primarily as a result of increased product sales in the Middle East and higher levels of service activity in the North Sea region and Germany. International operating income declined slightly for the same period. This was due to an increase in research and development expenditures and a decrease in service revenues in the East Mediterranean region as a result of lower rig count and in West Africa as a result of delayed projects.

Weatherford is a diversified international energy service and manufacturing company that provides technical services and manufactures and markets specialty products and equipment used in oil and gas exploration and development.

Fully diluted earnings per share are considered to be equal to primary earnings per share in all periods presented because the effects of potentially dilutive securities, which are not common stock equivalents, were immaterial in 1990 and antidilutive in 1989.

MADISON HEIGHTS, MI (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Automobile alarm and security manufacturer Code-Alarm, Inc. (NASDAQ: CODL) announced today sales of $10,203,000 for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, up 43 percent vs. 1989. Earnings for the period were $536,000 compared to $555,000 in 1989.

Shares outstanding at the end of the 1990 second quarter were 2,588,000, compared to 2,112,200 in 1989.

Rand Mueller, president and CEO of Code-Alarm, Inc., said, "We are reasonably satisfied with our performance this quarter which has held up well despite persistent softness in the automobile industry. We were adversely affected by a costly and unsuccessful unionization drive which lowered manufacturing productivity and added to legal and administrative costs.

"Our six-months results show continued real growth in sales and a reasonable picture of the earnings. Comparing the first half of 1990 to the first half of 1989, sales rose 55 percent to $21,778,000 and earnings rose 52 percent to $1,223,000.

"Early indications of sales and earnings from our recently acquired Anes Security, Inc. are most encouraging, with the addition of several substantial mass-merchant agreements which will be announced soon," Mueller added.

PORT ARTHUR, TX (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. Intec Inc. (NASDAQ: INTK), today reported results of operations for the six months and the quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Sales increased $7,553,000 and $4,420,000 for the six month and three month periods in 1990, respectively, as compared to the same periods in 1989. The increase was related primarily to an increase in the number of rolls sold. Also included in sales for the six months of 1990 were sales through Intec/Permaglas, a division of the company. Permaglas manufactures and sells a complete line of roll products used in built-up roofing applications. The company purchased the assets of Evanite Permaglas, a division of Evanite Fiber Corp., on March 16, 1990. Sales for the period from acquisition through June 30, 1990 attributable to Permaglas were $1,861,000.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, gross profit increased $2,506,000 as compared to the same period in 1989. Gross profit as a percentage of sales for the six months in 1990 was 28.3 percent, or $9,517,000, as compared to 26.8 percent, or $7,011,000, for the same period in 1989. The increase in gross profit is attributable to reduced warranty, freight and storage costs. Also, 1989 gross profit was reduced by a writedown of obsolete inventory. Gross profit for the quarter ended June 30, 1990 increased $1,730,000 as compared to 1989 for the reasons noted in the six month comparison.

Selling, general and administrative expenses decreased from $7,578,000, or $29.0 percent as a percentage of sales, for the six months of 1989 to $6,864,000, or 20.4 percent, in 1990. The decrease is due to the continuing effects of a cost reduction program implemented in the last six months of 1989, and to the absence of costs incurred during the three months ended March 31, 1989 which related to evaluation of financial restructuring opportunities.

Net income for the six month period was $1,299,000, or 44 cents per share, as compared to a net loss of $1,743,000, or 58 cents per share, for the same period in 1989. For the three month period ended June 30, 1990, net income was $802,000, or 27 cents per share, as compared to a net loss of $1,320,000, or 44 cents per share, in 1989. The 1989 net loss included $1,225,000 relating to discontinuing the operations of Intec Marine Inc., the company's 80 percent-owned subsidiary that manufactured pontoon-hull boats.

The company manufactures and sells roofing materials used primarily in commercial re-roofing projects:

LONDON (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Hoverspeed Great Britain has been awarded the prestigious Hales Trophy for the Blue Riband of the Atlantic, following its record-breaking run in June this year.

Hoverspeed Ltd, the U.K. subsidiary of Sea Containers (NYSE: SCR), and owners of the wave-piercing catamaran (SeaCat), was delighted by today's announcement by the trustees of the Hales Trophy. This stated that the crossing was achieved at a higher average speed than the SS United States and that Hoverspeed Ltd now becomes the current holder of the trophy.

According to the craft's log, which was handed over to the trustees upon completion of the challenge, Hoverspeed Great Britain recorded an average speed of 36.966 knots. This is over 1 knot faster than the speed recorded by the SS United States in June 1952 and enabled the craft to cross the Atlantic Ocean over 2 hours and 30 minutes faster than the previous trophy holder.

On receiving the news, Robin Wilkins, managing director of Hoverspeed said:

"We are delighted by the trustees' decision to award the trophy to Hoverspeed Great Britain and we look forward to bringing it back to the U.K. The craft is due to start its regular service between Portsmouth and Cherbourg in August. We are sure that passengers will be equally impressed by the comfort and on-board facilities of this revolutionary vessel, as well as the speed which allowed it to achieve this Atlantic record and to carry them across the Channel in half the time taken by conventional ferries."

CHICAGO (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - VMS Hotel Investment Fund (AMEX: VHT), a Real Estate Investment Trust (REIT) originally sponsored by VMS Realty Partners, today announced it has taken title to the Silver Sands Motel in Key Biscayne, Fla.

"We are pleased to take this very important step in helping maximize the value of the fund to its shareholders," said Leonard G. Levine, president of the fund, in announcing the agreement. "Taking deed to the Silver Sands Motel through negotiations with VMS avoided court proceedings, thus saving everyone time and money."

The Silver Sands Motel, a 58-room facility, was formerly owned by an affiliate of VMS Realty Partners. The fund held a second mortgage on the property which at March 31, 1990, had secured outstanding indebtedness of$4.0 million. The Silver Sands loan had been in default since March, after VMS announced it would no longer make interest payments to the fund because of liquidity problems. The senior lender on the property has consented to the fund's taking possession of the property, Levine added.

Two other VMS-sponsored funds announced on July 25 that they have taken possession of the Key Biscayne Hotel development site, the first property to be taken back by the eight public funds since they became independent from VMS in February 1990.

VMS Hotel Investment Fund is among eight publicly traded REITs and MLPs established by VMS Realty Partners in the late 1980s to make mortgage loans to VMS-affiliated projects. The funds are currently in negotiations with VMS regarding approximately 85 loans collateralized by VMS-affiliated partnerships and joint ventures.

HOUSTON (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Reliability Inc. (NASDAQ: REAL) today announced revenues and results of operations for the period ended June 30, 1990.

Revenues for the six months ended June 30, 1990 were $17,800,000 down 12 percent from revenues of $20,225,000 for the same period in 1989. Operations for the first half of 1990 resulted in a net loss of $1,347,000 or 32 cents per share, compared to net income of $624,000 or 15 cents per share for the six months ended June 30, 1989.

Revenues for the quarter ended June 30, 1990 were $7,646,000 down 26 percent from revenues of $10,308,000 for the same period a year earlier. Operations for the second quarter of 1990 resulted in a net loss of $1,083,000, or 26 cents per share, compared to net income of $407,000, or 10 cents per share for the quarter ended June 30, 1989.

Backlog as of June 30, 1990 was $6,782,000, reflecting a 43 percent increase over the March 31, 1990 backlog of $4,759,000. Backlog at June 30, 1989 totalled $9,157,000.

A spokesman commented, "Although losses in the second quarter were larger than had been expected, it appears that the worst is behind us and that succeeding quarters of 1990 will show improvement, however, not sufficient to produce a profit for the year. Company backlog has increased by some $2 million over the first quarter and the outlook is for a gradual improvement in revenues throughout the balance of the year. This view is buttressed by the semiconductor book-to-bill ratio which remains above 1.0 to one as well as by industry analysts' views."

Reliability and its subsidiaries manufacture burn-in and test equipment, loading and unloading equipment and other peripherals for sale to manufacturers and volume users of integrated circuits. The company also manufactures a line of power sources, including DC-to-DC power converters, and provides conditioning and testing services for integrated circuits in Singapore and Durham. Harward, senior vice president and chief financial officer, said factors contributing to the changes in reported earnings for all comparative periods were merger related expenses and the effects of warmer than normal weather during the first six-months of 1990. Nonrecurring gains on the sale of assets and other adjustments are reflected in the 12-month-ended earnings for 1990. The July 1989 sale of assets caused 1990 revenues to decline for the three and six-months-ended as compared to the like period in 1989.

Electric sales to jurisdictional customers increased 5 percent for the current quarter as compared to a year ago reflecting warmer weather during the cooling season. Jurisdictional sales for the six and 12-month periods also increased approximately 2 percent.

Gas sales for the first six-months of 1990 were 13 percent lower than last year reflecting more mild weather conditions this year. The lower sales from weather are being partially offset by customer growth and increased economic activity in the utility service area.

Midwest Energy is a holding company with major interests in electric and natural gas utility operations and additional investments in diversified businesses. The company's utility operations provide electricity to 156,000 customers in 228 Iowa and 5 South Dakota communities and natural gas to 347,000 customers in 208 Iowa, 38 Minnesota, 8 South Dakota and 3 Nebraska communities.

Midwest Energy and Iowa Resources Inc. signed a definitive agreement to merge into Midwest Resources Inc., a newly created holding company. The merger was approved by the shareholders of Midwest Energy and Iowa Resources and the Iowa Utilities Board, and now awaits the approval of federal regulatory agencies. The merger is expected to become effective no later than Jan. 1, 1991.

LA JOLLA, CA (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation and the Scripps Memorial Hospitals, jointly founded in 1924 by La Jolla philanthropist Ellen Browning Scripps, will reunite effective Jan. 1, 1991.

Representatives of the two not-for-profit health care institutions today announced the planned affiliation, noting that a committee of trustees from both organizations will continue to meet to finalize plans for the new alliance, which will bring together hospital-based, private and medical group physicians, as well as research scientists, under one parent organization.

The two Scripps were first affiliated and located together on Prospect Street in La Jolla until 1946 when each developed its own community board of trustees and administration. Scripps Memorial Hospitals moved to the Torrey Pines Mesa in 1964. Scripps Clinic remained in the Prospect Street facilities until 1977, when operations were moved to its current site at 10666 N. Torrey Pines Rd.

Edwin H. Danenhauer, chairman of the Scripps Memorial Hospitals Board, and Gordon C. Luce, chairman of the Scripps Clinic Board, said that both volunteer boards feel strongly that the new affiliation will strengthen significantly both organizations and will benefit the San Diego communities both serve.

Charles C. Edwards, M.D., Scripps Clinic president, and Ames S. Early, Scripps Memorial Hospitals president, emphasized that patients who receive care from either institution will notice no change in the way they access or receive their future health care.

Both said they believed the community will be better served with a cooperative health care system rather than with competition between the two organizations. They also noted that the alliance will enable financial, human and technological resources to complement each other and, where appropriate, to be combined so that quality care will be delivered in the most cost-effective manner.

Scripps Memorial, in addition to the 456-bed La Jolla hospital on Genesee Avenue, has a 146-bed hospital in Encinitas, Calif., a 184-bed hospital in Chula Vista, Calif., the 161-bed Torrey Pines Convalescent hospital in La Jolla and the 99-bed Ocean View Convalescent hospital in Encinitas. Scripps Memorial recently announced plans to expand its Chula Vista hospital and to build a hospital and related health facilities in San Marcos, Calif. Additionally, Inland Valley Regional Medical Center, Temecula, Calif., is affiliated with Scripps Memorial. More than 1,250 physicians in a wide array of specialties have membership and privileges at these hospitals.

Located on 25 acres on North Torrey Pines Road, Scripps Clinic is a health care and biomedical research institution which includes more than 350 physicians who practice 50 different specialties. In addition to in-patient treatment at the 173-bed Green Hospital, Scripps Clinic doctors see patients in out-patient facilities at the Torrey Pines site and in regional offices in Rancho Bernardo, San Diego, Rancho San Diego, Escondido, San Marcos and San Jacinto, Calif.

The Research Institute of Scripps Clinic is the largest private research facility in the United States. Additional research laboratories and offices will be built on 21 acres recently purchased on the east side of North Torrey Pines Road, across from Scripps Clinic's current Torrey Pines facilities.

Edwards noted that, "We feel strongly that our patients and the community will benefit in a very positive way from the affiliation of our organizations. Our commonalities -- location, commitment to quality, service excellence for our patients -- complement our respective strengths in different areas of medicine and science. We anticipate a unique synergy from this new relationship that will have far-reaching implications for the delivery of quality health care."

The two organizations have combined budgets of more than $820 million with 7,200 employees. In the San Diego area, only General Dynamics is a larger non-governmental employer.

"Size alone is not a measure of quality," Early emphasized, "but the ability to bring together the strengths of each will make San Diego a major health center in the United States. Both Scripps Clinic and the Hospitals have been recognized as providers of the highest standards of care and each has developed particularly strong areas of medical expertise."

Charles R. (Red) Scott, a member of the Scripps Memorial Hospitals Foundation Board and a member of the committee which has been working to effect the reunification, said that the Fund for Greatness, the Hospitals' $100 million fund-raising campaign which he chairs, will continue to its successful completion. The Fund, begun in 1988, has achieved $55 million of its goal for capital and endowment at the Hospitals.

Plans for a major capital fund-raising campaign for Scripps Clinic will also continue.

CLEVELAND (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - The Standard Products Co. (NYSE: SPD) today reported sales and net income for its 1990 fiscal year.

Sales for the year ended July 1, 1990 totaled $651,859,000, as compared with sales of $558,861,000 the year before. Net income for the year was $11,791,000, or $1.16 per share, versus income of $28,689,000, or $2.71 a share the previous year.

In the Company's fourth fiscal quarter, sales totaled $177,903,000, an increase of $7,686,000 over last year's fourth quarter sales of $170,217,000. Net income for the quarter was $4,881,000, or 48 cents per share, as compared with $7,372,000, or 70 cents per share last year.

The increase in sales in the fourth quarter was due in part to a $5,400,000 increase in sales of military track components and to a $3,500,000 increase in sales of North American automotive original equipment parts. The increased automotive original equipment sales occurred despite an 8% decline in North American carbuild.

Earnings in the fourth quarter were adversely affected by continuing high development and start-up costs in the United Kingdom in preparation for the 1992 Ford Crown Victoria and Mercury Grand Marquis production to start late this calendar year.

Sales of Oliver Rubber for the quarter were $29,220,000, a decline of $3,782,000 from sales of $33,002,000 a year ago. The combined effect of softer market conditions and severe competitive pressure resulted in a decline in fourth quarter tread rubber earnings.

Fourth quarter operating results also reflect the deferral of certain start-up costs amounting to approximately 8 cents per share by the Company's joint venture, Nishikawa Standard Company.

Cleveland-based Standard Products manufactures rubber and plastic parts for the automotive original equipment industry, rubberized track for military vehicles, and plastic and magnetic door seals for home appliances. LONG GROVE, IL (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Kemper Corporation (NYSE: KEM) today reported a net loss from continuing operations of $111.2 million, or $2.28 per share, for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared with net income from continuing operations of $54.4 million, or $1.09 per share, for the same period in 1989. Reflected in the net loss are after-tax realized investment gains from continuing operations of $11.6 million, or $.23 per share, for second-quarter 1990, compared with losses of $0.5 million, or $.01 per share, for second-quarter 1989. The 1990 second quarter includes after-tax charges totaling $161.1 million, or $3.30 per share. These after-tax charges reflect $141.6 million in brokerage firm restructuring charges (an increase of $15.1 million over the previously announced brokerage firm restructuring charges) and the previously announced $19.5 million NASD arbitration panel award. The company increased the restructuring charge to $141.6 million from the previously announced $126.5 million primarily due to write-offs of certain organizational costs, lease commitments,new employee benefits and increases in legal and bad debt reserves and expenses.

Excluding these after-tax charges, net income for the second quarter would have been $49.9 million, or $1.02 per share.

The second-quarter 1990 net loss for continuing and discontinued operations together was also $111.2 million, or $2.28 per share, since discontinued operations had no income in the period. Continuing and discontinued operations together had net income of $121.7 million, or $2.46 per share, in the second quarter of 1989. See "Discontinued Operations" and "Other Factors Affecting Results."

Kemper Corporation's net loss from continuing operations for the first six months of 1990 was $72.3 million, or $1.48 per share, compared with net income of $124.6 million, or $2.29 per share, for the same period in 1989. CHICAGO, (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - John A. Wing, president of The Chicago Corporation, announced today that well known economist Robert J. Genetski,

Ph.D., has joined the firm as senior vice president and chief economist. Formerly chief economist at the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, where he worked for 17 years, Genetski is the author of several books, the most recent entitled: "Taking the Voodoo Out of Economics." Since October 1988 Genetski has been president of Stotler Economics, Inc. In addition, Brian S. Wesbury, who has worked with Genetski for the past seven years, will join The Chicago Corporation as a vice president and economist.

At The Chicago Corporation, Genetski will publish "Chicago Economics," a lively economic review and forecasting service based on proprietary economic and market models which he has developed.

Genetski is best known for his highly accurate predictions that often counter the mainstream of current economic thought as well as for his ability to make the subject of economics both interesting and understandable. He was one of the first economists to detect a significant slowdown in productivity in the early 1970s. In 1981, he forecast an extended period of recovery with lower inflation as a result of the Reagan tax cuts. He accurately predicted both the decline and recovery in the value of the U.S. dollar and, in 1989, saw the Japanese yen as one of the most overvalued currencies in the world and called the Japanese stock market "a textbook example of a speculative bubble waiting to burst."

Genetski is a member of Bob Eggert's "Blue Chip Forecasters" and has been honored by Institutional Investor magazine for his interest rate forecasting ability. In 1988, he finished first in overall accuracy in that magazine's survey of interest rate forecasts from 50 leading economists. He has taught economics at New York University and at the University of Chicago's Graduate School of Business. Currently, he is an economic columnist for the Nikkei Financial Daily, Japan's leading business newspaper.

Founded in 1965, The Chicago Corporation provides a comprehensive range of services including the underwriting and distribution of equities, corporate and municipal finance, investment advisory and asset management. It serves financial institutions, corporations and other businesses, individual investors, fiduciaries and securities and commodities dealers. ARLINGTON, TX (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - BizMart Inc., (NASDAQ: BZMT) one of the nation's fastest-growing office products superstore retailers, today reported that sales for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 ended July 28 reached $48.3 million, 145 percent higher than a year ago, based on unaudited initial numbers. Comparable stores sales, including stronger July comparisons, were 22 percent ahead for the 15 stores open during the same period of both years. Earnings results for the quarter will be released during the week of Aug. 20.

"As we noted during recent investment community meetings, the company has experienced some softness in sales in all its markets during this quarter " said Ron Stegall, president and chief executive officer. "We believe this is a normal seasonality trend, but this is the first year that BizMart's store base has been large enough and established enough for us to be able to discern any seasonality," said Stegall.

BizMart has continued its rapid expansion with nine new stores opened during the quarter, including seven in the Houston market. The company had 41 stores in operation at the end of the quarter.

"Our expansion into the Houston market positions the company for strong future growth. We have been able to penetrate this major market with a sizeable number of stores very quickly which should enable us to achieve a major share of this market earlier than originally anticipated," said Stegall.

"Pre-opening expenses associated with the nine new stores opened during this summer period and two stores that will open early in our second quarter will be a significant factor in the company's first quarter results. This major expansion, coupled with the soft summer sales in the first quarter will contribute to a loss in the initial quarter of this fiscal year," Stegall pointed out. "Looking to fiscal 1991 as a whole, we believe our sales and earnings comparisons will be very positive."

BizMart Inc. operates 41 high-volume office products superstores in Texas, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Arizona, Nevada, New Mexico and Utah. Over 7,000 high-quality, brand-name office products are sold to small and large businesses at everyday low prices that are discounted 40 to 60 percent from manufacturers' suggested retail prices.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed United Savings Bank, Vienna, Va., in receivership and chartered a new federal mutual institution to take its place.

The new institution, United Federal Savings Bank, will assume certain assets and liabilities of the old thrift, and will operate in conservatorship under the management of the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC).

The receivership did not result in any interruption of United's day-to-day operations. The institution will remain open for business as usual, as will all 15 of its branches, which are located in Northern Virginia. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund. Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because United was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition which was likely to have caused substantial dissipation of assets or earnings, weakened the condition of the institution or prejudiced the interests of its depositors. United was not likely to have been able to meet the demands of its depositors or to pay its obligations in the normal course of business.

United's condition is due primarily to an excessive concentration of poorly underwritten commercial real estate loans and acquisition, development and construction (ADC) loans.

In the mid-1980s, under prior management, United embarked on a rapid-growth strategy fueled by commercial development lending. The strategy exposed the institution to undue credit risk, which was exacerbated by the recent slowdown in the Washington-area real estate market.

Moreover, United had inadequate loan classification and review policies, and relied excessively on jumbo and brokered deposits to fund its loans and investments. As of June 30, 1990, $15.2 million of the institution's assets were classified as loss; an additional $81.4 million in assets were non-earning or troubled. Since May 1989, the institution had been operating under a supervisory agreement restricting growth and investments.

United had net losses of $6.5 million in calendar year 1989, and $11.5 million for the first six months of 1990. The institution is insolvent in that it has negative tangible, core and risk-based capital.

United Savings Bank was a state-chartered stock association. As of March 15, 1990, the institution reported approximately 1.14 million shares of outstanding common stock traded over the counter. Shareholders will retain no interest in the new institution.

As of June 30, 1990, United had $415.6 million in assets, $414.9 million in liabilities, and tangible capital of negative $2.97 million, for a tangible capital-to-assets ratio of negative 0.71 percent.

SEATTLE (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Two newly developed hot-gas rocket valves that enable spacecraft to realize liquid-fuel performance from solid rocket fuel have been successfully tested for the Boeing Defense & Space Group, the company said today.

The valves are key propulsion elements of the U.S. Air Force's Lightweight Exo-Atmospheric Projectile (LEAP) missile-defense development program. LEAP is a space-based kinetic kill vehicle being developed by Boeing for the Air Force as part of the Strategic Defense Initiative to protect the United States from enemy missiles.

The tiny hot-gas valves are crucial to the success of the five-and-a-half kilogram, solid-motor projectile being developed by Boeing. LEAP does not contain explosives; it tracks, targets and then destroys enemy missiles in space by smashing into them at very high speeds. To do this, the projectile must have dependable rocket power for lateral motion and attitude-control capabilities.

Solid rocket fuel is less flammable than liquid fuel, making it more stable, safer and easier to handle. The flow of liquid fuel, on the other hand, can be readily adjusted (within milliseconds) to increase or decrease power to a rocket engine -- offering greater response and performance.

The breakthrough test of the new rocket valves should allow Boeing to combine liquid fuel performance and solid fuel stability in the LEAP projectile.

The LEAP propulsion system employs varying sizes of solid fuel grains, known as multiple-pulse solid fuel. The new valves are key parts of the system, controlling gas flow to 10 rocket nozzles that provide both lateral motion and attitude control.

The two valve assemblies were tested successfully in Thiokol Corp. simulation facilities at Elkton, Md.

Thiokol builds the propulsion unit as a subcontractor to Boeing. Allied-Signal Aerospace's Garrett Fluid Systems Division, Tempe, Ariz., produces the valves for Thiokol.

The attitude-control valve, weighing only two ounces, worked successfully for 40 seconds at a simulated altitude of 100,000 feet, exceeding all specifications.

The large diverter valve also was tested for 40 seconds at a simulated altitude of 100,000 feet. It too exceeded all performance requirements.

Thiokol also successfully fired a LEAP flightweight gas generator in a design-verification test. The motor burned as planned for 37 seconds.

Testing of a completely integrated LEAP propulsion subsystem is scheduled for next year.

The Aerospace & Electronics Division of Boeing Defense & Space Group is under contract to the Air Force Space Technology Center at Kirtland Air Force Base, N.M., to develop LEAP.

KANSAS CITY, MO (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Cerner Corp. (NASDAQ: CERN) today reported that for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, revenues increased 21 percent to $15.2 million from $12.6 million. Net earnings increased 54 percent to $1.3 million, or $.36 per share, from $845,000, or $.23 per share, for the same period in 1989.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, revenues decreased six percent to $24.2 million from $25.9 million in the comparable 1989 period. Net earnings decreased 29 percent to $939,000 from $1.3 million in the year-ago period. Earnings per share decreased 31 percent to $.25 per share from $.36 per share.

Clifford W. Illig, president and chief executive officer, said, "We are pleased with our performance in the second quarter. Thirty-six cents per share represents the second-best quarter in our history. However, considering the disappointing first quarter, we are still behind in meeting our earnings objectives for the year.

"We added 11 clients during the quarter and are making solid progress in increasing the number of deliverable Cerner products while progressively improving our client service capabilities. The marketing activities for the recently released RadNet(TM) Radiology Information System and PharmNet(TM) Pharmacy Information System products are moving forward, and we find market interest for both products encouraging."

Illig continued, "Our client base continues to expand based on new system sales of our PathNet(R) Laboratory Information System. The annuity revenue stream associated with servicing our installed base of clients is growing each quarter. Our financial goals for 1990 have included measurable, second-half contributions from the RadNet and PharmNet products.

"However, while progress made with both new products is on target, we are unable to predict with certainty when we will see significant revenue impact from either new product due to the length and complexity of hospital purchasing cycles. We continue to encourage our shareholders to use conservative expectations for Cerner's earnings growth in 1990."

During the quarter, Cerner repurchased 505,713 of its common stock held by First Capital Corporation of Chicago and its affiliates for $11 per share. The transaction represented 13.8 percent of the shares outstanding.

Cerner Corp. is a leading supplier of clinical information systems to the health care industry. All Cerner systems are designed around a central structure called Healthcare Network Architecture (HNA).

Through HNA, Cerner is able to deliver application software products that first and foremost serve the unique needs of each clinical discipline, while allowing unprecedented management and cross-disciplinary medical applications. The company, which includes three locations, was acquired from owners John Paglia Jr. and Michael Paglia. The facilities will operate as All American Recycling, a division of Commercial Metals Co.

BERKELEY, CA (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - XOMA Corp. (NASDAQ: XOMA) today announced financial results for the second quarter of 1990.

For the quarter ending June 30, 1990, XOMA recorded net revenues of $4.1 million and posted a net loss of $5.9 million (43 cents per share), compared with second-quarter 1989 net revenues of $2.6 million and a net loss of $4.1 million (31 cents per share).

Revenues for the first half of 1990 totaled $11.7 million, compared with $4.4 million for the same period in 1989. The company's net loss during the first six months of 1990 was $9.3 million (68 cents per share), compared with $8.4 million (64 cents per share) in the 1989 first half. XOMA had current assets of $93.8 million and stockholders' equity of $25.5 million as of June 30, 1990.

Research and development expenses were $6.3 million and $6.2 million in the 1990 and 1989 second quarters, respectively. General and administrative expenses were $2.1 million in the 1990 second quarter and $1.4 million in the comparable 1989 period. The increase in general and administrative expenses in the 1990 period was primarily due to costs associated with product launch preparations and legal fees arising from patent litigation.

"This quarter's revenues include $2.0 million in product sales of E5(R) (formerly Xomen(TM)-E5) to Pfizer Inc., XOMA's exclusive licensee for this anti-sepsis therapeutic," commented Steven C. Mendell, chairman and chief executive officer of XOMA. "The prior year's net revenues came principally from contract research and development projects."

XOMA is a leading biotechnology company developing monoclonal antibody- and other protein-based therapeutic products. XOMA has product license applications pending before the Food and Drug Administration to market its first two products -- E5(R), for the treatment of gram-negative sepsis, and XomaZyme(R)-CD5 Plus, for the treatment of graft-versus-host disease in bone marrow transplant patients who are unresponsive to conventional therapy.

CALGARY, ALBERTA (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - In the first six months of 1990, Asamera Minerals Inc. (Montreal, Toronto: ASM) had cash flow provided by operations of $4,892,000, compared with $7,267,000 for the same period in 1989. Cash flow for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, was $2,472,000 compared with $4,335,000 for the second quarter of 1989. The decline was due to a reduction in net income and the fact that proceeds were received in 1989 from the settlement of an insurance claim.

Net income for the first half of 1990 was $601,000, compared with $1,459,000 in the first half of 1989. Net income in the second quarter of 1990 was $204,000, compared with $489,000 in the second quarter of 1989. The decline was the result of lower revenues and higher expenses.

Minerals sales for the first half of 1990 were $17,083,000, down 5 percent from the first half of 1989, and $8,510,000 for the second quarter of 1990 down 8 percent from the same period a year ago. Although average prices were up for both the quarter and six-month periods, gold volumes shipped were down as lower-grade ore was mined in 1990.

Operating expenses for both the first half and the second quarter of 1990 were both 13 per cent higher than in the same periods last year, primarily as a result of the Gooseberry tailings project, which was not in production in the first half of 1989.

Total shipments for the first half were 38,080 net ounces of gold and 239,151 net ounces of silver, a decrease of 7 percent and an increase of 14 percent, respectively, over the first half of 1989. Second quarter shipments were 19,513 net ounces of gold and 114,470 net ounces of silver, a decrease of 9 percent and an increase of 12 percent, respectively, compared with the second quarter of 1989.

DALLAS (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Enserch Exploration Partners Ltd. (EP) (NYSE: EP) has announced that second-quarter 1990 net income was $4.5 million, compared with $10.3 million for the like period a year earlier. Net income per unit for the first quarter 1990 was four cents versus 10 cents for the second quarter 1989.

Second-quarter weighted average units outstanding were 102.5 million, unchanged from a year ago. At June 30, 1990, ENSERCH Corp. (NYSE: ENS) owned 101.7 million units, or about 99 percent of the total partnership units outstanding.

R. G. Fowler, president of Enserch Exploration Inc., managing general partner of EP, attributed decreased second-quarter earnings to lower gas prices and increased amortization costs. In addition, earnings in the second quarter of 1989 were boosted in part by the receipt of a contingency fee when a cogeneration plant near Sweetwater, Texas, began commercial operation.

Net cash flows from operating activities were $22.0 million, compared with $29.5 million a year earlier.

Second-quarter 1990 operating income was $7.0 million, down from $12.7 million for the second quarter 1990. Revenues for the second quarter 1990 were $44.2 million compared with $47.6 million for the year-ago period.

Natural-gas sales volumes (net-after royalties) for the second quarter 1990 were 19.2 billion cubic feet (Bcf), up from 18.9 Bcf for the like period of 1989. The average sales price was $1.66 per thousand cubic feet (Mcf), down five percent from $1.74 per Mcf in the second quarter of 1989.

Oil sales volumes (net-after royalties) were 676,000 barrels (MBbls) for the second quarter, down from 717 MBbls for the like period a year ago. The average sales price increased to $17.60 per barrel from $16.67 a year earlier.

Enserch Exploration Inc. is managing general partner of Enserch Exploration Partners Ltd., a Texas limited partnership, in which ENSERCH Corp. owns more than a 99 percent interest. These results continue to reflect a strong contribution from the operation of the natural gas processing business due largely to higher propane prices on a year over year comparison.

The fine chemical facility in Ireland has shown improvement over its first half 1989 results through increased marketing efforts.

Discontinued operations reflect the sale, in the second quarter of 1990, of the erythromycin facility in Long Beach, Calif. The 1989 operating results for this facility have been restated in order to ensure that results from continuing operations are comparable.

CALGARY, Alberta (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Gulf Canada Resources Limited's cash generated from continuing operations before exploration expenses was $158 million for the six months ended June 30, 1990, compared with $219 million for the same period in 1989. The absence of Beaufort Sea drilling activity this year accounted for $40 million of the decrease. Lower production volumes were also a factor. Cash generated for the three months ended June 30, 1990, was $45 million, compared with $122 million for the same period a year earlier. The major additional factor affecting second quarter cash generated was the world-wide drop in crude oil prices.

Losses from continuing operations for the first half of 1990 were $51 million, compared with earnings of $52 million for the first six months of 1989. Losses for the second quarter of 1990 were $69 million compared with earnings of $25 million for the second quarter of 1989. In addition to the factors affecting cash generation, earnings were negatively affected by losses on asset dispositions and higher frontier exploration expenses.

The Beaufort Sea remains a strategic part of Gulf's long-term plans, but neither Gulf nor the industry have any immediate plans for exploration drilling in the area. As a result, the company included in its second quarter exploration expenses a non-cash charge of $69 million related to previously incurred frontier exploration costs.

Gross sales of crude oil, natural gas liquids and synthetic crude oil averaged 91,000 barrels per day for the first half of 1990, down 10 percent compared with the same period a year ago. The decrease was primarily due to natural declines from existing fields in Indonesia, temporary operational problems at Syncrude, and lower sales of natural gas liquids. Natural gas sales in the first half of 1990 averaged 326 million cubic feet per day, down slightly from a year ago.

Investing activities required $682 million for the first half of 1990. This included $492 million in the second quarter for the purchase of a 22.8 percent interest in Interhome Energy Inc. The purchase, together with a series of proposed transactions, is expected to result by year-end in Gulf's merger with the oil and gas business of Interhome.

CALGARY, Alberta (JULY 31) PR NEWSWIRE - Bow Valley Industries Ltd. (Toronto: BVI) announced today that net income for the six months ended June 30, 1990 was $17.7 million, representing an improvement of $3.9 million or 28 percent from the $13.8 million earned during the same period last year. Total operating revenues were essentially unchanged from the prior year as higher gas prices were offset by declines in oil prices and oil and gas production volumes. Funds generated from operations were $89.5 million for the six months ended June 30, 1990 compared with $92.0 million generated during the comparable period in 1989. The decline in funds generated primarily reflects higher cash royalties and income taxes.

As a result of fluctuating international oil prices, Bow Valley's average oil price decreased by 2 percent to Cdn $19.58 per barrel in the first half of 1990 from the same period last year. During the second quarter, in particular, Bow Valley's average oil price was almost 20 percent below the levels realized during the first quarter of 1990 and the second quarter of 1989. Subsequent to the quarter-end, international oil prices have strengthened considerably. The company's average gas price for its Canadian production increased by 9 percent to $1.52 per Mcf in the first six months of 1990 from $1.39 per Mcf in the first half of 1989.

Average daily oil production for the first six months of 1990 was 33,878 barrels compared with 35,328 barrels in the first six months of last year. The decrease in crude production is attributable to lower Indonesian output due to the natural productivity decline of the mature fields. A gas cycling scheme has been implemented in the Ramba 'A' field with good initial results which demonstrate stablizing and slightly increasing oil production. A waterflood scheme at the Ramba 'B' field is also under development with start-up scheduled for the fourth quarter of 1990. Brae oil production has averaged 17,790 barrels per day in the first half of 1990, representing an increase of 7 percent over the equivalent period for 1989, which is adversely impacted by a 23 day maintenance shutdown. Western Canadian daily gas production decreased slightly from 187.6 MMcf in the first six months of 1989 to 180.9 MMcf in the first half of 1990, reflecting warmer weather during the heating season in the first quarter of 1990.

Capital expenditures during the first half of 1990 totalled $79.7 million, representing an increase of 40 percent over the $56.9 million spent during the same period in 1989, excluding acquisitions. Oil and gas exploration expenditures increased by 64 percent to $35.5 million while development expenditures rose by 31 percent to $42.3 million. Expenditures amounted to $44.1 million in Canada, $21.7 million in Europe, $10.9 million in Indonesia and $1.1 million for other international operations. In addition, $1.9 million was spent on mining properties. In the first half of 1990, Bow Valley completed 29 gross exploratory and 71 gross development wells with success rates of 55 percent and 82 percent, respectively.

(JULY 31) UPI - Conflicting reports are coming from the Caribbean nation of Trinidad and Tobago... where a coup attempt began Friday. Earlier, it was reported a deal had collapsed that possibly could have resolved the crisis. Now, a Trinidad television reporter quotes Prime Minister Arthur Robinson saying he has indeed agreed to step down and grant amnesty to Moslem rebels holding him and other officials hostage. But sources say police oppose the agreement. And it is NOT clear how it could be carried out.

Polish television says the former Communist government foiled and then covered up a plot to kill Pope John Paul during a 1983 visit to his homeland. The report quotes a law professor. He says the plot was disclosed at the 1985 trial of four former secret agents who were convicted of killing pro-Solidarity priest Jerzy Popieluszko . The professor is about to publish a book about the cover-up.

Some relief may be in sight for those annoyed by computerized phone sales pitches and junk fax letters. By voice vote late Monday, the House approved a measure that would ban the use of facsimile machines and automatic dialer recorded message players for UNsolicited advertising. The pre-recorded messages often go out to entire blocks of numbers in sequence tying up phone lines. Junk fax is blamed for tying up machines waiting to receive legitimate business calls.

A jury in Fort Myers, Florida, convicted a man Monday of first-degree murder and aggravated child abuse in the potty-training death of his stepson. Two-year-old Bradley McGee died July 28th, 1989... one day after being plunged head-first into a toilet as punishment for soiling his pants. His stepfather, 23-year-old Thomas Coe, could be sentenced to die in Florida's electric chair.

(JULY 31) UPI - California Governor George Deukmejian vetoed legislation Monday that would have banned foam food containers made with ozone-eating chlorofluorocarbons, or C-F-C's. It's the second year in a row the governor has nixed such legislation. Deukmejian says the measure is NOT needed because the industry is already abandoning the use of C-F-C's voluntarily.

One of six candidates for governor in Thursday's Republican primary in Tennessee says reports of his death have been greatly exaggerated. 67-year-old Charles Moffett is listed as dead in the latest edition of a book published by the Tennessee Historical Commission. But Moffett says he's ''very much alive.'' He jokes that he hopes mourners will send money instead of flowers.

FORT MYERS, FL (JULY 31) UPI - A jury must decide whether the electric chair is warranted for a man convicted of murder for plunging his 2-year-old stepson headfirst into a toilet to punish the toddler for soiling his pants.

Thomas Coe, 23, was convicted Monday of first-degree murder and aggravated child abuse by a jury that deliberated less than two hours. The jurors will begin considering Coe's fate Wednesday.

Coe, seated between his two public defenders, showed no emotion as the court clerk read the guilty verdicts. His mother, Mary Coe Anders, wept softly and tightly grasped the hand of her ex-husband, Don Coe.

The defendant's father said little after the verdict. Looking straight ahead into the courtroom, he said, ''We had hopes, naturally.''

Thomas Coe had acknowledged to police that he dunked Bradley McGee headfirst into a porcelain toilet bowl on July 27, 1989, as a means of punishment, but he maintained that he never intended to harm the toddler.

Bradley's death the next day led to unprecedented charges against four state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services workers, and sparked reform of Florida's child welfare system.

Coe's wife, Sheryl McGee Coe, 21, pleaded no contest to a reduced charge of second-degree murder and was sentenced to 30 years in prison. She agreed to cooperate with prosecutors by testifying against her husband.

Jim Kirkland, a foster parent who cared for Bradley before he was returned to the custody of his mother and stepfather shortly before his death, welcomed the verdict. ''I have mixed emotions,'' he said. ''I'm real sad for Coe, but I think the jury made the right decision.''

Polk County Assistant State Attorney John Aguero called the verdict ''appropriate.'' He also said the conviction will send a message to others who abuse children. ''We're willing to take cases like this to court and a jury will convict,'' he said.

Public Defender Robert Norgard declined comment.

In his closing argument, Norgard urged the jury to convict his client only of manslaughter, arguing that Coe was negligent but not homicidal when he turned Bradley upside down and lowered him into the toilet.

''All Thomas Coe wanted to do that day is to get Bradley potty trained,'' he said. ''In the heat of the moment, he came up with something that is unusual. ... Mr. Coe, when he hit (Bradley's) head on the toilet, did something known as manslaughter.''

But Aguero told jurors that Coe consistently abused the boy in the weeks before his death, and he held up photos showing Bradley's bruised body to drive home his point. ''Torture and malicious punishment, that's what we're talking about,'' he said.

The jury deliberated only one hour and 50 minutes to convict Coe of murder. Polk County Circuit Judge Randell McDonald ordered the jury to return Wednesday to decide whether Coe should be sentenced to death. The judge will not be bound by the panel's decision.

The three-week trial, which was moved to Fort Myers from Polk County because of publicity, featured testimony from both Coe and his wife, each accusing the other of abusing Bradley.

Thomas Coe told jurors Friday that he meted out the fatal punishment after his wife told him ''do something'' to potty train the boy.

But Sheryl Coe testified earlier that her husband consistently abused Bradley. On one occasion, Thomas Coe forced Bradley to pick up feces with his mouth, she said.

Four child welfare workers were charged with failing to report child abuse regarding the boy, and one also was charged with felony child abuse.

Margaret Barber, 62, was convicted in June of the more serious charge and placed on three years' probation for mishandling the case and recommending that Bradley be returned to his parents two months before his death.

Two other workers were acquitted and charges against a third were dropped.

RENO, NV (JULY 31) UPI - Such phrases as ''try suicide'' can be heard on the heavy-metal band Judas Priest's album ''Stained Class'' when it is played backwards, a computer expert testified on behalf of the parents of two young men who killed themselves after spending hours listening to the record.

Victoria Evans, a mathematics and computer science professor at the University of Nevada at Reno, testified Monday in the federal product liability lawsuit in which the British band and CBS Records are accused of being responsible for a suicide pact between the young men in 1985.

Evans told U.S. District Judge Jerry Whitehead, who is hearing the case without a jury, that she was hired in May to examine the record in an effort to detect subliminal messages.

Suellen Fulstone, the lawyer for Judas Priest, said band members would testify this week, possibily as early as Tuesday.

A victory for the parents could force producers to screen lyrics on their records or face the possibility of having to pay large punitive damages in similar cases.

Evans' testimony supported that of a sound engineer from Sacramento, Calif., who testified earlier that he had found the same hidden messages. There has been conflicting testimony from experts hired by the opposing sides about the effect such subliminal messages could have on listeners.

Evans, who used a computer to decipher the phrases, said the subliminal messages ''try suicide'' and ''it's dead'' are audible when ''Heroes End '' a song on ''Stained Class,'' is played backwards.

In another song on the album, ''Better than You, Better by Me,'' Evans said she also found the phrase ''do it'' hidden in several places.

The families of Raymond Belknap and James Vance allege the messages invaded the young men's subconscious minds, prompting them to shoot themselves after listening to hours of Judas Priest music, drinking beer and smoking marijuana in Belknap's room on Dec. 23, 1985.

The youths ripped up the room, then took a sawed-off shotgun to a nearby playground where they shot themselves. Belknap, 18, died instantly. Vance, 20, shot away his face below the eyes and lived for three years before dying of complications of his injuries.

Judas Priest and CBS Records, which distributes the band's albums, deny there are any hidden messages on ''Stained Class,'' which was produced in 1978. Defense lawyers have said the young men were driven to suicide by troubled lives that included problems with school, parents, girlfriends and the law.

Whitehead ruled before the trial that while lyrics are protected by the First Amendment's guarantees of free speech, subliminal messages do not have this protection because they ''are intended to influence ... the listener without his knowledge'' and damages can be awarded.

Susan Rusk, a high school counselor, testified Monday that Vance told her the two had started talking about suicide while listening to the record, and they started reciting the phrase, ''Just do it.''

But in a deposition, Vance said he never heard the phrase ''do it'' on the record. He also did not mention that the two men had said anything like ''do it.''

In at least three previous cases, heavy metal fans have killed themselves after listening to the album ''Suicide Solution'' by the rock singer Ozzy Ozbourne, who also has recorded for CBS.

One suit was dismissed before trial when a court ruled that song lyrics are protected by the First Amendment. A second is still pending, and heavy metal is no longer a factor in the third.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - Promised restraint has given way to bitterness in budget negotiations between the administration and Congress, casting doubt on near-term odds for an agreement and a fast-approaching congressional recess.

President Bush invited congressional leaders to the White House on Tuesday to discuss how - and even whether - the negotiators might overcome suspicion and frustration spawned by a lack of demonstrable progress to date.

Key among the questions before them was whether Congress should be persuaded or forced by Bush to postpone the start of a planned August recess, set to begin as early as Friday for the House, to keep the budget talks alive.

''It seems to me the president's got a tough decision to make,'' Senate Republican leader Robert Dole told reporters.

Partisan tempers flared Monday in a display of theatrics that saw Republicans accuse Democrats of bad faith in a standoff over which side should take the initiative in laying out initial positions on how best to cut the deficit.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, charged the Democrats reneged on a commitment last week to a simultaneous exchange of comprehensive deficit-reduction proposals. ''They've got a blank piece of paper and we've got a plan,'' said Dole.

In point of fact, House GOP leader Robert Michel conceded the Republicans had a plan only in ''nebulous form.'' Nonetheless, he asserted the Democrats had an obligation to come forward with at least the outlines of an initial offer.

''They were the party that asked that revenues be on the table,'' Michel said, ''and you'd think of all things they'd be the first to come up with some kind of revenue plan.''

Democrats complained that they had heard only ''bits and pieces'' of what House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., characterized as ''a rumored plan'' on GOP side. They demanded that Republicans go first in laying a proposal on the table.

From the other side came a retort that only added to the conundrum: ''There cannot be a Republican proposal until there is a Democratic proposal,'' said assistant House GOP leader Newt Gingrich.

Whether the histrionics signaled real trouble or mere bluster was unclear. While hinting Democrats may be held responsible for ''a train wreck on the budget,'' Gramm would not say the talks were on the verge of failure.

The budget talks took a turn for the worse last week when, after stepped-up intervention by Bush and a pledge to tone down the rhetoric, the two sides were said to be working on separate plans that would be used as starting points in a search for common ground.

However, the swap of tax-and-spending proposals never took place. Republicans alluded to the broad outlines of a GOP plan without placing one on the table. Democrats were torn over the provisions of such a plan and its politics.

By Monday, amid cries of foul, Foley indicated the Democrats might wait to see whether the Republican proposal, still under wraps, ''can lead to effective negotiations'' on a compromise blend of tax hikes, spending cuts and fees.

''Is it useful at this juncture to lay down these plans this week, or to refine them and discuss them during the recess?'' Foley asked in describing the impasse to reporters. ''I am not sure which is the best plan.''

Time, in any event, is not on the side of the budget summiteers. Failure to enact a major deficit-reduction plan by Oct. 1, the start of the new fiscal year, would trigger automatic spending cuts and reductions in government services.

Excluding tens of billions allotted to the savings-and-loan industry bailout, the administration has projected a $168.6 billion deficit for next year, far above the $64 billion target set by the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings balanced-budget law.

The budget talks have been aiming at $50 billion in savings next year and $500 billion over five years, which would require a change in the law to extend the timetable for balancing the budget.

Another approaching complication is the need to increase the government's borrowing authority.

The current debt limit of $3.12 trillion will be reached during the August recess, meaning Congress will have to pass at least a short-term extension to prevent the government from going into default on its obligations.

(JULY 31) UPI - Police sources in Trinidad and Tobago say as many as 200 police officers have been killed in fighting with the Moslem rebels attempting to overthrow the government. Earlier reports placed the death toll at about 50 in the coup attempt that began Friday. A national television reporter in the Caribbean nation quotes Prime Minister Arthur Robinson saying he has agreed to resign and grant amnesty to the rebels holding him and other officials hostage. But it's NOT clear how the deal could be carried out. And the sources say the acting police commissioner opposes the agreement.

Officials in the northern Philippines report Tuesday that at least 17 people were killed in a landslide on a mountain highway, 110 miles north of Manila. They say the slide was triggered by heavy rains and aftershocks to the July 16th earthquake that killed more than 16-hundred people. More than 700 aftershocks have shaken the Southeast Asian island nation since that quake.

President Bush has agreed to meet Tuesday morning with House Speaker Thomas Foley and other congressional leaders... in part to discuss how to keep the budget negotiations alive. The summit erupted in partisan bickering Monday, with each side blaming the other for the lack of progress. Republican leaders describe President Bush as ''a little frustrated'' and still undecided about whether to force Congress to put off the August recess to continue working on a budget.

Chicagoans are still trying to deal with the worst power outage in a decade. By late Monday... two days after a transformer fire... about 10-thousand customers on Chicago's West Side remained in the dark. One community group says it will ask Tuesday for a disaster declaration to provide funds to help residents and merchants get back on their feet.

LOS ANGELES (JULY 31) UPI - A second drug ring figure has been found guilty of helping kidnap U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena, but prosecutors again failed to win a murder conviction.

One-time Mexican policeman Juan Jose Bernabe Ramirez, 31, who served as a bodyguard for Mexican drug lords, was convicted Monday of aiding and abetting in the 1985 torture-slaying of Camarena.

But Bernabe was acquitted of murdering Camarena and his Mexican pilot, Alfredo Zavala Avelar. Bernabe also was acquitted of conspiracy to kidnap the agent and his pilot.

He was found guilty of three counts: aiding and abetting in the kidnapping of Camarena, committing violent crimes in support of a racketeering enterprise - drug trafficking - and being an accessory after the fact to the murder. He faces a possible life sentence on each of the first two convictions and 10 years on the third.

The verdict was announced on the 11th day of deliberations by the federal court jury of six women and six men, who were ordered to resume debating the verdicts against the two remaining defendants in the case.

Last Thursday the jury convicted Honduran drug kingpin Juan Ramon Matta Ballesteros, 45, of three counts of kidnaping, conspiracy and committing violent crimes to further drug trafficking. But he too was acquitted of Camarena's murder.

U.S. District Judge Edward Rafeedie ordered prosecutors and defense attorneys to make no comment on the case, which has been a source of friction between the U.S. government and Mexico, until the remaining verdicts are rendered.

In secretly tape-recordered conversations with U.S. drug agents, Bernabe admitted helping drug lord Rafael Caro Quintero escape after Camarena's murder in Guadalajara, Mexico, where Camarena was one of four Drug Enforcement Administration agents.

Caro is among several ranking drug traffickers now serving long prison sentences in Mexico in the Camareno murder.

During the Los Angeles trial, a DEA agent testified that Bernabe, armed with an AK-47 assault rifle, was one of a cadre of henchmen who protected Caro during a tense standoff with Mexican police at the Guadalajara airport.

Agent Salvador Leyva testfied Bernabe escaped with Caro by jet to Costa Rica.

Other DEA agents testified that Bernabe admitted he was at the Guadalajara house where Camarena was interrogated and tortured for more than 30 hours before being killed by drug traffickers in retaliation for raids on huge marijuana plantations. The raids reportedly cost the drug cartel about $500 million.

Bernabe, who admitted he was a ''low rank'' bodyguard for the traffickers, testified that he visited the house with drug baron Ernesto Fonseca Carrillo, but never went inside, where the beatings of Camarena and Zavala occurred.

Camarena's ribs were broken, his skull fractured in several places and a hole was drilled through his head, apparently with a screwdriver, a doctor testified.

Bernabe was arrested last July after being lured to Los Angeles with his wife at the behest of the DEA and a former Mexican law enforcement official, who had offered him a job as a security chief. He had previously been cleared of wrongdoing in the Camarena case by Mexican authorities.

In all, 22 people have been indicted in the United States in connection with the Camarena murder, including three men convicted after a 1988 trial in Los Angeles.

Since Fonseca and Caro were convicted in Mexico last year, the Mexican government maintained that all those responsible for Camarena's murder have been brought to justice.

During the current trial, prosecutors called to the witness stand paid informants who implicated high-ranking Mexican officials in the plot to abduct Camarena, including Javier Garcia Paniagua, the former head of PRI, Mexico's ranking political party, as well as a former cabinet member. Paniagua is currently chief of police in Mexico City.

Mexican authorities were outraged at the implications of corruption, and at the fact that Guadalajara gynecologist Dr. Humberto Alvarez Machain was abducted from his office in April by what the Mexican government alleges were bounty hunters and arrested by DEA agents in Texas. Alvarez is awaiting trial in Los Angeles on charges he helped keep Camarena alive during his torture so his eventual killers could continue the interrogation.

Among those Mexico has refused to extradite for trial are the former head of Interpol in Mexico and a former director of the Mexican Federal Judicial Police.

PORT VILA, Vanuatu (JULY 31) UPI - Officials from 13 island nations gathered in Vanuatu Tuesday at the opening of the South Pacific Forum to debate U.S. plans to dispose surplus chemical weapons in the region.

Australian sources said Washington already has begun pressuring small island states to fall in line and support U.S. plans to dispose chemical weapons stockpiled on Johnston Island, 700 miles southwest of Honolulu.

The Australian sources said Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney had written forum chairman and Vanuatu Prime Minister Father Walter Lini outlining the U.S. case for incinerating the weapons on the remote island.

The letter said the U.S. Army planned to incinerate only the stocks of nerve gas and mustard gas already on Johnston Island and similar material to be shipped there from West Germany.

The chemical weapons issue was expected to dominate the two-day South Pacific Forum meeting in Vanuatu, 1,000 miles northeast of Australia.

Other issues for discussion included driftnet fishing, which threatens marine mammals in the Pacific, and proposals by the United States to transport waste from California to be used as landfill in the Marshall Islands.

It was expected the United States will invite representatives of South Pacific Forum countries to Johnston Island to verify the safety of incinerating chemical weapons in the Pacific.

Australian Prime Minister Bob Hawke supports the U.S. case, based on studies by the Australian Defense Science Technology and the Department of the Environment.

Washington has couched its arguments in terms of necessary movement toward international disarmament and the easing of East-West tension, a position supported by Hawke.

At the same time, Papua New Guinea Prime Minister George Namiliu told Radio New Zealand Monday his country opposed Johnston Island being used to destroy chemical weapons from West Germany.

New Zealand Prime Minister Geoffrey Palmer said he was determined to keep Johnston Island from becoming a permanent center in the Pacific for destroying chemical weapons and toxic wastes.

MIDDLETOWN, PA (JULY 31) UPI - A supervisor at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant, site of the nation's worst commercial nuclear disaster, repeatedly slept on the job, resulting in a $50,000 fine for his employer, officials said Tuesday.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission issued the fine after an investigation confirmed that the shift supervisor at TMI's Unit 2 had been consistently inattentive to his duties in the reactor's main control room, the nerve center of the plant.

The unidentified supervisor's sleeping on the job in 1987 was particularly serious because it occurred when damaged fuel was being removed from the plant, the NRC said. The fuel was damaged during the central Pennsylvania plant's near meltdown 11 years ago.

The commission heavily penalized the operator of the Peach Bottom nuclear plant in eastern Pennsylvania for similar sleeping on the job violations several years ago. CNRC Regional Administrator Thomas Martin called the supervisor's actions and the failure of on-site managers to respond "a significant regulatory concern."

TMI's operator, GPU Nuclear Corp., a division of General Public Utility Corp. of Parsippany, N.J., has agreed to pay the fine. An even larger fine could have been imposed, but GPU's prompt action in firing the supervisor and the plant operations manager prompted the lower fine, the third highest of five security levels, the NRC said.

The supervisor, who was licensed by the NRC as a senior reactor operator, was found sleeping on the job repeatedly by staff members on the night shift in 1986 and 1987, the NRC said. Staff members pointed out the problem to the plant operations manager and other site managers, all of whom did nothing, the NRC said.

Only when GPU Nuclear corporate-level managers became aware of the problem were the supervisor and plant operations manager fired and staff members informed, the NRC said.

"The pattern of inattentiveness by the then shift supervisor ... and the subsequent failure by various levels of the then site management to correct this condition, represents a significant regulatory concern," Martin wrote in a letter to GPU Nuclear.

The nation's worst commercial nuclear energy disaster took place on March 28, 1979, when a combination of mechanical failure and human error caused a loss of cooling water in Unit 2's reactor core. The near meltdown resulted in the release of radioactive gases and left one million gallons of radioactive water.

(JULY 31) UPI - Philippine officials say at least 17 people died today when heavy rains and aftershocks triggered a landslide on a northern mountain highway, 110 miles north of Manila. The landslide hit as the 17 victims were transferring from one bus to another on a blocked portion of the highway.

Peruvian banks are closed for a second day today as the new government works on a plan to help Peru embark on an economic recovery program. Security in downtown Lima remains tight with police in armored cars and trucks patrolling the area around the presidential palace and two major hotels.

A former Mexican police officer who also served as a bodyguard for Mexican drug lords has been convicted in Los Angeles of helping kidnap U-S drug agent Enrique Camarena... who was later tortured and killed in Mexico. But 31-year-old Juan Jose Bernabe Ramirez was acquitted of the 1985 murder.

The House Armed Services subcommittee has rejected a proposal that would have added 200-Million dollars to the B-2 stealth bomber. Yesterday's vote was the first test of whether the plane could be revived in the House version of the 1991 defense bill. The committee chairman, Democratic Congressman Les Aspin of Wisconsin, says the stealth program should be killed.

The House has passed legislation that would help consumers get a better idea of what they're eating. The measure would require food labels to list the amount of fat, fiber, sodium, cholesterol and calories in the product. Administration officials say they prefer current proposed F-D-A regulations.

BOSTON (JULY 31) UPI - Homosexual demonstrators, chanting ''We're here, we're queer, we'll never be silent again,'' forced police to close a private showing of the controversial Robert Mapplethorpe exhibit at Boston's Institute of Contemporary Arts.

The two-hour showing, by invitation only, was due to run from 8 to 10 p.m. Monday, but police ushered guests out of the museum about 20 minutes early after a crowd of 250 chanting protesters gathered outside the institute's doors.

The demonstrators, members of the Boston chapter of a gay and lesbian coalition calling itself ''Queer Nation,'' had marched several blocks to the institute after holding their first meeting at a nearby church.

''We're fags, we're dykes, we're here, we're queer, we'll never be silent again!'' the marchers chanted.

The group, an offshoot of ACT UP, the organization pressing for more AIDS research, said it was protesting recent incidents of gay-bashing in Boston and other forms of discrimination against homosexual men and women.

Joe Byers, one of the demonstrators, said Queer Nation hopes to use ''the same kind of energy and tactics that ACT UP uses, but the focus isn't specifically on AIDS funding and drugs.''

''AIDS isn't all that's killing us, bashers are,'' said Byers.

The exhibit of 120 works by the world-famed photographer includes more than a dozen homoerotic pictures which have drawn bitter public protest wherever the show has stopped.

The director of Cincinnati's Contemporary Arts Center was indicted on obscenity charges earlier this year when the show - entitled ''Robert Mapplethorpe: A Perfect Moment'' - arrived there.

The Boston show opens to the general public Aug. 1 and is scheduled to run through Oct. 4.

The Roman Catholic Archiocese of Boston condemned the exhibit in an editorial last week, labeling 25 of the Mapplethorpe photos as ''extremely offensive sexual aberrations,'' and said it flouts ''the legal standards of public decency.'' But the editorial, in the official archdiocesan newspaper, stopped short of calling for the show to be banned or censored.

However, a group called Morality in Media took out a full-page ad in the newspaper, calling on citizens to ''confront'' the institute and the exhibit.

NEW YORK (JULY 31) UPI - The stunning announcement of the resignation of Yankees owner George Steinbrenner had fans on their feet at Yankee Stadium but left others curious about additional reasons behind the deal.

Steinbrenner agreed Monday to resign by Aug. 20 as controlling owner of the Yankees for his dealings with an admitted gambler in violation of major league baseball rules, Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent said.

Vincent's announcement was greeted by a standing ovation at Yankee Stadium during a game against the Detroit Tigers by fans who have long been critical of Steinbrenner for what they call his unnecessary meddling in the team's affairs during his 17-year reign.

Hall of Fame pitcher Bob Feller echoed many in the baseball community wondering how much the public still did not know about Steinbrenner's dealings with reputed gambler Howard Spira.

''I know he loves the sport,'' Feller said. ''I know he loves baseball. Evidently, the commissioner has a lot of evidence the general public doesn't have or else he wouldn't have come down so hard. I think it's kind of sad.''

Steinbrenner's role would be reduced to that of a minority partner in the once-mighty team, which under his stewardship won two World Series and four American League championships but recently has played its way to the worst won-lost record in baseball.

A new general partner, or controlling owner, must be named by Aug. 20. After that, Steinbrenner would be allowed to consult in major financial decisions involving the club only with the baseball commissioner's approval.

Vincent's office said there would be a supplemental order released Tuesday dealing with conduct of other Yankee officials and members of Steinbrenner's family, who probably will become involved in operation of the team.

According to the agreement, anyone who violates the supplemental order would be subject to discipline up to and including a permanent ban from baseball.

After meeting for 11 hours with Steinbrenner, Vincent said at a news conference that the Yankees' owner also agreed not to challenge the decision in court.

The commisssioner said Steinbrenner agreed to be treated as if he had been placed on major league baseball's list of people deemed permanently ineligible to run a team.

With Vincent's approval, Steinbrenner could participate in major financial dealings, and beginning in 1991 he could seek approval to see a few major league games.

Steinbrenner, who did not attend the news conference, said before leaving Vincent's office: ''I'm very happy that it was resolved, and I'm very satisfied with the resolution.''

Vincent appeared apologetic and relieved that the ordeal was over. He said Steinbrenner's dealings with Spira ''constituted conduct not in the best interests of baseball.''

''This sad episode is now over,'' Vincent said. ''My decision in this case and this result will serve, I trust, to vindicate once again the important responsibility of the commissioner to preserve and protect our noble game.''

The case against Steinbrenner involved a $40,000 payment to Spira in January of 1990 that the gambler said was for information that could hurt Yankee slugger Dave Winfield in coming contract negotiations.

Winfield, who played 10-plus seasons for Steinbrenner and was at the center of the controversy that caused the owner's demise, said he took no pleasure in the fall of his former boss.

''Justice was probably served, but I don't have any reason to gloat,'' Winfield said. ''If that was the penalty, then that is what is probably fair. It's fortunate for baseball that it's over.''

Reggie Jackson, another former Yankee who had his public battles with Steinbrenner, said he doubts his former boss will ever again work in baseball. ''It sounds like they made a deal,'' Jackson said. ''They were together for almost 10 hours, it would appear that they reached an agreement. Baseball ends up with a black eye, especially the Yankees. But it's only a bruise. I don't like to see this happen.''

Spira is under federal indictment on charges he tried to extort money from Steinbrenner. The Yankee owner has accused Spira of threatening to harm the owner and Winfield.

Steinbrenner had told Vincent in early July he made the payoff out of fear for his safety and that of his family. Earlier, in March, the Yankee owner offered another version, saying he gave Spira the money to help him establish a new life away from New York and gambling.

''George is too involved and he really never able to delegate authority,'' Feller said. ''He could never enjoy baseball as a fan. He probably got too emotionally involved with his players and the game itself.''

NEW YORK (JULY 31) UPI - Fans at Yankee Stadium responded to the end of the 17-year tenure of George Steinbrenner as controlling owner with a critique more stinging than a Bronx cheer.

They rose and offered a standing ovation.

No official announcement was made to the crowd, but the news quickly spread through the 24,037 in attendance, many of whom stood and cheered to show their approval of Steinbrenner's agreement to resign by Aug. 20 as general partner of the Yankees.

''I think that's great,'' said Mike Clayton, 39, of Mahopac, N.Y. after the Yankees had defeated the Tigers, 6-2. ''He's destroyed enough in his lifetime.''

David Taylor, age 70, who has rooted for the Yankees from his home in Massachusetts since the age of six, was kinder.

''I'm disappointed, I think the way he was treated wasn't in the best interests of baseball,'' he said. ''Getting suspended from baseball is too severe a reaction.''

Word that a decison had been reached filtered down to the field by the fourth inning. Yankee General Manager Pete Peterson came down from his box to break the news to Manager Stump Merrill, who passed the information along to his club.

Merrill, who now owns the distinction of being the last manager of the Steinbrenner era, said he was ''saddened by the severity'' of the agreement but added ''I think, I must, respect the decision of Fay Vincent. I know it was a tough decision. I have nothing but respect (for Vincent).

As for his former boss, who made a reputation of dangling an ax over his managers' heads, Merrill said he was disappointed about not being able to work with Steinbrenner to resurrect the franchise. The Yankees are on a pace to lose a club-record number of games this season.

Dave Righetti, who has witnessed his share of turmoil in New York since joining the team in 1979, also bore no grudges.

''I've always gotten along pretty well with the guy. He brought the team back to prominence and tried to keep it there. He made a mistake and he's taking it (the suspension) like a man.

''He's been around here as long as I have,'' Righetti said. ''I wasn't cheering (when the news broke). I thought it was sad.''

And what about the derisive ovation?

''They've done that to me too,'' he said.

Around the league, reaction was generally a mixture of surprise and relief - surprise at the severity and relief that the issue hadn't gone on any longer.

''I support the action of the commissioner and I applaud both sides for cooperating and not dragging baseball through the mud,'' said San Francisco Giants owner Bob Lurie.

''There never was any doubt in my mind that Commissioner Vincent would give Mr. Steinbrenner a fair hearing, and I support the commissioner's decision,'' said Peter O'Malley, president of the Los Angeles Dodgers. ''The commissioner's ability to sanction those acting against the best interests of baseball is critical to maintain the integrity of the game.''

Minnesota Twins' center fielder Kirby Puckett, watching a television report about Vincent's decision offered this advice, ''Buy low, sell high, George.''

ULAN BATOR, MONGOLIA (JULY 31) UPI - When Secretary of State James Baker arrives in Mongolia for a whirlwind official visit and an outdoorsman's weekend, the key question will be more of style than substance: Is Mongolia really ready for all this?

The American visit, complete with a small army of support staff, communications and other trappings of Washington power, appears to be straining to the limits the political and material resources of the impoverished nation of 2 million people.

The 23-hour official visit, including a night's sleep Thursday, will pack meetings with Mongolia's foreign minister, prime minister, Communist Party and opposition leaders into a schedule that also includes a treaty signing news conference and viewing a traditional festival being staged in miniature just for Baker.

Then Baker leaves Friday for the rocky, mountainous Gobi Desert region, flying in a Soviet-built, Mongolian-operated plane to remote airstrips for what U.S. and Mongolian sources say includes hunting, fishing and camping in the circular felt tents known as gers, or yurts, before he leaves Sunday.

The sources say Baker will likely forego the massive Argali ram, whose curled horns are a major prize for big-game hunters, due to concerns over its endangered species status, but may hunt the more plentiful ibex, a wild goat with long crescent horns.

The hunting trip is private with no press and Baker is paying for it himself.

Officially, Baker will discuss Washington's tiny but growing relations with Mongolia, U.S. economic aid and the establishment of a Peace Corps program. The Mongolians are known to want the United States to grant most favored nation trading status.

Baker's visit comes at a time of sweeping change in Mongolia, which held its first free elections Sunday after seven decades of Communist rule and has just begun to open to the West. U.S.-Mongolia trade last year totaled only $1.6 million.

But in a nation with little industry, an American community consisting of a few diplomats, few international links and a culture heavily dominated by the Soviet Union, it is not yet clear how much the United States can give - or how much Mongolia can take.

''Mongolia is ready to receive anything he can give us,'' said Deputy Foreign Minister C. Choinkhor when asked about Baker's visit.

The invasion of some 150 State Department personnel, trailing crates of gear, a bomb-detection team and several dozen foreign reporters and television crews, has also taxed official capacity, more accustomed to the lower-tech hoopla of East bloc visits.

The government is stretching its supply of English-speaking translators, many of them students on summer vacation, its hotel accommodations and its motor pool, which features a few Mercedes and Japanese sedans but is better stocked with battered Soviet Volgas.

Baker and party will stay at the Ikh Tengher state guest house, situated in a lush valley where elk and deer roam wild, and where the U.S. staff has installed its own telephone system.

The tiny U.S. Embassy, set up a year ago after Washington and Ulan Bator established relations in 1987, has no secure communications and had to import handymen from Beijing to help spruce up after local crews fell short of the task.

Mongolians appear enthused. Government and opposition newspapers have carried praise-filled biographies on Baker, and the only complaint has come from a leader of the new Union for Jobless People who said only the visit's time was not right.

''In the old days, when a Soviet leader would come we were ordered to go to the airport to meet him,'' noted D. Erdene, 30, a businessman. ''For this I think people will go voluntarily.''

The last senior U.S. official to visit was envoy Vernon Walters in 1988. One newspaper described the previous memorable visit in 1944 by then Vice President Henry Wallace, who stayed in a ger and impressed Mongolians by judging their horses' speed just from appearance.

Even the country's new Greens Party, founded on a conservationist platform is reserved about Baker's possible joining of the ranks of wealthy foreign big-game hunters who have come to Mongolia for decades to shoot its wildlife with government permission.

''We have no special objection,'' said Greens Vice Chairman M. Ganbat.

The government grants only 30 permits a year for the Gobi Argali, at $17,000 apiece, only 20 a year for its cousin the high Altai Argali at $25,000 each and fewer still for the endangered snow leopard at $20,000 each, according to foreign hunters.

(JULY 31) UPI - Jack Clark's home run may have been more dramatic, but Oddibe McDowell's was a game-winner.

The Atlanta Braves' center fielder hit his sixth homer of the year leading off the 11th inning Monday night to power the Braves to a 4-3 victory over the San Diego Padres, snapping Atlanta's five-game losing streak.

''I was just thinking of getting on base and that's it,'' said McDowell. ''I got good wood on it. ''In that situation you're just thinking of making contact and getting on base. I looked at Tony (Gwynn in right) and he looked like he was ready to catch it. Until it went over, I didn't know for sure.''

The Braves were one strike away from winning the game in the tenth when Clark took reliever Kent Mercker deep with two outs. The blast was Clark's 18th of the year and the 300th of his career.

''I was happy to do it here, and glad it came in the type of situation where it made a difference,'' he said. ''Unfortunately they came back and hit one the next inning. I'd rather have the win than the home run.''

McDowell ruined any chance of that, though, as he sent a 3-2 pitch from Calvin Schiraldi over the right-field fence.

''I really would rather have Mercker end it an inning sooner against Clark. He had two outs and a full count,'' McDowell said. ''You don't want to see Clark up there in that situation. You hate to give up a home run and let them tie the game up, but then you say, we've just got to get something going.''

Dwayne Henry, 2-1, pitched just 1-3 of an inning for the victory. Tony Castillo hurled the 11th inning to gain his first save.

Despite having McDowell steal his thunder, Clark was pleased with his own round-tripper.

''All these type of things are important,'' he said of his milestone. ''They may not be the greatest Hall of Fame numbers, but they're numbers that not too many people reach.

''It's probably my second biggest home run after the one against the Dodgers that put us (St. Louis) in the World Series (in 1985),'' said Clark. ''I really appreciated the fan reaction. Hopefully I can hit a few more for them.''

The Braves had grabbed a 3-2 lead in the top of the 10th off Schiraldi when Jeff Blauser's tripled home Tommy Gregg.

Atlanta scored twice in the third to take a 2-0 advantage. With two out, starting pitcher Steve Avery singled and McDowell singled to right, sending Avery to third. Mark Lemke followed with an RBI single and, when left fielder Bip Roberts booted the ball for an error, McDowell also scored.

San Diego got a run back in their half of the third on Roberto Alomar's run-scoring infield single.

The Padres tied the game 2-2 in the sixth on Gwynn's RBI triple.

Elsewhere in the National League: Houston ripped San Francisco 6-1 and Los Angeles downed Cincinnati 4-1.

In the American League it was: New York 6, Detroit 2; Kansas City 7, Cleveland 6; Toronto 9, Baltimore 2; Boston 3, Chicago 0; Minnesota 7, California 3; Texas 3, Milwaukee 1 and Oakland 6, Seattle 2.

At San Francisco, rightfielder Mike Kingery's misplay of a fly ball allowed Houston to score five runs in the ninth inning off Steve Bedrosian, 5-6. Danny Darwin, 6-1, gave up four hits in eight innings for the win. He walked three and struck out two before Dave Smith came on to pitch the ninth.

Dodgers 4, Reds 1

At Los Angeles, Mike Morgan retired the first 19 batters he faced en route to a career-best two-hitter. Cincinnati has dropped eight straight and the Dodgers, winners of five straight, have moved to within seven games of the SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (JULY 31) UPI - A delegation of 12 ranking officials left Tuesday for Tokyo en route to Moscow for the first official South Korean-Soviet talks on diplomatic ties and economic cooperation between the two nations that have no formal relations.

The 12 South Korean officials, led by Kim Chong-in, senior secretary to President Roh Tae-woo for economic affairs, will begin talks in the Soviet capital Thursday, the Foreign Ministry said.

The Soviet delegation to the talks will be headed by Yuri Maslyukov, first deputy chairman of the Soviet Council of Ministers and deputy prime minister for economic affairs, the ministry said.

''The talks will focus on ways to expand and develop overall bilateral relations, including normalization of relations and promotion of economic cooperation,'' a ministry announcement said.

''While in Moscow our delegation will also contact Soviet public figures from various walks of life to exchange views on ways not only to promote bilateral ties but also to strengthen cooperation aimed at securing durable peace on the Korean peninsula in particular and in Northeast Asia in general.''

The upcoming talks are a result of a meeting June 4 between Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and Roh in San Francisco. Following the get-together, the two leaders exchanged letters suggesting official contacts for improved Moscow-Seoul relations.

Seoul newspapers, quoting government sources, said the delegation carried a letter from Roh to Gorbachev expressing wishes for early rapprochement and inviting the Soviet president to visit Seoul soon.

The sources said two or three more rounds of talks will be required in Seoul and Moscow before the two nations reach a full agreement on formal diplomatic ties and economic cooperation, the newspapers said.

Communist North Korea is unhappy about improving relations between the Soviets and South Korea, having repeatedly voiced complaints with direct mention of the Soviet government or Gorbachev.

Korea was divided at the end of World War II, with the Soviets occupying North Korea and South Korea coming under U.S. influence.

The Soviets fathered a communist state in North Korea in 1948. North Korea invaded South Korea in 1950, touching off a three-year war. The United States and 15 other U.N. member nations helped South Korea repel the invasion.

Since, the Soviet Union has remained a close ally of North Korea and never accepted South Korea as an independent state until Moscow decided to take part in 1988 Seoul Summer Olympics, providing a turning point for improved relations between Moscow and Seoul.

Informal relations have rapidly expanded and the two nations have exchanged trade offices with consular departments.

NEW YORK (JULY 31) UPI - Mary Abigial McCarthy, a Yale University Law School professor who campaigned in her father Eugene's 1968 presidential campaign, died Saturday of pancreatic cancer. She was 41.

McCarthy died at the Connecticut Hospice in Branford, after receiving cancer treatments for the past year at Yale-New Haven Hospital.

A native of Washington, D.C., she graduated from Radcliffe College, and later attended the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism. She received her law degree from New York University.

After a stint as a public defender in Washington, D.C., McCarthy went to work teaching law at Yale in 1982, working as a supervising attorney and lecturer in clinical studies. She served as co-director of the legal clinic at Yale.

In 1968 McCarthy skipped a semester of her sophomore year at Radcliffe and enlisted in her father's bid for the presidency. Along with her mother Abigail and other family members she scoured campuses around the country for her father.

She is survived by her parents, her brother Michael, of Seattle, and two sisters, Ellen, of Washington, D.C., and Margaret, of Boston.

There was no immediate word on memorial or funeral plans.

PEARL HARBOR, HI (JULY 31) UPI - Navy searchers looking for the cargo door that blew off a United Airlines flight last year sweeping nine people to their deaths found a large metallic piece of debris on the ocean floor.

After five days of operation, the Orion sonar-scanning system aboard the USNS Narragansett located a large piece of debris believed to be metallic wedged on the bottom, Pearl Harbor spokesman Lieutenant Commander Bob Anderson said Monday.

Anderson said he did not know the size of the item, which was found in a field of debris in the search area 15,000 feet beneath the surface some 90 miles south-southeast of Oahu.

''They said it was a larger piece,'' he said. ''They found scattered debris in an area and concentrated on one larger piece.''

The remote-controlled submarine tried to get a visual picture of the debris but failed, so the team marked the location. The Narragansett planned to complete operations in the search area and return to Honolulu Tuesday.

Anderson said he did not know whether an attempt would be made to salvage the debris. He said the computer-enhanced sonar readings will probably be studied further and the National Transportation Safety Board consulted.

The team has been looking for the cargo door off the Boeing 747 jumbo jet which was stricken near Hawaii Feb. 24, 1989. Nine passengers were swept to their deaths before the plane was able to return safely to Honolulu.

The NTSB in April identified the cargo door locking mechanism and maintenance as the probable culprits in the accident. Investigators said faulty design probably caused a cockpit panel light to falsely indicate the door was locked.

The safety board, however, has been anxious to find the door because investigators believe it holds important clues about the cause of the accident.

A sophisticated, secret Navy radar tracked larger pieces of debris as they dropped from 22,000 feet, allowing searchers to identify a 24 square mile area as the point at which the 10-by-10-foot door entered the sea.

NEW YORK (JULY 31) UPI - A man wielding a baseball bat jumped an assistant district attorney and a nurse on a late-night stroll in Central Park after the couple's first date, seriously wounding both, police said Tuesday.

The nurse, Amy Gelinas, 25, of Manhattan and the attorney, Phillip Millea, 29, of Westchester, were walking near Conservatory Pond near the center of the park around 11 p.m., Monday, said Officer Fred Weiner, a police spokesman.

''They were walking together and a man came out of the bushes with a baseball bat. He struck the man in the head and the woman in the head and the hand,'' Weiner said.

There was no known motive for the attack.

The attacker was swinging the bat, said Capt. Joseph Montagnino, commanding officer of the Central Park precinct, who was coordinating police efforts to track down the man.

Montagnino said the attacker struck the woman on the head. She raised her left hand to fend off a second blow and he struck her hand, removing a piece of a finger.

Mellea approached to intervene and the attacker swung at him, hitting him in the head, Montagnino said.

Gelinas ran to a phone at the nearby boathouse to call police, Montagnino said. She returned with police to find Millea lying on the ground. Police also recovered the missing piece from Gelinas' hand.

The two victims were taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Police brought dogs to the park to try to track down the attacker. Montagnino said police were looking for physical evidence of ''the dastardly person who committed this crime.''

A baseball bat was found in a garbage can about 100 feet north of the pond.

Tests were scheduled to determine if it was the bat used in the incident, said Sgt. Tina Mohrmann, a police spokeswoman.

Millea was in critical condition at Bellevue Hospital, said Wesley Anglin, a hospital spokesman.

Surgeons were deciding whether to try to reattach part of Gelinas' left index finger, according to her father, Jack Gelinas of Scarsdale. The woman also had a gash on her head.

The victim's parents rushed to the hospital to be with their daughter, a pediatric nurse at Memorial-Sloan Kettering Hospital.

''She feels more sorry for the deranged man who did this to her than for herself,'' said Jack Gelinas. ''She is also extremely concerned about Phillip.''

The father said his daughter had been planning to move on Friday to Philadelphia to enroll in a masters degree program in nursing at the University of Pennsylvania. She also had a job at a children's hospital there.

He said she and Millea had met last week and were on their first date together. He believed they had attended a concert and were on their way to purchase tickets for another event when the attacker swung at them.

ATLANTA (UPI) - Fourteen rhesus monkeys died of heatstroke under a 96-degree sun at the Centers for Disease Control's animal breeding and holding facility, officials said Monday.

Veterinarians describe the deaths at nearby Lawrenceville as extremely unusual.

The CDC said the incident marks the largest string of primate deaths in the half-decade history of the research agency.

The deaths occurred last month after the animals had been taken from their cages for deworming and routine health screening. They had been anesthetized with the drug Ketamine to protect handlers from the deadly herpes-B virus, officials said.

The Lawrenceville facility has no indoor holding area for monkeys to recover from the procedures so they were placed outside. Officials said 19 other monkeys who underwent the same process suffered no ill effects.

''Everyone concerned with it is very upset that it happened, and we are taking steps to see that it doesn't happen again,'' said Dr. Bobby G. Brown, chief of the CDC's animal resources branch.

Brown said he believed the heat was ''involved'' in the deaths, and that toxicological testing of the blood of one of the dead monkeys found ''nothing out of the ordinary.''

CDC officials said the monkeys were part of a colony of 100 raised for research in the CDC breeding complex at Lawrenceville. They had not been selected yet for any research projects.

SINGAPORE (JULY 31) UPI - A dozen Asian-Pacific nations agreed Tuesday on the urgent need to remove international trade barriers, but were unable to work out a formula to bring China, Taiwan and Hong Kong into their fledgling organization.

After two days of meetings, delegates to the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum acknowledged the significant role of the three economies and the desirability of their participation in future meetings.

''Consultations should proceed with the three, with a view to reaching arrangements agreeable'' to them and the current members of APEC, the foreign and economic ministers said in a joint communique issued at the conclusion of the two-day meeting.

Instead of a definite consensus on their inclusion at the next APEC session in Seoul in October 1991, as many delegates sought, the statement expressed only a hope that the so-called ''three Chinas'' would be included ''either at the Seoul meeting or as soon as possible thereafter.''

''All three, of course, want to come in,'' said Singapore Trade and Industry Minister Lee Hsien Loong, host of the meeting and one of the most ardent supporters of their participation. Lee said, however, that the question of whether China will accept the others ''has yet to be worked out.''

China and Taiwan have technically been in a formal state of war since the Chinese Communists drove the Nationalist government from the mainland in 1949. The British colony of Hong Kong reverts to Chinese rule in 1997.

Following China's crackdown on pro-democracy demonstrators in Beijing's Tiananmen Square last year, large numbers of frightened Hong Kong residents have emigrated.

Attending the second APEC gathering were representatives from the six-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations and other nations with a Pacific coast: the United States, Japan, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Korea.

ASEAN groups the non-communist countries of Indonesia, Thailand, Malaysia, the Philippines, Brunei and Singapore.

Richard Solomon, assistant U.S. secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs, stressed Washington's position that Hong Kong, Taiwan and China ''should be members.''

''They each play a very important role in the economics of this region,'' said Solomon, representing Secretary of States James Baker, who departed for Irkutsj in Central Siberia for talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, the third leg of his 12-day trip.

Solomon said the United States was willing to move slowly, out of respect for ASEAN sensitivities.

''We did not want to push members prematurely,'' he added.

But some members of the group formed one year ago to coordinate cooperation and push for free trade expressed reservations.

''We don't want to be bogged down by technical issues,'' said Malaysia's minister of trade and industry, Rafidah Aziz. She said it was premature to discuss wider participation at such an early stage of APEC's development.

The ministers did agree that the primary objective of APEC was to ensure a successful conclusion to the fast-expiring Uruguay Round of talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. They urged more intensive negotiations to ensure the talks - which aim to extend the GATT to cover textiles and farm products - do not expire in December with major trade barriers still in place.

The trade talks recessed in Geneva without progress last Thursday, with developing countries accusing rich nations of jeopardizing world commerce.

Lee said it is hoped the strong APEC stance deploring the slow pace of the talks will give the negotiators ''a push forward.''

The ministers committed themselves to advancing the negotiations and agreed to meet in Vancouver in September to discuss developments.

Prior to departure, Baker announced an ''APEC partnership for education,'' linking the United States, other interested governments, educational institutions and private enterprises.

''Our overall objective is to help train the trans-Pacific leaders of the next century through expanded educational opportunities,'' said Baker, fully recovered after a fever kept him in bed Monday.

The initiative would involve 20,000 Asia-Pacific students studying in the United States, many in specialized courses and seminars focused on the needs of the region. It would also enroll 5,000 students in private sector internships and cooperative education programs.

LIMA, Peru (JULY 31) UPI - The nation's banks were closed for a second day Tuesday in anticipation of a crash economic recovery plan being plotted by the government of newly inaugurated President Alberto Fujimori.

The value of the U.S. dollar on the black market fell Monday, reflecting a shortage of the national currency, the inti, due to the bank closures.

Security in downtown Lima streets was heavy. Police in armored cars and trucks patrolled near the two major hotels in the vicinity of the presidential palace, the Crillon and Bolivar, and some avenues in that area were blocked to traffic.

Banks had also been shut down Friday to honor the July 28 independence holiday and were closed Monday and Tuesday to provide more time for Fujimori's economic team to devise a stability plan, making a total of three business days in which Peru has been without banking services.

Fujimori, an independent who has appointed a mostly nonpartisan Cabinet, said at a news conference Sunday his plan to restore economic stability would include hikes in public services rates. He specifically mentioned electricity, water, gasoline and telephones.

Within hours, however, he was contradicted by his own mines and energy minister, Fernando Sanchez Albavera, who said the subsidized price of gasoline - now the equivalent of 11 U.S. cents a gallon - would not be raised ''for the time being.''

The U.S. dollar sold on the black market for 142 intis Monday morning, a slight drop from Sunday's rate of 145 intis. The last published figure on the official exchange rate was 53 intis per dollar.

Most shops in downtown Lima were closed, apparently due to financial uncertainty.

''I would have preferred that the president to have announced his measures in his inaugural speech (Saturday),'' said Eduarde Arce, 39, a graphics worker.

''He must stop the rise in prices,'' Arce said. ''Rice costs 90 intis a (kilogram) (20 U.S. cents a pound). It costs twice as much as it did last week. A liter of vegetable oil now sells at 200 intis a liter ($1.40 a quart). That's twice as much as last week.''

Peru's inflation rate for the 12-month period ending June 30 was 2,296 percent.

Shortages of gasoline and long lines at service stations, which plagued Lima last week, were not visible Monday.

''We got supplies today from Petroperu (the government oil monopoly) and the shortage is over for now,'' said Sucesion Humberto Gracelli, owner of a gas station.

She said she expected gasoline prices to rise soon, despite assurances from the energy minister that they would not.

''Gas prices always go up every month anyway,'' she said.

The mood in Lima appeared to be acceptance of the inevitable price hikes announced Sunday by Fujimori, who did not give specific figures.

''People are used to these (financial) packages,'' said Juan Ramirez, 32, a bank employee.

He said Mario Vargas Llosa, the conservative candidate whom Fujimori defeated in a runoff election July 10, ''would have been a lot tougher'' than the incumbent president.

While details of Fujimori's economic program are not expected to be announced until later this week, the president has said since taking office that he would reform money-losing state enterprises, but not sell them to the private sector.

He has also ruled out confiscation of savings deposits, a forced savings measure already undertaken this year by the governments of Brazil and Argentina to curb inflation.

Fujimori has said he would try to keep purchasing power of the lowest registered income sector of society, which earns between $30 and $35 a month, ''at its present level for the time being,'' until Peru achieves economic growth.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (JULY 31) UPI - A Roman Catholic group said Tuesday it plans to send 15 priests to celebrate mass in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang next month to mark the 45th anniversary of the end to Japanese colonial rule.

The National Catholic Priest Corps for Justice, noted for its dissident activity, announced at a news conference it will send in a formal application Wednesday seeking government approval of the plan.

A spokesman for the group said the Catholic priests hope to cross into the North on Aug. 14 through the border village of Panmunjom but if that route cannot be used, they may travel to North Korea through third countries.

The plan calls for the 15 priests to spend two nights in North Korea and take part in a mass on Aug. 15 and another on Aug. 16 at Panmunjom that will be officiated by 80 members of Catholic clergy and attended by 3,000 faithfuls from the South and the North, the spokesman said.

The proposal is the latest in a series of recent initiatives between North and South Korea to ease tensions since South Korean President Roh Tae-woo proposed on July 20 the temporary free travel between the Koreas to mark National Liberation Day next month.

The South Korean government and the dissident group, National Democratic Alliance, meanwhile, failed to settle differences over who should be allowed to take part in a meeting scheduled for next Monday in Pyongyang to prepare for a rally planned for Aug. 15 at Panmunjom.

Officials at the government National Unification Board told representatives of the Alliance that the upcoming meeting and the Panmunjom rally should be open to all groups including rightists. If not, travel to the North will not be allowed, the officials said.

The Alliance and a North Korean committee for peaceful national reunification have been the main force pushing the ''pan-national'' rally to mark the National Liberation Day.

A total of 58 organizations of concervatives have demanded that they be given due representation in the scheduled Pyongyang meeting because they, too, want to take part in the planned rally at the truce site.

North Korea has repeatedly voiced objections to their presence. North Korea has made it clear that it wants only leftist dissidents to take part in the rally, but the Seoul government remains firm in its stand that the rally should be open to all participants.

SEOUL, South Korea (JULY 31) UPI - South Korea's auto exports in the first half of 1990 dropped sharply compared with the 1989 period because of sluggish sales in the United States and Europe, an industry report said Tuesday.

(JULY 31) UPI - The situation in Trinidad remains tense as Moslem rebels continue to hold Prime Minister Arthur Robinson and other officials hostage. A government spokesman says Robinson did NOT agree to resign and grant the rebels amnesty as a national television reporter has claimed. Caribbean experts in Washington are tracing the problems in Trinidad and Tobago to a drop in oil prices, a primary export for the island nation. Quoting a State Department official- ''They got rich quick and got poor quick.''

President Bush and congressional leaders meet at the White House this morning to determine if there's any way to remove obstacles to a budget agreement. Republicans yesterday accused Democrats of bad faith in the stand-off over who should take the first step in suggesting ways to cut the deficit. Congress may have to postpone its August recess.

Crews are working to clean-up an oil spill in Galveston Bay that the Coast Guard says is 10-times bigger than originally thought. Officials say 500-thousand gallons of oil was spilled when two barges collided with a Greek tanker Saturday. A Coast Guard spokesman says the Texas shoreline and wildlife will be affected by the spill. The Houston Ship Channel is closed until tomorrow.

Officials from 13 South Pacific nations are meeting on the island of Vanuata, one-thousand miles northeast of Australia. Today's opening session focused on U-S plans to dispose of surplus chemical weapons in the South Pacific. Australian sources say Washington already has started pressuring small island states to support the proposals. But leaders from Papua New Guinea and New Zealand are opposed to the South Pacific being used to destroy chemical weapons and toxic waste.

(JULY 31) UPI - Secretary of State Baker travels to Mongolia this week for a whirlwind 23-hour visit. Baker will meet with Mongolia's foreign minister, prime minister, the Communist Party and opposition leaders on Thursday. On Friday, Baker will leave for the mountainous Gobi Desert region for what American and U-S sources say will be a hunting, fishing and camping trip.

New York City police say a man wielding a baseball bat attacked a couple walking through Central Park last night. The man, a Westchester assistant district attorney and the woman, a Manhattan nurse, both were seriously injured. 25-year-old Amy Gelinas and 29-year-old Phillip Miller are hospitalized with head wounds and surgeons are deciding whether to try to re-attach part of Gelinas' finger. The woman's father says the two victims were on their first date.

Navy searchers have found a large metallic piece of debris on the ocean floor about 90 miles southeast of the Hawaiian island of Oahu . The diving team has been looking for the cargo door that blew off a United Airlines flight last year, killing nine people. Pearl Harbor spokesman Lieutenant Commander Bob Anderson says an Orion sonar-scanning system located the debris, but he adds it's NOT clear if an attempt will be made to salvage the metal object.

The jury in the drug and perjury trial of Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry could get the case later this week. Testimony has ended and closing arguments begin tomorrow. ULAN BATOR, MONGOLIA (JULY 31) UPI - The Mongolian communist leader said Tuesday his party is ready to discuss sharing power with the democratic opposition that won a firm minority in the nation's first free election and an opposition leader called it ''the funeral of orthodox communism.''

The government released preliminary official results on Sunday's voting showing the opposition won 35 seats in 402 counted races for the 430-seat national parliament, the Great People's Hural, ending 69 years of one-party rule by the communist Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party.

The communists won 343 races and the other 24 were taken by independents, said Vice Chairman Baidaza Khurmetbek of the National Election Commission. He said races in 28 districts had not been certified because of election process problems, and would likely be subject of recounts and re-elections.

Khurmetbek also said the opposition had won a strong 37 percent of a party preference poll on the ballot that will be the basis for selecting a new standing legislative body, the 50-seat Small Hural. The communists won 60 percent, with 3 percent not voted.

The election, the first free vote since Genghis Khan founded the Mongol Empire nearly eight centuries ago, was the outcome of months of changes prompted by a tiny pro-democracy movement and reforms in the Soviet Union, which long controlled Mongolia as a satellite.

Final results are not expected for a week, but opposition leaders said the three main parties would actually control about 50 parliament seats, considering communist party members and independents who ran pledging support to the opposition.

International observers monitoring the voting expressed concern about 28 parliamentary districts in which ballot marking problems will force a re-vote, but said it would not change the ruling party victory and could even help the opposition.

Gambojavyn Ochirbat, general secretary of the Mongolian People's Revolutionary Party, the communists who have ruled since 1921, said at a news conference the communists were ready to begin negotiating with the opposition on the shape of a new coalition government after the re-votes and final results were certified.

''The MPRP will cooperate with the new parties,'' which were legalized two months before the election, said Ochirbat, who only narrowly defeated an opposition candidate in his own Parliament seat race.

''We believe the new political parties should be represented in the new government,'' he said, adding the new government would begin an overhaul of legislation to ensure basic freedoms and human rights.

Leaders of the three fledgling opposition parties, which ran poorly organized and poorly funded campaigns, were buoyed by the outcome and said it represented a victory despite the remaining size of the ruling party's majority.

''The results of these elections mean the funeral of orthodox communism in Mongolia,'' said Baterdene Batbayar, chairman of the Social Democratic Party, which made up an opposition coalition with the Mongolian Democratic Party and the Party for National Progress.

''This process has come so sudden, but this first step is a very big step, an achievement toward democracy,'' Batbayar said. ''We consider it a victory.''

The communists and the opposition have promised continued political and economic reforms, but the opposition is pledging swifter and wider changes on issues such as private enterprise.

Conservatives in the ruling party have pushed it to proceed at a slower pace, but may find themselves increasingly isolated by an alliance of opposition forces and ruling party progressives, especially among younger intellectuals.

The country remains among the world's poorest and most backward, and has only in the past year begun to tinker with a market-oriented economy and an opening to the West.

''Among the MPRP there are many people who support our ideals,'' said another opposition leader, R. Gonchigdorj. ''The supporters of democracy will be more than 50 percent'' in the new Parliament.

International observers said the ballot marking problem that forced officials to suggest re-elections in the 28 districts appeared to be the result of long experience with one-party rule in which Mongolians sometimes registered protest by striking out all ruling party candidates' names on the ballot.

It was unclear why so many ballots were invalidated, but it did not appear likely to change the total outcome, said William K. Condrell, head of a three- member observer team from the Washington-based International Human Rights Law Group.

''We were concerned, but the opposition leaders are not complaining, and we still think the election appeared pretty fair,'' he said.

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN (JULY 31) UPI - The pro-Soviet Afghan government has captured wide areas near Kabul, including a strategic town, from U.S.-backed guerrillas in a massive four-month offensive, Western diplomatic sources said Tuesday.

The sources also said the guerrillas have attacked the eastern city of Ghazni, where heavy fighting is continuing.

There was no word from the communist government in Kabul on the reports, which could not be verified independently.

The guerrillas, based mostly in Pakistan and backed by the United States and Saudi Arabia, have failed to capture any major urban centers despite the February 1989 withdrawal of Soviet troops backing the government, and have been embroiled in bloody internecine feuds.

The regime of President Najibullah, meanwhile, has defied Western predictions of its swift overthrow following the Soviet pullout and has grown more confident.

The government on March 25 started an offensive aimed at ousting guerrillas from the Paghman hills, about 12 miles west of Kabul, from where the resistance has bombarded the capital with rockets almost daily for the past year.

The operation last month became the longest continuous government offensive of the 12-year-old civil war.

One source said the government, using massive air and artillery bombardments and armored and elite units, has ''captured the Pajak ridgeline overlooking the center of the Paghman plain. In a drive from the northeast end of the plain, regime forces have also captured the town of Paghman.

''They are now apparently attempting to consolidate their hold on the area by constructing a series of security posts just west of Paghman town that would impede Mujahideen (guerrilla) infiltration from the Paghman mountains just to the west,'' he said.

The source said that although the government has portrayed the Paghman operation as aimed at ending guerrilla rocketing of Kabul, ''observers suggest that the real motivation for the regime offensive has been to remove the damage to its prestige caused by Mujahideen positions so visibly close to the capital.''

The sources said guerrillas on July 17 began a two-day assault against the security perimeter of Ghazni city, 70 miles southwest of Kabul. The government made a counter-attack a few days later, ''which achieved little despite an 11-hour battle,'' one source said.

But he said ''the increased level of fighting around Ghazni is continuing.''

The sources also reported stepped-up fighting last week around the besieged garrison town of Khost, 15 miles from the Pakistan border.

The Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan in 1979 to support a series of Marxist rulers against a Moslem insurgency. It withdrew its more than 100,000 troops under an agreement signed by Afghanistan and Pakistan.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - New home sales advanced by 8 percent in June for the second consecutive monthly gain after a winter and spring of steady declines, the government said Tuesday.

The increase, to an annual rate of 581,000 new homes, was much better than expected by private economists and the best showing since November 1989, when the rate stood at 687,000 new homes.

In May, new home sales advanced by 2.3 percent, according to a report by the Commerce Department and Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The median price of a new home in June was $129,900, an increase of $2,000 over May, and the average price stood at $152,900, up from $149,700 in May the government said.

A market letter by Mitsubishi Bank in New York said new home sale prices have been running about 30 percent higher than existing home prices, ''which puts the new segment of the market at a cost advantage.''

''All in all, this does not bode well for the sale of new houses without price concessions by the builders,'' the market letter said.

Compared to June 1989, when the median price of a home was $122,800, new home sales in June 1990 were off by more than 10 percent, the government's statistics showed.

The annual rate of home sales in June 1989 was 646,000.

By region, new home sales in June 1990:

-Jumped 36 percent in the Northeast.

-Fell 4.3 percent in the Midwest.

-Gained 13.6 percent in the South.

-Dipped 5.8 percent in the West.

The annual rate of new homes remaining for sale at the end of June edged down to 352,000 from 358,000 in May, leaving a supply of 7 1/2 months of dwellings at the current sales rate, the government said.

All the statistics in the report were adjusted for seasonal factors.

CHICAGO (JULY 31) UPI - Utility crews continued around-the-clock work Tuesday to close out the city's worst power outage in a decade, whittling to 1,000 the number of West Side residents without electricity.

''It seems to be paying off,'' Commonwealth Edison spokesman Gary Wald said Tuesday. ''We hope to have the majority back on line today.''

A fire in a transformer Saturday night knocked out power to some 40,000 West Side residents, forcing ComEd to dispatch some 700 workers to redirect power from other substations and rewire entire areas.

The blackout triggered scattered looting throughout the outage area, which is dotted with some of the poorest neighborhoods in the city. Police reported little vandalism and no arrests Monday night.

The cost of extra manpower and overtime has not yet been assessed, Wald said.

''We're putting our full effort toward restoring everyone,'' Wald said. ''After that, we'll take a long, hard look at the whole situation.''

A community group said Monday it will seek a state disaster declaration to help residents and merchants recoup losses. The Little Village Chamber of Commerce said it would make the request of Gov. James R. Thompson.

Aldermen whose wards were affected by the blackout said they were examining legal options. Losses and damage estimates ranged from $2 million to $10 million.

Alderman Juan Soliz said he would introduce a resolution to the City Council urging ComEd to reimburse residents for losses.

The utility, meanwhile, began dispensing flashlights, batteries and food to the areas still without power Monday night. The city was also supplying food baskets to affected residents.

Power was restored to the Cook County Jail late Monday. Officials reported no major problems with inmates during the outage.

Mayor Richard M. Daley downplayed the lawlessness that resulted from theblackout, which began with a fire in a 12,000-volt transformer. The cause of the fire remained undetermined.

''There was no chaos. There was no rioting. There was no strong looting there. But you get the impression (from the media coverage) it was like chaos out there,'' Daley said at a news conference.

Police Superintendent LeRoy Martin, at a separate news conference, agreed with the mayor and said 83 people had been arrested for burglary, mob action, looting, firearms violations, theft or property damage.

Martin characterized the looters as ''vultures.''

The owner of a food market where power was lost said some vendors made it more difficult to keep his produce fresh by increasing the price of dry ice from $12 to $25 at block.

A spokesman for Cook County Chief Criminal Judge Thomas Fitzgerald said all cases scheduled for Monday at the Criminal Courts Building were postponed to Wednesday because of the outage. Classes also were called off at a number of schools.

The fire at the substation burned about 6 1/2 hours and caused millions of dollars in damage.

The outage also was blamed for the fire deaths of three people who were using candles to light their home during the blackout late Saturday. Police said they apparently forgot to extinguish the candles before going to sleep.

A ComEd spokesman Monday said the last massive outage in the city occurred on the Northwest Side about 10 or 12 years ago.

MONROVIA, LIBERIA (JULY 31) UPI - Government troops loyal to President Samuel Doe stormed a Lutheran church and refugee camp and massacred about 600 people - many women and children, the International Committee of the Red Cross said Tuesday.

In Washington, however, the State Department reiterated Tuesday it believed some 200 people were killed and dozens wounded.

Survivors of the attack said a group of 30 soldiers burst into St. Peter's Lutheran church on the outskirts of the capital about 9 p.m. Sunday and butchered men, women, children and babies with knives, guns and machetes.

The Geneva-based International Committee of the Red Cross confirmed Tuesday that rampaging troops massacred more than 600 men, women and children in the Church of St. Peter, 3 miles from the capital's center, which was sheltering around 2,000 civilians.

The church is one of Monrovia's six Red Cross-sponsored refugee centers home to about 6,000 civilians.

''Our delegates are trapped in the center of town and unable to get out to help any of them because of the danger,'' a Red Cross spokesman said of the inability to cross the battle lines to reach the wounded because the city is now divided between the warring parties.

The survivors said Monday the soldiers used machine guns to shoot the door down and immediately opened fire on the ground floor, where as many as 2,000 people had taken refuge after fighting broke out in Monrovia three weeks ago.

''We thought they had come to ask us questions. Then they started killing, and everyone began screaming and trying to hide,'' said one man who hid on the roof of the church during the massacre.

A group of soldiers then went to the upper floor and opened fire on about 1,000 sleeping refugees. The survivors said they saw soldiers butcher the men with knives while the women and children were shot with machine guns.

Soldiers ordered some women with their children who tried to flee to stand aside. Then other soldiers opened fire on them.

The soldiers were from President Doe's Krahn tribe, said the survivors.

Most of the slain refugees were members of the Gio and Mano tribes, which have formed the main support for the rebel armies that have fought their way to the base of the hill in Monrovia where Doe is holed up in his heavily fortified executive mansion.

Most of Doe's troops are from his Krahn tribe and their allies, the Mandingos. Intertribal killings have occurred frequently during the six-month civil war.

In Washington, the U.S. government condemned the massacre of ''helpless and innocent'' Liberians. The government urged all sides in the civil war to ''forego a military solution,'' a spokesman said.

Reporters who visited the site of the massacre saw the entire floor of the church thick with blood stains. Bodies were huddled under the pews where people tried to hide. The bodies of young lay draped on the church altar.

Dead women lay on the floor with children still wrapped in shawls on their backs. The church crucifix had been thrown to the ground. Bullet holes riddled the ceiling.

''My people, help me. My son, where is my son? I beg you, don't leave me '' pleaded a wounded woman on the church steps.

A man nearby, his neck slashed, called out for water.

Survivors were seen Monday afternoon being rounded up by government soldiers.

Witnesses said the survivors - who were mostly women and children - were moved from the building by soldiers who shot into the air.

They reported many Gio and Mano tribe members were ordered out of nearby houses where they had taken refuge and forced to move under heavy army guard toward a nearby beach.

There was no indication what happened to them after that.

The church compound was filled with the bodies of women and children brought outside after the massacre.

People passing the church were numb and speechless as they saw the rows of corpses.

One witness who visited the church compound in the Sinkor district of Monrovia earlier said he had seen bodies hanging from the window frames of the church building, apparently killed while trying to escape. ''I saw dead bodies all around,'' the witness said. ''This is genocide.''

CAIRO, EGYPT (JULY 31) UPI - An Iranian delegation attending an Islamic foreign ministers' meeting in Cairo said Tuesday that Tehran would release all Egyptian prisoners captured during the eight-year-long Persian Gulf war as a gesture of good will, Cairo Radio reported.

Egyptian troops fought alongside Iraq during the war, which was suspended two years ago under a U.N.-brokered cease-fire, leading to a deterioration of ties between Iran and Egypt, which adhere to different branches of the Moslem religion.

A spokesman for the Egyptian Foreign Ministry, reacting to the pledge from Iranian delegation leader Hojatoleslam Mohammad Ali Taskhiri, said there were some 1,000 Egyptian prisoners of war still in Iranian camps. Iran and Iraq are still holding some 100,000 POWs.

Iran's conciliatory remarks to Egypt followed an improvement in relations this year between Iran's only Arab ally Syria and Cairo. Egypt traditionally is allied with Syria's ideological foe Iraq.

The Iranian move, which followed the release earlier this year of some 20 Egyptian fishermen, indicated an improvement in ties between Egypt and Iran, Arab diplomats said.

Meanwhile, a Baghdad-based Iranian rebel leader has written to Mubarak claiming Iran's seat at the conference, according to a statement received in Athens, Greece by the dissident.

Massoud Rajavi, who heads the rebel National Liberation Army of Iran, said: ''Iran's seat in the Islamic Conference Organization, United Nations Non-Aligned Movement and other international bodies belongs to the Iranian Resistance.''

Rajavi said Iran's ruling clerics ''are Islam's worst enemies in the contemporary era,'' and the clerical ''regime does not legitimately represent the Iranian people,'' the statement said.

In a separate development, the 12-member European Community was working on a formula to restore ties between Iran and Britain, which were broken after Iran's late spiritual leader Ayatollah Khomeini issued a death decree against British author Salman Rushdie for blaspheming Islam, West European diplomats confirmed Tuesday.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak meanwhile, opening the first ever session of the Organization of Islamic Conference to be held in Cairo, called on Islamic states Tuesday to settle their differences through peaceful means.

''Islamic states should cooperate with other nations and peoples to eliminate differences with them through peaceful means, stressing the need to abide by international justice and legitimacy,'' Mubarak told the opening session of the five-day foreign ministers' conference.

Mubarak, addressing representatives from 45 Islamic states and organizations, stressed the importance of economic development in the Islamic world and asserted the need for Moslems to move forward united and free from internal squabbles.

He said Moslems were advocates of reconciliation and peace, and ''reject aggression whatever its source or justification.''

Conference sources said the meeting was taking place at a particularly sensitive time for the Islamic world, and topics on the agenda included the Palestinian problem, the influx of Soviet Jews to Israel, the crisis in Lebanon and continuing Indo-Pakistani dispute over Kashmir.

India, which since independence has fought three wars with Pakistan, two over Kashmir, is not taking part in the conference.

But Indian Ambassador in Cairo P.A. Nazareth, called for reconciliation with Pakistan, saying that in this age of detente, ''yesterday's worst enemies are becoming today's good friends.''

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - The House passed a bill to reduce damage to the Grand Canyon from a federally run dam on the Colorado River that provides water and power to parts of Arizona, California, Nevada and New Mexico.

The measure, approved Monday night on a voice vote, gives the Interior Department 90 days to adopt more environmentally sensitive guidelines for regulating the flow of water through the Glen Canyon Dam.

Widely fluctuating releases of water from the dam are believed to be hurting the river's native fish populations, eroding beaches along the floor of the Grand Canyon and disrupting whitewater boating downstream.

Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., sponsor of the bill, has accused the department of dragging its feet in dealing with the problem.

''It is disappointing to me that the Congress must act to defend a world treasure like the Grand Canyon against a daily assault from a federal water project,'' Miller said. ''But that is what this bill does.''

The measure requires the dam to be operated ''in such a manner as to protect ... and improve the condition of the environmental, cultural and recreational resources of Grand Canyon National Park and Glen Canyon National Recreation Area'' downstream of the dam.

The new operating procedures are to remain in effect while a long-term environmental impact study of the dam is conducted. The bill sets a three-year deadline for completion of the study.

The Bureau of Reclamation, the Interior Department agency that administers federal water projects, has voiced opposition to the bill.

Agency chief Dennis Underwood said at a hearing in April the bill would interfere with ongoing efforts ordered by Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan to study various dam flow rates before making corrections.

Nevertheless, the bill enjoys strong support in Congress. Miller crafted amendments to make it more compatible with a similar Republican-sponsored measure in the Senate.

He also worked out language with Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., stipulating that the new dam operations ''shall not interfere with the primary water storage and delivery functions of the Glen Canyon Dam.''

Construction of the dam, a key component of the Colorado River Storage

Project, was completed in 1963, and the reservoir it crated - Lake Powell - was filled in 1980.

The dam was built to provide water storage for Arizona, Nevada, California and New Mexico. In addition, its turbines are the principal source of electricity to utilities across the Southwest during times of peak energy demand.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - Route 66, the east-west highway of desperation and ''kicks'' memorialized in song, literature and television, has moved closer toward recognition as part of the nation's official heritage.

The House, on a voice vote late Monday night, passed a bill directing the National Park Service to study ''America's main street'' for possible historic commemoration and preservation.

A similar measure already has cleared the Senate, which is expected to adopt the House language and send the legislation on to President Bush to be signed into law.

Route 66, established in 1928, was the first completely paved highway across the western United States - running from Chicago to Santa Monica, Calif. - and played a key role in the nation's transformation to the automobile age.

The chief sponsor of the House bill, Rep. Wes Watkins, D-Okla., recalled that during the Dust Bowl era, countless itinerant workers from Oklahoma left their homes and followed Route 66 west in search of jobs and a better life.

Watkins, who as a boy made three trips to California along the highway with his family, said, ''Route 66 has mixed feelings for many of us.''

As many as 500,000 Americans migrated to California along Route 66 from 1934 to 1940, composing one-fourth of all entrants to the Golden State during that period.

John Steinbeck, writing about the plight of the ''Okies'' in his novel ''Grapes of Wrath,'' referred to Route 66 as the ''Mother Road'' and ''the path of people in flight.''

In the post-war era, the highway became the route taken by a new generation of motorists out to rediscover the American West.

The recreational lure of the highway was popularized by Bobby Troup's 1947

hit song, ''Get Your Kicks on Route 66,'' and later by the 1960s television series ''Route 66.''

No longer in use as a major highway, the route once stretched 2,448 miles across eight states and three time zones - from the shores of Lake Michigan in Chicago to a bluff overlooking the Pacific in Santa Monica.

Between those points, it crossed through hundreds of small towns in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California, earning the nickname ''America's main street.''

Route 66 ultimately was replaced by five interstates, with the last section of the highway bypassed in 1984. Today, parts of the route still serve as frontage roads for interstates, while others lay abandoned.

Nevertheless, segments of Route 66 still provide a nostalgic glimpse of slower-paced America, as it existed before the computer age, urban sprawl and superhighways.

Landmarks along the Oklahoma stretch of the highway include the world's tallest totem pole at Foyil, a cowyboy's view from Persimmon Hill in Oklahoma City, a round red barn in Arcadia and a classic railroad depot in Bristow, Watkins said.

The legislation passed by the House authorizes $200,000 for the Park Service to evaluate Route 66's historic significance, alternatives for preserving the highway and roadside features associated with it, and options for using its remaining segments.

(JULY 31) UPI - A Trinidad government spokesman says there's NO truth to reports that an agreement has been reached with Moslem rebels who staged a coup attempt. A national television reporter claims Prime Minister Arthur Robinson has agreed to resign and grant amnesty to the armed rebels. The group is holding Robinson and at least 19 other government officials.

The Coast Guard now says a weekend collision in Galveston Bay, Texas, resulted in a major oil spill. The Coast Guard is tripling its estimate of how much oil spilled after two barges collided with a tanker Saturday, saying 500-thousand gallons of oil was dumped into the bay. Divers last night discovered holes in the hull of one of the barges. The guard says it's only a matter of time before the oil hits the shoreline and birds.

President Bush is meeting congressional leaders at the White House in another attempt to breathe some life into failing budget negotiations. One question being asked this morning is whether Bush should try to convince Congress to postpone the start of a planned August recess to keep the talks going. The standoff involves whether Democrats or Republicans will take the initiative in laying out proposals on how to cut the federal deficit.

JERUSALEM (JULY 31) UPI - A Palestinian truck driver were charged Tuesday in a military court with smuggling pistols into the West Bank from Jordan as part of plot to assassinate Foreign Minister David Levy, military sources said.

Two other Arab truckers from the occupied West Bank town of Jericho also were charged with smuggling weapons, the sources said.

All three men were charged in a Ramallah military court.

Ahmed Selim Altala was accused of being sent by PLO activists in Jordan to kill Levy as the foreign minister drove through Jericho from his home in Beit She'an to Jerusalem, the sources said. The Jordanian activists belonged to Fatah, the main branch of the Palestine Liberation Organization, they said.

The three men allegedly smuggled pistols in their trucks across the border the sources said. No additional information was made available about the alleged assassination plot or how the suspects were apprehended.

Also Tuesday, Defense Minister Moshe Arens visited the Gaza Strip town of Rafah to meet with local leaders. The defense minister talked with 16 prominent Palestinains for two hours in a closed session.

After the meeting, Arens said the purpose of his visit to the Gaza Strip, the third since becoming defense minister two months ago, was to exchange views with Palestinians.

Rafah Mayor Abdul Hadi Siad said the Palestinians had asked Arens to remove soldiers from the Rafah area to prevent clashes, to build a hospital and for improved telephone service.

Two Israelis wounded in a firebomb attack as they drove through Jericho were hospitalized in fair condition, Israel Radio reported. The army placed a curfew on the area of the attack and arrested several people for questioning.

DUBLIN, IRELAND (JULY 31) UPI - The European Community proposed a 30 percent reduction of agricultural subsidies in the 12-nation body in a move Tuesday that apparently resulted from U.S. pressure during an informal meeting on agricultural strategies, officials said.

The Irish Farmers Association issued a swift condemnation of the plan, saying it would cost its members about $800 million a year and prompt an exodus from farming across the community.

EC agriculture ministers, joined by counterparts from the United States, Canada, Australia, and Japan concluded a three-day meeting Tuesday at Dromoland Castle in southwest County Clare, where they held talks to review agricultural trends and exchange ideas among the major food producing and consuming nations.

EC Agriculture Commissioner Raymond MacSharry told reporters that the proposed 30 percent cut in internal market farm supports issued by the community would be for the decade 1986-96.

If the plan is accepted by the community, farmers would pay for the subsidies issued between 1986 and 1990 by bearing greater cuts in future allocations during the next six years, he said.

The United States has long opposed European agricultural policies that it claims allow food to be marketed at unfair prices. U.S. Agricultural Secretary Clayton Yeutter spoke at a press conference but did not say whether he was behind the proposal.

Irish opposition politicians claimed the community had "caved in" to U.S.

pressure. The Irish Times newspaper quoted him during negotiations Monday as saying 30 percent cuts did "not go far enough."

The plan conflicts with last week's announcement that European cattle farmers could expect subsidies to increase 17-25 percent to cover the difference between high EC prices and lower world prices.

MacSharry and Yeutter had said on Sunday that "no one would be sold out" in coming talks on the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs. Revisions to the GATT were discussed at Dromoland.

Kelly Shipp, spokeswoman for the U.S. Agricultural Department, stressed that the meeting was not a negotiation session and so would not comment directly on the proposal.

"However, before such a proposal is made it should be remembered that this could allow the United States to increase its support to U.S. farmers," she said. "This is not the appropriate forum. There will be a formal response, when and if the proposal is made in Geneva."

GATT members are scheduled to present position papers on world trade at an Aug. 27 GATT meeting in Geneva.

Yeutter delivered an address on the implications of the changes in Eastern Europe at the Dromoland meeting, and Japanese Agriculture Minister Tomio Yamamato spoke at one session about internal agricultural policies.

CHICAGO (JULY 31) UPI - Chemical Bank, one of five New York financial institutions interested in financing part of the employee-led buyout of UAL Corp., has temporarily pulled out of the deal, a published report said Tuesday.

Directors of UAL, the parent company of United Airlines, set an Aug. 9 deadline for United's three unions to secure financing for the $4.38 billion offer agreed to in April.

The buyout would make UAL the largest employee-owned company in the world. "It's a dynamic situation. There are a lot of issues to be resolved," a source close to the negotiations told the Chicago Tribune.

Chemical Bank's reluctance to enter the venture stems from its dissatisfaction with the lack of support for the buyout from other sources including aircraft and parts suppliers, the newspaper reported. Chemical Bank officials declined to comment on the withdrawal.

Chemical, along with Citicorp, Chase Manhattan, Bankers Trust, and Manufacturers Hanover had expressed interest in putting up $500 million dollars each, or $2.5 billion, toward the acquisition. The other banks had not made firm commitments before Chemical withdrew.

Representatives of the employee group have sought financing from several suppliers, including Boeing Co., General Electric's GE Capital Corp. unit and Peat Guinnesss Aviation, an Irish company that leases aircraft. A spokesman for the employee group told the newspaper an agreement with suppliers was expected in the near future.

LONDON (JULY 31) UPI - The Irish Republican Army said Tuesday it ''executed'' with a car bomb a prominent Conservative Party member of Parliament and strident critic of its campaign, vowing to keep up attacks against Britain.

Jane Gow, the widow of Monday's victim, Ian Gow, defiantly declared in response to the extremists that, ''You will never win.''

Police said the bombers probably made two visits to Gow's home in the East Sussex town of Hankham, 50 miles south of London, one for reconaissance and a second to plant the device that contained up to 5 pounds of high explosives.

The bomb placed beneath the driver's side of the vehicle detonated as the 53-year-old politician started his car in his driveway Monday morning, inflicting wounds from which he died minutes later.

The IRA in a statement released through the Republican Publicity Bureau in Dublin said ''an IRA active service unit has claimed responsibility for the execution of Mr. Gow,'' the fourth British politician to fall victim to the extremist drive to end British rule in Northern Ireland.

''Until Britain withdraws from Ireland, the IRA will continue whenever and wherever the opportunity arises,'' the statement said.

The IRA said Gow was targeted because he belonged to a group of influential conservatives who had formulated British policy in Northern Ireland since the party won 1979 elections.

It said Gow was instrumental in introducing the shoot-to-kill policy, an alleged British strategy in 1984 under which seven unarmed IRA members were slain by security personnel apparently given carte blanche against the radicals, and the 1980-81 hunger strikes, in which 10 IRA convicts died because London rejected their demands to be regarded as political inmates.

''As first private parliamentary secretary to Thatcher (in 1980-84), Gow was central to policy decisions,'' the IRA said. ''He remained a close confidant of Thatcher up until his death.''

An ashen-faced Thatcher on Monday declared her personal grief over the death of Gow, who resigned from her Cabinet in 1985 to protest an Anglo-Irish agreement that would give Dublin a say in the affairs of Northern Ireland.

Gow's slaying came amid an escalation of actions by the IRA, which has staged 12 bombings across England this year, many using Czechoslovakian-made Semtex explosives from their reported 5-ton stockpile.

Police said they were concentrating their investigations at vacation camps in the area, where they suspect the attackers may have briefly stayed to plan the assault. More than 150 people had called to give information to assist detectives, they said.

Gow was the chairman of the Conservative Party's Northern Ireland committee, a body that advises the government on policy toward the disputed region.

His name was found on an IRA hit list discovered in a captured IRA hide-out last year, and his death has prompted calls for greater security measures to protect prominent public figures.

CHICAGO (JULY 31) UPI - Soybeans opened higher and continued to hold most of the gains at midmorning Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Grain futures gave up their early gains and were mostly lower after one hour of trading.

The rally in beans was attributed in part to lighter-than-expected deliveries against the August contract. Higher prices for soybean meal contributed to the strength in soybeans.

Aggressive buying in meal was based on hopes of near-term export business.

Soybean oil prices were virtually unchanged, but were underpinned by strong domestic demand.

The grains opened higher, then sold off and were trading at lower levels at midmorning. A firm cash market limited the losses in corn, and wheat had underlying support from light commercial buying.

Country movement was light and basis levels generally were steady.

The midmorning prices:

Corn Sep 2.60 1/2 off 1/2; Dec 2.55 1/2 off 3/4; Mar 2.62 3/4 off 3/4.

Soybeans Aug 5.91 1/4 up 3 1/4; Sep 5.95 3/4 up 2; Nov 6.05 1/2 up 1; Jan 6.17 1/2 up 1 3/4.

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (JULY 31) UPI - About 110,000 iron and steel workers staged an hour-long warning strike Tuesday, signaling the government there would be strike action ahead if it failed to provide protection for metal-industry employees facing layoffs, a labor official said.

The metal workers' action is essentially aimed at softening the impact of a plan devised by British Steel to save part of Yugoslavia's troubled metals industry. Industry production has dropped 23 percent recently as a result of inefficiency, poor planning and an end to government subsidies, officials said. Workers have not been paid for months.

"We demand an urgent program on solving our problems on both short-term and long-term bases, accompanied by a social program to assist those workers who would be laid off" under the plan, Yugoslav Metal Workers Union President Branislav Sekulic said in an interview.

British Steel recommended that eight metals plants be closed, 50,000 employees be laid off and $500 million invested in modern equipment for four surviving facilities.

Sekulic, a 43-year-old metal worker, said an estimated 110,000 employees of Yugoslavia's 12 metalurgical plants staged a warning strike from noon to 1 p.m. He said workers will stage further protests in September if demands are not met.

During Tuesday's short strike, Sekulic told workers the industry was in a state of "complete collapse." He said in an interview the union wants Prime Minister Ante Markovic to provide $250 million immediately to keep all 12 plants operating until a system is devised to provide unemployment benefits and retraining programs for workers targeted for layoffs.

"The workers are not to be blamed for the present situation in the steel and iron plants, nor for what had occurred in the past 45 years. Therefore the authorities must do something to help the workers get out of this crisis," he said.

"We urgently need money from commercial banks, the federal government, and the governments of Yugoslavia's six republics to revive our industry and help workers in their retraining. The federal and provincial governments should work out social programs to help workers who will be laid off," Sekulic said.

"All the Western governments employed similar programs (to assist laid-off workers) when they were solving their heavy industry problems," Sekulic said. The federal government refused the demands in recent talks with steel industry representatives.

Markovic is widely seen as working against pervasive political inertian and resistance to implementing reform programs aimed at transforming Yugoslavia from 45 years of communism into a Western-style parliamentary democracy with a free-market economy.

Under his policies, many unprofitable state-owned companies and factories are being allowed to go bankrupt, cut off from the government subsidies and loans through which communist politicians kept them afloat as part of the patronage system bred by socialism.

BONN, WEST GERMANY (JULY 31) UPI - The terrorist Red Army Faction said in a letter received Tuesday by Western news agencies that the radical left-wing group intended to kill a top German security official, who survived a bomb attack last week, but did not want to harm others.

The group said Friday's attack on Deputy Interior Minister Hans Neusel failed because not enough explosives had been used.

Neusel, the government's top terrorist hunter, suffered only minor injuries when a bomb exploded inches from his car as he was driving to work to the Interior Ministry Friday morning.

The Red Army Faction had earlier claimed responsibility for the attack in a letter found by police at the scene.

In the second letter received Tuesday, the extremists said, ''The explosion was supposed to guarantee certain death, but also 100 percent protection for people not involved. Within this span, we calculated the amount of explosives too low.''

The assailants deposited 55 pounds of explosives in two gas cylinders behind a steel railing on a highway exit.

The detonation, set off by a laser beam, apparently switched on as Neusel's car approached, heavily damaged the car, blasted a three-foot crater in the ground and twisted and uprooted the railing.

The Federal Prosecutor's Office said Tuesday the five-page letter seemed authentic although the group's usual signature of a machine gun inside a five-pointed star was missing.

A spokesman said the two-letter series - the first letter claiming responsibility and the second extensively describing the group's motives - was a typical Red Army tactic.

The same method was used in a bomb attack in Frankfurt last November, which killed Alfred Herrhausen, head of West Germany's largest private bank, a spokesman said.

READING, PA (JULY 31) UPI - Pennsylvania's abortion controls would make battered women double victims, a psychologist Tuesday told a federal judge reviewing the constitutionality of the toughest state abortion laws in the nation.

Lenore Walker, a Denver expert on domestic violence, particularly objected to a requirement by the state that married women notify their husbands before they undergo abortions.

''Forcing a battered woman to notify her husband is like giving him a hammer to beat her with. The probablility of battering is increased if you force her to notify him,'' Walker said on the second day of the trial that is expected to last about two more days.

''The period of pregnancy is the time when abuse, the risk of abuse, increases. With notification there is a much higher probability that a woman will be physically, sexually and-or seriously psychologically abused '' Walker said.

The spousal notification provision is one of five major provisions of the 1988 and 1989 laws that abortion rights advocates want declared unconstitutional by U.S District Judge Daniel Huyett III. Other provisions call for a 24-hour waiting period for women before having abortions, minors to have parental consent to undergo abortions, and counseling and clinical reporting.

Pennsylvania's case is significant because it could provide a tool for abortion opponents to further nibble away at the landmark Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion, and possibly overturn it.

The American Civil Liberties Union is representing five abortion clinics and a Pittsburgh physician, who represents all physicians in Pennsylvania who perform abortions. Kate Mershimer, a senior deputy state attorney general, is defending the laws on behalf of the state.

The state contends that spousal notification protects the rights of husbands and that there are exceptions in the laws to protect victims of domestic violence.

But the ACLU charges that those exceptions are flawed and do not provide a complete shield for battered women.

Huyett already has suspended the major provisions of the two laws. He is being asked to make those suspensions permanent.

Pennsylvania's Abortion Control Act of 1989 contains the only new abortion restrictions imposed by any state since the Supreme Court expanded states' authority to regulate abortions last year.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - President Gnassingbe Eyadema of Togo, meeting with President Bush, said Tuesday that if Liberian President Samuel Doe had accepted an offer for negotiations, ''Everything would have been right.''

At the opening of a ''working visit'' to the White House, the West African leader said Togo had ''tried to mediate'' the conflict in Liberia.

''Unfortunately,'' Eyadema said through an interpreter, Doe rejected attempts to begin talks among the parties in the civil war.

''We have tried to get President Doe to understand, but unfortunately we couldn't,'' he said.

''If he had accepted the negotiations everything would have been right,'' Eyadema added. ''So we have to do what we can.''

The International Committee of the Red Cross said Liberian government troops loyal to Doe stormed a Lutheran church and refugee camp in Monrovia late Sunday and massacred about 600 people, many women and children.

Asked about the massacre, Eyadema replied, ''Our ministers have told us what has taken place.''

Eyadema was in Washington to promote Togo's newly created Export Processing Zone, which will offer U.S. and other investors favorable access to the European Community in 1992.

Under the plan, U.S. investors will be eligible for financing of up to 50 percent of their start-up costs.

Products manufactured for export in Togo can enter the European Community free from duties and quotas.

The Togolese president also was scheduled to meet with congressional leaders and members of the business community, and planned to visit Houston, Bush's home town.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - Higher mortgage interest rates and greater median home prices combined to erode the ability of families to buy a house in June, the National Association of Realtors said Tuesday.

The trade group's Housing Affordability Index, which tracks the ability of a typical family to purchase a median-priced home up for resale, was 102.8 in June, down from 104.7 in May.

The index shows that a family earning the national median income of $34,250 in June had 102.8 percent of the income needed to qualify for conventional financing covering 80 percent of a home priced at $97,500, the median existing-home price for the month.

Half the existing single-family homes sold in June for more than $97,500 and half sold for less. Likewise, half the families in the nation earn more than the median income of $34,250 and half earn less.

The interest rate used to compute the association's affordability index, a composite of both fixed-rate and adjustable-rate mortgages on existing homes, rose to 10.16 percent in June from 10.14 percent in May.

The median home price rose to $97,500 in June from $95,600 in May, while median family income reached $34,250 from the previous month's $34,142.

Despite the May-to-June increase, ''we expect rates to continue to go down and the Housing Affordability Index to remain above 100 during the third quarter,'' said John A. Tuccillo, chief economist for the realtors group.

GENEVA (JULY 31) UPI - The World Health Organization boosted by 25 percent Tuesday its estimates of how many people around the globe are infected with the deadly AIDS virus, saying it now thinks up to 10 million may be afflicted.

Grim new figures show between 8 million and 10 million people worldwide are infected with the AIDS-causing human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, instead of the previously estimate of 6 million to 8 million, WHO said.

WHO officials warned the spread of HIV is ''accelerating dramatically'' in Africa as well as parts of Asia. As many as one of 40 adult men and women in sub-Saharan Africa carry the HIV virus, WHO said.

WHO did not revise its earlier projection that 15 million to 20 million people will have been infected with HIV by the year 2000. However, the health organization said ''marked increases'' in infection in Asia, Latin America and Africa ''could in the next several years force a dramatic upward revision of those projections.''

Up to 800,000 people worldwide have developed acquired immune deficiency syndrome since the disease was first recognized in 1981, and about half of those people have died so far, WHO said. It can take 10 years or more from the time a person is infected with HIV until he or she develops full-blown AIDS.

''It is now clear that the toll of HIV infection around the globe is worsening rapidly, especially in developing countries,'' said Dr. Michael Merson, director of the WHO Global Program on AIDS.

The rate of new HIV infection appears to be slowing in developed nations like the United States, Merson said. However, he emphasized, ''This trend should be no means provoke a sense of complacency as there continues to be groups in the industrialized world subject to increased infection with HIV.''

HIV is spread by sexual or blood-to-blood contact, such as intravenous drug users sharing needles. It can also be passed on from an infected mother to her baby.

Specific problem areas cited in the WHO report were:

-Sub-Saharan Africa: Estimated people infected with HIV have increased from 2.5 million in 1987 to about 5 million today, with ''extensive spread'' to rural areas and not just urban areas as before. WHO now estimates one in 40 adult men and women are infected, compared to its previous estimate of one in 50.

-Asia: Data from Southeast Asia, particularly Thailand and India, indicate a marked increase of HIV infection among drug users and female prostitutes. The number of HIV-infected people was ''virtually nil'' just two years ago but is now estimated at ''at least 500,000.''

Last week, in an article published in the medical journal The Lancet, James Chin of WHO's AIDS program warned that women and children increasingly will fall victim to the deadly disease, and AIDS probably will claim the lives of about 3 million women and children worldwide during the 1990s.

About 80 percent of HIV-infected women currently live in sub-Saharan Africa, but the deadly virus has started to increasingly shift into females in other geographic areas.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (JULY 31) UPI - Workers at General Tire Company's Southern Illinois plant, which employs more than 1,500 people, have voted to remain non-union, company spokesmen said Tuesday.

Voting, which began Thursday and ended Saturday, was 844 to 320 to reject representation by the United Rubber Workers Union.

Floyd Brookman, a company spokesman, said the Mount Vernon plant is the only one of six North American General Tire plants that does not have union representation.

The other five plants are in Charlotte, N.C.; Mayfield, Ky.; Barrie, Ontario, Canada; Bryan, Ohio; and Wayco, Texas.

Brookman said General Tire, with headquarters in Akron, Ohio, was expected to add approximatley 500 more employees by 1992 at its Southern Illinois facility when a joint venture by General Tire and the Japanese companies Toyo and Yokohama begins operating.

The new facility will produce radial truck tires. Brookman said limited production will begin early in 1991 and full production will be reached in 1992.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - The first effort to keep the B-2 stealth bomber alive in the House defense bill failed as the House Armed Services subcommittee rejected a proposal to add $200 million to the project's account.

The 19-member procurement subcommittee, by voice vote, rejected the proposal by Rep. Ike Skelton, D-Mo., for the additional funds to pay for parts to build future stealth aircraft.

Whiteman Air Force Base, the first base due to get a squadron of B-2s, is in Skelton's district.

Monday's vote was the first test of whether the plane could be revived in the House version of the 1991 defense authorization bill since Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of both the full committee and the procurement subcommittee, announced he was siding with those who want to kill the program at the current level of 15 planes.

Skelton was uncertain if he would try the move again when the full committee meets Tuesday or whether he would try when the $283 billion measure reaches the House floor the first week in September.

Aspin's announcement a week ago set up a confrontation over the batwinged plane.

The Senate Armed Services Committee accepted the Pentagon's recommendation that two planes be approved, down from a recommendation of five because of a review that saw the B-2 scaled back from 132 planes to 75. The cost fell from $75 billion to about $62 billion.

The program reduction drove the per-plane costs up to more than $800 million, counting research costs, a move that only helped fuel opposition.

Should the full House accept Aspin's recommendation and the full Senate back the two-plane position, the battle will be waged in a conference committee.

Suzy Kerr, an arms control lobbyist working the B-2 issue, said she believed more than 40 senators - perhaps as many as 46 - will back a proposal to terminate the program that so far has cost $27 billion.

And she predicted a move to suspend the program for a year might win a majority and effectively kill off the program after construction and testing is completed on the 15 initial planes.

The B-2 is built in California by Northrop, with help from over 4,000 subcontractors including industry giant Boeing. At least 12,000 Northrop jobs are at stake.

The plane uses a combination of its softly rounded shape, radar-absorbing composite materials on its skin and carefully ducted engines buried within the fuselage to make it almost - but not entirely - invisible to radar.

The administration, after the revision of its aviation programs, sought $1.7 billion for research on the plane and $1.9 billion for two production aircraft, and another $767 million for advance procurement of parts for six additional planes in 1992.

The panel also kept alive the V-22 Osprey tilt-rotor plane, which can take off like a helicopter and fly like an airplane, by adding $165 million in production money to the request for $238 million in research funds.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney has been trying for two years to kill off the project being run jointly by Bell Helicopter in Fort Worth, Texas, and Boeing's Vertol unit in Pennsylvania.

In another action, the research subcommittee chopped the administration's $4.46 billion request for Strategic Defense Initiative work at the Pentagon back to just $2.93 billion.

The budget request sought another $191 million for work at the Energy Department, but sources said that was cut out entirely by the House subcommittee. The Senate Armed Services Committee has approved $3.37 billion at the Pentagon and $106 million at the Energy Department, roughly freezing SDI spending at current levels.

That SDI cut virtually guarantees that SDI spending will continue a slide that began with the current year's budget.

FLINT, MI (JULY 31) UPI - One man's trash could be Matt Young's treasure if it turns out the embroidered coats of arms he bought for $28 at a rummage sale once belonged to the famed Medici family of the Italian Renaissance.

The 32-year-old tinsmith said he bought a shoebox containing more than a dozen of the coats of arms in 1986 to hang in his basement, but didn't research their history until last fall.

A Bloomfield Hills antiques dealer, who examined several of the patches, said it appears they once belonged to the Medicis, the rich and powerful merchants and rulers of Florence and Tuscany from the 15th to 18th centuries.

''They certainly look to be from that period. And if they have historical importance, their value would go up,'' gallery owner Frank Boos said.

Ranging in size from about 8 to 16 inches, the coats of arms are made of silks and velvets and include gold and silver threads.

One intricately designed piece is in the shape of an ox yoke, which Young says was the personal symbol of Giovanni Medici, who became Pope Leo X in 1513.

Young said he was puzzled about the origin of his collection until he saw a photo of a Rubens painting in a library book. The painting of Marie de Medici, who became queen of France in 1600, showed the family's personal coat of arms. Further research in an obscure heraldry book confirmed the Medici symbol - consisting of six circles - as the same one on Young's coats of arms.

''That's when I realized what I had,'' he told the Detroit Free Press. ''The whole idea of having something that was so close to Michelangelo is very emotional. I'm stunned.''

During their long heyday, the Medicis were patrons to such scientists as Galileo and artists such as Michelangelo, Raphael and Leonardo da Vinci.

Young now keeps his collection in envelopes of acid-free paper in a bank vault.

''I want them to be preserved and displayed somewhere so the public can see them 100 years from now,'' he said.

BOSTON (JULY 31) UPI - Women who are screened at least once every three years for cervical cancer reduce their risk of developing an invasive form of the disease or dying from it by about 90 percent, a study said Tuesday.

Dr. David Eddy said an anaylsis of research conducted in the United States and elsewhere indicates that women between the ages of 20 and 65 who have regular Pap smears have only an 11 in 10,000 chance of dying from cervical cancer, versus a 118 in 10,000 risk for women who are never screened.

Regular Pap smears also reduce the chances a woman will develop invasive cervical cancer, in which cancer penetrates beyond the top layer of cervical cells, said Eddy. Among women regularly screened, the risk for invasive cancer is 35 in 10,000, versus 250 in 10,000 for unscreened women he said.

About 13,500 new cases of invasive cervical cancer are reported each year in the United States and some 6,000 women die from the disease. The cervix is the lower portion of the uterus that protrudes into the vagina.

The Pap smear, introduced in the early 1940s by Dr. George Papanicolaou, is a generally painless procedure in which doctors scrape cells from the inner and outer portions of the cervix and send them to a laboratory, where they are analyzed for signs of abnormal changes.

Although many doctors recommend women have a Pap smear every year, research data indicates that Pap tests every two or three years are about as effective as annual tests, said Eddy, who did the study for Duke University's Center for Health Policy Research and Education.

A ''reasonable recommendation is that women should be screened at least every three years, starting in their early 20s and continuing into their 60s. For most women, a three-year frequency is appropriate,'' Eddy reported in the Annals of Internal Medicine.

The question of whether an annual Pap smear is necessary has been an ''evolving controversy'' in the medical world, said Joann Schellenbach, a spokeswoman for the American Cancer Society.

Schellenbach said most doctors who responded to a survey the organization conducted recommended a Pap test once a year. She said many feel an annual test is a good idea, not just to detect cervical cancer, but as a means of getting patients to undergo annual exams ''that might uncover other problems as well.''

But Schellenbach noted that Eddy estimated the average cost of a Pap test to be $76, so ''clearly, there are financial considerations.''

The cancer society, the National Cancer Institute and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists recommend that women who are 18 years of age or sexually active undergo three consecutive annual Pap smears. If the tests uncover no abnormalities, the organizations say the frequency of subsequent tests should be left to the discretion of doctors.

''Guidelines are not meant to be set in cement. Patients vary greatly according to risk factors. Obviously, there is a difference between a sexually active young woman and a nun in a convent,'' Schellenbach said.

Earlier this month, Marilyn Quayle, wife of Vice President Dan Quayle, underwent a hysterectomy after two Pap smears revealed the presence of abnormal cervical tissue, a condition that doctors said could in time progress to cancer.

Eddy said studies show that blacks, Hispanics and American Indians are twice as likely to develop cervical cancer as whites and Asians. But the ''two most important factors affecting risk are early age at first intercourse and number of sexual partners,'' he said.

''Several studies indicate that women with more than one partner have approximately two to three times the risk, compared with women who have only one partner,'' he said.

One recent study also found that smokers have a 50 percent higher chance of developing cervical cancer than non-smokers, and that the ''the risk increases for long-term smokers and users of unfiltered cigarettes,'' he said.

MANCHESTER, NJ (JULY 31) UPI - A memorial to a deceased township administrator was installed last weekend. Hours later, it was removed.

It turns out the deceased may have been a crook.

''I told them to get it out of here,'' said Manchester Mayor Jane Cameron of the 800-pound granite rock with a brown and gold plaque honoring Joseph Portash.

Portash, 57, died in February after a 28-year political career in which he served as Manchester mayor, Ocean County freeholder and, most recently, township administrator.

Since his death, officials have discovered there is as much as $2 million missing from township accounts. Portash is believed to have received as much has half the missing money.

When Cameron spied the memorial, ordered by the township's Shade Tree Commission, being set into the ground near a Japanese maple on Saturday, ''I almost fell out of my chair,'' she said.

''I couldn't impose that on township residents, or let any visitor see the township had honored this man in this fashion,'' she told The Asbury Park Press.

The mayor had workers cover the rock, with its plaque, until the company that installed the memorial could return to remove it.

''With a small plaque, you can put it in a drawer and forget about it,'' she said. ''But it was harder to get rid of a rock.''

SAN DIEGO (JULY 31) UPI - A trio of Soviet warships, exchanging 21-gun salutes with their American hosts, sailed into the once-forbidden waters of an American naval base Tuesday to begin a five-day visit to the West Coast.

The three ships glided into San Diego Harbor about 11 a.m. EDT and docked at a pier inside the San Diego Naval station.

The new chapter in glasnost between former Cold War adversaries was punctuated with the exchange of 21-gun salutes. Next was a scheduled ceremony for the commanders of the U.S. and Soviet Pacific fleets to sit down together and share bread and salt, a Soviet welcoming tradition.

''It's the Soviet standard for hospitality,'' explained Lt. Cmdr. Bob Pritchard, spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Fleet. ''You could do without everything else in the world, but bread and salt are needed for subsistence.''

The ceremony launches an unprecedented exchange of information and good will between Soviet sailors and their counterparts at the U.S. Navy's largest domestic base.

Until the three ships depart Saturday for their home port of Vladivostok, Americans and Soviets will spend every waking minute together, touring installations, watching aircraft maneuvers, attending formal dinners and even picnicking together on local beaches.

Much of Tuesday was to be spent in official receptions, including a meeting with Mayor Maureen O'Connor and a banquet hosted by the San Diego

Wednesday's highlight will occur at Rosecrans National Ceremony, when Soviet Adm. Gennadij Khvatov lays a memorial wreath on the graves of World War II soldiers and meets with 200 American veterans of what the Soviets call the Great Patriotic War.

''If there is one event in this whole week that means more to the Soviets than anything else, it is the wreath laying. Things dealing with World War II have enormous significance for the Soviet people,'' Pritchard said.

Fraternizing between the troops has been designated a top priority. Americans and Soviets will compete in volleyball and soccer matches and take time out for visits to the San Diego Zoo and Sea World.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - The Senate repulsed an assault by Republicans on the longtime power of organized labor in elections Tuesday, rejecting a proposal that would have allowed dissident union members to get a refund on the part of their dues used for politics.

The Senate defeated the GOP amendment to the campaign finance reform measure 59-41, but then adopted 57-43 a Democratic counter-proposal that would allow the refund for non-union members who pay dues as part of a labor contract.

The back-to-back votes came as Democrats continued to dominate the action on the campaign finance reform bill, using their 10-vote majority to strike down proposed Republican changes.

In the first showdown Monday night, the Democratic-controlled Senate voted 49-46 to retain three public financing provisions in the bill.

Those provisions are key to the Democratic proposal to set voluntary state-by-state spending ceilings for Senate candidates, offering those who abide by the ceilings taxpayer funds if their opponents violate the limits.

In addition, the bill would provide taxpayer-funded broadcast vouchers, equal to 20 percent of the spending limit, and tax dollars to counter TV or radio advertisements by independent groups that cost more than $10,000.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, offered the amendment that would have allowed union members, as well as dues-paying non-members, to get a refund.

''These rights must be extended accross-the-board to all union members,'' Hatch said. ''Anything less is a sham.''

Noting that perhaps as much as $500 million is spent by organized labor in an election cycle, Hatch said, ''If you don't do something about this sewer money, you can't have reform.''

He said labor money goes to Democrats on a 10-1 ratio although 30 percent to 40 percent of members are Republicans.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., said the Democratic alternative, which he said tracks Supreme Court decisions, would apply only to non-union members, adding, ''I do not think we should go further.''

The Senate floor battle came after Democrats and Republicans failed after months of high-level negotiations to find a bipartisan common ground on the issue of spending ceilings for Senate campaigns.

Differences were narrowed, however, on several parts of the bill, with Democrats adopting at the last moment a GOP plan to abolish all political action committee contributions.

Opening statements by the two Senate leaders, Democrat George Mitchell of Maine and Republican Robert Dole of Kansas showed the two sides no closer on putting limits on candidate spending and no sign differences can be bridged.

''We remain far apart on the basic issue of spending limits,'' Mitchell said. ''We cannot give up on spending limits. That is the key to real reform.''

Dole said, ''The real culprit is not spending but the source of the funding. It's the source - not how much - the source.''

The Democratic proposal would set voluntary spending ceilings for Senate candidates, ranging from $950,000 to $5 million depending on the size of the state. The limit could be exceeded by 25 percent with in-state contributions of $100 or less.

Candidates who accept the voluntary spending limits could get taxpayer money if his or her opponent exceeds the ceiling. They also would get broadcast vouchers equal to 20 percent of the general election limit and lower mail costs.

The Republican proposal has no spending limits but ''flexible fund-raising targets'' based on the voting age population in each state. Candidates could get unlimited contributions from in-state sources and unlimited contributions of $250 or less from outside the state.

No contributor who does not live in the candidates' state could give more than $500. The current cap on contributions to a single candidates is $1,000.

Both Republicans and Democrats would ban political action committee donations and provide candidates with low-cost broadcast rates. The competing plans also have several provisions dealing with party activities.

The last major attempt to enact campaign finance reform came in 1988 and was stymied by a Republican filibuster. Despite eight attempts, the Senate refused along party lines to cut off the debate.

''The only meaningful wayreform the system is spending limits,'' Mitchell said. ''Anything else only gives the appearance of reform.''

NEW YORK (JULY 31) UPI - Police Tuesday arrested three suspects in the slaying of a 9-month-old baby, cut down by automatic weapon fire as he played in his walker in a Bronx apartment. He was the fourth child killed by random gunfire in the past nine days.

The three young men were charged in the killing Monday of the baby, Rayvon Jamison, Police Commissioner Lee Brown announced at a news conference.

The alleged shooter was identified as Anthony Rupert, 18, Brown said. His two suspected accomplices were identified as Bobie West, 18, and Mike Sullivan, 22. All three live in the Bronx.

Rayvon's death brought calls for stricter gun control laws and a ban on assault weapons.

Rayvon was sitting in a walker directly behind the door in a fifth floor apartment at 1278 Grand Concourse when the gunfire erupted about 4 p.m. Monday, police said. Less than an hour later, the child was declared dead at Lincoln Hospital.

Brown said Monday the shooting was related to an earlier dispute between the baby's uncle and an unidentified man, who may have returned to the apartment seeking revenge.

Mayor David Dinkins urged the boy's mother, Ester Jamison, 27, to be strong as she raises her other child.

He said the death of yet another child ''makes me very sad and angry. I've talked to Rayvon's mother and urged her to be strong because she has a 7-year-old daughter who still has her life ahead of her.

''The police and the courts cannot relieve the pain we feel as a city, and that Rayvon's mother must feel, in particular, over the slaughter of another baby. We know we have had enough. We had enough 10 days ago after the first of these recent killings of our children.''

Dinkins called on the federal government to enact a ban on assault weapons and urged passage of tougher gun control laws.

On July 11, the Senate approved a sweeping anti-crime bill that included a three-year ban on the importation or domestic manufacture of nine military-type assault weapons.

The bill, which was a major defeat for the Bush administration and the powerful National Rifle Association, is now in the House.

Rayvon was hit in the armpit by bullets that tore through the door of the fifth floor walk-up apartment. Nine people, including the baby's mother, grandmother, aunt and uncle were in the apartment at the time, said Sgt. Tina Mohrmann, a police spokeswoman.

The shell casings found were 9mm, indicating they were from an automatic weapon, police said.

The shooting took place hours after the funeral of 9-year-old Veronica Corales, who was killed by a stray bullet July 22 during a violent argument on the street where she lived.

The other two children killed in separate shootings last week were 1-year-old Yaritami Frito and 3-year-old Ben Williams.

MEMPHIS, TN (JULY 31) UPI - The PGA Tour has asked if a Memphis golf course would be available for next week's PGA Championship because of the controversy over the all-white Shoal Creek Country Club in Birmingham, Ala.

Dwight Drinkard, director of the Federal Express St. Jude Classic, site of this week's stop on the PGA Tour, said no definite request was made. But he said the Tournament Players Club at Southwind would be interested in holding the championship.

The Memphis course has a non-discriminatory policy and has black members, Drinkard said.

''I can confirm that there were inquiries about four or five days ago,'' Drinkard said. ''I also have to say the conversations have been like, 'What if?' I think they are looking at a lot of contingencies.''

Drinkard said he talked with only PGA Tour officials. The PGA Championship is run by the Professional Golfers Association of America and is not a PGA Tour-sponsored event.

The PGA Championship, the last of four major golf championships, is scheduled for the Shoal Creek Country Club Aug. 9-12. Civil rights groups have threatened to picket the event and many advertisers have canceled their spots on ABC's television coverage in protest of the club's policy.

Shoal Creek founder Hall Thompson started the contoversy when he said his club would not be pressured into taking black members. He later apologized and club officials have said they will consider black members. However, black leaders said they wanted a black member at the club by the time the tournament is played or they would picket the event.

PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman said he does not believe the tournament will be moved.

''I think the problems have, for the most part, been resolved,'' Beman said Monday night.

''I would love to have it, sure,'' Drinkard said. ''Whether it will happen I just can't say. The PGA Tour people we talked to said they would get back to us if moves beyond being a contingency. There's really no need to think about it until that happens, if it does.''

COLOMBO, SRI LANKA (JULY 31) UPI - Security forces killed 27 separatist rebels in a gun battle Tuesday after the guerrillas killed five soldiers with a land mine in northwestern Sri Lanka, a military official said.

The clashes brought the toll from guerrilla-related violence since the weekend to 68 people dead.

Police said Monday the separatist Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam abducted and executed 14 Moslem farmers in eastern Sri Lanka. Related separatist violence left at least eight other people dead, police and military officials said.

The 14 Moslems who were killed were part of a group of 17 farmers abducted Monday around the predominantly Moslem village of Akkaraipattu, about 220 miles east of Colombo, police said.

The group was taken to an unknown location where the rebels opened fire, killing 14. Three others were wounded but escaped to a nearby village, police said.

Tiger rebels later dumped the bodies of the 14 victims in Akkaraipattu's main street, where they were discovered by residents early Tuesday, police said.

Police said the Tigers may have suspected the farmers of cooperating with government authorities in the war against the rebels.

The land-mine attack that killed five soldiers Tuesday occurred near the town of Uyilankulam, about 140 miles north of the capital. Security forces killed 27 rebels in a gun battle after the mine explosion, police said.

In a separate incident, two soldiers were killed when Tamil Tigers fired mortars into a military camp on the northern Jaffna Peninsula, according to a Defense Ministry statement released Tuesday.

The statement also said six rebels were killed by army snipers near Palaly on the Jaffna Peninsula.

On Saturday, rebels stormed into a mosque and killed six Moslems in Sammanthurai, about 20 miles south of Akkaraipattu.

Tiger rebels are fighting to establish an independent Tamil homeland in the northern and eastern provinces.

They believe that Sri Lanka's minority Tamils, who are mostly Hindu, need a separate nation because of years of alleged discrimination by the predominantly Buddhist Sinhalese, who control the Colombo government.

Fighting between security forces and the Tamil Tigers erupted in mid-June after rebels staged four simultaneous attacks on military bases in eastern Sri Lanka.

Since then, more than 2,000 soldiers, rebels and civilians have been killed in the fighting.

Sri Lanka battled a number of Tamil militant groups from 1983 until 1987 when Colombo tried to end the violence by signing a peace accord with New Delhi.

Under the terms of the agreement, India sent thousands of peace-keeping troops to Sri Lanka to maintain order and to supervise the surrender of weapons by militant groups who agreed to lay down their arms in exchange for greater autonomy in Tamil areas.

Only the Tamil Tigers refused to participate in the process, and the development led to war between the rebel group and the Indian army.

India failed to defeat the Tigers and earlier this year withdrew the last of its forces, leaving behind a fragile peace between the rebels and the Sri Lankan government.

Diplomatic observers believed that the Tigers and the government would settle their differences without resorting to violence, but the peace was shattered last month when the rebels attacked the military camps.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - President Bush has been advised to veto legislation that would ban the use of facsimile machines and automatic dialer recorded message players for unsolicited advertising, a spokeswoman said Tuesday.

White House deputy press secretary Alixe Glen, responding to approval late Monday by the House of such a measure, said Bush's top advisers had recommended a presidential veto of the measure meant to provide relief for Americans annoyed by the computer-driven telephone calls and heaps of unwanted junk mail arriving over fax machines.

Similar legislation is pending in the Senate.

''The administration thinks it's unnecessary to have additional legislation on this,'' Glen said. ''The number of complaints are small and there are already systems and infrastructures in place to deal with (the situation).''

But the government has estimated that some 180,000 telemarketing operators selling everything from financial services to so-called cures for baldness, phone more than seven million Americans every day.

An estimated 2 million people own fax machines, mostly businesses that have been bothered by increasing numbers of unsolicited ads, known as junk fax.

The pre-recorded messages often go out to entire blocks of numbers in sequence, tying up phone lines, including emergency police and fire department numbers. Junk fax also is blamed for tying up fax machines waiting to receive legitimate business calls.

Under the legislation, anyone who does not wish to receive such advertising would notify their telephone company, which would pass the information along to the Federal Communications Commission. The FCC would compile a nationwide list of people and organizations who object to unsolicited advertising by phone or fax.

Bush already has vetoed 13 bills, none of which has been successfully overridden by the Congress.

In its latest economic situation survey, the CBI said it expects output to ''decline significantly and job losses to increase in the next 4 months as a slowdown in exports adds to the effects of falling home demand.''

The CBI warned that while the slowdown is making it difficults for small firms to survive, there are worries that the high interest rate policy could cause substantial cuts in manufacturing investment in machinery innovation and training.

Gow died minutes after an explosion ripped his car as he was driving from his home south of London yesterday.

Western diplomatic sources say U-S-backed Afghan rebels lost ground to the pro-Soviet government during a massive four-month offensive. DALLAS (JULY 31) UPI - Triton Energy Co., burdened by losses and a large amount of debt, Tuesday announced a major restructuring that calls for eliminating payment of a quarterly cash dividend on the company's common stock and selling ''non-strategic'' assets.

The independent oil and natural gas exploration company, with interests in 12 countries, said the restructuring is expected to result in a loss for the fiscal fourth quarter ended May 31 before writedowns. The latest loss could be as much as $20 million and will come on top of a $24 million loss Triton recorded through the first nine months of fiscal 1990.

Triton expects gross proceeds of about $150 million from the restructuring with the money to be used principally to reduce long-term debt of about $250 million and increase working capital, company spokesman Phil Shook said.

Besides ceasing payment of the dividend on common stock at an annual rate of 10 cents a share, Triton said the restructuring will include a ''substantial reduction in general and administrative expenses.'' The company has been paying the dividend since 1981.

''Future operating profits and cash flow will be increased as a result of these changes in operations,'' said Triton Chairman William Lee. ''The primary focus of the company will be redirected toward building assets values through oil and gas exploration projects.''

But the announcement apparently aroused little interest among investors. The price of Triton's common stock was up 12.5 cents to $11.75 cents a share on little volume in New York Stock Exchange trading early Tuesday afternoon.

Assets to be sold will include Triton's fixed-base aviation operations, a portion of its producing U.S. oil and gas interests and a marketable securities portfolio of about $15 million.

Also, the company plans to file next month a registration statement to make an initial public offering of a majority interest in Input/Output Inc., Triton's Houston-based seismic equipment subsidiary.

About $61 million of the anticipated $150 million of proceeds will be from the sale of the U.K. assets of Triton North Sea oil and gas interests to Conoco (U.K.) Ltd., an affiliate of Du Pont's Conoco Inc. subsidiary. The company also expects another $4 million from the proposed sale of its assets in the Dutch sector of the North Sea, Shook said.

The seismic subsidiary employs 153 people and Shook said it is not known if its sale would result in staff reductions. He did not rule out staff cuts as part of the overall restructuring.

The aviation business consists of eight general aviation airports Triton owns, the largest of which is the Hughes Aviation facility in Las Vegas. Triton acquired the business three years ago and has had problems with it since.

''I don't know of any pressure from our lenders to do this restructuring '' Shook said.

Recently, Hong Kong-based Industrial Equity (Pacific) Ltd. disclosed it had increased its stake in Triton to 9.3 percent from less than 5 percent.

Subsequently, Triton announced a shareholder rights plan, giving preferred stock purchase rights to common stockholders. At the time, the company said the rights plan was not intended to prevent a fair takeover of the company.

MOSCOW (JULY 31) UPI - Afghan President Najibullah was in the Soviet resort town of Sochi on the Black Sea Tuesday in a visit coinciding with U.S.-Soviet talks on reaching a peace accord for his war-torn nation, officials said Tuesday.

An Afghan Embassy official confirmed Najibullah's presence, but would not say when the Afghan leader left Kabul for the Soviet Union, nor clarify the purpose of his visit to Sochi.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gremitskikh said Najibullah, who has visited the Soviet Union several times in the past, was at the resort for unspecified medical treatment.

President Mikhail Gorbachev left for vacation to the Crimea on the Black Sea on Monday, but it remained unclear if the two leaders would meet.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze has arrived in the Siberian town of Irkutsk and U.S. Secretary of State James Baker, who is currently traveling through Mongolia, was to arrive there later for talks set to begin Wednesday.

The discussions are expected to focus on a plan to end the Afghan civil war between U.S.-backed guerrillas and the Soviet-armed government in Kabul.

Moscow pulled out its more than 100,000 troops from Afghanistan in February 1989, ending a more than nine-year occupation that failed to crush the rebels based in Pakistan and Iran.

About 1.5 million Afghans have died since the Soviet Union invaded in December 1979 to prop up a communist regime that was tottering from factional infighting and a spreading rebellion by Moslem tribesmen.

Since the the United States and the Soviet Union are considering a peace plan in which Najibullah would stay in power, it did not appear he faced the fate of his predecessor, Babrak Karmal. Karmal was summoned to Moscow in May 1986 before being replaced by Najibullah.

Najibullah has defied Western predictions his government would fall after the Soviet withdrawal. His army has fought the rebels to a standstill and thwarted a bloody coup attempt earlier this year.

Tuesday, Western diplomatic sources in Islamabad, Pakistan, said the Afghan government pressing a massive four-month offensive had used massive air and artillery bombardments as well as armored and elite units to capture wide areas from the rebels near the capital of Kabul.

One source said the newly captured area included the strategic town of Paghman near the Paghman hills, about 12 miles west of Kabul. The source said the government portrayed the operation as aimed at ousting guerrillas in the hills who have bombarded the capital of Kabul almost daily for the past year.

But the source said, ''observers suggest that the real motivation for the regime offensive has been to remove the damage to its prestige caused by Mujahideen positions so visibly close to the capital.''

A source said government troops were ''constructing a series of security posts just west of Paghman'' to impede rebel infiltration from the Paghman mountains.

The sources also said the guerrillas on July 17 attacked the city of Ghazni, 70 miles southwest of Kabul, where heavy fighting is continuing. The sources also reported stepped-up fighting last week around the besieged garrison town of Khost, 15 miles from the Pakistan border.

The guerrillas have failed to capture any major urban centers despite the Soviet withdrawal and have been embroiled in bloody internecine feuds.

There was no word from the Afghan government on the recent reports, which could not be verified independently.

Moscow has resisted Washington's demands Najibullah step down and allow creation of a broad-based government, and the Bush administration recently admitted it is willing to compromise because ''there is no prospect of a military solution.''

Under current proposals, the United Nations will have a more significant role and Najibullah would remain in office while most of his powers are transferred to an interim council under U.N. supervision until elections.

The U.S. Senate Intelligence Committee has voted to cut funds to the rebels, who currently receive about $300 million per year in ''covert aid'' from Washington, and funding and weapons from Middle Eastern nations.

Moscow also is eager to stop bankrolling Kabul, reportedly to the tune of about $3 billion per year.

However, observers are skeptical that the well-armed and fractious rebels will adher to any superpower peace pact for the nation that has never been subjugated.

ASHEVILLE, NC (JULY 31) UPI - A husband and wife appeared before a magistrate Tuesday on charges they embezzled more than $400,000 from the woman's 88-year-old blind grandmother.

Pauline Allen, 31, of Asheville, and Mark Allen, 37, of Woodfin, were arrested Monday, said Lt. W.C. Loeffler, of the Woodfin Police Department. The two are married but have separate domiciles.

The Allens were charged with embezzling $400,000 in cash and $25,000 in real estate from Bertha Clitt, of Sebring, Fla.

Loeffler said none of the money that disappeared from the grandmother's cash management account has been recovered. But he said his investigation led him to believe the pair improperly used the money to purchase vehicles and real estate and to set up a body shop business in Asheville.

The account had been set up through a brokerage firm because the grandmother's loss of vision left her unable to handle her finances. Allen was given authority to sign checks, but only to pay her grandmother's bills.

Her son, Charles Clitt, of Tavares, Fla., said he became aware something was wrong when checks written on the account started bouncing.

''My mother is very upset about what happened,'' he said.

Charles Clitt and his mother contacted Loeffler last April, when the officer began his investigation.

The Allens had a first appearance hearing in Buncombe County District Court Tuesday afternoon. They are being held in the Buncombe County Jail on $750,000 bond apiece.

Embezzlement in North Carolina carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison, plus fines, Loeffler said.

NEW MILFORD, CT (JULY 31) UPI - Veteran movie actor Richard Widmark was resting comfortably in New Milford Hospital Tuesday, recovering from a leg injury received in a lawn mower accident.

''He's doing fairly well and resting comfortably'' said Hank Fanberg, a spokesman at New Milford Hospital, where Widmark was admitted Sunday night.

The spokesman said doctors may decide Tuesday whether the 75-year-old actor was well enough to be released.

The one-time movie tough guy was taken to the hospital by ambulance after his left leg and a lawn mover became tangled while he was mowing the lawn at his home in Roxbury.

Widmark underwent successful surgery to repair the damage. However, Fanberg did not say how extensive the injuries were and he had no details on how the accident happened.

Fanberg said Widmark was ''obviously in pain'' when admitted and ''has asked that he be given the ability to recuperate without a lot of disractions.

Widmark, who made his film debut as a sadistic killer in the 1947 movie ''Kiss of Death,'' has been a long-time resident of Roxbury.

Widmark started his career on radio, then made his Broadway debut in ''Kiss and Tell.''

His film credits include ''Madigan,'' which was developed into a television series that Widmark starred in, ''No Way Out,'' ''Death of a Gunfighter,'' ''Hell and High Water,'' ''How the West Was Won,'' ''Judgment at Nuremberg,'' ''Murder on the Orient Express,'' ''The Domino Principle'' and ''Against All Odds.''

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - Farmers have battled locust plagues for centuries, most recently with massive amounts of pesticides, but preventive tactics might be a wiser approach in ravaged areas of Africa, a report to Congress said Tuesday.

The report by the Office of Technology Assessment questioned the effectiveness of the pesticide attacks and asked whether marauding swarms of locusts and grasshoppers were as severe a risk to food supplies as commonly thought.

International donors spent $275 million from 1985-1989 in combatting the first simultaneous outbreak of locusts and grasshoppers in 50 years. The United States spent $60 million on aircraft, pesticides and technical assistance. African nations also contributed to the effort.

"It is time to lay better groundwork for U.S. pest management strategies in Africa," the OTA said, in suggesting more attention to biological controls, more judicious use of pesticides, and monitoring that would catch infestations in early stages.

Swarms of crop-destroying insects commonly are viewed as severe threats to Africa's tenuous food supplies. The OTA said the link between the swarms and famine was questionable.

"Locusts and grasshoppers are relatively minor pests even during upsurges in terms of overall crop losses, although localized damage may be devastating," the report said.

In the plague of the late 1980s, crop losses were smaller than a drought would have inflicted. Production in the nine countries most severely affected by grasshoppers dipped by one percent, according to the United Nations' Food and Agriculture Organization.

In its critique, the OTA pointed to the high cost of pesticide spraying - as high as $30 per hectare, or three times the cost of U.S. spraying. It said there was evidence that $40 million was spent in nine countries in 1986 to save $46 million in crops. In addition, it said, little attention has been given to the long-term environmental impact from the chemicals.

The OTA suggested expanded use of integrated pest management, a method that takes advantage of natural predators to control a pest. Taking that route will require spending more money on research and training, it said.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of a subcommittee that oversees the locust control program, said he would ask the Agency for International Development to re-evaluate its program in light of the OTA report.

"Although this kind of approach (preventive tactices) might not have the dramatic, short-term impact that agencies like AID like to tout as evidence of success, it could save money and accomplish more in the long run," Leahy said.

Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, chairman of an appropriations subcommittee, said he would consider initiatives that would implement steps recommended in the OTA report. In a statement, he said, "Few problems are more critical to the survival of farmers in the developing world than the problem of pest control."

LONDON (JULY 31) UPI - Jaguar, the luxury car maker bought by Ford last November, Tuesday reported a pre-tax loss of $90.7 million in 1989, its worst financial performance for a decade.

The Jaguar board blamed the loss on difficult trading conditions, a significant deterioration in the dollar-sterling exchange rate, and lower-than-expected sales and production. The loss compared to profits of $87.4 million the year before.

Jaguar made a profit of $223.2 million in 1985, the first year after it was privatized. Revenues for 1989 rose to $2.1 billion, compared to $1.97 billion for 1988.

Analysts said the $2.9 billion paid by Ford for the company last year probably exceeded the worth of the prestigious automobile manufacturer. They said the scale of the loss suggested Jaguar, formerly a state-owned company, would have little chance of survival without the support of Ford.

Jaguar Chairman Bill Hayden said Ford had plans to abolish the hand production of the famous Jaguar leather upholstery and walnut veneer in favour of increased automation, and to triple output to 150,000 cars a year. Quarterly results were not available.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - Adolph Coors Co. will take on long-term debt to pay for recent acquisitions and to fund its ambitious capital-spending program, according to a company report released Tuesday by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The company's July purchase of Stroh Brewery Co.'s Memphis brewery and packaging facility, along with capital projects at two Coors subsidiaries, may lead to a cash shortfall, according to the document.

The company is not doing poorly, reporting to the SEC record sales of $475 million for the second quarter of 1990, with net income coming in at $25.1 million - its best earnings for the period since 1986.

But Coors has taken on several capital projects, including construction of a $150 million rolling mill by subsidiary Golden Aluminum Co. in San Antonio, Texas, and improvements to be made at the Coors Brewing Co. unit. Overall spending on capital improvements in 1990 will equal $230 million, the company said at its annual meeting.

These projects "will require cash in excess of amounts generated from operations," Coors said in the SEC filing. "The company anticipates using external financing sources to fund these projects, which is expected to result in future increases in long-term debt," the company added.

Golden, Colo.-based Coors earlier filed a shelf registration for $300 million in debt with the SEC, $50 million of which was issued in June in the form of unsecured four-year notes. The company has no other medium- or long-term debt.

Asked how much additional debt will be needed, Dave Dunnewald, Coors' financial relations manager, said: "It's a little hard to tell at this point because it will depend on how beer sales continue and how we are doing with our rolling mill startup." The mill will produce beer cans.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - The U.S. Export-Import Bank Tuesday said it will guarantee a $42.5 million line of credit from Credit Lyonnais to Comision Federal de Electricidad, the Mexican government-owned power company.

CFE will use the credit line to finance 85 percent of $50 million in U.S. goods and services to refurbish its gas- and steam-driven turbines and its power plants throughout Mexico. CFE will make a 15 percent cash payment on each purchase.

Eximbank has been a major source of funding for CFE for the past 23 years. Since 1967, Eximbank supported more than 250 transactions totaling $691 million for CFE.

In fiscal 1990, which ended last Sept. 30, Eximbank provided Mexico with $940 million in new financing. Until June 30 during fiscal 1991, Eximbank said it supported more than $1 billion in U.S. exports to Mexico.

The Bush administration urged House Democratic leaders today to permit a vote this week on compromise civil rights legislation. White House deputy press secretary Alixe Glen said the new measure, unlike the one approved by the Senate two weeks ago, would NOT lead to the unacceptable job quotas. There was NO immediate decision on if and when there would be a vote on the legislation.

The House is scheduled to adjourn Friday for a month-long summer recess... but the vacation may be postponed. House Democratic leader Richard Gephardt says Congress may hold off its recess to give budget negotiators more time to work out a deficit reduction agreement. He says a final decision could be made tomorrow or Thursday. Gephardt made his announcement following a meeting with President Bush and other congressional leaders.

An expert on domestic violence says Pennsylvania's abortion laws could be bad for battered wives. Psychologist Lenore Walker today told a federal judge reviewing the constitutionality of the laws that a provision requiring the women to notify their husbands before getting an abortion was- in her words- ''like giving him a hammer to beat her with.'' Walker says notifying an abusive husband increases the probability of violence.

Today was the opening day of the Minneapolis trial of three former Northwest Airlines pilots fired for allegedly flying a plane while intoxicated. Defense attorneys admit their clients drank the night before the flight from Fargo, North Dakota, to Minneapolis. But the lawyers insist the men were NOT impaired. One attorney says his client is an alcoholic... and that it would take an extraordinary amount of alcohol to get him drunk.

The World Health Organization issued grim figures today on AIDS. The WHO is increasing by 25 percent its estimate of how many people around the globe are infected with AIDS, saying it now thinks 10-Million people may be afflicted. The organization warns that the spread of the deadly virus is ''accelerating dramatically'' in Africa as well as parts of Asia.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - The International Finance Corp. Tuesday said it is providing $83 million in loans to P.T. Argo Pantes, one of Indonesia's largest textile companies, and is acquiring six percent of its stock.

The value of the equity investment was not disclosed so as to not prejudice the market when the company's shares become publicly traded in Jakarta's stock market, an IFC official said.

The loan and equity package is the largest investment by the IFC in Indonesia. It will help support a $200 million investment program by the company to double its spinning capacity.

The corporation's credits consist of a $30 million loan for IFC's own account and $53 million in syndicated loans through commercial banks. The IFC is the World Bank affiliate that supports the private sector in developing countries.

IRKUTSK, U.S.S.R. (JULY 31) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze arrived in the Siberian city of Irkutsk Tuesday for talks with Secretary of State James Baker likely to focus on a date for the next superpower summit and an Afghan peace plan.

Baker, beginning the third leg of his 12-day Asian tour, was to arrive early Wednesday on his third official visit to the Soviet Union - but his first to the giant Asian section east of the Urals that makes up three-quarters of the vast country.

Baker flew to Irkutsk from Hong Kong, where his plane had a refueling stop after a visit to Singapore. He was reportedly still bothered by a cold that dogged him in earlier stops to Singapore and Indonesia.

As Shevardnadze arrived, Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gremitskikh said Afghan President Najibullah had come to the Soviet Union for medical reasons. An Afghan Embassy official said Najibullah was in Sochi on the Black Sea near where Mikhail Gorbachev is on vacation.

Shevardnadze's Aeroflot Ilyushin-62 Airliner touched down exactly at its scheduled arrival time of 8:30 p.m. as an orange half moon was rising over the Angara River in Irkutsk, a city of 550,000 people just west of Lake Baikal, the world's largest lake and a symbol of Siberia.

Soviet television said Tuesday the meetings between Shevardnadze and Baker could name the date of the next summit meeting, taking place in Moscow. The television said the superpower meeting between President Bush and Gorbachev would be toward the end of the year.

When Shevardnadze was asked whether a summit date would be fixed and whether there would be a settlement of the Afghan war during the Irkutsk meetings, he said: ''We shall see.''

U.S. officials sought to play down expectations of the meeting in the unofficial capital of Siberia, instead saying Baker's stop in Mongolia after Irkutsk was significant.

One U.S. official said Baker's trip to Irkutsk was a ''payback'' visit for Shevardnadze's trip last September to Wyoming.

Although the end of Najibullah's regime was widely predicted after the Soviet army pulled out in February 1989, his Soviet-trained army fought the Moslem guerrillas to a standstill.

The United States would like Najibullah to step aside and allow U.N.-supervised elections in Afghanistan to finally end the fighting in the subcontinent nation.

Moscow has resisted Washington's demands Najibullah step down and allow creation of a broad-based government, and the Bush administration recently admitted it is willing to compromise because ''there is no prospect of a military solution.''

Under current proposals, the United Nations will have a more significant role and Najibullah would remain in office while most of his powers are transferred to an interim council under U.N. supervision until elections.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, frustated by the failure of a former aide to President Bush to appear before a panel investigating Bluebonnet Savings Bank, said Tuesday he will consider "legal steps" to compel Robert Thompson to testify.

Thompson, a Washington lobbyist, refused to appear before a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee. In a letter sent Monday to committee chairman Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., Thompson said Metzenbaum's investigation was a "rigged game."

He told reporters Monday that he would ignore a subpoena to testify because he feared his personal financial records and other confidential documents would be leaked to the media. Thompson worked for Bush during the 1980 presidential campaign and later as a legislative aide during Bush's first term as vice president.

"We will make another attempt to secure Mr. Thompson's voluntary cooperation," Metzenbaum said. "If we are unsuccessful, we will promptly initiate the necessary legal steps to compel Mr. Thompson's cooperation."

Metzenbaum is chairman of the subcommittee examining Thompson's role in helping Arizona businessman James Fail acquire 15 failed thrifts and consolidate them into a Dallas thrift named Bluebonnet.

Metzenbaum said Thompson used his Washington connections to help Fail acquire the failed thrifts even though Fail did not meet federal standards for thrift owners.

Although Metzenbaum intitially said Fail acquired the thrifts after putting down only $1,000 of the $10 million purchase price, he said Tuesday that the executive did not invest that amout at the time of the sale.

"It appears that Mr. Fail needed an additional five months to scrape together even $1,000," Metzenbaum said. "Ask your average taxpayer whether their mortgage company would close on a single-family home if they were $1,000 short on the down payment."

Metzenbaum also said Fail will eventually receive more than $3 billion in federal subsidies for buying the failed thrifts, much more than the $1.8 billion initially reported. "Actually, it is no longer appropriate to call Mr. Fail the 'buyer' in this transaction," Metzenbaum said. "The Bluebonnet deal was a gift."

Fail acquired the 15 thrifts under the so-called Southwest Plan, a government effort to accelerate the sale of failed savings institutions in 1988. M. Danny Wall, then chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the former top thrift regulator, defended the Southwest Plan and the decisions of thrift regulators at the time.

"It was clear to me and my fellow board members that time was money, inasmuch as a problem institution unresolved loses more money every day, as is abundantly clear today," Wall told the panel.

Decisions on who should be able to buy failed instutitions under the plan were based on information from a number of sources, he said, including the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., the FBI, the Securities and Exchange Commission, and financial sources.

Documents show that Fail was allowed to purchase the thrifts despite having been indicted for securities fraud and having plead his insurance company guilty to insurance fraud in Alabama, Metzenbaum said.

"Any one of these facts could have and should have disqualified Mr. Fail. None of them did," Metzenbaum said. "The outstanding question is why. Increasingly, I am convinced that the answer is Robert Thompson."

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (JULY 31) UPI - A supervisor at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant, site of the nation's worst commercial nuclear disaster, repeatedly slept on the job, resulting in a $50,000 fine for his employer, officials said Tuesday.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission issued the fine after an investigation confirmed that the shift supervisor at TMI's Unit 2 had been consistently inattentive to his duties in the reactor's main control room, the nerve center of the plant.

The unidentified supervisor's sleeping on the job in 1987 was particularly serious because it occurred when damaged fuel was being removed from the plant, the NRC said. The fuel was damaged during the central Pennsylvania plant's near meltdown 11 years.

The commission heavily penalized the operator of the Peach Bottom nuclear plant in eastern Pennsylvania for similar sleeping on the job violations several years ago.

CNRC Regional Administrator Thomas Martin called the supervisor's actions and the failure of on-site managers to respond ''a significant regulatory concern.''

TMI's operator, GPU Nuclear Corp., a division of General Public Utility Corp. of Parsippany, N.J., has agreed to pay the fine.

An even larger fine could have been imposed, but GPU's prompt action in firing the supervisor and the plant operations manager prompted the lower fine, the third highest of five security levels, the NRC said.

The supervisor, who was licensed by the NRC as a senior reactor operator, was found sleeping on the job repeatedly by staff members on the night shift in 1986 and 1987, the NRC said.

Staff members pointed out the problem to the plant operations manager and other site managers, all of whom did nothing, the NRC said.

Only when GPU Nuclear corporate-level managers became aware of the problem were the supervisor and plant operations manager fired and staff members informed, the NRC said.

''The pattern of inattentiveness by the then shift supervisor ... and the subsequent failure by various levels of the then site management to correct this condition, represents a significant regulatory concern,'' Martin wrote in a letter to GPU Nuclear.

The nation's worst commercial nuclear energy disaster took place on March 28, 1979, when a combination of mechanical failure and human error caused a loss of cooling water in Unit 2's reactor core.

The near meltdown resulted in the release of radioactive gases and left one million gallons of radioactive water.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - Dr. X's license to practice medicine has been suspended for overprescribing drugs. He skips the state and tries to set up shop elsewhere. Under a new program, it will be more difficult for Dr. X to hide from his past.

Starting Sept. 1, the National Practitioner Data Bank will begin collecting data on the substandard performance of doctors, dentists and other health care practitioners. The data bank was authorized by a 1986 law.

The data bank will collect information on all payments made on behalf of the practitioner as a result of a medical malpractice claim or settlement; licensure disciplinary actions by state medical and dental boards; adverse professional review actions by hospitals and other facilities with formal peer review processes; and adverse actions by professional societies following formal peer review of the person's competence or conduct.

Hospitals and other medical facilities with formal peer review processes can seek information from the data bank when a person applies for clinical privileges or staff appointment. Individual doctors and dentists can consult the data bank about their own records. A plaintiff's attorney may request information under limited conditions. Consumers, however, will not have access to the information.

''At this point, it is very easy for a doctor or other practitioner to move from state to state and not reveal to the hospital they're applying to ... that they've had disciplinary action taken against them or claims settled against them,'' said Ingrid VanTuinen, a staff researcher for Public Citizen Health Research Group.

Dr. Robert Harmon, head of the Health Resources and Services Administration, which will oversee the data bank, said the new information source should improve ''quality assurance'' in the medical profession.

Hospitals will be required to check the data bank when a physician, dentist or other health practitioner seeks to join the staff or receive clinical privileges. Hospitals also must consult the bank every two years concerning individuals already on staff or who have clinical privileges.

While Harmon said he did not know how many doctors cross state lines to avoid discovery of poor performance, Public Citizen recently published a book titled, ''6,892 Questionable Doctors.'' The book listed physicians who have been disciplined by the state or federal government since 1985.

While VanTuinen said the data bank will be helpful to the medical profession, she expressed concern that it will not be available to consumers.

''It's open to hospitals, licensing boards and doctors themselves. But the information is not at all open to consumers. A lot of that is because of pressure from medical societies,'' she said. ''They say doctors' reputations are at stake and that hospitals and state boards will do a good enough job of screening doctors. But we don't believe that is necessarily true. With the job some state medical boards are doing, that's definitely not true.''

A representative of the Federation of State Medical Societies of the United States could not be reached for comment.

Reports on doctors and dentists are required starting Sept. 1. There is no provision for retroactive reporting.

''A doctor could have been disciplined five years ago or settled a medical malpractice case, gone to another state, and there will be no record of that,'' VanTuinen said.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - An investment group has taken a 6.5 percent in International Telecharge Inc., a Dallas-based provider of long distance telephone services.

Bomarko Inc. and Extrusion Division Inc., along with an EDI retirement trust, made a joint filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission that said they had acquired 787,700 shares of Telecharge common stock on the open market in June and July for approximately $1 million.

The filing said the purchase was for investment purposes only, but also said the investors may later seek representation on Telecharge's board of directors and possibly change their purpose for owning the shares.

The investors used working capital to buy the stock at prices ranging from $1 to $2.53 a share. When combined with previous holdings, the investment group now owns 6.47 percent of Telecharge's 15.8 million shares outstanding.

A Telecharge spokesman said the company competes with MCI Communications Corp., AT&T Co., and other long distance carriers for calls placed within the United States and Puerto Rico. Telecharge's primary subscribers are pay phone companies, hotels and hospitals.

Bomarko is a Plymouth, Ind., manufacturer of coated and printed paper products, while EDI, based in East Grand Rapids, Mich., sells plastic parts.

CONCORD, N.H. (JULY 31) UPI - Despite misgivings from its own members, the New Hampshire American Civil Liberties Union announced Tuesday it will defend an avowed Ku Klux Klan recruiter in a discrimination suit.

''It was not a unanimous decision. It was a very, very difficult decision. I cannot say that anyone is happy this morning.'' said Claire Ebel, ACLU state director. ''We made a difficult, but correct choice.''.

Thomas Herman, 28, operates a Klan telephone hotline that exhorts ''white Christian brothers and sisters'' to join the white supremacists ''family'' in its battle against affirmative action and other alleged threats.

Herman was fired from his part-time job as a police officer in the town of Newfields last December after disclosure of his recruiting activities for the Klan.

In an interview with United Press International, Herman said he was ''delighted'' with the ACLU's involvement in the case. Herman is seeking reinstatement to the police force and unspecified money damages from the town.

''I want to make sure the selectmen think twice the next time they deprive someone of their rights. I think a hefty settlement will do that,'' he said.

The ACLU's 15-member legal defense board decided Monday afternoon to defend Herman after lengthy debate, some of it rancorous, Ebel said.

The defense board voted not to release a breakdown of its vote, she said.

Ebel said Herman was fired because of his membership in an ''unpopular'' group, which violates the Constitution's First Amendment guarantee of free speech.

''It was his membership and his membership alone that was used as the reason for losing his job,'' Ebel said.

''If we allow government to dismiss Mr. Herman, we are allowing government to make up lists of people who support unpopular causes ... and act against them. Who's next, the ACLU, people who support Greenpeace? I'm not willing to take that chance,'' she said.

Ebel acknowledged that the KKK has a history of intimidation and violence against blacks and other minority groups. But she said that despite his KKK membership, Herman was never accused by Newfields selectmen of any job performance problems.

Since his firing, Herman ran for the Exeter board of selectmen in March and lost by a large margin. He is employed by the Rockingham County Sheriff's Departmen as a radio technician.

Ebel said an ACLU counsel would be meeting with Herman in late August to discuss a ''legal strategy.''

CAIRO, Egypt (JULY 31) UPI - Envoys from Iraq and Kuwait began talks in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, Tuesday to resolve a 2-week-old crisis, with Iraq reportedly flexing its military muscle and vowing not to budge on its territorial and monetary claims.

Saudi Arabia's state-owned Riyadh Radio, monitored in Cairo, said the Iraqi and Kuwaiti delegations began their meeting Tuesday after Saudi King Fahd and the kingdom's Crown Prince Abdullah introduced both sides.

Arab diplomatic sources said it was unlikely the Jeddah talks - the result of mediation efforts by Egypt and other Arab nations - would lead to a rapid solution.

Riyadh Radio said earlier in the day that the Kuwaiti envoy, Crown Prince and Premier Sheikh Saad al Abdullah al Sabah, told reporters upon arrival at the Red Sea resort that his emirate wanted to see all outstanding issues between the two Persian Gulf states resolved.

''Kuwait is keen to reach a final and just solution to all outstanding problems,'' the radio quoted Saad as saying. ''Kuwait regards these talks as a basic step toward solving this transient crisis.''

Kuwait's foreign and justice ministers also were taking part in the talks Tuesday.

In contrast, Iraqi Vice President Ezza Ibrahim made no comment upon arrival for the talks and Iraqi government-run newspapers said Baghdad would not change its demands from the wealthy but militarily weak emirate.

''Iraq will not compromise on its legitimate rights,'' the Baghdad daily Al Gomhuria said in an editorial.

In a revised assessment of the Iraqi force deployed near Kuwait, The Washington Post Tuesday reported that Iraq has amassed nearly 100,000 troops in the border area, more than three times the 30,000-strong force reported a week ago.

A U.S. State Department official said Iraqi forces along the Kuwaiti border ''were augmented'' since last week, but would not confirm the 100,000 figure reported in The Washington Post.

Bristling with sophisticated weapons after its 8-year-long war with Iran, Iraq is demanding about $2.4 billion in compensation from Kuwait after accusing its neighbor of illegally drilling for oil in Iraqi territory.

Iraq wants Kuwait's strict adherence to OPEC oil production quota and the demarcation of the Iraqi-Kuwaiti border.

The Jeddah meeting was originally scheduled to take place over the weekend but was delayed after both states became involved in an angry exchange of words.

The crisis erupted two weeks ago when Iraq accused Kuwait of dumping oil on world markets and forcing prices down, thus weakening Iraq's cash-strapped economy.

Iraq then staged military maneuvers along the Kuwaiti border in an attempt to pressure its tiny neighbor to compromise. Kuwait in turn moved Soviet-made missiles to the Iraqi border. A subsequent OPEC meeting, which analysts credited as a victory for Iraq, resulted in a swift, unanimous agreement to raise the target price and oil production ceilings to halt quota cheating.

The United Arab Emirates, which was also harshly criticized for violating its OPEC quota, sent President Sheikh Zayed bin Sultan al Nahyan to Egypt for talks with President Hosni Mubarak, who has been mediating the dispute involving Iraq.

Iraq, meanwhile, issued a veiled warning apparently aimed at Washington against trying to provide Israel with suitable cover to attack strategic targets in Iraq, Baghdad Radio reported.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (JULY 31) UPI - Singer-songwriter Harry Nilsson was charged Tuesday with misdemeanor drunken driving and driving without the proper insurance earlier this month.

Nilsson, 49, of Bel-Air, was arrested by the California Highway Patrol in Beverly Hills on July 6, Deputy District Attorney Eldon Fox said.

Nilsson's blood-alcohol level was tested twice and registered .24 and .23, well above the .08 legal intoxication limit for motorists, Fox said.

The singer, freed on his own recognizance, was charged with two counts of drunken driving and one count of driving without the proper insurance, all misdemeanors.

Nilsson was not required to be present at his Municipal Court arraignment set for later Tuesday.

Nilsson has posted eight top-40 hits, beginning with ''Everybody's Talkin''' in 1969, which was used as the theme for the Academy Award-winning film, ''Midnight Cowboy.''

In 1972, his song, ''Without You'' spent four weeks at No. 1 on the Billboard Magazine charts.

BEIJING (JULY 31) UPI - A senior Chinese official has dismissed foreign press reports of a comeback by purged Communist Party leader Zhao Ziyang as ''entirely without foundation,'' state-run media reported Tuesday.

State Council spokesman Yuan Mu denied widespread reports that the former reformist party chief had met with senior leader Deng Xiaoping and resumed some of his former duties. Zhao was sacked last June over his role in the 1989 democracy protests.

The official Xinhua news agency said Yuan made his remarks during an interview with a Japanese publication last week but gave no explanation for the delay in reporting it.

''Rumors of a 'reinstatement' of former Communist Party of China (CPC)

General Secretary Zhao Ziyang are entirely without foundation,'' Yuan told the Beijing-based correspondent for the Japan Economic Journal.

Xinhua cited Yuan as saying there had been ''no meeting between Deng Xiaoping and Zhao'' despite overseas reports to the contrary.

The hard-line spokesman also refuted reports in the Western media that the 70-year-old former leader had been ''freed'' from house arrest, claiming Zhao had never been held in the first place.

''As Zhao has never been under 'house arrest' ... there is no question about 'lifting house arrest' as rumored in the overseas media,'' said Yuan adding that Zhao is still under investigation.

Zhao has not been seen in public since state television broadcast his tearful May 19, 1989 appeal to student hunger strikers to end their week-old occupation of Tiananmen Square. He was later dismissed from his posts in the wake of the crackdown but retains his Communist Party membership.

Yuan's comments echoed those made earlier by Shanghai Mayor Zhu Rongji during a recent visit to the United States, but were the first to openly deny that Zhao had met with Deng.

Tuesday's statements on Zhao's condition are the latest in a stream of contradictory reports that have left Chinese and Western observers equally confused.

''There's something going on, but I don't know what,'' said a Chinese government official who requested anonymity.

Rumors of the disgraced party leader's return to favor began with reports in the Hong Kong press that Zhao had received Deng's approval to conduct an inspection tour in the southern provinces which have benefited most from more than a decade of economic reforms.

The rumors gathered steam when Western newspapers reported that a member of Zhu's delegation had told a U.S. official Zhao had been freed from house arrest. Zhu later denied that anyone from his delegation had commented on the matter.

The government official interpreted the conflicting reports as evidence of a continuing struggle between reformist and conservative elements in the Chinese leadership over how to resolve the thorny issue of the former party secretary.

Zhao remains accused of ''splitting the Party and supporting the turmoil '' the official term for the massive democracy protests that were crushed by the army last year on June 3-4.

Yuan told the Japan Economic Journal that Zhao's material life is unchanged but added cryptically that as a party member Zhao ''ought to abide by party discipline,'' Xinhua said.

The investigation into Zhao's case has dragged on for more than a year, giving rise to speculation that he is being protected by former patron Deng. At 70, Zhao is still younger than the twice-purged Deng was when he returned to power in 1978.

Zhao is also closely associated with currently stalled free-market reforms and enjoys widespread respect and support among Chinese who are dissatisfied with the present regime.

MONTREAL (JULY 31) UPI - A Mohawk spokesman warned a U.N. panel Tuesday that a bloodbath could result from two lengthy armed standoffs between Mohawks and Quebec police over tribal land claims at Oka, Quebec, Indian spokesmen said.

A policeman was killed July 11 in an abortive police raid on a roadblock erected four months ago by Kanesatake Mohawks on a golf course expansion site on land they claim is theirs.

Mohawks have lost confidence that Canadian authorities can control Quebec police, Mohawk spokesman Kenneth Deer told the U.N. Human Rights Commission's Working Group on Indigenous Populations in Geneva, Mohawk spokesmen in Canada said Tuesday.

Deer warned the U.N. panel, which will report to a sub-commission meeting in late August, that the standoffs could end in a ''bloodbath.''

But a Canadian government representative reportedly told the panel Monday that ''peaceful discussion'' is necessary to negotiate the Mohawk land claims and the heavily armed Mohawks must put aside their weapons.

The federal government ''is firm in its resolve that it will not negotiate land questions behind barricades or in the face of armed intimidation,'' said Gerald Shannon, Canada's U.N. representative in Geneva.

Meanwhile Mohawks said they were ''treading water'' in negotiations with the Canadian and Quebec governments on proposals to settle the standoffs at Kanesatake and Kahnawake Indian reserves near the U.S.-Canada border.

Mohawk spokesman Peter Diome said Monday that Mohawk leaders are refusing public comment on developments until they negotiate a concrete proposal with the Canadian and Quebec governments.

''On the surface it's calm (but) underneath we're treading water like hell '' said Diome, a Mohawk Nation representative at the Kahnawake reserve.

There are reports of deep divisions between hard-line and more flexible members of the Mohawk negotiating team in terms of rejecting or accepting the government proposals.

The provincial government last week offered to withdraw Quebec police who are surrounding the Kanesatake and Kahnawake Indian reserves and invited Mohawks to participate in a coroner's inquest into the death of police Cpl. Marcel Lemay.

The government also demanded the Mohawks take down the barricades and give up their arsenal of weapons that include automatic rifles.

The federal government has said it would pay a white landowner $1.19 million for land in Oka on which a golf course expansion and homes were planned on lands the Mohawks claim is theirs.

Many of the Mohawk Warriors guarding the barricade at Kanesatake - and at the secondary standoff site nearby - are members of the Warriors Society from the troubled St. Regis Indian reserve that straddles the U.S.-Canada border near Massena, N.Y.

The St. Regis Mohawk Warriors sided with pro-gambling forces and against traditional chiefs when pro and anti-gambling factions clashed in May, leaving two dead.

Canadian government officials have accused the Warriors of being criminals who are holding the reserves hostage.

CHICOPEE, MA (JULY 31) UPI - Spalding Sports Worldwide has joined the list of corporations that have withdrawn as sponsors of next week's PGA golf championship at the racially segregated Shoal Creek Country Club in Birmingham, Ala., a spokesman said Tuesday.

Spalding, a leading manufacturer of golf equipment, has pulled all of its advertising from ABC and ESPN, the networks televising the tournament. "We're concerned about the overall health and growth of the game, and that's what's most important to us," said J. Greg Sherry, spokesman for the Chicopee-based Spalding. "It's in everyone's best interest to make the game of golf available to whomever wants to play."

Several other major companies, including Anheuser-Busch, Toyota, Honda, and IBM, have also pulled their ads over comments made by Shoal Creek's founder, Hall Thompson. His remarks revealed the country club's racially discriminatory membership policy.

"We cannot support a tournament and a tournament site that does not fully embody the spirit of equal opportunity," Sherry said. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference is continuing to ask sponsors to pull their ads from the tournament's ABC and ESPN telecasts.

Sherry would not say how much Spalding planned to spend on its ads beyond noting: "I can tell you that we don't advertise on same dollar-level as companies like Anheuser-Busch, IBM, Toyota, and Acura."

Spalding, with about $500 million in annual sales, attributes about half of its revenues to golf products. Spalding is believed to be the first sporting goods manufacturer to pull is ads from the tournament.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - The Pentagon announced Tuesday the successful test of a small 40-pound ''Star Wars'' missile-interceptor prototype that was able to track a moving satellite in space while hovering in an aircraft hangar.

The Strategic Defense Initiative test conducted July 24 at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., was similar to one conducted a year ago, but this projectile weighed only about 40 pounds compared to the earlier 220-pound test vehicle.

Also, the 1989 test involved tracking a target in the parking lot outside the hangar. Last week's projectile ''caught a satellite going by'' in space, using its sensor or ''eye'' that looked into a mirror outside the hangar, said Lloyd Stoessell, manager of the space-based interceptor program of SDI.

He did not identify the satellite.

The Pentagon's spaced-based interceptor program is attempting to develop a projectile that could locate and track a nuclear missile and then collide with it in space, destroying the missile and itself.

Stoessell said the test interceptor hovered in the hangar last week for a planned 14 seconds, using its small engines to move and stay in position with the satellite.

He said the test vehicle was still a few generations away from an operational space-based interceptor, predicting a future projectile should be able to be made even smaller, down to a weight of 20 pounds or less.

The multibillion-dollar SDI, commonly known as ''Star Wars,'' is designed to develop both ground- and space-based interceptors that could destroy attacking nuclear missiles while still in space.

With video and still photographs, the Pentagon gave reporters a look at the latest successful SDI test as defense budget-cutters were sharpening their knives on Capitol Hill.

The Senate Armed Services Committee already has voted to cut nearly $1 billion, to $3.7 billion in fiscal 1991, from the Bush administration's request for the SDI program.

And on Tuesday, as the test was being shown to reporters, a House Armed Services subcommittee chopped the administration's request even further, to $2.93 billion.

The SDI test projectile, designed by Rockwell International Corp.'s Rocketdyne Division, Canoga, Park, Calif., carries light-weight rocket engines and fuel tanks along with a seeker, or ''eye,'' mounted on the front.

''The 14-second flight included all of the procedures and maneuvers that an operational projectile would carry out to intercept a target in space '' an SDI office statement said.

''The divert rocket engines,'' it said, ''maneuvered the test projectile around the laboratory's flight area, attaining accelerations up to four times the force of gravity. The on-board guidance and control system commanded small attitude control rockets to aim the seeker and maintain track.''

The SDI office said more tests with parts of this test projectile are planned for mid-1991.

GULF BREEZE, FL (JULY 31) UPI - Five people were charged with defrauding consumers in a nationwide telephone marketing scheme investigators believe raked in $2 million in three months, police said Tuesday.

The five employees of AMTEC Industries, which began operating in Gulf Breeze in April, allegedly sold illegal promotions through the telephone marketing company and used the transactions to obtain customers' credit card numbers, which were subsequently sold to other companies, said Gulf Breeze Police Chief Jerry Brown.

"We charged them locally with scheming to defraud more than $50,000, but through the investigation itself we figured they laundered over $2 million through a local bank here, Amsouth Bank of Pensacola, which has a branch in Gulf Breeze," Brown said.

The five arrested Monday following a one month investigation were Raymon Haas, 44; James Keith Larry, 41; Billy Lotheridge, 48; and Mark Steven Scanlan, 26, all of Gulf Breeze, and Thomas Watley Bodiford, 57, of Pensacola Beach.

Larry, who is on probation for the attempted murder of a police officer in Texas, was being held without bond. Bond for the other four was set at $500,000 each.

Police said the business took calls over a toll-free 800 number. The callers had received cards telling them they had won either a car, $5,000, or a bracelet worth $1,200.

To get the prize, they had to buy a water purifier for $459, or a vacation package using their credit card number. The card number was then sent to companies in Florida, California, Connecticut, or Texas.

The vacation packages were always booked, and the purifier was worth about $30. The telephone marketing firm received about 75 percent of the total paid by the customer.

None of the callers won a car or $5,000. The bracelets were appraised at $60. Records indicate the firm sold between 400 and 800 water purifiers or vacations weekly. An AMTEC bank account worth $72,000 was seized by police. None of the victims were believed to live within 500 miles of Gulf Breeze.

GALVESTON, Texas (JULY 31) UPI - A half-million gallons of oil dumped into Galveston Bay by a tanker-barge collision began affecting wildlife Tuesday, with dead fish and crabs washing ashore and oil-covered birds floundering on beaches.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and Houston Audubon Society sent teams to beaches and marshes in the environmentally sensitive bay to survey the damage and try to rescue disabled birds.

''It's going to be tragic,'' said Houston Audubon Society President Gary Clark. ''It's going to be devastating. It's hitting some of the most sensitive areas of breeding birds in Galveston Bay. We're deeply upset and concerned about it.

''When birds are oiled, it's really too late. All we can do is try to mitigate the impact. There will be birds killed ... If it gets into any of the marshlands, it will kill everything - the crabs, the fish, the clams. Everything out there feeds off of that.''

Of immediate concern was a nesting colony of tens of thousands of laughing gulls on Pelican Island, where oil stained beaches Tuesday. Federal wildlife agents planned to check the colony for oiled birds, said David Hankla of the Fish and Wildlife Service.

''The oil shouldn't get into that colony, but what you're going to have is birds feeding and moving and coming in contact with it,'' he said.

The Audubon Society also was gathering lists of volunteers to help clean birds.

An aerial survey Tuesday showed patches of oil had spread about 10 miles from the site of the Saturday barge-ship collision near the center of the bay.

Oil was reported on the Texas City dike and on Pelican and Redfish islands said Petty Officer Dennis Schaefer. Ribbons of oil also were creeping into West Bay, between Galveston Island and the Intracoastal Waterway, and into Bolivar Pass where Galveston Bay empties to the Gulf of Mexico.

''We have heavy concentration on the east side of the Texas City dike, and we have heavy and (oil) mousse at Pelican Island,'' Schaefer said. ''We have sheen and streamers trailing from the dike into West Bay to the causeway. And we have the big stuff at the spill ... heavy patches and concentration on Redfish Island.''

Oil-corraling booms were placed along the shoreline in hopes of preventing the crude from reaching saltwater marshes that are home to large groups of migratory and shore birds and serve as prime fish, shellfish and oyster grounds.

Workers with oil-absorbing pads also were dispatched to the beaches, Schaefer said.

Steve Spencer, a Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist, said the salt marshes should be protected ''at all cost.''

''Once oil gets in there, you can't get it out,'' he said, noting the crude can kill marsh grasses at the base of the bay's intricate food chain and seep into marsh sediments.

At least four skimmers continued collecting oil from the bay, but progress was slowed because the vessels cannot work in shallow waters near the shoreline.

''What they're having to do is send flat-bottom boats with containment booms into those areas to corral the oil and pull it into deeper waters where skimmers can get to it,'' Maestas said. ''It's not like the skimmer can get in there and get right at it.''

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - The House voted to boost the national debt limit Tuesday and agreed overwhelmingly to remove the Social Security trust fund from budget calculations, a shift that could increase the annual deficit by billions.

The Social Security change was proposed by Rep. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., who said the trust fund surplus should not be used to mask the actual size of the deficit.

Under current law, the Social Security surplus is counted against the annual budget deficit. Although the money cannot be used for anything except Social Security benefits, the bookkeeping technique makes the deficit figure smaller by the amount of the trust fund surplus.

Dorgan's amendment, approved on a 413-15 vote, was added to a bill to increase the federal debt limit from the current $3.133 trillion to $3.444 trillion. The bill was passed on a 221-205 vote and sent to the Senate.

The debt increase was requested by the Bush administration because the present ceiling will be reached in mid-August. Without an increase in the debt limit the government will run out of cash and be unable to borrow more money.

Dorgan, arguing for separate accounting of the Social Security fund, said it is wrong to "take money from the folks who work and promise to use it for their future" and then use it to make the budget deficit look better. "That's not honest."

"Let's tell the American people what the real deficit is. Let's protect their Social Security money and lets get about the business of solving this country's fiscal problems," he said.

Rep. Bill Green, R-N.Y., opposed the amendment as "either foolish or dangerous." Green said the flow of Social Security trust funds affect the economy and cannot be ignored. In the year 2040, the trust fund will be paying out more than $1 trillion, he noted. "To ignore cash flows of that amount ... would be foolish in the extreme."

Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, agreed on the need to make Social Security independent of the budget process, "but we need to do it in a responsible way."

Congress and the administration have been holding "summit" talks on ways to reduce the budget deficit. Archer said Dorgan's plan will make that task more difficult by inflating the deficit figure.

Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., chairman of the House Budget Committee and a member of the budget negotiating group, supported the amendment, but described it "more as a statement of intent to basically remove Social Security from the budget calculation, and I think that is something that ultimately will be done in the summit."

Current projections put the 1991 deficit at $168 billion, not counting the cost of the savings and loan bailout. If the thrift bailout cost is included and if the Social Security surplus is not used, the deficit figure would rise to $300 billion or more.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - The risk of a potentially catastrophic explosion of nuclear waste storage tanks at the Hanford nuclear weapons plant in Washington state is greater than previously believed, a government report warned Tuesday.

The report said that, contrary to earlier studies, radioactive releases could be substantial if there was an explosion inside underground nuclear waste tanks at the government plant, where plutonium has been produced for nuclear weapons since the 1940s.

The highly radioactive waste, created during the processing of plutonium and other nuclear materials, has been pumped into single-shell and double-shell tanks for decades because there was no adequate means of disposal.

But according to a new investigation, Energy Department contractors knew 13 years ago that hydrogen and heat were building up in some of the 177 tanks, creating the potential for explosions that could spew huge amounts of radioactive material into the environment.

The department has been unable to remove the tanks because they are too unstable and fragile, particularly the single-shell tanks. In addition to the risk of explosion, many of the tanks are leaking.

The new assessment of potential tank explosions, by the Energy Department's advisory committee on nuclear facility safety, was released at a hearing by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee.

John Ahearne, chairman of the advisory panel, told lawmakers the Hanford tanks presented ''a serious situation, if not an imminent hazard.''

''A situation of this type at a nuclear reactor would lead to ordering a shutdown,'' Ahearne told the committee. ''But one cannot 'shut down' the tanks.''

The warning is more ominous than those contained in previous reports. Earlier studies raised the possibility of an explosion, but minimized the risk of millions of gallons of radioactive waste being released.

The new report said secondary reactions could greatly increase the radiological consequences of such an explosion.

Ahearne, who headed the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in 1980 and 1981, also found that management complacency at the plant ''is a prescription for potential disaster'' and that worker safety has not been a primary concern.

''These findings point to the unsettling conclusion that the explosion risks at the Hanford high-level nuclear waste tanks are among the most serious nuclear safety problems facing the department,'' said Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, chairman of the committee.

Glenn, referring to the nuclear waste tanks as ''a potential bomb,'' asked Ahearne if the possibility of an explosion at the plant was low.

''No, I couldn't say that,'' Ahearne said. ''We can't say that - there is too much uncertainty.''

He added, ''We know the consequences could be high, but we don't know the probability.''

Ahearne also said the monitoring instruments connected to the tanks are poorly designed and not particularly reliable.

Sen. Brock Adams, D-Wash., called the nuclear waste tanks ''bubbling cauldrons of witch's brew'' that posed a deadly threat.

''I think we're in deep water,'' said Adams, who added that 66 of the tanks are known or suspected to be leaking and 22 are generating potentially flammable hydrogen gas.

WASHINGTON (UPI)- Faced with a failure of its own mediation efforts in the Liberian civil war, the United States will turn to the United Nations to try to end the fighting, State Department officials said Tuesday.

Herman Cohen, assistant secretary of state for Africa, told reporters, ''We would hope a United Nations initiative might lead to a cease-fire and the possible introduction of peace-keeping so that the country could return to normal political life and a massive humanitarian effort could take place to feed a very hungry population.''

At the State Department officials said that U.S. envoy Thomas Pickering has begun discussions with other representatives to the United Nations on possible U.N. actions, including a peace-keeping force.

President Bush and President Gnassingbe Eyadema of Togo discussed the war in Liberia in a White House meeting, according to Cohen, and agreed ''they would support any initiative by the United Nations to be seized with the issue and to establish a cease-fire so that democratic processes can be established in Liberia.''

The United States was the mediator in a series of talks in the Ivory Coast with President Samuel Doe and members of the rebel forces, but those talks broke down in early July when Doe refused to step down from office immediately. The United States made a standing offer to Doe to fly him out of the country, but Doe has not taken it up.

Cohen said, ''We have not seen him for about a week. Every indication we have is that he intends to stick it out in the executive mansion and he has not expressed any desire to leave Liberia.''

The executive mansion is in the shrinking area of Monrovia still defended by Doe's government forces. Despite public denials by Doe and his spokesmen, the State Department said that it believes it was Doe's troops who killed hundreds of refugees at a church in Monrovia Sunday.

Among the fears expressed by Cohen and other officials is that the rebel forces, after they finally topple Doe, will turn on each other, continuing the struggle in an African version of the apparently endless war in Lebanon.

Cohen said, ''We see no indication that they (the opposing rebels) love each other.''

He added, ''So far they have not indicated that they are working together or coordinating their forces. We're worried that this could lead to a second civil war; that is one of the reasons we're so interested in getting an international presence there.''

The main rebel force is led by Charles Taylor, a former official of the Doe government who fled the country when accused of embezzlement. The other, smaller force is led by Prince Johnson, who has demanded that Taylor be brought to trial.

Cohen described the situation in Liberia as bleak and getting worse. ''The situation continues to deteriorate; forces on both sides are continuing to commit atrocities. What happened at the Lutheran church is only one example of continuing ethnic killings and the country is running out of food.''

He said that was a principal reason for the U.S. interest in a United Nations presence. ''It's very important that the fighting stop so that the international community can engage in a massive humanitarian rescue effort but we see no immediate prospect for the fighting to end without some sort of an international intervention.''

#90212u1936 07/31/1990 ~United Press International
MOBILE, Ala. (JULY 31) UPI - The National Governors Association called Tuesday for a national commission to investigate the savings and loan crisis.

But the resolution mandating formation of an S&L inquiry panel, drafted by the group's nine-member executive committee, brought disagreement and charges of partisan politics from the normally harmonious gathering of governors.

The resolution calls for an independent commission composed of a broad cross-section of members to examine the causes of the problem, widely described as the nation's worst financial disaster since the Great Depression, and recommend ways to curb the massive drain on tax money that experts say will be needed to bail out the troubled thrift industry.

The commission, which would have no subpoena power or judicial authority, also would look for ways to recover revenue lost in collapsed thrifts and review the legislative and regulatory aspects of the disaster.

Gov. James G. Martin, R-N.C., said the NGA ''should be on record in favor of correcting (the S&L problem) and bring to justice those who are guilty of criminal wrongdoing.''

''It will make very clear the concern we have - each one of us,'' Martin said in urging adoption of the resolution.

Gov. James Thompson, R-Ill., objected to the resolution, holding that it goes against the concensus and non-partisan policies the governors have adopted in the past.

''I don't think a commission, whether established by the president and Congress or the Congress, will tell us anything that we don't know around this table and that the country doesn't know,'' Thompson said.

He said the S&L crisis is rooted in high interest rates and high inflation of the 1970s and 1980s, as well as ''bad investments, speculation and criminal looting.''

Thompson said the commission's findings would reflect his views, and he denied that his objection to forming the commission was partisan.

''If I wanted to be political, I could say this crisis was rooted in the latter days of the Carter administration ... it got worse under the Reagan administration ... and 18 days into his administration, President Bush provided the first solid, substantial Executive Branch leadership to try and take us out of it.

''The headlines tomorrow morning coming out of this conference will be that it ended in a political squabble,'' said Thompson, who was the only governor to vote against the resolution.

Advertisements that appeared in the Mobile Press Register newspaper Monday and Tuesday raised the S&L argument to a partisan level.

The ad that appeared Tuesday before the closing session of the governors' conference featured photos of 12 Democrats who the advertisement accused of letting ''the S&L problem explode into a $325 billion crisis.''

The ad, labeled as being paid for by the Republican National Committee, cited Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., Donald Riegle, D-Mich., John Glenn, D-Ohio and Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Reps. Doug Barnard, D-Ga., James Chapman, D-Texas, Tony Cohelo, D-Calif., Stephen Neal, D-N.C., Frank Annunzio, D-Ill, Fernand St Germain, D-R.I. and ex-House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas. Cohelo and St Germain are no longer in Congress.

Several governors reacted angrily to the ad.

Gov. George Sinner, D-N.D., said the ''outrageous partisan ad ... raised the ire of every sincere person'' in both parties at the conference.

Earlier in the session, members of the NGA task force on education discussed strategies intended to help states reach the six national education goals adopted by the governors and endorsed by the Bush administration earlier this year.

Washington Gov. Booth Gardner, a Democrat, became chairman of the NGA during the closing session and Gov. John Ashcroft, R-Mo., was named vice chairman. Gardner said health care cost containment, access and quality assurance will be the primary focus of the NGA during his term.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - The Pentagon appealed to Congress Tuesday to provide the money needed to build a new NATO air base at Crotone, Italy, even as defense officials were studying whether to close up to 100 U.S. bases overseas.

Army Gen. John Galvin, NATO's top general in Europe and commander of the U.S. European Command, told Stars & Stripes newspaper Monday he sent to Washington a list of 100 bases he wants closed. Most are believed to be in West Germany.

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said he expected an announcement on overseas base closings to be made within ''a few weeks.''

However, the Pentagon was upset with House approval Monday night of an $8.3 billion military construction bill that would delay work on the Crotone air base for a full year.

NATO earlier agreed to help pay for the construction of the Crotone air base, on the southernmost part of Italy.

It is expected to be the new home of the U.S. Air Force's 401st Tactical Fighter Wing. The wing's 72 planes are now stationed at Torrejon air base near Madrid but they have to leave there in 1992 under an agreement with Spain.

The House bill contains $250 million for the ''NATO Infrastructure Fund,'' a pool of money contributed by NATO members to be used on construction projects for the alliance. That is $170 million less than the administration requested.

''The decision not to include military construction authority for Crotone is something we hope Congress will remedy in the coming weeks,'' Williams said Tuesday.

Noting that the United States provides only 28 percent of the money for the NATO Infrastructure Fund, Williams said, ''This is undoubtedly the finest example of NATO burden-sharing, if you want to use that term, that the allies ever agreed to.

''The nations of the alliance are in agreement on the importance of Crotone,'' he added. ''The land has been purchased, contract bids have been let. We still intend to break ground at the end of August.

''We would hope that Congress, whether it can do so legally or whatever, does not try to stop this,'' Williams said, adding that Crotone specifically is needed to maintain NATO air forces in the southern Mediterranean.

The Pentagon also released a letter dated Monday from Galvin to leading members of Congress, telling them, ''If I had only two U.S. Air Force wings remaining in Europe, I would place one of them at Crotone.''

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - A diet rich in wheat bran appears to slow the rapid cell growth typical of colorectal cancer, providing further evidence to suggest that bran may help ward off such cancer, researchers reported Tuesday.

In a pilot study, University of Arizona researchers gave about a half-cup of cereal rich in wheat bran fiber daily to 17 patients at high risk for recurrent colorectal cancer for two months. All the patients had undergone surgery to remove colon or rectal cancer.

Before and after the bran regimen, the researchers took biopsies of the mucous membrane lining the rectum and then looked at how rapidly those cells were multiplying. Rapid multiplication of such cells is believed to be associated with high risk of colorectal cancer.

All types of cancer are characterized by uncontrolled cell growth, and cancerous cells usually invade and destroy normal tissue.

In the Arizona study, cell growth declined 22 percent overall among the patients following the bran-rich diet. Of the eight patients with unusually high rates of cell growth before receiving the supplement, four showed ''a significant decrease'' following the dietary regimen, three showed no change and one experienced a significant increase, researchers said.

Previous studies have found wheat bran supplements decrease the growth of rectal polyps in patients with an inherited tendency towards such polyps and colorectal cancer. However, the Arizona study is among the first to examine the effects of dietary fiber supplements on markers specific to cancer, like cell growth, in more typical colon cancer patients.

The new findings suggest that wheat bran can slow multiplication of cells lining the rectum in patients at high risk of colorectal cancer, Dr. D.S. Alberts and his colleagues said in a study published in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

But researchers emphasized their results should not be ''overinterpreted'' since their study was small and results need to be confirmed by a larger study now underway comparing high-risk patients who take bran supplements with those who do not.

''If this holds up, it would be a way perhaps of nudging up the effectiveness of intervention by telling people who might be predisposed to cancer'' to eat fiber supplements, said Dr. James Lowman of the American Cancer Society in Atlanta.

But Lowman said he considers the findings very preliminary and larger studies need to be done to see if bran indeed has the power to inhibit cancer-like cell growth.

In the Arizona study, the patients, who had an average age of 70, appeared to suffer no serious side effects from the bran supplement, which consisted of a daily serving of All Bran, made by the Kellogg Co., of Battle Creek, Mich. Of 55 check-ups of the 17 patients, mild diarrhea was reported during 2 percent of check-ups, nausea or vomiting in about 3 percent and a moderate increase in intestinal gas in about 10 percent.

MINNEAPOLIS (JULY 31) UPI - Two cocktail waitresses testified Tuesday that three Northwest Airlines pilots drank at least six pitchers of beer and 15 mixed drinks at a bar the night before they flew a jetliner from Fargo, N.D., to Minneapolis.

Testisfying at the first day of the pilots' trial in federal court, Kathy Litch, a waitress at the Speakeasy bar in Moorhead, Minn., where the three pilots allegedly drank for nearly eight hours the night of March 7, said she also saw one of the defendants get into a heated quarrel with another bar patron and contemplated calling the police.

The three crew members - pilot Norman ''Lyle'' Proust, co-pilot Robert Kirchner and flight engineer Joseph Balzer - are charged with being intoxicated whileflying the Boeing 727 airliner from Fargo, N.D., to Minneapolis the morning of March 8. They since have been fired by Northwest and had their licenses revoked by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Judy Weber, who also works at the Speakeasy, said she saw the defendants enter the bar about 3:50 p.m. and served them four pitchers of draught beer, consumed by Balzer and Kirchner, and six rum-and-diet cola mixed drinks for Proust, before her shift ended at 6 p.m.

Litch said she later served the pilots two more pitchers of beer and nine more mixed drinks. The pilots spent more than $50 for drinks during the evening, according to bar records entered into evidence Tuesday.

She said Proust argued with another patron, known only as ''Charlie,'' about their experiences in the Vietnam War. Proust asked the man to leave him and his two companions several times, often using profane language.

Charlie later returned to the pilots' table, Litch said, and bought the men another pitcher of beer. Again, an argument ensued between Proust and the man. ''He (Proust) stood up and it looked like there was going to be some kind of conflict,'' Litch said.

Balzer and Kirchner were able to calm Proust before they left the bar at about 10:40 p.m. Proust did not leave until about 11:30 p.m. and all three ''seemed unsteady,'' as they left the bar, she said.

Litch said Proust returned to the bar about 20 minutes later, saying he was unable to find his way back to his motel, located about three blocks away from the bar. After giving Proust directions, she said she did not see him again that night.

Defense attorneys said in their opening statements that although their clients drank that night they were not impaired the next morning.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Elizabeth de la Vega countered the defense claims by stating that the pilots' ability to fly a Boeing 727 with 91 passengers was severely hindered.

''The evidence compels that each of the defendants were under the influence when they piloted Flight 650,'' she said. ''The evidence also compels a verdict of guilty.''

Proust, 51, of Conyers, Ga., Kirchner, 36, of Highland Ranch, Colo., and Balzer, 34, of Antioch, Tenn., were been fired by Northwest and their licenses were revoked by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Tests taken after the jetliner landed safely showed Proust had a blood-alcohol level of .12 percent, Kirchner .06 percent and Balzer .04 percent. The FAA tolerance level is .04 percent.

Flight 650 took off about 6:20 a.m. after an FAA inspector, Burr Addison, talked to all three crew members. The inspector suspected they had been drinking but let the flight take off.

''The defendants were lucky the plane landed safely,'' de la Vega said.

But Bill Mauzy, attorney for Kirchner, said his client was not impaired.

''You don't fly a plane because you are lucky,'' Mauzy said.

He also noted that pilots need sharp reflexes, clear thinking and the ability to read intricate flight instruments and that radar and voice tapes will indicate there were no problems during the flight.

''You can't fake a perfect landing,'' Mauzy said. ''Bob Kirchner was not under the influence when he flew that flight.''

Proust's attorney, Peter Wold, called his client ''a good, respected, extremely meticulous pilot.''

''But,'' he said, ''Lyle is also an alcoholic.''

Because of Proust's alcoholism, Wold said that Proust would have a greater tolerance to alcohol than most people and was not impaired.

''His tolerance is such that if most of us were to drink the same amount it would leave us asleep on the floor,'' Wold said.

''The only issue is whether during the course of this flight, Lyle Proust was under the influence of alcohol.''

Defense attorneys also are trying to cast doubt on the accuracy of the blood alcohol test performed in Minneapolis after the flight arrived.

CHICAGO (JULY 31) UPI - The AFL-CIO, spurning a campaign by union abortion rights advocates, said Tuesday the federation will not take a stand on the volatile political issue of abortion and let members make their own decision on the matter.

The decision not to formally align the federation, which represents some 90 unions with 14.1 million-members, with the movement to keep abortion legal, was a major victory for anti-abortion groups, which had heavily lobbied the federation, warning that taking a stance on the divisive issue would split labor unity and cost unions members.

At the same time, however, in a gesture toward supporters of legal abortion, the new policy statement said council members ''resent and resist'' government intrusion in matters that are essentially personal and private.

In a statement, the union's Executive Council said it had adopted a policy that leaves it up to the ''sound judgment'' of union members to take a stand ''as their individual consciences dictate.''

''The differences of opinion about reproductive issues, including abortion that now divide American public opinion are mirrored in the labor movement,'' the statement said.

''Sincere and dedicated trade unionists can be found on both sides of these issues,'' the statement said.

''The Supreme Court has acted to return this question to public debate, and it is not likely to be resolved quickly or painlessly,'' it added.

''We resent and resist government intrusion into matters that are essentially private, and we have consistently opposed abridgements of personal freedom everywhere in the world.''

The council's policy statement followed a six-month study of the issue by an 18-member ad hoc committee headed by William Wynn, head of the United Food and Commercial Workers union, a union which has endorsed support of legal abortion.

The drive for the federation to take a stance on the divisive issue was headed by the Coalition of Labor Union Women, who often compared the issue to organized labor's need to take a stand on civil rights in the 1960s and who argued that if the federation took a ''pro-choice'' stand it would ''attract millions of young women to our ranks.''

Opponents, however, led by the National Right to Life Committee, said that if the federation took a stand, it would cost unions thousands of members.

The Executive Council, on another issue, adopted a policy supporting a ban on all political action committees while limiting individual federal campaign contributions to $100 per candidate and $1,000 a year in total.

''Anything less than such across-the-board limitation is a parody of campaign reform. To answer those who say labor's proposal would starve the system, we reiterate our support for public financing,'' the council policy statement said.

The AFL-CIO said proposals before the Senate, which would ban PACs, ''will not put a dent in financial corruption as long as individuals are permitted to make $1,000 contributions to candidates and $25,000 in total contributions.''

The group also said it would continue working with affiliates to fight any attempt to limit congressional or legislative terms.

On taxes and the federal budget deficit, the union said the fairest tax is the income tax and new revenue should be sought from the wealthy and corporations.

It also opposed eliminating the federal deduction for state and local taxes, terming the proposal a ''cynical attempt to inhibit the ability of state and local governments to finance the types of programs and services for which Washington will no longer pay.''

APPLETON, WI (JULY 31) UPI - Misdemeanor criminal charges were filed Tuesday against two police officers accused of taunting and beating a hairstylist they believed to be homosexual.

Blanchardville officer Brian Brown Jr. was charged with disorderly conduct and causing bodily harm, while Kenosha officer Michael Wilkinson was charged with disorderly conduct, Outagamie County officials said.

''We have had an increase this year in incidents relating to hate crime situations,'' assistant district attorney John Des Jardins said of the general public.

The officers, who were off-duty, were accused of harassing the man at lounge near Appleton early Friday. Brown also was accused of beating the man because he believed the hair stylist was a homosexual.

Des Jardins said charges also were under consideration against a Marathon County sheriff's deputy who allegedly was involved in the incident. He said the case was a first in the area where a police officer was involved.

The charges were filed under a new Wisconsin law written to help authorities crack down on so-called ''hate crimes.'' Des Jardins said the law allowed enhanced penalties for people who are targeted because of their race, religion, creed or sexual orientation.

According to witnesses, the 20-year-old victim was dancing with women when one of the officers started calling him derogatory names. That officer then removed the man's hat and put it on his own head.

When the man, who was attending a birthday party, walked to the bar, the policeman taunted and pushed him, making anti-homosexual remarks. Some officers eventually followed the hairstylist outside to the parking lot, where he was allegedly tackled, punched and kicked.

The hairstylist was taken to an Appleton hospital for treatment of bruised ribs and internal injuries, and released.

DETROIT (JULY 31) UPI - Roger B. Smith, in his last day as General Motors Corp.'s chairman, said Tuesday that technology and value will be the cornerstone of the automaker's drive to reclaim a larger share of the vehicle market.

Smith, who will keep a seat on GM's board, told United Press International in his final interview as chairman that raising market share is the top priority for GM's new management team and Robert C. Stempel, who takes over as GM's new head Wednesday. "I want to see us continue to raise our market penetration profitably, and I underscore the word 'profitably,'" Smith told UPI.

But many point to GM's declining share as the ultimate assessment of Smith's failed leadership. Beset by quality woes, look-alike cars and relentless competition, GM saw its slice of the U.S. car and truck market fall from 44.5 percent in 1980 to 35.8 percent now.

Smith, named chairman of what is now the world's largest industrial concern in January 1981 after joining GM in 1949, said "technology and - believe it or not - value" will be the keys to GM regaining share.

Smith also said more automation and flexible manufacturing techniques, which he termed "a formula approach of what combination of cars can you can build in a plant," will help GM meet its promise of fully utilizing all North American vehicle assembly plants by 1992.

"That's part of the thing both Bob (Stempel) and the new team are working on," Smith said. "There are a lot of things...like the Impact (GM's new electric vehicle to be built at an as yet unnamed site). New technical developments will add content to our cars."

During Smith's reign, GM underwent a massive but clumsy reorganization and a dramatic shrinking that shuttered over a dozen assembly plants and idled tens of thousands of workers.

While supporters said Smith displayed vision by forging joint ventures with Toyota Motor Co., modernizing factories and creating Saturn Corp., his detractors say he spent billions to get GM into the electronics and defense businesses while ignoring a steady erosion in vehicle sales, notably in its traditionally strong mid-sized car segment.

But the outgoing chairman pointed to GM's restored profitability. "When we took over, there was a $765 million loss," he said. "We're now the No. 1 company in the world." GM last year posted worldwide profits of $4.3 billion.

Smith chastised the media for what he called "a lot of surface reporting," especially regarding the controversy between himself and H. Ross Perot, the former head and founder of Electronic Data Systems Corp., which GM acquired in 1984 for $2.5 billion. GM later ousted Perot, also the automaker's largest shareholder, by purchasing his stock for about $700 million.

Reporters "just didn't bother to dig in, and this led to a lot of shorthand phrases, like 'the $700 million buyout of Ross Perot,"' Smith said. "A lot of people didn't really get down and understand that. The stock was a $33 a share, and that has now more than doubled."

Smith also defended GM's purchase of Hughes Aircraft in 1985 for $5 billion, adding the acquisitions of both EDS and Hughes were part of "getting the corporation ready for the 21st century and trying to do it by the mid-1990s.

"With Hughes we got 15,000 engineers with just with one stoke of the pen," he said. "In 1995, when people go looking for engineers, GM is going to have them."

Stempel has expectedly lauded Smith as having the energy and enthusiasm to inspire, having the "courage to persist, despite all the pessimists and nay-sayers."

But it may be some time before Smith is judged favorably, if ever. Even his retirement became the subject of controversy when the GM board nearly doubled his pension to $1.2 million a year.

The subject of three books and a controversial movie, Smith's presence will be felt for years, since most management decisions usually take that long to bear any fruit in the marketplace.

One such example is Saturn, an ambitious program announced seven years ago to give GM a domestically made subcompact car touted as America's answer to the Japanese challenge.

"Saturn is unbelievable," Smith told UPI one day after getting his wish by driving one of the first Saturn cars off the line in a private ceremony at the company's $2 billion factory in Spring Hill, Tenn. "I'm having a hard time sitting here figuring out if I enjoyed the car more or the people more or the plant more."

Smith intends to start his retirement by doing charitable work related to the President's Drug Advisory Council, to which he was named in November to assist the Bush administration in developing and promoting a national drug policy.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - An appeals court Tuesday upheld a ruling that denied a private archive access to the Tower Commission reports following its investigation of the Iran-Contra affair.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit held that the Freedom of Information Act does not require the government to furnish the National Security Archive with the commission's secret records.

The Tower Commission was established on Dec. 1, 1986, by President Ronald Reagan to investigate the National Security Council's role in the sale of weapons to Iran, and the diversion of profits from those sales to the Contras in Nicaragua.

The National Security Archive had requested from the White House counsel the Tower Commission records four times in 1987, citing the Freedom of Information Act, but was denied each time.

The NSA filed suit in district court, charging that the agency violated the FOIA by improperly withholding the commission's records. It also charged the agency with having control over the records, a requirement by the FOIA.

District court, however, found that the government ''had no obligation'' to release the Tower Commission records and held that the White House counsel ''is not considedered an 'agency' under the FOIA and is therefore not subject to the disclosure requirements of that act.''

The appeals court, in a unanimous decision, upheld the district court's ruling and agreed that the NSA never directed its request to the appropriate entity, the Tower Commission, even though the commission only existed for 30 days after submitting its report to the president.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - More than $45 million in video equipment, microcomputers and other office items were missing from a federal nuclear weapons laboratory in California following allegations of employee theft to support drug use, congressional investigators said Tuesday.

The investigation by the General Accounting Office, the auditing arm of Congress, was prompted by charges aired at June 1988 congressional hearings that valuable items were being stolen by workers at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory to pay for illegal drugs.

The GAO found that as of mid-January 1990 the laboratory could not locate a total of 27,528 pieces of office equipment - 16 percent of all items recorded in its computerized property management inventory.

''For example, the laboratory was missing 205 typewriter/word processors, 841 items of video equipment and 3,677 calculators,'' the GAO said in a report requested by Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

''This missing property has an acquisition value of over $45 million - 5 percent of the total acquisition value of all the property in the (property management) data base,'' the report added.

''Property controls at the laboratory are not adequate to ensure against theft, unauthorized use or loss because policies and procedures either are not adequate or have not been effectively implemented,'' the GAO concluded.

Laboratory officials said that since the GAO review, many of the missing items have been accounted for, but the GAO said the loss rate was still three times higher than allowed under the laboratory's property guidelines.

Dingell sought the GAO study following June 1988 hearings held by his committee on the Energy Department's termination of Operation Snowstorm, an undercover investigation of alleged drug activities at the laboratory, which conducts highly classified nuclear weapons research.

The Energy Department cut short the probe over the objections of criminal investigators, who said the decision to end the operation prevented them from following leads involving employees in the most sensitive sections of the laboratory.

During the hearings, Dingell expressed concern about allegations that laboratory equipment was being stolen to finance the purchase of illegal drugs by laboratory workers. Dingell said previous drug-related arrests revealed government computers and other property were traded for drugs.

Despite such incidents, the GAO said the Energy Department still has not tightened property controls at the laboratory, which is operated for the government by the University of California.

GAO officials said federal rules spell out specific procedures to keep track of government property, but those policies were not required at the laboratory because university officials opposed it and the department was concerned about losing the university's services.

Instead, the department's contract with the university requires only a ''mutually approved system'' of property control that GAO officials found was vague and inadequate.

Furthermore, the contract exempts the university from liability for lost property except in cases of ''willful misconduct'' by university officials. The GAO said that exemption gave the university little incentive to protect property.

AUSTIN, Texas (JULY 31) UPI - Texas Republican gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams Tuesday questioned opponent Ann Richards's deposits of state funds in six savings and loans associations.

Zack Dawes, Williams's campaign manager, asked the federal Resolution Trust Corp. for information about state funds deposited in the thrifts during Richards's first term as state treasurer starting in January 1983.

Dawes listed Vernon S&L of Dallas, American Independent S&L of Garland, University S&L of Houston, Empire S&L of Mesquite, Commodore S&L of Dallas and Gill S&L of San Antonio.

Dawes said he wants to know whether Richards deposited state funds in the thrifts from 1983 to 1986 and whether state money was used to help capitalize the six S&Ls. ''The taxpayers of Texas deserve to know precisely how their money was invested and where their money was invested '' he said.

The RTC is the federal agency created to oversee the bailout of the nation's thrifts. The S&L cleanup will cost U.S. taxpayers an estimated $132 billion to $500 billion, making it the most costly financial debacle since the Great Depression.

The issue first surfaced Monday when Dawes complained there is a ''black hole'' of information about how Richards deposited state money while the S&L crisis was brewing.

Richards' campaign Monday accused Dawes of making a ''clumsy attempt'' to unfairly link the Democratic gubernatorial nominee to the S&L crisis. There was no immediate response Tuesday from Richards' campaign to the latest comments by Dawes.

In his letter to RTC Executive Director David Cook, Dawes said he was seeking the agency's assistance because ''state deposit records have been destroyed during the period in question ...''

The state treasury department said Monday that deposit records are destroyed after three years and there is no information on state S&L deposits prior to 1987.

The Texas Legislature authorized deposits of up to 20 percent of available state funds in S&Ls in early 1983, but treasury spokesman Bill Cryer said deposits in thrifts were always less than 1 percent of all state deposits.

Cryer said state deposits in S&Ls were pulled ''several years'' ago, but he said the state ''never lost one penny'' because of the failure of thrifts or banks.

NEW YORK (JULY 31) UPI - George Steinbrenner, stripped of control of the New York Yankees, said Tuesday his 33-year-old son will take over as general partner of the most famous franchise in American sports.

However, Hank Steinbrenner must be approved by three-quarters of the team's 18 limited partners and by Commissioner Fay Vincent.

''I think it's time to turn (the baseball operations) over to the young blood in the family,'' George Steinbrenner said in a statement. ''I have no desire to return as general partner. That will rest with my sons. I have other endeavors which I plan to devote most of my available time to now, which are very important to me.''

The elder Steinbrenner now owns 55 percent of the Yankees and is bound to give up at least 6 percent of the franchise by Aug. 20.

Vincent announced his decision Monday night in which Steinbrenner agreed to resign as general partner of the Yankees for his dealings with an admitted gambler.

It has been speculated Steinbrenner accepted the arrangement because of Vincent's willingness to accept his son as general partner.

George Steinbrenner said in his statement that he will continue to be involved in ''material and extraordinary financial or business affairs of the team.''

The agreement allows the owner to consult with the club on major financial decisions, but only with the commissioner's approval.

Hank Steinbrenner, who served briefly as general partner in 1986 and now helps run the family's horse farm, Kinsman Ranch in Ocala, Fla., could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Steinbrenner has made no secret of his desire to keep the team in the family, and according to his agreement with Vincent, the commmissioner must approve either of Steinbrenner's sons as general partner.

Though other names have been rumored as Steinbrenner's successor - including former Yankees and New York Mets pitcher Tom Seaver - the nomination of Hank as general partner was no surprise to those close to the Yankees.

Stephen Kaufman, one of Steinbrenner's lawyers, said unequivocally Monday Hank Steinbrenner would be named general partner.

Barry Halper, one of the most active of the Yankees' limited partners, agreed.

''I'm sure it will be Hank unless Hank doesn't want it,'' Halper said. ''It has to come from within.''

The commissioner tried to dispel any fears the younger Steinbrenner would be simply a mouthpiece for his father to shout through. The agreement states clearly that whoever takes over the team could be banned from baseball if he allowed Steinbrenner to counsel him on day-to-day operations of the team.

''When you are placed on the ineligible list ... anybody who deals with you does so at his peril,'' Vincent said.

But while Vincent may be able to stop George from whispering in his son's ear, he won't be able to quiet the Steinbrenner voice inside Hank's head.

In his brief term as general partner in 1986, Hank made the decision to replace Dave Righetti with Alfonso Pulido as the team's stopper. Pulido was cut at the end of the season.

The agreement between Steinbrenner and Vincent was reached after a four-month investigation by the commissioner into the owner's three-year dealings with gambler Howard Spira. Their relationship culminated in a $40,000 payment in January from Steinbrenner to Spira.

Steinbrenner's version of the events changed over the months. He told the commissioner he paid Spira because the gambler had threatened his life and he feared for his family's safety. Spira said Steinbrenner was paying him off for information that was potentially damaging to former Yankee outfielder Dave Winfield.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - Three-quarters of Americans believe major efforts are needed to improve the environment, but less than a quarter are taking any action themselves, a poll released Tuesday said.

The survey, done by the Roper Organization and commissioned by S.C. Johnson and Son Inc., maker of Johnson Wax and other household products, shows that since 1987 the percentage of Americans calling for more environmental protection has jumped from 56 percent to 78 percent.

However, Burns Roper, chairman of the Roper Organization, said that while recycling activity has picked up, ''in many other areas environmental efforts have lagged behind environmental worries. The result is a fairly large gap between popular attitudes and daily behavior.''

The poll of 1,413 adults also shows that Americans are not yet willing to spend many additional dollars for ''green'' products - those deemed safe for the environment.

The survey found Americans are willing to spend, on average, only 6.6 percent extra for ''environmentally friendly products'' such as those manufactured with recycled paper. Further, one-third of the public refuses to pay anything extra.

However, nearly three in 10 of those surveyed said they have bought a product specifically because of green advertising or labeling.

Roper said those active in preserving the environment tend to believe that individual behavior can make a difference. Those who are not as involved place much of the burden on government or industry.

The study indicated that most Americans support placing many pro-environmental regulations on industry and government. For example, 53 percent of those surveyed support banning the use of high-sulfur coal - which is linked to acid rain - and 54 percent want to force companies to comply with tougher air pollution standards.

But the poll found the majority of Americans do not support environmental regulations that would require immediate changes in lifestyle. For example 66 percent of the sample opposed mandatory car-pooling.

The survey was conducted between Feb. 24 and March 3, and has a margin of error of 3 percent, plus or minus.

IRVINE, Calif. (JULY 31) UPI - Troubled FundAmerica Inc. said Tuesday it has named financial iconoclast Howard Ruff as president and chief executive officer, replacing founder Robert T. Edwards, who was arrested two weeks ago in Florida on charges of operating an illegal pyramid scheme.

FundAmerica said Ruff and several unnamed associates plan to buy the company's outstanding stock within the next two to four weeks. Terms of the deal were not disclosed.

Ruff and the company have scheduled a news conference for Tuesday night to announce other plans for the company.

The 59-year-old Ruff publishes ''The Ruff Times'' newsletter and wrote the 1978 best-seller ''How to Prosper During the Coming Bad Years.'' He also founded the Utah-based Jefferson Institute in 1986 and holds ''boot camps'' several times a year for would-be investors and entreprenuers.

Edwards, who was released on $1 million bail, resigned last week.

FundAmerica also said William Dexter has resigned as a board member, leaving Ruff and real estate developer Mitchell Blumberg as the only two directors.

Economist Arthur Laffer, the chief theorist behind former President Ronald Reagan's supply-side economics, resigned from the board last week.

Florida authorities have said that FundAmerica has no real products. Its assets were frozen last week after an investor filed a $150 million class-action suit in San Francisco federal court, alleging fraud and racketeering.

The company has maintained it is a legitimate multilevel marketing business.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - The House, in a move to reassure voters of its concern about the thrift crisis, overwhelmingly passed a bill Tuesday to crack down on crime in financial institutions.

The bill strengthens criminal penalties for crimes involving banks and thrifts, authorizes additional money for Justice Department investigations and prosecutions, requires a special counsel in the department to investigate financial institution crime, and establishes a commission to study the causes of the savings and loan crisis.

The measure was passed on a 424-4 vote and sent to the Senate.

The legislation will ''crack down hard on the S&L crooks'' and provides ''a wide range of new tools to combat abusive and criminal activity involving financial institutions,'' said Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., citing the failure of hundreds of savings and loans, said ''the American people got mugged'' by criminals ''whose weapons were pens, not guns.''

''Over the past decade the taxpayer has been robbed of billions in the most pervasive financial swindle of our times. By all accounts Americans are at the end of their rope. ... They were robbed once. They will not take kindly of forking over yet more taxpayer dollars ... without decisive action against the crooks who perpetrated this horror.''

The bill was strongly criticized by Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, chairman of the House Banking Committee, who said the measure was rushed to a vote before the August congressional recess so members can say they are taking action on the thrift crisis.

''It's a mistake to push this legislation in panic, and this is what it is. It's an attempt to tell the American people ... that we're trying to do something to get the crooks in jail,'' Gonzalez said. ''Who do we think we're kidding, besides ourselves? The American people ... know what's going on. This won't kid them one darned bit.''

Gonzalez said Congress passed a bill just last year to assist prosecution of thrift cases. ''The regulators and the Justice Department have not even had a chance to exercise that authority, yet today we are giving them more.''

Passage of the bill followed new estimates that the government's thrift bailout effort will need as much as $100 billion more next year.

It is estimated that rescuing the nation's thrifts from collapse will cost taxpayers between $132 billion and $500 billion, making it the most costly financial debacle since the Great Depression.

Officials of the Resolution Trust Corp., the government agency overseeing the thrift bailout, told the Banking Committee that the agency needs an additional $30 billion to $40 billion for loss funds and between $40 billion and $60 billion in working capital in fiscal 1991. That's on top of the $50 billion already spent in the past year to clean up the thrift mess, the officials said.

A Senate Judiciary Committee study says the nation's murder toll is headed for a record level this year. The panel blames the rising death toll on young drug dealers battling over cocaine turf with high-powered weapons.

Government investigators say the Alaska oil disaster resulted from poor judgment by the captain of the Exxon Valdez. They add in their final report to the National Transportation Safety Board that the situation was exacerbated by an exhausted and inexperienced crew.

More trouble today for the controversial B-2 stealth bomber. The House Armed Services Committee voted to terminate the radar-evading plane. The panel voted 34-20 in saying the 15 planes that have been approved so far should be built... but NO more.

In another major aviation decision, the panel decided to keep production money in the proposed defense authorization bill for the V-22 osprey, a tilt-rotor plane that takes off like a helicopter but flys like a plane. Defense Secretary Cheney wants the V-22 killed.

NEW YORK (JULY 31) UPI - The dollar tumbled badly against the key world currencies in heavy New York trading Tuesday as investors showed their deep pessimism as to U.S. economic prospects and shopped for higher interest rates. Currency traders said the dollar sell-off reflected a deepening of the bearish sentiment triggered by last week's weak U.S. gross national product.

Many players were looking for a continued slide in the dollar, whose New York closing price against the German mark was at a 31-month low. It appeared to be heading for its postwar record low of 157.15 marks, set Dec. 31, 1987, said analyst Lisa Finstrom of Shearson Lehman Hutton.

In late New York trading, the dollar was changing hands at 1.5865 German marks, down nearly two pfennigs from 1.6040 marks Monday. Against the Japanese unit it was quoted at 145.80 yen, off two yen from 147.80.

Hurting the dollar were the sluggish U.S. economy, the deepening savings and loan crisis and interest rate shifts meaning that foreign investors now derive little or no advantage from investing in the United States.

"Anyone in Germany with excess money is investing in Germany," said assistant vice president Marcy Nathan of the Hill Samuel International Corp., while "the Japanese have higher rates and they will be investing at home." "I think the dollar is heading lower," she added.

"It's been a one-way street," said currency adviser Michael McGuinness of the Chicago-based Harris Trust & Savings Bank. "People are looking to stay out of dollars because they don't expect anything positive."

McGuinness said the dollar surprised some players by falling through the 1.60 deutsche mark level while selling interest continued strong. "A few people have been touting 1.50 as a viable objective now," he said.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.3450 Swiss francs, down from 1.3595; 5.3165 French francs, off from 5.3700; and 1,162 Italian lire, off from 1,174. The British pound ascended to $1.8635 from $1.8460.

In Europe, the dollar declined sharply against the main currencies as players lost confidence in the U.S. economy, analysts said.

The market was unhappy with U.S. predictions of a fiscal 1991 budget deficit approaching $200 billion and grew alarmed when the dollar crashed through the psychological level of 1.6 marks on its way down.

"Some specific and positive move is what's needed from the (Federal Reserve) to support the dollar. There's nothing there to stop it falling further at the moment," said a dealer with Barclays de Zoete Wedd, London.

In Frankfurt, the dollar lost nearly two pfennigs to close at 1.5905 marks against 1.6085 Monday. It declined more than a centime in Zurich, where it was at 1.3525 Swiss francs against 1.3630 the day before.

In London, the pound gained 1 1/2 cents to finish at $1.8590 against $1.8440 at the previous day's close.

The U.S. unit also fell in Paris, Brussels and Milan, to 5.3415 French francs against 5.3975, 32.72 Belgian francs against 33.03, and 1,166.80 lire compared with 1,180.

Earlier in Tokyo, the U.S dollar plunged to end at 147.50 yen against 148.60, down 1.10 yen. Expectations of lower U.S. interest rates were the main factor.

"Customers just threw dollars out for selling," remarked Katsuhiro Kaneko, chief Tokyo dealer for Lloyds Bank PLC.

In Zurich, gold gained $5 to close at $372.50 an ounce compared with $367.50 Monday. It rose in London to $372 an ounce against $366.75.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $370.25 an ounce, up from $368 Monday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled gold at $370 an ounce, also ahead from $367.80.

Silver was unchanged in Zurich at $4.85 an ounce. It also held steady in London at $4.85 an ounce.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.805 an ounce, down from $4.825. Comex silver finished at $4.787 an ounce, down from $4.803.

LOS ANGELES (JULY 31) UPI - The brother-in-law of a former Mexican president was convicted of kidnapping charges Tuesday in the 1985 torture-slaying of U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena.

The verdict against prominent Mexican businessman Ruben Zuno Arce, 60, was rendered on the 12th day of deliberations by a federal court jury of six women and six men.

Zuno was found guilty of all three counts against him: committing violent crimes in aid of racketeering, conspiracy to kidnap Camarena, and aiding and abetting in the agent's kidnapping.

A multi-millionaire whose father was governor of the Mexican state of Jalisco, Zuno is married to a sister of former Mexican president Luis Echeverria.

He is the third of four defendants to be convicted in the case, which has sown discord in U.S.-Mexico relations.

The jury last week convicted Honduran drug kingpin Juan Ramon Matta Ballesteros, 45. On Monday, it convicted Juan Jose Bernabe Ramirez, a one-time bodyguard for Fonesca.

But, in a blow to the prosecution, both men were acquitted in Camarena's murder.

Zuno, whose role in the case prosecutors said linked Camarena's murder to the highest levels of the Mexican government, originally was charged last year with perjury for allegedly lying to a federal grand jury about his relationship with drug barons Rafael Caro Quintero and Ernesto Fonseca Carrillo.

In December, he was indicted on the conspiracy and kidnapping charges.

Zuno once owned the Guadalajara house where Camarena was killed and sold it to Caro shortly before the agent's abduction.

After rendering their verdict against Zuno, U.S. District Judge Edward Rafeedie ordered the jury to continue deliberations on the fate of the remaining defendant, Javier Vasquez Velasco, 38.

Vasquez, an alleged bodyguard for the drug traffickers, was charged in two criminal counts stemming from the murders of two American tourists killed after apparently being mistaken for U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents.

During the two-month-long trial, the jury heard testimony about powerful Mexican drug chieftains who lived in ranch-like homes in Guadalajara, fully-secured by bodyguards armed with high-powered weapons.

Camarena, considered a star in the DEA ranks, was one of four agents who descended into this ''den of wolves'' in Guadalajara in 1983 and participated in raids on marijuana fields that cost the drug traffickers more than $5 billion, Assistant U.S. Attorney Manuel Medrano said.

In early February 1985, a month before he was to be transferred back to the United States, Camarena was snatched off a Guadalajara street and tortured for more than 30 hours at the house formerly owned by Zuno.

His Mexican pilot, Alfredo Zavala Avelar, also was kidnapped, tortured and killed. Their mutilated bodies were found a month later in a shallow grave 75 miles southeast of Guadalajara.

The jury heard chilling tape-recordings of parts of Camarena's interrogation in which the agent begs, ''Don't hit me anymore!'' and pleads in Spanish for medical attention.

Camarena's ribs were broken, his skull fractured ''like an egg shell'' and a hole was drilled through his head, apparently with a screwdriver, according to trial testimony.

In all, 22 people have been indicted in the United States in connection with the Camarena murder, including three men convicted after a 1988 trial in Los Angeles. Two men in the earlier trial were convicted of murder.

Fonseca, Caro and several others were convicted last year in Mexico and sentenced to lengthy prison terms. With those prosecutions, Mexico maintained all those responsible for Camarena's murder had been brought to justice.

But, to the outrage of Mexican officials, prosecutors throughout the trial in Los Angeles elicited the testimony of paid informants who alleged that high-ranking Mexican officials participated in the plot to abduct Camarena.

Prime among those implicated in the testimony was Javier Garcia Paniagua, the former head of PRI, Mexico's ranking political party, as well as a former cabinet member. Paniagua is currently chief of police in Mexico City.

Mexico has refused to extradite for trial the former head of Interpol in Mexico and a former director of the Mexican Federal Judicial Police, both under indictment in the United States.

A separate trial has yet to be scheduled for a fifth defendant, Mexican gynecologist Humberto Alvarez Machain, who was abducted from his Guadalajara office in April by what the Mexican government alleges were bounty hunters and arrested by the DEA at an El Paso, Texas airport.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - An idea floated by the administration to limit the amount of state and local taxes that can be deducted from federal taxes may never make it to the budget negotiating table.

''I don't know if the body's gone to the morgue yet but it's not doing too well,'' House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif., said of the still-unofficial administration proposal that has governors and some other state and local officials from states with high taxes, such as New York, up in arms.

''I've not heard any support expressed for it so far,'' added Senate Budget Committee Chairman James Sasser, D-Tenn.

Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., a member of the Senate Finance Committee, said on the Senate floor that President Bush, like President Reagan before him, ''would like to get rid of deductability entirely'' and urged budget negotiators to reject the plan.

The nation's governors, meeting last weekend in Mobile, Ala., came out strongly against the proposal. They argue that such a move would hamper their ability to raise state taxes because voters would be near their fiscal limits if they lose the ability to deduct local taxes from their federal tax bill.

The issue is especially sensitive in states with higher taxes because taxpayers would reach the $10,000 limit with lower income levels than in other states.

An aide to a Democratic budget negotiator said the idea may still have a chance.

The Democratic aide, who requested anonymity, said there was ''a reasonably good chance that there will be limits on all deductions ... for rich people'' in a deficit reduction agreement between Congress and President Bush. He said budget negotiators may also limit charitable and home mortgage interest deductions for wealthier Americans.

Sen. William Roth, R-Del., said he feared that once limits are placed on the deductions, it would only be a matter of time before they effected most taxpayers.

''This is just the start. Once state and local deductability is cut back for some, it won't be long before more and more taxpayers are hit,'' Roth said last week.

Republican budget negotiators last week leaked elements of a new deficit reduction plan prepared by the Bush administration but never formally offered at the White House-Congress budget talks, which are currently stalled.

One element of the reported plan is to limit to $10,000 the amount of state and local taxes that can be deducted from federal taxes - a change that would affect primarily wealthier Americans making at least $100,000 a year.

The change would raise about $3 billion a year.

Middle- and lower-income Americans - even in high tax states - pay considerably less than $10,000 a year in state and local taxes and therefore would not be affected by the proposal. Currently, there is no limit on state and local tax deductions.

The administration plan also includes increasing the federal tax on alcoholic beverages - a move that would raise about $7 billion a year.

Top congressional leaders met with Bush at the White House Tuesday to discuss the stalled budget talks and whether Congress should postpone its month-long August recess to give negotiators more time to reach agreement.

Panetta said he was told Bush ''is moving toward'' a Democratic-suggested schedule letting Congress take its August break but requiring budget negotiators to reach agreement by Sept. 10.

Congress would then have the rest of September to approve and implement the spending cuts and revenue hikes in the agreement in order to prevent imposition of $100 billion in automatic spending cuts. Those cuts would be required under the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law if the fiscal 1991 deficit reduction target of $64 billion is not met.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - In a surprisingly strong show of opposition, the House Armed Services Committee voted Tuesday to halt the B-2 stealth bomber program, setting the stage for a major debate over the first post-Cold War defense budget.

Nine of the committee's 21 Republicans joined 25 Democrats in a 34-20 victory for B-2 opponents that marked the sharpest blow thus far to the endangered batwing high-tech bomber.

The action came in final work on a $283 billion fiscal 1991 defense bill, a measure $24 billion below what President Bush initially sought. The Senate's version of the same bill totals $289 billion. The full House will take up its bill in the first week of September.

The House committee, headed by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., is at odds with the companion Senate committee chaired by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and the next B-2 battleground - after floor action by both chambers - will be the conference committee that will resolve differences in the two bills.

Aspin is the newest convert to, and perhaps most influential member of, the anti-stealth movement, which gained strength with the waning of the Cold War and the escalation of the per-plane price of the B-2 to more than $850 million.

The setback for the radar-eluding plane came on an attempt by Rep. Ike Skelton, D-Mo., to replace termination language added during subcommittee work by Aspin with an extra $200 million for the purchase of parts for additional bombers. An Air Force base in Skelton's district is due to get the first wing of planes, projected as succesors to the 1950s-vintage B-52 strategic bomber.

Of the $4.5 billion sought for the plane in the 1991 spending year, the vote leaves intact some $1.75 billion in research funds and recommends that the 15 B-2s now on order, plus the one test plane already flying, would be the full extent of a program that so far has consumed $27 billion over a decade.

The latest cut in the program, which pushed the average cost including research to about $865 million each, did not help the B-2 on Capitol Hill. And complaints about Northrop's handling of a variety of defense projects aired last week before another committee did nothing to help the plane's case.

The B-2 program manager, Maj. Gen. Richard Scofield, mounted a defense of the plane in remarks to a civic club in Rochester, N.Y., where he said the bomber is ''the most thoroughly tested aircraft in aviation history,'' and added, ''We can proceed to production with minimal risk.''

In another major action, the House panel retained $165 million in production money for the V-22 Osprey aircraft, a tilt-rotor plane that can take off like a helicopter, then swivel its wing-tip engine pods forward to fly like a conventional aircraft. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney has sought for two years to kill the plane, but the actions of the House panel and the fact that the companion Senate committee has included $238 million in research funds for it suggest the Osprey may survive.

The V-22 is a joint project of Textron's Bell Helicopter unit and Boeing's Vertol division in Pennsylvania.

The House panel worked on its bill behind closed doors on other decisions made by its subcommittees, including:

-Cutting the Pentagon's portion of the Strategic Defense Initiative from $4.46 billion down to just $2.93 billion. The Senate committee's figure is $3.57 billion for the Pentagon's share of ''Star Wars'' anti-missile work, with a small additional amount at the Energy Department.

-A cut of almost 130,000 personnel in 1991, with as many as 80,000 positions whittled from overseas troop levels. The personnel section also contains an extension of involuntary separation benefits to enlisted personnel who might get pink slips in force reductions.

(JULY 31) UPI - A government report today warns that nuclear waste storage tanks at the Hanford nuclear weapons plant pose a greater risk than previously believed. The new study says Energy Department contractors knew 13 years ago that hydrogen and heat were building up in the tanks. It adds that an explosion inside the underground tanks in Washington state could cause a potentially catastrophic release of radioactivity. That contradicts earlier studies.

Radio reports in Trinidad say Prime Minister Arthur Robinson was released this afternoon by rebels who have held him and about 20 other government officials hostage for four days. Robinson was said to have been shot Friday as rebels stormed a Parliament meeting, but he's reported ''in good spirits'' today. There was NO word on the other legislators and Cabinet members who were taken hostage.

A cease-fire is in effect in the Philippines to allow communist rebels to release a kidnapped Peace Corps worker and a Japanese rural worker. Troops are confined to barracks for 72 hours so the rebels can turn over their hostages Thursday. The rebels say they cleared their captives of charges that they were spies.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - The world was rocked by 34 significant earthquakes in the first half of 1990, a fairly typical number but one that includes the most deadly quake in 14 years, the U.S. Geological Survey reported Tuesday.

There are about 60 earthquakes measuring 6.5 on the Richter scale each year. There were 55 quakes of that magnitude in 1989, 61 in 1988 and 76 in 1987, the agency said.

An earthquake measuring 7.7 on the Richter scale that devastated parts of northern Iran June 20 and killed an estimated 50,000 people was the strongest quake during the first half of 1990 and the most deadly in 14 years.

That quake and two large aftershocks were three of the 34 significant quakes that occurred in the first six months of 1990.

The survey defines a sigificant earthquake as one that registers at least 6.5 or one of lesser magnitude that causes casualties or considerable damage.

Only one of the recent quakes occurred in the United States, which is about half of the average of almost five such quakes in the nation during the 1980s, the survey said.

An earthquake that measured 5.5 occurred Feb. 28, causing more than $10 million in damage to structures in the Southern California communities of Upland and Pomona. Thirty-eight people were injured, but no one died.

One of the most significant quakes registered 7.7 and struke Luzon Island in the Philippines July 16, causing thousands of casualties and severe damage.

After the Iran quake, the next most devastating earthquake measured 6.4 and struck northern Peru on May 30, killing 135 people and injuring more than 800.

The third deadliest quake occurred April 26 when 126 people were killed, many injured and hundreds of homes destroyed in a magnitude 6.9 quake in the Qinqhai Province of China.

The survey usually detects 10,000 to 14,000 earthquakes each year with magnitudes of about 2.0 to 8.0 or more.

''Probably several million earthquakes occur each year but most are so small or occur in such remote areas that they are undetected by even the most sensitive instruments in the world,'' said Waverly Person, chief of the U.S. Geological Survey National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo.

A magnitude 7.2 earthquake in southern Sudan May 20 is believed to be the largest earthquake ever recorded in that African nation. But because of the remoteness of the area, the geological survey said it has not confirmed the scattered reports of deaths, injuries and damage from the main shock and two strong aftershocks May 24.

Nine people were killed and more than 700 injured in a magnitude 6.7 earthquake in northern Romania on May 30.

Two people reportedly died of heart attacks in the aftermath of a magnitude 5.4 earthquake in southern Italy May 5. No injuries were reported but some buildings were dmaged when a 5.4 tremor shook a large area of southeastern England on April 2.

A magnitude 6.6 quake off Mindanao Island in the Philippines injured at least 15 people and caused damage on Feb. 8, and a magnitude 5.6 tremor killed one person, injured two others and caused damage on March 26 on Mindanao. A magnitude 7.0 earthquake on Panay Island in the Philippines killed at least four people on June 14, injured 15 others and caused considerable damage.

BALTIMORE (JULY 31) UPI - Federal investigators are reviewing allegations of corruption and bribery at the U.S. Naval Academy involving millions of dollars worth of contracts, prosecutors revealed Tuesday.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jane Barrett disclosed during a trial in U.S. District Court that the government's review includes allegations that a now-retired Navy captain received more than $20,000 dollars in illegal gratuities in exchange for steering Navy contracts to a contractor.

The revelations came as an Annapolis contractor pleaded guilty to charges of bribing the Naval Academy official and former Annapolis Housing Authority Director Arthur Strissel, who is serving a 10-year prison sentence for racketeering and bribery offenses.

Carroll Dunton, 65, an Annapolis contractor, pleaded guilty Tuesday to paying $20,300 dollars in cash and other gratuities to a Naval Academy official, who was identified in court as now-retired Capt. James Weston, in return for $3.7 million in Navy contracts.

Weston retired in October after 20 years of Navy service and now lives in Nevada, said prosecutors, who allege that the academy's former public works officer helped direct contracts to Dunton by listing him as a ''preferred bidder'' for jobs.

Barrett also alleged in court that Eugene Hook, the academy's construction director from 1974 to 1988, solicited gratuities for Weston at least twice in 1985 and 1986.

U.S. Attorney Breckinridge Willcox said that to date no one other than Dunton has been charged in the investigation, which started after the U.S. Naval Audit Service raised questions about academy construction projects last year.

Prosecutors allege that in all, Dunton received nearly $13 million dollars worth of Navy contracts for his company between July 1985 and October 1989 during Weston's tenure at the academy.

Dunton also pleaded guilty to one count of bribing Strissel with $13,000 worth of specialized plumbing work that went to Strissel's house in exchange for contracts for city housing projects.

Strissel is serving a 10-year prison sentence for racketeering and bribery convictions for accepting money and favors from contractors while he was chief of the city's public housing authority.

Academy officials said they are cooperating fully in the probe but refused to say Tuesday specifically who was being targeted in the investigation.

Noel Milan, an academy spokesman, told late editions of Tuesday's Evening Sun that the FBI and Naval Investigative Services began a joint investigation in March 1989 into ''possible procurement irregularities'' during Weston's tenure at the academy.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (JULY 31) UPI - The Shoal Creek Country Club, the site of the 1990 PGA Championship next week, granted honorary membership Tuesday to a prominent black businessman, and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference agreed to cancel plans to picket the tournament.

Birmingham Mayor Richard Arrington said Louis Willie, president of Booker T. Washington Life Insurance Co. in Birmingham, had been granted an honorary membership with full priviledges, and that the club also agreed to process a regular membership application from another black person, who was not identified.

The Rev. Joseph Lowery, national president of the SCLC, said the integration of the previously all-white club meant pickets planned for the golf tournament next week would be canceled.

Several major corporate sponsors had pulled their ads from ABC's and ESPN's television coverage of the tournament in protest of Shoal Creek's exclusionary practices, but Lowery said Tuesday he would not object to those companies reinstating their commercials.

Before the settlement was reached, the Professional Golfers Association Tour had even asked if the Tournament Players Club in Memphis, site of this week's stop on the tour, could be available to host the PGA if necessary. But PGA officials said such a move was unlikely and the settlement would keep the tournament at Shoal Creek.

Meanwhile, the PGA announced that it was developing non-discrimination guidelines for clubs that seek to be hosts of its tournaments in the future, and the SCLC and PGA said they planned to work together to develop a program to increase black participation in golf.

''Out of this situation has not only come great good for Birmingham, but our entire nation,'' said the Rev. Abraham Woods, president of the SCLC chapter in Birmingham. ''The ripples will be felt across the nation. What has happened in Birmingham has sounded the death knell for exlusionary clubs across the nation.''

The controversy over Shoal Creek's practices erupted last month when its founder, Hall Thompson, said the club would not be pressured into accepting blacks. Thompson later apologized, but blacks said they wanted a black member at the club by the time the tournament is played or they would picket the event.

Shoal Creek President John Pittman said the club's board of directors, including Thompson, met Monday night and voted to extend the membership to Willie. He would not comment on how Thompson voted on the matter.

''The board felt it was in the best interest of all to expand our minority membership,'' Pittman said. ''We're also pleased to accept a distinguished member of the community as an honorary member.

Although his membership is honorary, Willie will have full use of the club facilities and will be able to recommend others for membership, Pittman said.

Pittman said the unidentifid black person seeking full membership to the club, which costs $35,000 to join, would have his application processed in the normal manner. Pittman said the process, which is confidential, could take six months or more, but Woods said Pittman indicated to him that a decision would be made within 90 days.

PGA Chief Executive Officer Jim Awtrey said membership was not a criterion when Shoal Creek was selected as this year's site of the tournament, but his organization would develop guidelines to make sure clubs that are chosen for tournaments in the future have open membership policies.

Lowery said the SCLC would work with the PGA to develop a program to give financial help to golf programs at black colleges, develop training camps and clinics for black golfers and find corporate sponsors for young black golfers trying to qualify for the PGA tour.

''Just as Birmingham was a watershed in eliminating exclusion in public accomodations, so may Birmingham be a watershed in eliminating exclusiveness at private facilities,'' Lowery said, referring to the city's role in the civil rights struggle of the 1960s.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - The biotechnology industry received a second lukewarm signal from an key government advisory panel in two days Tuesday when the group backed only one of two genetically engineered drugs.

The Food and Drug Administration's nine-member Biological Response Modifiers Advisory Committee, meeting in Rockville, Md., failed to recommend approval of a substance called granulocyte macrophage colony stimulating factor or GM-CSF for bone marrow transplant patients.

The committee said Immunex Corp. of Seattle presented insufficient evidence about which patients would most likely benefit from the drug, and recommended GM-CSF be made available to patients only on an experimental basis.

The panel did, however, unanimously recommend Schering-Plough Corp. of Madison, N.J., be allowed to sell a drug called interferon alpha 2b to treat a chronic form of hepatitis.

The drugs were among four agents produced through genetic engineering techniques that the panel considered over two days. On Monday, the panel endorsed one drug for a rare blood disease but failed to recommend a second for kidney cancer.

Although any drug must receive final FDA approval, the hearings wereconsidered important for the biotechnology industry because the FDA generally follows such advice and positive recommendations indicate to investors that years of costly research will likely reap returns.

''That would been a big positive step for the industry,'' said Pamela Bridgen, executive director of the Association of Biotechnology Companies in Washington. ''It's not as good as it might have been.''

The committee's decisions were especially disappointing because the two companies that failed to win approval were small companies trying to get their first major product on the market, she said.

''I think it's sort of a little bit discouraging in the sense that they're saying the big companies are doing fine and the small companies haven't done enough,'' she said.

She added, however, that she was encouraged because both Immunex and the other smaller company, Cetus Corp. of Emeryville, Calif., were told to gather more data for consideration when the committee meets next.

The biotechnology industry has grown around recently developed techniques known as recombinant DNA technology, which involves manipulating genes - the blueprints for all life.

The techniques are used to produce drugs by inserting a gene for a substance that occurs naturally in the human body in tiny amounts into another organism, usually bacteria, to produce the substance or a close substitute in amounts large enough to treat a disease.

GM-CSF is a protein that encourages certain white blood cells to grow. Researchers hoped it could be used to improve the success of transplanted bone marrow, which produces white blood cells.

Although the committee did not support full approval, the panel recommended Immunex make the drug available to all eligible patients on an experimental basis in the meantime, said FDA spokewoman Faye Peterson.

Interferon alpha 2b is another protein that has already been approved to treat veneral warts, hairy cell leukemia and a form of cancer common among AIDS patients called Kaposi's sarcoma.

Schering-Plough is seeking approval to use the drug to treat chronic hepatitis C, which is caused by a virus. The drug, which is sold as Intron A, has been shown to have anti-viral abilities.

''We're pleased and encouraged,'' said Ronald Asinari, a Schering-Plough spokesman.

The committee Monday also endorsed a drug made by Genentech Inc. of South San Francisco, Calif., called interferon gamma for a rare inherited white blood cell disorder called chronic granulomatous disease.

(JULY 31) UPI - Crude oil prices continued to score gains Tuesday in a relatively lackluster session with many traders wrongly anticipating a decline in U.S. crude oil inventories.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, September crude oil futures made significant gains to close up 48 cents to $20.69 a barrel, after gaining 17 cents Monday. The intraday high was $20.77.

Trading volume was a relatively strong 87,866 estimated contracts.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast spot market, where crude is bought and sold for cash, the benchmark West Texas Intermediate gained 45 cents and was quoted at $20.65 a barrel, building on an advance of 20 cents Monday.

Crude prices firmed up as well on the European cash market Tuesday, continuing Monday's trend.

The United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - gained 17 cents to close at $17.20 a barrel. Dubai Light had gained 23 cents Monday.

Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent rose 42 cents to close at $19.47 a barrel, after gaining 20 cents Monday.

Several oil companies, including Marathon Petroleum Co., Sun Co. and Conoco Inc., said they were hiking the price of a barrel of crude by 50 cents across the board.

With the American Petroleum Institute's weekly report on crude and gasoline stocks not due for release until after the market's close, traders said there was no major news to move the market. By contrast, last week was marked by an array of oil companies' quarterly results and the Geneva meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Concern, however, remained about the situation in the Middle East, where Iraq increased its troops build-up at the frontier with Kuwait.

''The market was stronger in view on continuing concern about the Iraqi-Kuwait situation,'' said Andrew Lebow, with E.D. & F. Man International Futures Inc. in New York. ''Iraq was reported to have increased its troops along the Kuwaiti border and this made the European markets nervous.''

The two feuding OPEC members Tuesday began negotiations in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, with the Iraqi delegation saying Baghdad was not prepared to soften its territorial claims nor its demand that other Gulf oil producers abide by the cartel's production agreement.

Traders cautiously awaited the weekly statistics on U.S. oil stocks released late Tuesday by the API. Throughout the day, the consensus appeared to be that crude oil inventories would show a decline, but the API figures ended up contradicting earlier speculations.

''Another factor was the anticipation of bullish API's statistics and a sharp decline in inventories,'' Lebow said. ''However, inventories did not decline but grew - which will have a bearish impact tomorrow.''

The API weekly report said U.S. crude oil stocks rose to 386.5 million barrels, from 383.6 million in the previous week and well above 330.1 million in the year-ago week.

Unleaded gasoline stocks showed a small decline to 215.6 million barrels, while distillate stocks were slightly up to 118.6 million barrels.

''Products markets were unchanged in lackluster dealing, gasoline sold off on the close as August expired weakly,'' Lebow said. ''API revealed after the close that gasoline stocks fell, contrary to expectation.''

Petroleum product futures showed little strength in the last day of August trading for both gasoline and heating oil future contracts on the Merc.

Unleaded gasoline contracts for August, which had gained a full cent Monday, retreated to close at 64.60 cents a gallon, shedding 1.28 cent.

On the New York Harbor cash market, heating oil contracts for August, which shed 0.04 cent Monday, closed up 0.18 cent to 57.11 a gallon.

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad (JULY 31) UPI - Moslem rebels Tuesday released Prime Minister Arthur Robinson, but continued to hold other government officials captive on the fourth day of a coup attempt that has plunged the Caribbean nation into chaos.

Government officials denied that any deal with the rebels had been negotiated, and state radio reports said other Cabinet officials and legislators were still being held in the Parliament building and that 22 people were captive at the television station.

Attorney General Anthony Smart said Robinson was taken out of the Parliament building by ambulance at 1:12 p.m. ''in good spirits,'' traveling first to Camp Ogden, a military base, and then to a hospital. He said that although Robinson was now free, the crisis was far from over.

The Caribbean News Agency reported that Robinson met with Acting Prime Minister Winston Dookaran and other ministers before entering the hospital.

State radio said the rebels allowed Robinson to leave because he was losing blood from two gunshot wounds in the legs. The prime minister reportedly was shot by rebels Saturday when he refused to sign an accord and step down from his post. Smart told reporters Robinson had an eye problem as well.

Earlier Tuesday, Moslem rebel leader Yasin Abu Bakr asked government leaders outside the Parliament to ''come and get him.''

''The man is sick and we don't want him to die,'' Abu Bakr told the Cable News Network in an interview.

Throughout the day, leaders close to the negotiations for release of the hostages sent mixed signals about a reported agreement with rebels.

Robinson himself said in a radio interview with the Australian Broadcasting Corp. ''an agreement has been arrived at'' requiring the rebels to leave the Parliament.

But repeatedly, government officials outside the Parliament said no such agreement had been made. Spokesmen Bernard Pantin and Gregory Shaw both told CNN no agreement had been reached.

And in Washington, the State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said, ''The situation has not been resolved.''

Robinson said the agreement included his own resignation as prime minister and a granting of amnesty to the rebel Jamaat Muslimeen.

''There will be terms of an amnesty granted by the president. ... It means that I have resigned as prime minister and that I will go to the president as soon as I have been released and it is possible to do so,'' Robinson said in the radio interview.

''We are all ready now, and are waiting for the preparations to be made outside,'' he said. ''I have been trying to make contact with the government and have not been able to do so.''

President Noor Hassanali was reported to have arrived home in Port-of-Spain from Britain to meet with the Cabinet.

Sporadic gunfire continued in the capital Tuesday morning, freelance journalist Ken Thomas told CNN, but he said he thought it came from ''police or soldiers trying to scare off looters.''

Many bodies, including those of looters who were shot, were still lying in the streets, where the stench of death was heavy, police sources said.

American civil rights leader Jesse Jackson, asked by the rebels to help mediate the tense negotiations between the rebels and the government, told CNN he wanted to discuss the offer with Trinidad, but would consider flying down to help.

Robinson said the chief of defense staff would arrange the ''evacuation'' by rebels of the 300-strong, Libyan-backed Mamaat Muslimeen group.

A television reporter had told Trinidadian radio he spoke to Robinson by phone Monday night and quoted him as saying he signed the agreement to resign and hand provisional power to Dookeran, his planning and mobilization minister. Robinson told the reporter he and other ministers had agreed to support Dookaran but did not make it clear whether an interim government would be formed.

Police sources said the acting commissioner, Leonard Taylor, opposed the reported amnesty plan and the sources hinted police want some influence in the government. Some political figures were also reported to oppose an amnesty.

A local radio station quoted hospital reports as saying a total of 300 people had been killed or wounded in the coup attempt.

Only about 6 percent of the twin-island country of Trinidad and Tobago is Moslem, although Abu Bakr reportedly has the support of many Trinidadians who see him as a voice for the poorer, black sections of the population.

The Caribbean News Agency quoted Trinidad army spokesman Ralph Brown as saying the agreement had been reached Monday afternoon, apparently calling for the Defense Forces to escort Abu Bakr from the television station to his commune outside the capital. After Abu Bakr was safe, the army was to go to Parliament to free the hostages.

In a weekend speech on state-run radio, Abu Bakr accused the government, which was elected in 1986, of corruption and mismanagement of the economy.

Caribbean experts in Washington traced the discontent in Trinidad and Tobago to the collapse of the price of oil in the early 1980s, leading to fiscal austerity measures.

In Washington, a U.S. administration official said Jamaica - like Trinidad and Tobago, a former British colony - had sent troops to nearby Barbados, apparently putting them in position to intervene if requested.

Another U.S. official said the Trinidad and Tobago government had not sought U.S. intervention and American military involvement had not been considered.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (JULY 31) UPI - A replacement camera to counteract the Hubble Space Telescope's crippling optical defects likely will not be ready for launch before 1993, depite efforts to accelerate development, officials said Tuesday.

While a new Wide Field/Planetary Camera probably can be launched six months earlier than originally planned, Hubble project scientist Edward Weiler said engineers are not willing to rush the process and that an early 1993 launch appears to be the best that can be hoped for now.

Weiler and other NASA officials visited the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., last week to review plans to accelerate the development of the camera, known by its acronym ''WFPC'' (pronounced wiff'-pick). The camera originally was scheduled for launch in July 1993.

''Even with the corrections we have to make in some of the optics, we feel that there's a good chance that we'll be able to speed that up to the first half of 1993,'' Weiler said.

''Even though we'd like to speed it up as much as we can, we're obviously motivated to ensure that we do all the important tests to ensure that what we're launching is going to work.''

In the meantime, scientists are gearing up to begin science observations later this month, and Weiler said five pictures taken last week in ultraviolet light, which is not possible at all from the ground, show Hubble's flawed primary mirror is remarkably free of any contamination.

''These images came out beautifully ... which implies the mirror is not contaminated and works beautifully in the ultraviolet,'' he said.

The $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope was launched April 25 from the shuttle Discovery.

Built to probe the universe in unprecedented detail from above Earth's hazy atmosphere, the space telescope is crippled by an optical defect known as spherical aberration, which prevents the instrument's mirrors from bringing starlight to a sharp focus.

The poor focus primarily affects the performance of the telescope's two visible light cameras: the Wide Field/Planetary Camera and the European-built Faint Object Camera.

To eliminate at least part of the problem, an advanced version of the WFPC already under development, will be equipped with special mirrors that will exactly compensate for the telescope's spherical aberration.

But determining the correct ''prescription'' for the new camera is no small task and engineers are expected to conduct more tests than originally anticipated to make sure WFPC-2 performs as advertised.

''Right now it looks like we will be taking a little longer to develop the prescription of the mirror,'' Weiler said. ''It's extremely important that when the WFPC-2 team starts building their corrective optics that they have the right prescription.

''They have proposed some tests ... that we ought to do to ensure that we really know what that prescription is.''

In the meantime, scientists are gearing up to begin checking out Hubble's high-resolution spectrograph, an instrument that is not severely affected by the telescope's poor focus and one that is expected to generate revolutionary results.

Weiler said scientists now expect Hubble to complete more than 50 percent of the science experiments originally planned before WFPC-2 can be installed by spacewalking astronauts in early 1993.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - Seeking to avoid a political backlash, the White House urged congressional approval Tuesday of an alternative civil rights bill that it helped draft.

With President Bush having threatened to veto the civil rights bill passed by the Senate two weeks ago, the administration scrambled to find common ground with women and minorities and a bill he could sign.

Deputy press secretary Alixe Glen said the substitute measure, which backers say would limit damages in discrimination cases and eliminate the threat of job quotas, ''represents a bipartisan consensus in the House.''

But some Democrats charged that the proposal primarily reflects the wishes of the administration and House Republicans even though its chief sponsor is a Democrat, Rep. John LaFalce of New York.

A vote is expected Thursday.

Said Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif.: ''Never before has the House of Representatives weakened a civil rights bill approved by the Senate'' and it must not start now.

Edwards, chairman of the House Judiciary subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights, said the proposed Civil Rights Act of 1990 ''is a good and fair bill'' and should become law.

The legislation would reverse or modify a series of 1989 Supreme Court rulings that made it more difficult for women or minorities to prove job discrimination, and also restricted the remedies available to them.

The administration, in threatening a veto, has complained that the measure would lead to job quotas and to a wave of lawsuits. Backers of the bill have denounced both concerns as unfounded ''red herrings.''

On Monday, the White House and a bipartisan group of House members reached agreement on the substitute measure that would satisfy objections to quotas and limit damages in discrimination cases to $100,000.

Russell Owens, a director at the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies, a black think-tank, said, ''We haven't studied the specific language, but we do have some concerns. We don't want any gutting of the bill.''

Ralph Neas, director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, said, ''This substitute would gut the Civil Rights Act of 1990, and we vigorously oppose this killer amendment.''

Added Patricia Ireland, executive vice president of the National Organization for Women: ''We're determined to oppose any artificial caps on damages. Victims should not be short-changed.''

Glen said, ''We hope and expect the Democratic leadership to allow a vote'' on the substitute bill.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said the Republicans would likely be given an opportunity to offer a substitute and that they could propose the LaFalce amendment.

A spokeswoman for Rep. Bob Michel, R-Ill., the House GOP leader, said Michel hopes to do just that.

Edwards declined to predict how the House would ultimately vote on the civil rights legislation, saying many in Congress would like to reach a compromise.

Neas, however, said he believes the House would reject the substitute and approve the Senate-passed bill by a two-thirds majority.

''I can't say whether Congress would be able to override a presidential veto,'' the civil rights leader said, ''but I would like to again call on the president to support this bill.''

NEW YORK (JULY 31) UPI - In a surprise appearance, an accused rapist in the attack on the woman jogger in Central Park took the witness stand Tuesday and testified that he told police he was 15 but they questioned him without a parent anyway.

Yusef Salaam's statement flatly contradicted testimony by Detective John Taglioni, who said the youth told him he was 16 when he was picked up for questioning on April 20, 1989. The detective said the youth bolstered his claim with a bus pass stating he was 16, which police later learned had been altered to impress girls.

Under New York State law, youths under 16 years old must have a parent or guardian present during police questioning.

Salaam said police were waiting outside his Harlem apartment, asked him how old he was and then patted him down in a weapons search.

''I told the detective I was 15 years old,'' testified Salaam, wearing a baggy charcoal double-breasted suit and striped tie.

Police confiscated a 2-inch knife that was attached to Salaam's keys and then brought him in for questioning in the attack on a 30-year-old investment banker in Central Park.

Salaam and two other youths, Antron McCray, 16, and Raymond Santana, 15, are on trial for the gang rape and attempted murder of the woman jogger on April 19, 1989.

Salaam's lawyer, Robert Burns, called his tall, lanky client to the witness stand for a brief, late afternoon appearance despite intense efforts by other defense lawyers to dissuade him. The move opens up Salaam to wide-ranging and possibly damaging cross-examination by the chief prosecutor, Assistant District Attorney Elizabeth Lederer.

Outside court, Peter Rivera, who represents Santana, said his colleague is taking a big risk.

''There is always the danger, when you put a defendant on the stand, to change the focus to 'Who is the jury going to believe - the cops or the kid?'' Rivera said.

At the start of the trial, legal experts agreed Salaam had the best chance of acquittal because he was the only defendant in the highly publicized case who did not make a videotaped or written confession to police.

In addition, his lawyer has argued that the jury should throw out any comments he made to police, claiming he was an underage youth subjected to illegal questioning.

With her son slated to return to the witness stand at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Salaam's mother said she was sure his testimony would convince the jury to acquit.

''I was here to let the jury know he is innocent. Now he is here to let them know he is innocent,'' said Sharonne Salaam, who testified earlier Tuesday.

Detective Thomas McKenna has testified that during questioning in the precinct, the youth admitted hitting the 30-year-old investment banker twice with a metal pipe. In a case with no physical evidence, the youths' statements and videotaped confessions are the most damaging evidence against them.

The three defendants are the first of six youths to go to trial on rape and attempted murder charges.

The youths are accused of being part of a gang of about 30 youngsters who went on a ''wilding'' rampage in the park.

(JULY 31) UPI - Government troops in Liberia mounted a counterattack on rebel forces today... recapturing much of the downtown area of the capital Monrovia. Some 500 soliders followed the government's last remaining tank to recapture the Finance and Defense ministries. Streets where residents had been searching for food were suddenly deserted. The offensive follows by two days what sources say was a government military massacre of 600 civilians in a Lutheran church.

Rebels today freed the prime minister of Trinidad and Tobago... but officials in the Caribbean nation say the crisis is far from over. Prime Minister Arthur Robinson was said to be ''in good spirits'' as he was freed for treatment of two gunshot wounds to his legs. Robinson has said an agreement has been reached to grant amnesty to the rebels, who continue to hold other hostages. But other officials say there is NO agreement.

The B-2 stealth bomber program was dealt a crushing blow by the House Armed Services Committee. The panel voted overwhelmingly, 34-20, to halt the program... with nine of the committee's 21 Republicans joining to oppose the plane. The B-2 still has support in the Senate, and today's action sets the stage for intense debate down the road when the House and Senate try to agree on a compromise 1991 defense budget.

MIAMI (JULY 31) UPI - More than 2,000 bottles of a Colombian soda were confiscated in Dade County Tuesday, as health officials scurried to find all of the product shipped with the cocaine-laced drink that left a Miami man in a coma.

Of the more than 20 bottles of Pony Malta de Bavaria tested by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration so far, three have been tainted with cocaine and all of those came from the home of the victim, said Estela Brown, an FDA spokeswoman.

Maximo Rene Menendez, 25, has been in a coma since drinking the beverage Thursday. Menendez's neurological condition improved Tuesday, but he remained in critical condition, said Dr. Armando Bienes, a neurologist at AMI-Kendall Regional Medical Center.

Dade County health officials hit the streets Tuesday searching for bottles of the malt beverage among mobile food vendors. The drink is similar to heavy non-alcoholic beer and is popular among Hispanics.

''Initially, the FDA thought they had all of the lot, but apparently it became evident some of the suspected bottles got into another lot,'' said Walter Livingstone, environmental adminstrator with the Dade County Public Health Unit.

County officials found 36 cases of the suspect 6.16 ounce bottles at a Hialeah distributorship.

''The owner told us that sometime after Thursday a man came by saying he had a new product on the market and wanted to leave a few cases that were free. It was the Pony Malta,'' Livingstone said.

There are about 1,500 mobile food vendors in Dade County and several also reported offers of the soda at low prices, he said.

The drink is made by Bavaria, S.A., of Bogota, Colombia. There are three authorized U.S. importers of the drink - All Leather and Import and Giant Best G., both of Miami, and Cocomar, a New York Company.

The cases taken from the Hialeah distributor were stamped with the label of Miami Sweets, the same company that sold the Pony Malta to the store where Menendez purchased the bottle that put him into a coma.

''There is no such company as Miami Sweets. I'm sure this is another attempt to smuggle cocaine in (to the United States) and this time the wrong shipments went to the wrong people,'' Livingstone said.

FDA investigators have found as much as 54 grams of cocaine in other bottles purchased by Menendez, who drank the soda Thursday and became ill instantly.

The address listed by Miami Sweets on its state business license, now belongs to a doctor's office and investigators have been unable to locate officials with the company.

Because the bottle tops have not been tampered with, investigators believe the cocaine was placed in the bottles in Colombia.

''I'm not aware of any attempt before to use this method. It's unfortunate we wouldn't know about this (method) if one shipment hadn't gone astray and he (Menendez) didn't drink it,'' said John S. Fernandes, a spokesman for the Drug Enforcement Adminstration, which along with the U.S. Customs Service is investigating the case.

WASHINGTON (JULY 31) UPI - After blaming the owner, captain and third mate of the Exxon Valdez for the worst environmental accident in U.S. history, the National Transportation Safety Board Tuesday issued recommendations designed to prevent any future such disasters.

The recommendations, which stressed that commercial vessels need well-rested and sober officers and crew, emerged from findings presented to the board during a day-long hearing.

The huge supertanker ran into Bligh Reef in Alaska's Prince William Sound on March 24, 1989. Nearly 11 million gallons of crude oil spilled into one of the world's most pristine settings. One-thousand miles of Alaska coastline were despoiled and tens of thousands of sea birds and mammals were killed. The clean-up so far has cost $2 billion.

The four-member board concluded the accident happened because of a number of circumstances. The NTSB faulted Exxon Shipping Company for failing ''to provide a fit master and a rested and sufficient crew'' to guide the ship through the ice-choked waterway at night.

Also cited was the captain, Joseph Hazelwood, who did not ''provide a proper navigation watch because of impairment from alcohol'' during the night of April 24 and early morning of April 25.

The board investigation was perhaps the strongest official finding yet that Hazelwood had been drinking when the accident occurred. An Alaska jury acquitted Hazelwood of alcohol-related charges and the Coast Guard recently dropped intoxication charges against the former skipper.

Board member John Lauber pointed a finger at Exxon Shipping Company regarding the alcohol charges, referring to Hazelwood's prior convictions of drinking and driving.

''The fact is this man had a history of alcoholism ... there was a reason for Exxon to step in and remove him from command'' before the Exxon Valdez accident, said Lauber.

The third mate, Gregory Cousins, shared the blame for failure to ''properly maneuver the vessel because of fatigue and excessive workload '' the board agreed.

Left alone by Hazelwood as the only officer on the bridge at the time of the accident, Cousins was not legally qualified nor experienced in the delicate task of piloting the Exxon Valdez through Prince William Sound. NTSB investigators said, at one crucial moment, he waited more than six minutes to turn the tanker sharp to the starboard when the maneuver was needed immediately to avoid the reef.

''Perhaps if he were more experienced,'' said William Woody, NTSB investigator-in-charge, ''he would have known how long it would take for the ship to turn.''

The NTSB said another probable cause of the grounding was inadequate Coast Guard equipment and personnel in monitoring shipping traffic and ice flows in Prince William Sound.

The board recommended that:

-Shipping companies take steps to ensure that crews do not face excessive fatigue because of long work hours at sea or at dock.

-Two licensed watch officers be present to navigate vessels in Prince William Sound.

-Commercial vessels implement an effective program to keep sailors free of alcohol and drugs on the job.

-Coast Guard upgrade monitoring and surveillance efforts and facilities in the tricky Prince William Sound waterway.

-Clean-up authorities prepare at least two barges equipped with oil-skimming machinery to be ready on an emergency basis.

-Authorities representing the various jurisdictions and interests in Prince William Sound, including government, shipping and oil company representatives, work to improve oordination and cooperation in the event of future spills. ''In making these recommendations,'' said John Kolstad, board chairman, ''we're trying to reduce the risk (of another spill) to an absolute minimum, and we think we've done it.''

However, the board members were unable to agree on whether to recommend that oil tankers should be required by 1998 to have either double hulls or double bottoms. The panel directed its staff to study uhe issue further.

The recommendations are not binding and do not have the force of law, but will be passed on to all involved parties, a NTSB spokeswoman said.

NEW LONDON, CT (JULY 31) UPI - A former stockbroker was sentenced Tuesday to 40 years in prison for the 1988 murder of a client who suspected him of embezzling funds.

Frank A. Vandever, 35, of Guilford admitted four days into his trial in May that he shot Ronald W. Hiiri, 41, to death in Hiiri's home in Stonington, a quaint fishing village on the Rhode Island border.

Superior Court Judge Joseph Koletsky sentenced Vandever to life in prison, suspended after 40 years, and five years' probation upon his release, court officials said. The defendant was taken to the maximum-security Connecticut Correctional Center in Somers.

Prosecutors had argued that Vandever killed Hiiri, a successful traveling salesman, because Hiiri suspected Vandever of embezzling his funds. The shooting occured May 19, 1988, four days after Vandever was fired from the Paine Webber brokerage in New Haven.

Prosecutors said Paine Webber had fired Vandever because the company discovered he had diverted funds from another client's account.

Vandever also is under investigation by the FBI for defrauding Hiiri and other clients, authorities said.

''Vandever is suspected of extensive fraud and multiple embezzlements,'' said Special Agent Milt Ahlerich, head of the FBI in Connecticut. He would not give details of the investigation.

Vandever shot Hiiri after he learned that Hiiri had planned to complain to Paine Webber, prosecutors said during the trial.

He had disappeared five days after Hiiri was shot and a warrant was issued for his arrest in August 1988. He was picked up by police in Rockland County, N.Y., a week later for using a stolen credit card at a Holiday Inn authorities said.

He was later sentenced to eight months in jail and extradited to Connecticut in January 1989 to face the murder charge.

(JULY 31) UPI - The attorney general of Trinidad and Tobago says Prime Minister Arthur Robinson is in ''good spirits'' after being freed today by his Moslem rebel captors. Despite that, the official says the rebels are still holding other hostages on the fourth day of a coup attempt and the crisis is NOT over.

Heavy fighting between Liberian government troops and rebel forces was reported today in Monrovia's embassy district. The battle began when soldiers loyal to President Samuel Doe launched a counterattack and recaptured large sections of the capital city's downtown area.

In Washington, State Department officials say the United States will turn to the United Nations to try to end the fighting in Liberia. U-S efforts to mediate an end to the civil war broke down early this month when Doe refused to step down from office immediately.

Secretary of State Baker has arrived in the Siberian resort city of Irkutsk to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Shevarnadze . Soviet television says the meeting could set a date for the next superpower summit, to take place in Moscow.

(JULY 31) UPI - The half-million gallons of oil dumped into Galveston Bay off Texas by Saturday's tanker-barge collision began affecting wildlife today. Officials say dead fish and crabs are washing ashore... and oil-covered birds have been found on beaches.

The National Transportation Safety Board today blamed the owner, captain and third mate of the Exxon Valdez for the March 1989 oil spill in Alaska's Prince William Sound. It was the worst environmental accident in U-S history.

Wildlife officials in North Carolina say a sulfuric acid spill from a chemical plant into a creek Friday killed more than 10-thousand bass, sunfish, carp and mountain trout. Biologists say the acid killed ''everything in its path'' as it moved downstream.

Coast Guard officials in New York say a Greek cargo ship is floundering in the Atlantic Ocean, 350 miles south-southeast of Cape Cod, Massachusetts, in the path of Hurricane Bertha. Rescue vessels are racing the oncoming storm in hopes of getting to the ship before it's too late.

At last report, Bertha was centered about 380 miles south of Halifax, Nova Scotia, and moving northeast at around nine miles an hour. Its top winds are clocked at 75 miles an hour.

(JULY 31) UPI - Moslem rebels released Prime Minister Arthur Robinson in Trinidad and Tobago today. But that did NOT signal an end to the impasse between the rebels and the government. Robinson was reportedly released because he was bleeding from gunshot wounds sustained in the attempted coup . Said a rebel leader- ''The man is sick and we DON'T want him to die.''

Loyalist troops regained the initiative today in Liberia under the urging of President Doe. He said he would NOT give up the battle until the rebels had been defeated. Government forces staged a counter-offensive... retaking large portions of Monrovia. Overall control of the capital is UNclear, and the front line in the street-to-street fighting is UNcertain.

Senate Democrats today rejected proposed amendments to the campaign-finance reform bill that would have regulated political activity on the part of labor unions. The Democratic rebuff threatened to prompt a Republican filibuster like the one that scuttled the 1988 attempt to reform campaign laws. Officials say the cocaine-poisoning of a Miami man from drinking a bottle of Colombian soda reveals a new method of drug smuggling. Officials confiscated more than two-thousand bottles of the malt beverage from vendors in the Miami area today. Investigators believe the cocaine was placed in the bottles in Colombia.

The lead singer for the British heavy metal band Judas Priest acknowledged today he once put a message on an album that could be heard when played backward. Vocalist Rob Halford's testimony in a court in Reno, Nevada, came in a civil trial charging subliminal messages by the band drove two young men to suicide. Halford says he did put a reversed message on an earlier record... but NOT on the album in question.

A coalition of conservative groups today called for the closing of the Robert Mapplethorpe photo exhibit in Boston's Institute for Contemporary Art. The show is due to open tomorrow. The group blasted in particular two photos of nude children... saying people should NOT accept ''child pornography as an art form.'' Protesters accuse the coalition of censorship. Boston area authorities say they have NO plans to challenge the exhibit.

DALLAS (AUG. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - MorningStar Foods Inc. announced today that it has successfully negotiated an amendment to its senior credit agreement. The amendment significantly reduces required interim amortization payments due to the senior lenders prior to the scheduled loan maturities in 1991. The amendment also allowed the company to make the payment of interest to holders of its 13 percent Senior Subordinated Debentures.

"We are very pleased to gain additional time to complete our operational restructuring while meeting all of our debt obligations," said James A. Bach, MorningStar's president and chief executive officer.

In connection with the amendment, the company reconstituted its bank group and permitted the interests of institutions under federal supervision to be acquired by a foreign bank.

The company will continue its program to divest its fluid milk operations and focus on the specialty dairy products area. In addition, the company intends to develop during the remainder of 1990 a proposal for the comprehensive restructuring of its senior debt and subordinated debentures.

LAS VEGAS (AUG. 1) PR NEWSWIRE - Frontier Savings Association (NASDAQ: FRNT), a state chartered savings and loan association with approximately $260 million in assets, reported today its results for the second quarter of 1990. Frontier reported a loss of $66,019 or $0.03 per share for the three months ended June 30, 1990, in comparison to a net profit of $515,135 or $0.22 per share for the same period of 1989. For the six-month period ended June 30, 1990, Frontier incurred losses amounting to $125,740 or $0.05 per share, compared to a net profit of $890,689 or $0.38 per share for the same period of 1989.

Frontier also announced that it has been allowed by the Office of Thrift Supervision ("OTS"), within certain limitations, to once again engage in the activity of originating mortgage loans on single family dwellings. It had been restricted by the OTS in February 1990 from making any new loans or investments. Keith Thomas, president of Frontier, stated that "We have been working closely with our regulators, the Office of Thrift Supervision and the State of Nevada, and are pleased that we may once again assist in meeting Southern Nevada's housing needs."

Frontier, which has been working with the OTS' Capital Assistance Group in an effort to recapitalize the company, also announced that it had been selected by the OTS for inclusion in a new program called the Accelerated Resolution Program ("ARP"). In connection with its inclusion in the ARP, Frontier announced that it had entered into an agreement, effective July 31, 1990, with the OTS which authorizes the OTS to market Frontier to prospective acquirors. Frontier has also been advised by the OTS that savings associations that are unwilling to cooperate with ARP will be placed into conservatorship or receivership. Institutions selected for the ARP must have an acceptable management structure, stable operations, and franchise value.

MONTREAL (AUG 1) UPI - Imasco Ltd. Wednesday reported second quarter earnings of $78 million, or 61 cents a share, up 1.5 percent from $76.8 million, or 60 cents a share, in the year-ago period.

Revenues at the company increased to $3.25 billion up from $2.82 billion in the second quarter of 1989.

For the first half of 1990, Imasco reported earnings of $134.8 million, or $1.04 a share, up from $122.7 million, or 95 cents a share, in 1989. Revenues jumped to $6.17 billion from $5.36 billion a year earlier.

Imasco said earnings from its continuing operations rose 8 percent over the first six months compared with last year with operating earnings at its Hardee's subsidiary up 27 percent and its Shoppers Drug Mart subsidiary up 22 percent.

The increase recorded by Hardee's was partly attributed to its acquisition of the Roy Rogers restaurant chain earlier this year, the company said.

Imasco chairman Purdy Crawford said gains at Imperial Tobacco, Hardee's and Shoppers resulted in the company's ''good results''.

Imasco is a consumer products and services company with operations in Canada and the United States.

SEATTLE (AUG. 2) UPI - Nordstrom Inc. is facing new charges of labor law violations, including allegations the retailer stymied efforts to investigate minority hiring practices and helped organize a movement to decertify a union representing its Puget Sound area employees, labor officials said Wednesday.

The charges form a new complaint against Nordstrom by the National Labor Relations Board.

Larry McCargar, assistant to the NLRB's regional director, said Nordstrom would be given a chance to respond before the charges are brought before an administrative law judge.

Nordstrom spokesman Dave Marriott said the company would sign a consent agreement with the NLRB instead of fighting the charges, even though ''we don't necessarily agree with them.''

He said the company chose that course of action so an employee group trying to decertify the United Food and Commercial Workers can start over with the process of trying to strip the union of its power to represent them.

A previous decertification drive by the group - Nordstrom Employees for Accurate Representation, or NEAR - was derailed when the NLRB said it found validity in a union charge that Nordstrom provided assistance to NEAR in the decertification effort.

The company's alleged aid in the decertification drive was one of the two new complaints leveled against Nordstrom, along with a charge the retailer tried to prevent the union from gathering information giving a fuller picture of its minority hiring practices and the ratio of minority employees in the company's ranks.

McCargar said a number of other union charges filed over the past several months were dismissed as not valid.

Nordstrom already is facing a trial on four other unfair labor practice charges brought by the NLRB. No trial date has been set.

These charges stemmed from a slew of complaints filed against Nordstrom by the UFCW since its contract covering about 2,000 Puget Sound area employees expired in July 1989.

Key among the charges is that Nordstrom employees often worked ''off the clock'' without being properly compensated.

Joe Peterson, president of UFCW Local 1001, said the union has collected about 1,440 back-pay claims worth more than $10.3 million from current and former Nordstrom employees around the country.

Nordstrom also is fighting a court battle with the Washington State Department of Labor and Industries, which earlier this year issued a finding accusing Nordstrom of violating a number of state labor laws.

NEW YORK (AUG 1) UPI - The state Department of Transportation Wednesday ordered 65 Greyhound buses taken out of service after surprise inspections disclosed one-third of them did not meet minimum safety standards, officials said.

Bus inspectors at a Manhattan maintenance facility passed just six of the 71 passenger-ready buses they checked, said Chief Motor Vehicle Inspector David Thomas. A total of 22 were pulled for mechanical reasons, and another 43 lacked inspection certificates.

''That's not good,'' he said.

None of the tested buses were carrying passengers when they were checked by inspectors looking at mirrors, lights, tires and wheels, steering and exhaust systems, and brakes.

The problems could be fixed and the buses could be rolling again within a few days, officials said.

In 1989, eight of 110 Greyhound buses tested failed the tests, the DOT said. This spring, 46 percent of tested buses were passed - more than double the state's average rate.

Greyhound disputed the DOT figures, saying 12 of the 71 had passed and that 15 had been removed from service.

''We have a safe fleet on the highways,'' Greyhound spokesman George Gravely said from the company's Dallas headquarters. ''Today will make our buses even safer.''

Gravely said the company plans to review their records and may meet with DOT officials in Albany.

Greyhound workers have been on strike since March 2, after negotiations broke off on a proposed three-year contract for about 9,000 employees, including some 6,000 drivers.

The company has hired some 700 replacement workers.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AUG. 1) UPI - The NBA Western Conference champion Portland Trail Blazers, searching for an outside shooter, sent rookie Byron Irvin, a 1991 first-round draft pick, a second-round choice in 1992 and future considerations to the Sacramento Kings for veteran guard Danny Ainge.

''His acquisition is needed and he fills a need as a player with an outside shot,'' said Bucky Buckwalter, the Trail Blazers vice president of basketball operations.

''We felt to maximize our team we had to give up that first-round draft pick. We just hope that next year it's not a very high pick,'' Buckwalter added.

The trade was the third following the announcement Wednesday that the NBA salary cap would be raised from $9.8 million to $11.87 million a club for the 1990-91 season.

''Because of the salary cap (the Blazers were over the previous cap) we could not negotiate a deal before,'' said Buckwalter, who revealed that the club had been talking with Sacramento about Ainge since last year.

Ainge had been a crowd favorite since coming to the Kings in a trade with the Boston Celtics in February 1989. But with Sacramento undergoing a massive rebuilding project - the club had four first-round draft picks in the 1990 draft - Ainge became available.

''On a personal basis the franchise will miss Danny's unique basketball talents as well as his terrific personality,'' said Jerry Reynolds, the Kings' director of player personnel. ''We truly believe this will be a trade that will benefit Danny and his family and allows him to again contend for the world championship.''

The nine-year veteran, raised in Eugene, Ore., averaged 17.9 points a game last season, and more importantly, hit on 37 percent of his three-point shots (108 of 289 attempts).

The trade leaves the Trail Blazers - who lost in the NBA Finals partly because of poor outside shooting - with five guards still on their roster. However, the Washington Bullets have been rumored to be interested in Yugoslavian guard Drazen Petrovic.

Buckwalter would not confirm the team was shopping anyone around, but added: ''there just aren't any good names available out there.''

In Irvin, the Kings get yet another young prospect. The 6-5, 190-pound guard averaged 5.2 points in 9.8 minutes of action a game while playing behind All-Star Clyde Drexler.

''We are pleased at the opportunity to acquire Byron Irvin, who we feel has the potential to be a quality NBA off-guard,'' Reynolds said. ''Although he had limited playing time in Portland, he showed a lot of NBA talent and should do well for the Kings in the immediate future.

''Also, the acquisition of the draft picks puts us in a position of strength in both next year's draft and filling future needs.''

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - The Department of Insurance has ordered Globe Insurance Co. to stop conducting insurance business in California.

The department alleges the British West Indies-based insurer, unlicensed in California, is threatened with insolvency and conducting business in a manner that is hazardous to its policyholders, creditors, and the public.

A department investigation reveals that Globe's financial statements are improperly audited, contain material misstatements and do not show that its assets actually exist or are properly valued.

The order prohibits Globe from transacting, soliciting, or writing of any new or renewal business except that which is statutorily mandated, pending the outcome of a public hearing scheduled for Aug. 23, at 10 a.m. at the Department of Insurance, 100 Van Ness Ave., San Francisco.

ALAMEDA, CA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Aquanautics Corp. (NASDAQ:AQNT) Thursday reported a net loss of $348,000, or 2 cents per share, on revenues of $2,564,000 for its fiscal year ended June 30.

This compares to a loss of $1,216,000, or 9 cents per share, on revenues of $1,646,000 in 1989.

Fourth quarter 1990 losses were $196,000, or 1 cent per share, on revenues of $611,000. This compares to losses of $211,000, or 2 cents per share on fourth quarter revenues of $701,000 in 1989.

''The 56 percent increase in revenues from fiscal 1989 to 1990 is primarily due to continued contract research revenues from ZapatA Industries Inc., our partner in the SmartCap crown closure project,'' said N. Ross Buckenham, Aquanautics' president and chief executive officer. ''This increased contract research revenue is also responsible for the decrease in the net losses for the year.''

Buckenham noted that the SmartCap crown closure, the company's first anticipated product to market, is currently in taste testing with several brewers in the United States. The tests will continue throughout the summer and fall. The company has projected product introduction sometime near the end of calendar 1990.

LAKEWOOD, CO (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - K N Energy Inc. (NYSE:KNE) Thursday reported six months consolidated net income of $9,544,000, or 93 cents per common share, after payment of preferred dividends, and excluding an extraordinary gain.

For the same period in 1989, K N reported consolidated net income of $4,664,000, or 41 cents per common share.

During the 1990 second quarter, K N reported an extraordinary after-tax gain of $25,654,000, or $2.70 per common share. The extraordinary gain resulted from a settlement which ended litigation over the ETSI Coal Slurry Pipeline Venture in which K N was a 20 percent participant.

K N's 1990 second quarter results, excluding the ETSI settlement, improved by 8 cents per common share over 1989, primarily as a result of improvement both in natural gas operations and in operating performance of K N's coal subsidiary's business.

For the 1990 second quarter, K N reported a consolidated net loss of $1,750,000, or 22 cents per common share, compared with a 1989 second quarter consolidated net loss of $2,247,000, or 30 cents per common share.

''K N's second quarter results historically show a loss,'' said Charles W. Battey, K N Energy's chairman and chief executive officer, ''and this is true in 1990, when the extraordinary gain is excluded.

''However, total second quarter natural gas sales and transportation volumes were 8.1 billion cubic feet more than a year ago,'' Battey stated, ''and K N's wholly-owned mining subsidiary, Wyoming Fuel Co., sold 340,000 tons of coal in the 1990 second quarter, an increase of 197,000 tons compared with the 1989 second quarter.''

K N Energy, with operations in seven states, supplies natural gas to residential, commercial, industrial and agricultural customers through three pipeline systems. Principal operations serve over 330 communities and 221,000 direct customers in Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska and Wyoming.

Operating one of the 10 longest natural gas pipeline systems in the United States, K N Energy has annual sales exceeding $350 million and assets in excess of $550 million.

PORTLAND, OR (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - PacifiCorp (NYSE,LSE: PPW) Thursday reported second quarter 1990 earnings of $.38 per share -- the same as in the 1989 period -- while year-to-date earnings per share rose 1 percent to $.90 from $.89.

Consolidated revenues increased 4 percent, or $32 million, to $892 million as electric operations, mining and resource development and telecommunications segments all produced quarterly increases.

Electric operations, through Pacific Power and Utah Power, reported second quarter 1990 revenues of $498 million, a 1 percent gain. Kilowatt-hour sales to other utilities increased 15 percent primarily as a result of increased demand caused by power plant outages of neighboring utilities in the desert Southwest. Retail kilowatt-hour sales grew 1 percent, but were more than offset by scheduled price decreases.

NERCO, PacifiCorp's mining and resource development subsidiary, reported revenues of $198 million, up 20 percent. Revenue from coal sales, NERCO's mainstay business rose 15 percent largely due to aggressive marketing efforts. Precious metals revenues increased $9 million and oil and gas revenues were up $8 million as a result of higher sales volumes. However, the positive effects of these increased sales volumes were partially offset by lower commodity prices.

In the telecommunications segment, Pacific Telecom posted quarterly revenues of $164 million, up 2 percent from a year ago. Favorable out-of-period revenue adjustments and increases in inbound international message volumes overcame the effects of intrastate rate decreases in Alaska.

Earnings contribution on common stock decreased slightly to $91 million as all business segments, except financial services, reported smaller contributions.

Electric operations' earnings were off $6 million as a result of scheduled retail price decreases.

NERCO reported increased earnings for the quarter. However, as a result of its August 1989 stock sale, which resulted in PacifiCorp's ownership being reduced from 89 percent to 82 percent, the segment's earnings contribution to PacifiCorp was flat.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Hewlett-Packard Co., a major computer manufacturer, led all companies in corporate support to education in 1989, The Taft Group, a division of Gale Research Inc., announced in the August issue of ''Corporate Giving Watch,'' its monthly newsletter on corporate philanthropy.

Hewlett-Packard's education contributions for the year totaled $65.3 million. HP's total contributions to non-profit organizations in 1989 reached $74.5 million, an all time high, the company reported.

According to Rod Carlson, HP's director of Corporate Grants, education support in 1989 was particularly high because of the unusual carryover of grant shipments created by some component shortages in 1988.

Eighty-eight percent of HP's 1989 contributions went to educational support, primarily in the form of HP equipment to universities for engineering, computer science, science, and medical teaching laboratories and business schools. The company also supported health and human services, arts and culture, environmental organizations and other organizations.

Contributions to higher education are the cornerstone of HP's philanthropy program, with more than 125 colleges and universities as beneficiaries of HP gifts in 1989. In addition, support for kindergarten through 12th grade education, a new focus, totaled some $2 million, including grants to attract women and minorities to technical careers. Carlson expects K-12 support to reach $3 million annually by 1991.

John Young, HP president and chief executive officer, remarked, ''We're in the business of commercializing technology ... of understanding our customer needs, formulating an idea to meet them, manufacturing a product with excellence, and marketing and distributing it to a broad variety of customers.

''Most of these activities are mental, not physical, activities. HP runs on brain power. So we depend heavily on the quality of education.''

IBM, leader in education support in 1988, slipped to second place in 1989, with education contributions of $58 million. However, IBM maintained its overall position as the leading corporate contributor to nonprofit organizations in 1989, reporting total contributions of $135 million.

Rounding out the top ten contributors to education were General Motors Corp. and Foundation with $42.4 million in contributions to education; American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the AT&T Foundation, $40.66 million; Exxon Corp. and Education Foundation, $25.81 million; Proctor and Gamble Co. and Fund, $17.96 million; Digital Equipment Corp., $16.33 million; E.I. DENVER (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Amoco Oil Co., in conjunction with Natural Fuels Corp., Thursday became the first major-brand oil company to offer compressed natural gas (CNG) for public purchase as a motor vehicle fuel with the opening of a CNG pump at an Amoco service station in Denver.

Denver Mayor Frederico Pena, Amoco Oil Co. Director of Marketing Concepts Robert C. David, and Natural Fuels President Rajeana Gable participated in an unveiling ceremony at the new facility, located at 3490 Fox St. The fuel is branded Amoco CNG.

Natural Fuels Corp. previously opened its first NATURAL fueling station near Stapleton International Airport. Natural Fuels Corp. will own and maintain the CNG compressor, storage, and dispensing equipment at the Amoco station as well as provide technical CNG expertise for the new Amoco product.

''Amoco is pleased to join with Natural Fuels in this commercial test of compressed natural gas, an alternative fuel with great promise,'' said David.

''In the past, potential CNG consumers have been reluctant to convert vehicles because the fuel wasn't readily available, and fuel marketers were reluctant to offer CNG without assurances that demand would exist. Locations such as this one help solve that problem,'' he said.

''We believe CNG can ultimately play an important role in helping meet our nation's clean air and transportation goals,'' David said. ''This test marketing effort will help demonstrate CNG's acceptablitiy, pricing, performance, and air quality benefits.''

According to Gable, ''Natural Fuels wants to show consumers and fleet operators that CNG is an economical, clean-burning, and domestically abundant transportation fuel. This joint effort reiterates our commitment to the clean air initiatives established by Congress, as well as the commitment made by auto manufacturers, such as General Motors Corp. (GMC), which will soon begin production of NGVs (natural gas-powered vehicles).''

Plans for the joint CNG marketing program were initially announced by Amoco and Public Service Co. of Colorado (PSCo) in December, 1989. Since that announcement, PSCo has turned over its CNG holdings to Denver-based Natural Fuels Corp., a joint effort of PSCo, Colorado Interstate Gas Co., and Julander Platt Nelson Inc. Future Amoco/Natural Fuels plans include a second fueling station expected to open in Boulder later this month. Natural gas for the stations will be furnished by Amoco Production Co.

The cost of converting a gasoline-powered vehicle to natural gas ranges between $2,000-$3,500 depending on the vehicle size and/or fuel storage requirements. Natural Fuels Corp. will open a vehicle conversion and service center in Denver in September. The center is located at 5855 Stapleton Dr. N. and will provide mechanic training and certification programs.

There are currently more than 30,000 NGVs operating in the United States. DALLAS (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - The Southland Corp. announced Thursday that the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has declared effective the company's registration statement on Form S-4, which reflects terms of its revised exchange offers that were announced on July 16, 1990.

Additionally the company announced that the steering committee representing its public security holders supports the exchange offers. The steering committee, which is advised by Kidder, Peabody & Co. Inc. and the law firm, Chapman and Cutler, encourages Southland bondholders and preferred stockholders to tender their securities consistent with the terms of the exchange offers, including but not limited to, the condition that at least 95 percent of each issue of debt securities be tendered, and conditioned upon final documentation reasonably satisfactory to the steering committee.

The exchange offers are the first step of a two-part plan that calls for the restructuring of Southland's outstanding public debt and 15 percent cumulative exchangeable preferred stock, followed by a $430 million cash infusion from Ito-Yokado Co. Ltd., and Seven-Eleven Japan Co. Ltd., two long-standing Southland business partners.

As previously announced, under the exchange offers, Southland bondholders and preferred shareholders are being offered new debt securities and approximately 25 percent of newly issued Southland common stock.

Existing stockholders would retain approximately 5 percent of the common stock, and, following consummation of the exchange offers, Ito-Yokado and Seven-Eleven Japan would purchase 70 percent of the stock. The exchange offers have been extended to expire at midnight, EDT, on Aug. 15, 1990, unless further extended.

In addition the company announced that it called to order, then immediately adjourned on Aug. 1 the special meeting for holders of its preferred stock to vote upon the approval and adoption of certain amendments to the Company's restated Articles of Incorporation (as more fully described in the Company's proxy statement-prospectus).

The meeting will reconvene at 10 p.m. Dallas time on Aug. 15 at 2711 N. Haskell Ave., Southland's headquarters in Dallas. Recordholders of preferred stock as of the close of business on July 13 will be eligible to vote at the meeting in person or by proxy. If the exchange offers are further extended, the company intends to postpone or adjourn the special meeting so that it will occur on the expiration date.

This announcement does not constitute an offer to sell or to buy any security or the solicitation of any consents or proxies, which offers and consent or proxy solicitation shall only be made by means of a proxy statement/prospectus.

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Small businesses that want to buy or refinance their business or industrial properties can now apply for a one-year adjustable rate loan with the option to convert to a fixed-rate loan.

The new loan has a term of either five, 10 or 15 years.

''This new adjustable rate loan complements our existing line of fixed real estate loans that allow customers to lock in interest rates up to 15 years,'' said Doug Freeman, executive vice president of Wells Fargo's business banking division.

''But for those businesses who'd like to finance short-term or prefer to pay their loan early, the adjustable rate loan offers no prepayment penalties,'' said Freeman. ''It's also attractive for both the buyer and seller because it's an assumable loan.''

The loan term of five and 10 years is amortized over 30 years, and the loan term of 15 years is amortized over 15 years.

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - In a move to expand its involvement in the growing recycling industry, Weyerhaeuser will ask the Springfield City Council and the Lane County Board of Commissioners next week to approve inclusion of a proposed new $70 million recycling and modernization project as part of the Springfield Enterprise Zone.

Rich Hanson, vice president and mill manager, said Weyerhaeuser in Springfield would be able to recycle enough waste material to equal the daily output of 250 large supermarkets if the project is approved.

''We consider being in the Enterprise Zone an important economic incentive to proceed with this project,'' Hanson said. ''Having approval of this tax exemption will help in our local effort to obtain senior management and board of directors' approval for funds to our Springfield operation.''

Thirty Enterprise Zones have been designated in Oregon by the state legislature to promote investments, expansions and jobs by allowing three years of property tax exemption.

The recycling project involves a $45 million expenditure. The company has long used recycled material from box plant waste. The new project will allow recycling of cardboard material from all over the West and greatly extend raw material supply for making brown ''kraft'' paper at Springfield.

Additional modernization would involve $25 million to upgrade one of two paper machines (built in 1965) to accommodate the recycled material and increase production to make the Springfield operation more competitive in domestic and foreign markets.

The remodeled machine will use approximately 45 percent recycled material.

''Production will increase about 15 prcent to keep the mill competitive, enable it to use the recycled material with no loss in quality, and have no environmental impacts,'' Hanson noted.

''A vital part of the project is extensive environmental equipment to insure no impact on the McKenzie River,'' Hanson emphasized. ''We are installing new equipment to capture material before it enters our present state-of-the-art water treatment system. This includes extensive investment for storage, pumping, re-use and cleaning of water.''

Tentative plans are to begin site preparation this fall with completion of the project by April of 1992. Besides extensive construction employment, 15 new permanent jobs will be created at Weyerhaeuser.

''This project is a win for everyone: the community, the company and the environment,'' Hanson added.

CULVER CITY, CA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Showscan Film Corp. (NASDAQ:SHOW) reported revenues of $3.1 million for its first quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Last year's first-quarter revenue was $6.8 million, which included $3.4 million in non-recurring specialty-film production underwritten by a specialty theater in France. The company reported a net loss of $904,000, or 31 cents loss per share, for the quarter compared with previous-year first-quarter net income of $126,000, or 4 cents per share.

In commenting on the announcement, Showscan President and Chief Executive Officer Roy Aaron said: ''While the quarter's results were disappointing, equipment and related service revenues, principally from our Dynamic Motion Simulators (DMSs), improved slightly to $2.5 million. We are also very pleased with the recent upswing in new orders and sales activity.

''The increased acceptance of our DMS thrill-rides and image technologies is attributable to the successful opening of the DMSs at Expo '90 in Osaka and the spectacular debut of our first permanent U.S.-based DMSs at the Excalibur Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas.

''Our credibility as the leading developer and supplier of simulation amusement attractions for the 90s is further enhanced by the stronger-than-expected attendance being reported by DMS operators around the world.''

Aaron added: ''We recently announced DMS orders from major customers in Jakarta, Madrid and Paris, and we will be announcing additional DMS sales in the coming weeks and months.

''We believe the resultant DMS-equipment revenues, royalties and film rentals will more than replace the contribution to net income generated by specialty-film production, which represented a substantial portion of prior-year revenues and will position the company for a significant increase in revenues and earnings in the last six months of the fiscal year.

''In addition, we recently announced an exciting new venture with ILM (Industrial Light and Magic, a division of LucasArts Entertainment), Intamin AG and Imagine Japan Inc. for the production of our new outer-space fantasy thrill-ride to be released in early 1991, replete with Academy Award-winning ILM's world-renowned special effects.

''The ILM-produced thrill-ride with its spectacular special effects and expanded production budget will usher in a new space-simulator product that is anticipated to further stimulate sales, as well as command higher ticket prices and very high levels of thrill-rider enthusiasm.''

In commenting on the quarter's results, Showscan Chief Financial Officer James Sorensen said: ''DMS shipments and installations were impacted by customer-requested delays. This affected equipment revenues and postponed the recognition of some royalties and film rentals during the quarter, causing a decline when compared to the first quarter last year.

''These customer-requested delays were primarily caused by slippages in venue preparation and project financing, as well as the extended phasing of multiple DMS installations in Japan, permitting Imagine Japan to more effectively schedule its installation resources.

WOODLAND HILLS, CA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - 20th Century Industries (NASDAQ:TWEN), the Woodland Hills-based insurance holding company, reported earnings per share for the three months ending June 30, 1990, of 75 cents.

This compared with earnings per share of 56 cents for the same period in 1989, according to Louis W. Foster, chairman.

For the three months ending June 30, 1990, the company reported net income of $19.4 million on revenues of $196 million vs. net income of $14.4 million on revenues of $174 million for the comparable period in 1989.

For the first six months of 1990, the company reported earnings per share of $1.25, revenues of $384 million and net income of $32.1 million. For the first half of 1989, the company posted earnings per share of $1.64, revenues of $343.3 million and net income of $42 million. (Per-share earnings include pre-tax realized investment gains of 2 cents in 1990 and 4 cents in 1989.)

Highlights for the period include:

-- Total investments topped $1 billion for the first time, reaching $1.01 billion, up from $847 million a year ago.

-- Net premiums written increased to $189.8 million in the quarter, up from $170.3 million in the second quarter of 1989.

-- Net investment income rose by 19 percent in the quarter compared with the same period a year ago.

-- Stockholders equity stood at $343.9 million as of June 30, 1990, and book value per share was $13.38 compared with $10.77 at June 30, 1989.

-- The combined auto and homeowners policy count as of June 30, 1990, stood at 973,669 up 14.2 percent from a year ago.

-- For the quarter, investment income averaged 8 percent. The company continues its longstanding policy of only investing in the highest grade instruments. Its current portfolio makeup is:

86 percent in tax-free municipal bonds and 14 percent in taxable, high-grade (A, AA and above) corporate bonds.

In other news there is evidence of slowing in the growth of auto assigned risk policies late in the second quarter due to new eligibility requirements. Following an April 1990 ruling by California Superior Court Judge Miriam Vogel, applicants must now verify that they have been declined by two carriers in the voluntary market before being accepted for the assigned risk program. This type of verification was not previously required.

On June 13 the California Department of Insurance (DOI) announced its decision regarding the rate rollback and prior approval standards. A rollback figure of approximately $60 million has been identified; $30 million has been accrued as deferred revenue. The company does not expect a rollback order of that magnitude will be issued, and it will contest the legal basis of the order, if made.

In other developments, Foster noted that the company recorded only a few claims following the major brushfires that swept through Santa Barbara and Glendale on June 28.

20th Century Industries is a publicly held company traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the trading symbol ''TWEN.'' LUBBOCK, TX (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Furr's/Bishop's Cafeterias L.P. (NYSE:CAF) Thursday announced that revenues for the second fiscal quarter ended June 30, 1990 were $74.7 million, an increase of $197,000 over revenues in the same quarter of 1989.

Net income for the quarter was $3.06 million, or 17 cents per limited partnership unit as compared to $2.72 million or 16 cents per limited partnership unit for the second quarter of 1989.

Revenues for the 26 weeks ended June 30, 1990 were $144.6 million, an increase of $651,000 over revenues in the same period 1989. Net income for the 26 weeks was $4.21 million or 24 cents per limited partnership unit as compared to $433,000 or 3 cents per limited partnership unit for the same period of 1989. Net income increased in the 26 weeks as compared to the same period of 1989 primarily because of lower food cost and a special, nonrecurring charge in the first quarter of 1989 of $1.75 million.

Revenue increases in the first 26 weeks of 1990 are primarily attributable to higher ticket averages. Guest traffic in comparable stores was lower in the first 26 weeks of 1990 than in the same period of 1989. The partnership also operated 156 restaurants during most of the first 26 weeks of 1990 as compared to 157 during most of the same period of 1989.

IRVINE, CA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Advanced Logic Research Inc. (NASDAQ:AALR) Thursday announced revenue and earnings for its third fiscal quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Revenue for the quarter was $37.5 million, a 91 percent increase over the $19.6 million reported for the third quarter of 1989. Net income for the quarter was $2.6 million (27 cents per share), up 295 percent from the $658,000 (10 cents per share) earned in the third quarter of 1989.

''We are encouraged by the fact that our profitability as a percentage of sales, at 7 percent, remained strong even though revenue fell below the level achieved in our second fiscal quarter,'' commented Gene Lu, president and chief executive officer.

Revenue for the nine months ended June 30, 1990, was $121.8 million, a 159 percent increase over the $47.1 million reported for the first nine months of 1989. Earnings for the nine-month period of fiscal 1990 were $8.8 million ($1.13 per share), up 300 percent from the $2.2 million (32 cents per share) earned in the first nine months of 1989.

On July 16 the company announced that revenue for the quarter would be approximately $37 million and net income would be between $2.5 and $2.8 million. ''Our results for the quarter are in line with the preliminary results discussed in our July 16 announcement,'' said Lu.

''As I noted previously, we are pleased with the year-to-year growth but disappointed that revenue and net earnings were below our second-quarter levels.''

''Our 386SX chip allocation did not allow us to fully implement planned promotional programs designed to stimulate sales of our PowerFlex family of upgradable computers. As a result, PowerFlex revenue in the North American market dropped over $6 million from the prior quarter,'' continued Lu.

Last week, the company announced a major addition to its BusinessVEISA family: the BusinessVEISA 32CSX. This product is the first SX-based PC to offer an EISA bus and 32-bit processing power. ''This announcement continues ALR's trend of designing innovative products and bringing them to the market quickly,'' noted Lu.

HOUSTON (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Adams Resources & Energy Inc. (ASE:AE) announced second-quarter 1990 unaudited net earnings of $552,000, or 7 cents per common share, after accrued preferred stock dividends of $15,000.

This compares with unaudited second-quarter 1989 net earnings of $396,000. Revenues for the current quarter were $21,004,000 as compared with $23,456,000 in the prior-year first quarter.

K.S. Adams Jr., president, attributed the increased earnings to the sale of two parcels of real estate and improved transportation volumes and earnings in the company's liquid-chemical trucking operations as demand has been strong throughout 1990.

The favorable results from trucking operations were offset to a great extent, however, by reduced earnings from oil and gas production as second- quarter 1989 earnings included $247,000 of recoveries from a prior year dispute of natural-gas prices.

SEAL BEACH, CA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - The eighth Rockwell International-built Navstar Global Positioning System (GPS) Block II satellite was successfully launched Thursday morning by the U.S. Air Force Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, Florida.

This satellite joins an operational constellation of 13 Navstar GPS satellites, increasing the two-dimensional global coverage to 19 hours per day.

Although the Navstar GPS is a space-based navigation system managed by U.S. Air Force Space Systems Division for the DoD, it is not limited to military users. A number of civil users are benefiting from the improved positioning data available.

Continued deployment of Navstar GPS satellites will improve precise navigation information to military and civil users, an advantage that will also save time and money.

''These Rockwell-built navigation satellites are becoming a fundamental capability that will be completely understood only after GPS has been in use for some time,'' says Rich Horner, GPS program director, Satellite & Space Electronics Division.

GPS techniques are poised to become the standard for high-precision geodesy. For example, shipping lines are using Navstar GPS to save time, fuel and money as they navigate the world's oceans, and the U.S. Forest Service has been evaluating GPS for timber identification, search and rescue and pinpoint location of forest fires.

Rockwell's Satellite & Space Electronics Division produces navigation satellites, space surveillance systems, electro-optic sensors and space electronics.

comments on the decline of Intera's stock price.

The company released a press release July 30, 1990, issuing its third quarter earnings. These results contained a classification error as it pertains to direct expenses and interest expense for the three-month period ended June 30, 1990, only. Direct expenses should have read $9,883,000, as opposed to $9,583,000 as shown, and the company's interest expense should have been shown as $361,000, not $661,000.

This classification error has no effect on the company's financial statements for the nine-month period ended June 30, 1990, and has no effect on the company's earnings for both the nine- and three-month periods ending 30 June 1990.

It is the company's belief that this decline in its stock price is unwarranted in light of the strong performance recorded for the three months and nine months ended June 30, 1990. Revenues and net earnings for the nine months ended June 30, 1990, were $41,118,000 and $2,947,000, respectively, compared with $28,940,000 and $400,000 for the corresponding nine-month period in 1989.

For the three months ended June 30, 1990, revenue and net earnings were $15,567,000 and $1,370,000, as compared to $9,093,000 and a loss of $251,000 in 1989.

The fundamental strength of the company remains strong and the demand for the company's products and services remains high, as is indicated by improved operating margins. The major factor that has had a negative effect on earnings to date is higher-than-anticipated interest costs incurred as a result of the slow collection process related to government contracts.

SAN DIEGO (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - QUALCOMM Inc., AT&T, NYNEX and Ameritech Mobile Communications Inc. Thursday announced the signing of agreements to evaluate, develop and implement products utilizing Code Division Multiple Access (CDMA).

QUALCOMM's CDMA technology promises major capacity and efficiency advantages that will accelerate wireless personal communications.

The advances possible by use of CDMA technology will solve near-term capacity and quality concerns in the major cellular systems such as

Chicago and New York, and provide for growth to a multitude of advanced wireless applications.

With CDMA, a high-capacity system can be fielded, wherein demand for very large-scale portable communications can also be met, using the same existing frequency bands currently allocated to cellular operators.

''We are excited to work with these companies,'' said Irwin M. Jacobs, president and chief executive officer of QUALCOMM Inc. ''AT&T, with their impressive history of innovation in cellular technology and products, and NYNEX and Ameritech Mobile, with their leadership as cellular service providers, will enable us to continue our development and implementation of CDMA in digital wireless telephony.''

Tom Powers, president of AT&T's Cellular Systems business unit, said: ''We invented cellular radio. We were the first to demonstrate digital cellular technology in the United States and we intend to continue to lead the industry in supplying wireless communications systems. We're pleased to have the opportunity to work jointly with QUALCOMM because they are the leaders in applying CDMA to mobile systems.''

The need for wireless communication has been identified for quite some time, but high-capacity, cost-effective technology was not available to facilitate the effort. First successfully demonstrated in conjunction with Pactel Cellular in November 1989, QUALCOMM's CDMA system meets these needs.

CDMA technology offers a modulation and multiple access scheme based on proven spread spectrum technology. Benefits of this technology for cellular systems include greatly increased capacity, enhanced voice quality, robust cell handoff, data communication and position location, better multipath resistance, fewer cell sites, inherent privacy and a flexible limit to the number of calls a cell can handle.

In addition to these advantages, the PTS (personal telephone services) announced by NYNEX will also be possible due to CDMA's lower power requirements, highly efficient digital signal processing, greatly prolonged battery life, potentially lower cost and lighter-weight portable telephones.

CDMA allows carriers to offer early widespread availability of pocket-size portable phones in their markets. QUALCOMM's agreement with NYNEX includes initial orders for CDMA portable telephones. In addition to the manufacture of mobile and portable telephones, QUALCOMM will provide proprietary chip sets to its licensees to meet the anticipated demand for products.

QUALCOMM Inc. was founded by Drs. Irwin Jacobs and Andrew Viterbi, recognized worldwide for their contributions to workable products in digital cellular communications.

QUALCOMM's designs, embodying new digital signal processing technologies, have resulted in a line of successful products that have leap-frogged their competition to market -- including the worldwide introduction of the OmniTRACS product line, the first and most successful two-way satellite communications and tracking system for mobile fleets.

Established in 1985, QUALCOMM attributes their success to the innovative design and manufacture of advanced communications systems, and the provision of point-to-point communications services.

QUALCOMM's telecommunications and teleprocessing research and development has broken ground in several key areas, including mobile satellite communications and interference-controlled signal processing for the cellular telephone industry using CDMA technology. They are also involved in the development of compression and signal processing technology for HDTV.

The results of their expertise have provided for the development and manufacture of a wide range of communications components, equipment, services and systems for the U.S. government and commercial users worldwide.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - YES Clothing Co. (NASDAQ:YSCO) today announced financial results for its fiscal first quarter ending June 30.

Net income for the first quarter rose to $767,000 compared with $766,000 for the corresponding quarter a year ago. Earnings per share were 20 cents for the quarter vs. 24 cents in the same period last year with weighted average shares outstanding of 3.82 million and 3.18 million, respectively. Revenues for the first quarter were $10,303,000 as compared to $10,854,000 in the comparable 1989 period.

George Randall, chairman of the board, commented, ''A shift in buying patterns by retailers to purchasing merchandise closer to the time of sale along with a general softening in the marketplace, has caused our sales in the quarter to be flat. Gross margins for the quarter increased to 36.6 percent from 29 percent in the same period of 1989, as a larger percentage of our sales are represented by more fashionable items. Expenses in the quarter increased in part due to our start-up investments in new menswear and childrenswear lines which so far have been well accepted by the retail community.''

Randall also noted, ''We believe the current softness in the retail environment could continue through the next quarter, but are encouraged by the response to our new lines and our ability to remain flexible, keeping inventory below last year's level. If current market conditions continue net income could be flat for the second quarter.''

RIVERSIDE, CA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Fleetwood Enterprises Inc. Thursday announced that preliminary sales for the first fiscal quarter ended July 29, 1990, were down about 1 percent to approximately $389 million compared with $394.9 million achieved in the comparable quarter last year.

A strong sales performance by the company's manufactured-housing group was more-than-offset by a decline in recreational-vehicle revenues. Final sales and earnings, as well as unit shipments by product line, will be announced in about four weeks.

Recreational-vehicle sales for the quarter were approximately $236 million down 6 percent from the $251.5 million recorded in last year's first quarter. Within the RV group, motor-home sales were about $160 million, 6 percent lower than the $170.7 million reported in the first quarter a year ago.

Travel-trailer sales were about $67 million, a 17-percent decline from last year's $80.8 million. Sales for the company's folding-trailer division, acquired from The Coleman Company in December 1989, were nearly $9 million. Excluding sales from the folding-trailer division, RV sales were off 10 percent which will significantly affect first-quarter earnings.

Fleetwood President Glenn Kummer commented that: ''the lower sales levels for our recreational-vehicle group are a result of a continuing slowdown in consumer spending, caused by concerns about a weakening economy and the threat of a recession. On a positive note, we are pleased with the favorable response from dealers and retail customers to our new 1991 RV models introduced late in the quarter.''

Manufactured-housing sales for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 were nearly $143 million, a 7-percent increase over the $133 million reported last year and the second-best quarterly sales performance on record. Commenting on the housing group's sales, Kummer said: ''We are very pleased with our housing-group's results for the quarter since they were achieved during a period of weak industry shipments.

''We believe this is a direct reflection of the quality and value we build into our homes. Our shipments are running ahead of the industry as a whole as we continue to increase our share of the manufactured-housing market.''

The company's supply and finance subsidiaries together contributed revenues of about $10 million for the first quarter compared with $10.4 million in the first quarter last year.

LENEXA, KS (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Home Office Reference Laboratory Inc. (HORL) Thursday announced net earnings for the second quarter 1990 of $3.7 million, or 28 cents per share, on revenues of $21.3 million compared with net earnings of $4.7 million 35 cents per share, on revenues of $20.9 million the same quarter last year.

Non-cash expenses, primarily depreciation and amortization, have resulted in charges to net earnings of $2.3 million for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared with $1.6 million for the same period in 1989. The cash flow provided by operations coupled with a significant decrease in capital expenditures has resulted in a $5.7 million increase in working capital at June 30, 1990, from March 31, 1990. The balance of short-term borrowings was eliminated at June 30, 1990.

Total unit testing volumes reached a new record level in the second quarter 1990, but total revenues did not advance at the same rate due to decreased unit prices resulting from additional volume discounts and competitive pressure.

Kenneth A. Stelzer, president and chief executive officer, said: ''We are pleased with the increase in unit testing volumes. Additionally, it appears that there is a growing interest in the use of urine HIV antibody screening as a reliable underwriting risk evaluation tool.''

HORL also announced the addition of Patricia Necessary, Ph.D., as senior scientist in HORL's research and development department. Stelzer said, ''Patricia brings with her a strong background in scientific test analysis and genetics research. She will focus her efforts on the development of new testing procedures and the automation of manual procedures.''

SANTA BARBARA, CA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Sun Belt Water Inc., a Santa Barbara based company, was selected Thursday as a finalist to bring Canadian superior quality fresh water to Santa Barbara, announced Jack B. Lindsey, chairman and chief executive officer.

Santa Barbara has been declared an emergency area due to a severe drought that has created a water shortage crisis. The city has been considering proposals for Canadian tankered water using large ships capable of transporting 65 million gallons per trip. Also under consideration is an alternate plan for a desalination facility.

Ionics Inc., of Watertown, Mass., was selected as the finalist for desalination.

The review panel also announced that it will recommend the desalination plan over the tanker proposal for 5,000 acre feet per year supply. The final decision will be made by the city council on Aug. 14.

Sun Belt Water is capable of delivering 15,000 acre feet and could supply several communities in the Santa Barbara area.

Sun Belt Water Inc. is in a joint venture with Snowcap Water Ltd. of Union Bay, British Columbia, Canada. ''We selected Snowcap as our partner because of its excellent experience as an operating company and for the abundance of its superior quality water from Toba Inlet,'' stated Lindsey.

The Sun Belt Water - Snowcap joint venture will be financed by Bank of America, San Francisco and Vancouver, British Columbia.

BRENTWOOD, TN (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Republic Automotive Parts Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:RAUT) Wednesday reported a gain in earnings for the second quarter.

For the three months ended June 30, 1990, net sales totaled $18,986,000 compared with $20,628,000 in the year-earlier quarter. Net income for the quarter was $788,000, up from $590,000 a year ago. Earnings per share amounted to 27 cents per share versus 21 cents per share.

The second quarter results brought net sales for the first half to $36,397,000 compared with $39,135,000 in the first six months of 1989. Net income for the half totaled $606,000, or 21 cents per share, compared with $173,000, or 6 cents per share, a year ago.

Keith M. Thompson, president, noted that the decline in net sales for the quarter and first half was due primarily to the divestiture of Republic's distribution center in Phoenix in February 1990.

He said, ''The increased earnings for the quarter reflect in part the improved return on our capital previously committed to the Phoenix operation. The higher level of profitability also relates to the overall performance from our other distribution centers and jobber stores.'' Thompson also indicated that the second quarter is typically a seasonally strong period for Republic's business.

Republic Automotive Parts Inc. distributes replacement parts for the automotive aftermarket. The company operates 8 distribution centers and 71 auto parts stores in 13 states. The company's common shares are traded in the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol RAUT.

CAMBRIDGE, MA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - BioTechnica International Inc. (NASDAQ:BIOT) announced Thursday its financial results for the second quarter of 1990.

Revenues were $6.9 million for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, as compared to $7.3 million for the second quarter of 1989, and $18.5 million for the six months ended June 30, 1990, as compared to $21.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 1989.

Of this decrease in revenues of the first six months of 1990, 77 percent results from a continuing de-emphasis of the company's forage and other lower-margin seed businesses, while focusing the seed product line on higher-margin crops such as corn and soybeans.

In addition, a very wet spring, which delayed planting and idled acreage in the Midwest, along with increased price competition from the seed market leaders, decreased soybean revenues from 1989. Revenues for the first six months reflect an increase of approximately $1.5 million in new and expanded collaborative research and other revenue.

Net loss for the quarter was $3.4 million, or (20 cents per share) as compared to $3.9 million, or (48 cents per share) for the second quarter of last year, and $4.8 million for the first six months of 1990 as compared to $3.7 million for the first six months of 1989. The 1990 operating results to date reflect a gross margin improvement of over 5 percent on seed product sales as a result of the emphasis on higher-margin crops. Results for the first half of 1989 included a gain of $763,000 resulting from the sale of 25 percent of the company's holding in its U.K. affiliate.

The company's cash position remains strong with $9.3 million in unrestricted cash and $10 million in restricted cash. The company recently used a portion of the restricted cash to repurchase approximately $13 million of its 8-3/4% publicly traded Convertible Subordinated Notes and will continue this process if favorable pricing can be obtained.

Additionally, the company announced in June that it had received the third installment of its $25 million four-year equity financing from a major U.S. institutional investor, which is being used to fund its agricultural research program.

Founded in 1981, BioTechnica is a diversified biotechnology company with commercial subsidiaries in the fields of crop agriculture and DNA probe diagnostics. The company is also a leader in industrial applications of biotechnology.

CINCINNATI (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - The United States Shoe Corp. announced today that litigation initiated last year in Federal courts in Cincinnati and Philadelphia against the company and certain of its officers and directors has been conditionally dismissed, at the request of plaintiffs' counsel, by order of U.S. District Judge Carl B. Rubin.

Lawyers for the plaintiffs had informed U.S. Shoe's counsel that, after thorough investigation, they had concluded that the action should be dismissed against all defendants.

The consolidated lawsuit, a class action brought on behalf of certain holders of U.S. Shoe common shares who purchased their shares following the company's announcement on Aug. 15, 1988, that it had engaged Merrill Lynch Capital Markets to evaluate various strategies for maximizing shareholder value, has been vigorously contested by the company.

The Court's order also includes dismissal of the litigation with respect to Merrill Lynch & Co. Inc., which had been named as an additional defendant. A hearing on the final dismissal of the case is scheduled for Sept. 7, 1990. Related litigation brought in state court was dismissed in August 1989.

Bannus B. Hudson, president and chief executive officer of U.S. Shoe, said that, ''After extensive discovery conducted over the past 18 months, plaintiffs' counsel apparently recognized what we have said all along -- in the process announced in August 1988, U.S. Shoe, its officers and directors made a sincere effort to increase shareholder value by exploring a variety of options and were extremely disappointed in the results. This litigation has been expensive and time-consuming, but I am pleased to say that the conduct of the company in that complicated process has been vindicated and the integrity of our directors and officers has been confirmed.

''U.S. Shoe is in excellent condition,'' Hudson added, ''and we look forward to the future. Our efforts to enhance stockholder value in the foreseeable future will be directed toward increasing productivity and profitability in our Women's Apparel Retailing Group, LensCrafters Optical Retailing Group and Footwear Group.''

WAYLAND, MA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Candela Laser Corp. (CLZR) announced Thursday that Dr. Eddie Reddick, of Nashville, TN, has successfully treated common duct stones during a laparoscopic cholecystectomy with the Candela LaserTripter.

The laparoscopic cholecystectomy is a new surgial procedure that is rapidly becoming the preferred method for removing the gallbladder because it substantially reduces hospitalization and patient recovery time.

However, as many as 10 percent of all patients having their gallbladder removed also have stones in the common and/or cystic duct. Until now, most of these patients would be reuired to undergo a second procedure.

Dr. Reddick, a surgeon at Centennial Medical Center in Nashville, TN, who pioneered this new procedure, used the Candela LaserTripter to successfully fragment common duct stones in a 74 year old female during the laparoscopic cholecystectomy procedure. The patient was subsequently discharged, stone free, within 48 hours.

Dr. Reddick said, ''Prior to the development of flashlamp excited dye laser technology, patients such as this would generally have been treated by an additional procedure postoperatively for common duct stone removal. The use of the LaserTripter now makes it possible to treat gallstones and duct stones during laparoscopic cholecystectomy, eliminating the need for a second invasive procedure.''

Dr. Horace Furumoto, chairman and CEO, stated, ''Dr. Reddick's success with the Candela laser as part of the new laparoscopic procedure is evidence of Candela's complementary role in this current trend to minimally invasive surgery.''

FRESNO, CA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - WestAir Holding Inc. (ASE:WAH), the largest regional airline company in the United States, Thursday reported its operating results for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Operating revenues for the second quarter increased 42 percent to $66.5 million compared to the like period in 1989. Operating income for the quarter was $3,066,000, up 4 percent compared to the $2,936,000 posted last year.

Net profits were $1,422,000 (22 cents per share based on 6,603,000 common share equivalents), down 3 percent from second quarter 1989 earnings of $1,459,000 (20 cents per share based on 7,321,000 common share equivalent).

The company said the 726,864 passengers carried during the second quarter was an increase of 22 percent compared to the 1989 period. Revenue passenger miles were up 32 percent to 161,124,000, and available seat miles were up 35 percent to 362,109,000, compared to the second quarter last year. Load factor for the quarter was 44.5 percent, down .9 percentage point compared to the 1989 period.

''New markets, new aircraft and strong passenger traffic -- along with competitive discount pricing during the latter part of the period -- combined to shape our second quarter earnings performance,'' said Timothy P. Flynn, chairman of WestAir Holding Inc.

''Our plan for growth continued on pace, but our strong earnings potential was impacted by the deep discount fares airlines introduced in the quarter primarily in our West Coast markets.

''Expiration of manufacturers' warranties on aircraft, and amortization costs related to the first cycle of engine overhauls on other aircraft, also resulted in a rise in maintenance expense during the period,'' Flynn said.

''Overall, the period held several accomplishments for our company,'' said Flynn. ''Our Atlantic Coast division, which operates the Washington-Dulles hub, made its first positive contribution to earnings since start-up last December.

''Our fleet modernization and expansion program continued with the delivery of four aircraft new from the factory including two Embraer Brasilias and two British Aerospace Jetstream 32s. And service on six new routes linking communities in New York, Pennsylvania, North Carolina and South Carolina with our Dulles hub was inaugurated,'' Flynn added.

''Our concern, looking forward, is that if yields trend at levels seen during recent weeks, previous earnings projections for the year will not be reached,'' said Flynn.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, WestAir Holding Inc. showed a net profit of $1.6 million on operating revenues of $126.5 million. Earnings per share through the six months was 24 cents (based on 6,589,000 common share equivalents).

WestAir Holding Inc. operates through two wholly owned subsidiaries and one operating division -- WestAir/United Express, NPA/United Express, and Atlantic Coast Airlines/United Express. The company operates over 800 daily flights and serves 60 cities in the West and along the East Coast utilizing both jet and turbo-prop aircraft. WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - COMSAT Systems Division has announced the first sale of a simple, low cost satellite tracking system to be used with satellites in extended life inclined orbit operation.

The new system, comprised of mechanical trackers installed on earth station antennas, will be used for the first time by the governement of Turkey. The system will provide Turkey four to five additional years of transponder service on the Intelsat V F7 spacecraft which distributes the Turkish national video network.

The new tracking technique is a result of COMSAT's pioneering efforts with satellites operating in the ''COMSAT Maneuver'' or inclined orbit operation. Intelsat has recently adopted this technique on several of its in-orbit satellites.

The Intelsat V F7 spacecraft, currently maintained in a customary orbital location, will begin inclined orbit operations later this summer.

''Operating in inclined orbit, a spacecraft that had a life expectancy of seven years, for example, can now have a substantially longer lifetime,'' Joel R. Alper, CSD president explained. ''In essence,'' he added, ''inclined orbit operations removes the fuel factor as the primary determinant in a spacecraft's useful life.''

Inclined Orbit Operations allow the inclination of a satellite's orbit plane to build-up so the satellite moves increasingly above and below the geostationary (equatorial) plane each day. The COMSAT trackers automatically follow this north/south motion of the satellite.

The $2.1 million contract from the Turkish Post, Telegraph, and Telephone Agency will supply trackers for 213 4.5-meter and 36 6.1 and 7-meter antennas. These stations are located throughout the country and support the Turkish video distribution network.

The two distinct tracking systems will offer simplicity, reliability and ease of installation and maintenance.

The 4.5-meter antennas use a purely mechanical tracking system which offers low intitial purchase and installation costs. In addition, its mechanical simplicity promotes low maintenance costs comparable to fixed antenna mounts. The tracking system for the larger 6.1 and 7.0-meter antennas uses electronic equipment that tracks in much the same manner as existing step-track systems.

The contract will be executed through CSD's Systems, Support & Service organization in Palm Bay, Fla. This unit provides installation, and operations and maintenance support to satellite and fiber-optics communications customers worldwide.

COMSAT Systems Division is a systems integrator assisting government, international and commercial customers in the design, implementation and operation of information and telecommunications systems and networks worldwide.

CHESTNUT HILL, MA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Designs Inc. (NASDAQ:DESI), operator of specialty retail stores that sell exclusively Levi Strauss & Co. clothing and accessories, announced Thursday that sales for the four weeks of July ending July 28, 1990 increased to $8.5 million in the current year from $4.7 million for the same period in the prior year, representing an increase of 82 percent.

These figures include the 25 stores opened since the end of July last year. For the second quarter ending July 28, 1990 sales of $25.1 million have increased 66 percent over last year's sales of $15.1 million. For the first half of the current fiscal year sales were $44.7 million compared with $27.2 million in the prior fiscal year, representing an increase of 64 percent.

Comparable store sales increased 23 percent for July, 20 percent for the quarter and 14 percent for the year to date compared with the corresponding periods in the prior fiscal year. Comparable stores are retail locations that were open a full fiscal year. Of the 97 stores that Designs Inc. operates, 59 are comparable stores.

In making this announcement, Geoffrey M. Holczer, vice president and treasurer, said, ''We continue to be very pleased with the strong sales results that we have seen since the beginning of the fiscal year. For the last several weeks our comparable stores have had double digit percentage increases and the sales increases continue to be across all merchandise divisions. We opened three new stores in Slidell, La., Freeport, Me. and Orlando, Fl. during the second quarter.

''These sales results have a significant positive impact on our earnings. While we still expect a loss for the quarter, we anticipate, barring unforeseen circumstances, it will be less than half of the loss sustained for last year's second quarter. With the bulk of the year's business still ahead of us in the third and fourth quarters, we would like to see this year be one of our most successful years in recent history.''

WEST BEND, WI (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Gehl Co., a leading manufacturer of agricultural and light industrial and construction equipment, announced a restructuring of its long-term debt as of Aug. 1, 1990, to support its plans for profitable growth and improved return to shareholders.

''The $10 million increased borrowing capacity provided by the restructuring, coupled with our earnings growth, should provide the resources we need to fund our strategic growth objectives during the next two years,'' said Kenneth F. Kaplan, vice president of finance for the niche capital goods manufacturer. ''The restructuring also will result in lowering our average borrowing costs and will limit our interest rate risk during the decade,'' he said.

As part of the restructuring, the company issued $25 million of 10.04 percent senior notes with a final maturity of 10 years to three insurance companies in a private placement. The proceeds will be used to pay down debt under the company's three-year revolving credit agreement. The First National Bank of Chicago acted as agent in the transaction. Gehl Co. will pay off the notes in seven equal annual payments commencing Aug. 1, 1994.

The company has also amended its three-year revolving credit agreement with four banks to extend it to June 30, 1993, and to reduce the borrowing capacity under the revolver to $35 million from $50 million. First National Bank of Chicago continues its participation as agent in the revolver; Bank One Milwaukee, First Bank-Milwaukee, and Pittsburgh National Bank also continue as participants.

The revolving credit agreement now provides for Gehl to issue up to $10 million of commercial paper and up to another $15 million of bankers acceptances. The balance of the $35 million may be borrowed either at interest rates based on LIBOR or CD rates or at a prime rate.

Gehl Co. (NASDAQ:GEHL) produces a broad line of niche capital goods equipment used worldwide in the agricultural and light industrial and construction industries. Founded in 1859, the company is headquartered in West Bend, with manufacturing facilities in West Bend; Yankton and Madison S.D.; and Myerstown, Pa.

''Americom's expandable digital technology is designed to accommodate future services like ISDN, and it will keep up with company growth by the use of expansion modules that just plug into the base key service unit. GREENWICH, CT (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - The Fund American Companies Inc. (NYSE: FFC) reported consolidated net income of $108 million, or $2.05 per share on a fully diluted basis, for the six months ended June 30, 1990, compared to $82 million, or $1.49 per share, for the same period in 1989, an increase in net income of 32 percent.

Net income for the second quarter of 1990 was $73 million, or $1.41 per share on a fully diluted basis, compared to net income of $45 million, or 83 cents per share, for the second quarter of 1989. The income growth for the 1990 periods as compared to the prior year is due primarily to increased realized investment gains.

In a separate release Thursday, the company announced an agreement under which Fund American will sell Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. to Allianz AG for approximately $3.3 billion in cash, subject to adjustment.

As part of that transaction, Fund American will purchase the common stock portfolio of Fireman's Fund Insurance Co., including its interest in MBIA Inc., as well as Fireman's Fund Mortgage Corp. and several oil and gas limited partnerships and other long-term investments for a total of approximately $2.2 billion in cash, subject to adjustment.

Accordingly, the presentation of Fund American's consolidated financial results in this release reflect property-liability insurance operations held for sale on one line, segregated from continuing operations.

Income from continuing operations was $59 million, or $1.13 per share on a fully-diluted basis, for the six months ended June 30, 1990, compared to $30 million, or 54 cents per share, for the same period in 1989. For the second quarter of 1990, income from continuing operations was $32 million, or 61 cents per share on a fully-diluted basis, versus $17 million, or 32 cents per share, for the comparable 1989 period.

Book value per common share as of June 30, 1990, was $35, a decrease of three percent from $36.21 reported as of Dec. 31, 1989, and a slight decrease from $35.04 reported as of March 31, 1990. The reduction in book value is mainly attributable to a decline in appreciation on the company's investments in equity securities.

Revenues from continuing operations were $190 million for the six months ended June 30, 1990, compared to $131 million for the same period of 1989, and were $99 million for the second quarter of 1990, compared to $72 million for the same period of 1989. The growth in revenues from continuing operations reflects primarily increased realized investment gains from common stocks and increased mortgage operations revenue.

CALGARY, ALBERTA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Brian L. Bullock, president and chief executive officer of INTERA Information Technologies Corp. (ASE/TSE:IIT.A) (NASDAQ:IITCF) has released Thursday morning the following comments on the decline of INTERA's stock price.

The company released a press release July 31 issuing its third quarter earnings. These results contained a classification error as it pertains to Direct Expenses and Interest Expense for the three month period ended June 30, 1990 only. Direct expenses should have read $9,883,000 as opposed to $9,583,000 as shown, and the company's interest expense should have been shown as $361,000, not $661,000.

This classification error has no effect on the company's financial statements for the nine-month period ended June 30 and has no effect on the company's earnings for both the nine and three month periods ending June 30.

It is the company's belief that this decline in its stock price is unwarranted in light of the strong performance recorded for the three months and nine months ended June 30.

Revenues and net earnings for the nine months ended June 30 were $41,118,000 and $2,947,000 respectively, compared to $28,940,000 and $400,000 for the corresponding nine-month period in 1989. For the three months ended June 30, revenue and net earnings were $15,567,000 and $1,370,000 as compared to $9,093,000 and a loss of $251,000 in 1989.

The fundamental strength of the company remains strong and the demand for the company's products and services remains high, as is indicated by the improved operating margins. The major factor that has had a negative effect on earnings to date is higher than anticipated interest costs incurred as a result of the slow collection process related to government contracts.

HOUSTON (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Texaco is launching a test program to make fast oil changes easier and more convenient for motorists by building 10 ''Star Lube'' single-bay oil change facilities at Texaco salaried-operated stations in Phoenix, Ariz., and Tulsa, Okla., it was announced Thursday by Texaco Refining and Marketing Inc. (TRMI).

As a separate glass-enclosed structure, the Star Lube facilities will be aesthetically pleasing while also offering the convenience of getting an oil change without leaving the car. The company believes that it is the first major oil company to offer quick oil changes at a single bay facility that is constructed strictly for the purpose of changing oil.

The company will build five Star Lubes in each of the test market cities at existing Texaco stations. Typically, these stations already have a convenience store and car wash in addition to self-serve gasoline islands, offering motorists the opportunity to use all of these services in one stop, according to the company.

The Star Lube's glass enclosed structure is designed to look like a greenhouse from the outside and will conserve energy by using old oil taken from customers' cars to power the buildings' heaters during cold weather. Other used oil collected at the facility will be disposed of in an environmentally acceptable manner using only certified waste oil disposal firms. Each outlet will require an employee to work with the customer at the surface level and an employee located below the surface in the oil changing ''pit.''

Andron Architects and Associates of Raleigh, N.C., worked with Texaco in designing the Star Lube facilities.

''We believe there will be a significant demand for the Star Lube concept since it offers motorists an opportunity to buy gasoline, groceries, get a car wash and oil change quickly and conveniently,'' said Glenn F. Tilton, president of TRMI. ''A major attraction for the company is that the facilities can be built faster and more economically than multiple-bay oil change structures and they offer us another marketing vehicle to sell our Havoline line of motor oils,'' he added.

Larry W. McDonough, Star Lube project manager, notes that Star Lube oil and filter change services will be competitively priced and the customer will be offered a free car wash with the oil change. The company expects to begin opening Star Lubes this fall and plans to have all 10 prototypes completed by the end of 1990.

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Electromedics Inc., (NASDAQ: ELMD) reported that for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990 revenues grew by 14.5 percent to $6,970,000, income from operations was up 9 percent to $324,000 and net income increased to $72,000.

This compares to the second quarter of 1989, revenues of $6,088,000, income from operations of $297,000 and net income of $29,000. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, revenues were a record $14,092,000 versus $12,486,000 for the corresponding period in 1989.

According to F. James Lynch, chairman and chief executive officer, ''The increase in revenues for the second quarter and first half of 1990 was due to greater demand for existing products, increased penetration in international markets and without the benefit of any new products! The company's apheresis module and the TCPM II orthapaedic tourniquet have received regulatory approval and initial shipments are beginning in the third quarter.''

Net income for the first six months ended June 30, 1990, was $79,000 as compared to $499,000 in the first half of 1989. Net income for the first half of 1990 was negatively affected by a $141,000 extraordinary (non cash) write-off from early retirement of debentures, a $187,000 increase in interest expense and $430,000 of additional expenditures in the areas of research and development, quality assurance, product management, and regulatory affairs.

Lynch noted that ''The expenditures were necessary to insure the continued growth of the company and were made at the expense of short term earnings. In the second half of 1990 and throughout 1991, we expect these expenditures to result in accelerated growth in revenues, improved gross profit and increased net income.

Electromedics Inc. develops, manufactures and markets a proprietary line of autotransfusion equipment and related disposable medical supplies which permits the purification and recirculation of a patient's own blood during surgery. LONDON (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - British Gas (NYSE:BRG) Thursday announced a further move aimed at enabling gas-on-gas competition to take place in the contract gas market.

The company has published schedules for the supply of gas to industrial and commercial customers for periods of less than one year's duration.

Colin Playle, director of industrial and commercial gas said: ''This new schedule is framed to help those customers who may wish to change to other suppliers in competition with British Gas. It complements the other schedules already in force.''

The schedules are designed for firm gas customers only and are for periods of 3, 6 and 9 months' duration. The customer's price is based on prevailing schedules plus a premium, depending on the length of the contract, and is determined by his actual gas consumption over the previous year up to the commencement of the contract.

In addition British Gas has also made two other amendments to the existing schedules. These are:

-- Customers who intend to switch to a third-party supplier who have a contract in force between April 1 and September 1, 1990, can terminate their existing contracts using their full previous yearly consumption to effect a settlement of their account.

-- This offer is retrospective to April 1, 1990, and will be open to all customers. For customers renewing contracts after September 1, the new short-term contracts will then be available.

-- Finally if a customer burns no gas at all in a particular month, the schedule monthly charge will be deferred until the end of the customer's contract year when all contract charges are reconciled.

British Gas, headquartered in London, is the largest integrated gas company in the Western world and is primarily involved in the purchase, transmission, and sale of natural gas to domestic, industrial and commercial customers in Great Britain.

Important support activities to its marketing efforts include appliance trading and customer service to domestic gas customers. British Gas is also active in the exploration for and production of hydrocarbons both offshore and onshore.

Expertise developed in the gas business is offered for sale overseas through the British Gas International Consultancy Service. British Gas American Depositary Receipts are traded on the New York Stock Exchange. One ADR is equivalent to the ten ordinary shares.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - NYNEX Science and Technology applied August 1 to the Federal Communicatons Commission for an experimental license to test and evaluate digital radio technologies.

The tests will determine the feasibility of using these technologies as an alternative to existing wire methods of transmitting telephone calls between customers and telephone company locations.

Deployment of digital radio technology in the local exchange carrier distribution system -- or local loop -- could result in better overall service quality and significant cost savings in this portion of the telephone network. NYNEX Science and Technology, in conjunction with the NYNEX Service Company, New England Telephone, and New York Telephone, will test Time Division Multiple Access (TDMA) and Code Division Multiple Access (CDMA) radio links between telephone company locations and selected residential areas of New York City, Boston, and White Plains, N.Y.

TDMA and CDMA are emerging digital radio techniques that allow for a greater volume of calls to be transmitted over existing radio spectrum.

The testing will begin in 1991.

The tests will help to determine possible coverage areas, mobility, calling capacity and other engineering requirements necessary for understanding the benefit of using radio technology as part of the local loop.

''The telephone companies' local loops are dominated by copper-based technology,'' explained Ken Raymond, director at the NYNEX Science and Technology Center. ''As a result, certain portions of their systems could benefit from this alternative local loop technology.''

In recent years, deployment of fiber-optic technology in the loop has offered a cost effective alternative to copper for the high density portion of the loop. Advances in radio technologies have raised the possibility of deploying these technologies as yet another alternative.

The use of radio in the local loop could also result in the provision of new services that make use of increased mobility. The tests will provide NYNEX the opportunity to compare and test them in the loop environment, said Raymond.

with Thames Chelsea Chemical Co. (USA) (''Thames Chelsea'') of Houston, to process for Thames Chelsea up to 12,500 barrels/day of crude condensate and heavy gasoil for up to one year.

The Processing Agreement is subject to the approval of the board of directors of both companies on or before Aug. 8, 1990, as well as the completion of Thames Chelsea's feedstock acquisition and the posting of the Letters of Credit by Aug. 20, 1990.

Thames Chelsea is expected to supply feedstock to the company's 30,000 barrels/day Lake Charles, La. refinery not later than Sept. 10. 1990, and possibly during August, depending on the availability of spot cargoes. Should the Processing Agreement be implemented as contemplated, the refinery will be required to supply Thames Chelsea up to 3,500,000 barrels per annum of petroleum products such as naphtha, diesel fuel and residual fuel valued in excess of $80 million at current market prices.

The company has agreed to use its best efforts to expand the volume under the Processing Agreement should Thames Chelsea desire to process a greater quanity of feedstock. In addition, both parties have expressed their intent to convert the Processing Agreement into a full lease of the refinery by Thames Chelsea.

During the next 90 days the parties will seek to negotiate a lease agreement for the entire refinery, which will be subject to a number of conditions, including the approval of the principal lenders of both companies.

The previously announced Letter of Intent between the company and Quest Energy Co. has officially expired without the completion of the contemplated Processing Agreement. Both parties continue to evaluate alternatives which would allow the refinery to process Quest's crude oil without interfering with the processing of Thames Chelsea's crude condensate.

SAN JOSE, CALIF. (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Pharos AB Thursday announced a set of organizational changes designed to speed the integration of Spectra-Physics businesses into the Pharos family of high-technology companies, increase the businesses' efficiency and enhance their future growth prospects.

In the reorganization, a variety of functions now performed at Spectra-Physics' corporate headquarters will become the responsibility of its five operating units. Pharos said it expects that the Spectra-Physics corporate headquarters will be phased out over the next six to 12 months, with roughly one-third of these employees transferring to the operating units.

ST. CHARLES, MD (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Interstate General Co. L.P. (ASE:IGC) Wednesday reported its operating results for the quarter ending June 30, 1990.

Net income was $3,147,000, or 31 cents per unit, compared to $4,051,000 or 41 cents per unit, in the same period in 1989. Revenue increased to $20,237,000 from $15,327,000 posted in the 1989 second quarter.

In the first six months of 1990, earnings were $6,129,000, equal to 61 cents per unit, compared to $6,779,000, or 68 cents per unit, one year ago. Revenues in the respective half year periods were up to $37,340,000 from $28,568,000.

Kimberly H. Carroll, vice president and chief financial officer of IGC, attributes the increase in 1990 revenue to the company's acquisitions of American Family Homes early in the year and the real estate assets of the San Juan Racing Association at the end of 1989. As a result of these acquisitions, she said 1990 net income reflects charges for depreciation and amortization totalling $949,000 for the three months and $2,155,000 for the six months.

In discussing the company's performance, Carroll stressed that IGC's operating results should be evaluated over an extended period of time, not on a quarterly basis, due to the cyclical nature of the comapny's homebuilding and land development activities.

Founded in 1957, IGC is a diversified real estate organization specializing in community development, homebuilding, investment properties and management services. Listed on the American and Pacific stock exchanges, the company is a master limited partnership that first issued units to the public in February 1987.

LATHAM, NY (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Mechanical Technology Inc. (OTC:MTIX) Thursday reported a loss of $460,000 for the third quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared to a loss of $1,424,000 in the third quarter of 1989.

The loss resulted primarily from major declines in operating income at MTI's two most recent acquisitions, United Telecontrol Electronics (Asbury Park, N.J.) and ProQuip Inc. (Santa Clara, Calif.). Harry Apkarian, chairman of the board and CEO, noted that there are substantial interest costs associated with these acquisitions.

''Although some aspects of this situation will persist, new orders prospects at these subsidiaries are encouraging,'' Apkarian said. ''In the meantime, progress is being made in other areas, particularly the Technology Group (Latham, N.Y.) and Ling Electronics, Inc. (Anaheim, Calif.). Also, a 10% increase in backlog of unfilled orders is a positive indication for the future.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - BMI, the national performing rights organization, has filed a music copyright infringement suit against Claire's Boutiques Inc., a prestigious national chain of more than 850 clothing stores.

Named in the suit, filed in United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, is Claire's Boutiques Inc., d/b/a Claire's Boutiques and Arcadia.

The suit is centered in the Chicago area where a concentration of the stores is located. The boutiques are cited with 88 music copyright infringements including Mick Jagger and Keith Richard's "Can't Get No Satisfaction," John Lennon and Paul McCartney's "Yesterday," Pete Townshend's "Pinball Wizard," and Gloria Estefan's "Don't Wanna Lose You Now."

Under the U.S. Copyright Law, songwriters, composers, and publishers are entitled to be compensated when their works are used in what is termed a "public performance" - radio or TV broadcasts, recorded or live performances in nightclubs, hotels, restaurants, retail and department stores, to name a few.

BMI offers businesses legal access to its musical repertory of about 1.5 million songs through music performance agreements. BMI represents more than 100,000 writers, composers, and publishers from around the world in all areas of music.

According to Tom Annastas, BMI's vice president, general licensing, "BMI's standard operating procedure is to explain copyright responsibilities to the music user, demonstrate the need for a blanket music license, and seek agreement before considering legal action.

Claire's Boutiques Inc. is a large operation with many individual locations that use radio music throughout the store to enhance business. Because of the national status of these shops, the communication with Claire's Boutiques Inc. was handled from our headquarters in New York with New York attorney Howard Siegel, who represents the Boutiques. We were diligent in our attempt to secure a license before eventually determining that our only recourse was to take the case before the courts."

"The songwriters, composers, and publishers who have entrusted the performing rights of their music to BMI have every right to expect us to vigorously pursue those who fail to pay for use of their music," said Edward W. Chapin, vice president and general counsel of BMI. "There can be no question that BMI will honor that trust."

MANCHESTER, NH (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Bank of New Hampshire Corp. announced Thursday that the on-site examination being conducted by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency at the corporation's two national banking affiliates, Bank of New Hampshire, N.A. and Strafford National Bank had been concluded.

As a result of the examinations, the corporation will provide $1.7 million to the allowance for loan losses in addition to the $12.0 million previously announced on July 5, 1990. Management has also agreed to restate first quarter operating results to accommodate the Comptroller.

The first quarter Form 10-Q, as previously filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, will also be refiled so as to provide financial reporting consistency among the various regulatory agencies which oersee Bank of New Hampshire Corp. and its affiliates.

Davis P. Thurber, chairman, Bank of New Hampshire Corp., commenting on the results of the examinations stated that ''Profitability and asset quality are the primary objectives of management and, while an administrative challenge to the regulator's conclusions and mandates has been considered, such a lengthy and expensive procedure is not deemed to be the most appropriate use of the corporation's resources or management's time, nor is it believed to be in the best long-term interests of the shareholders of the corporation.''

Restated first quarter earnings will result in a net loss of $6.093 million or $1.81 per share vs. net income of $2.3 million or $.67 during the same time period of 1989. Net income for the second quarter was $33,000 or $.01 per share as opposed to 1989 second quarter net income of $2.3 milion or $.69 per share.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990 the company's net loss was $6.060 million or $1.80 per share down from net income of $4.6 million or $1.36 per share, of a year ago.

The first quarter and year-to-date losses were driven by the special provision for possible loan losses, of which $12.4 milion was taken during the first quarter. This special provision incorporates and recognizes an assessment by Bank of New Hampshire Corp. management of the possible impact on loan loss reserves resulting from more aggressive regulatory practices and standards of review as applied by the bank regulators.

Additionally, the allowance acknowledges concerns by the regulators regarding any potential for further deterioration in the New Hampshire economy.

Total nonperforming assets (''nonaccrual loans'' and ''other real estate owned'') at June 30, 1990, were $27.6 million compared with $12.6 million at Dec. 31, 1989. During the same time frame the reserve coverage of nonaccrual loans was increased from 68 percent to 82 percent.

Net charges-offs for the year-to-date were $7.9 million. The allowance for loan losses at June 30, 1990 was $16.6 million or 2.3 percent of total loans, up from $7.4 million or 1.0 percent of total loans at Dec. 31, 1989. Bank of New Hampshire Corp.'s capital position remains strong and, as of June 30, 1990, its primary capital ratio stood at 8.07 percent vs. 8.06 percent at Dec. 31, 1989.

Total assets stood at $955.6 million as of June 30, 1990, an increase of appoximately $7.6 million over the prior year-end balance.

Bank of New Hampshire Corp., headquartered in Manchester, is a five-bank holding company. The offices of the affiliates total 28, in 16 different communities throughout the southern, central, coastal and lakes regions of the state.

EATONTOWN, NJ (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Roberts Pharmaceutical Corp. (NASDAQ: RPCX) and Deprenyl Research Ltd. (Toronto and NASDAQ: DEPLF) jointly announced Thursday they had signed a letter of intent for Roberts to grant exclusive Canadian rights to Deprenyl Research to market Midon, as well as for Deprenyl to provide financial support for research necessary to develop Midon for other uses.

A definitive agreement is expected to be reached shortly. Specific terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

Midon, (midodrine), is currently awaiting marketing approval in Canada, the United Kingdom, and United States for use in the treatment of orthostatic hypotension or low blood pressure.

Roberts recently received approval in the Republic of Ireland for the same indication and a new drug application has been on file with the Food and Drug Administration in the United States since 1987.

Roberts Pharmaceutical retains exclusive marketing rights for Midon in the United Kingdom, the Republic of Ireland, the United States, and other countries.

In addtion to its use for hypotension, Midon is also being developed to treat urinary incontinence, an affliction which affects a large segment of the population.

Deprenyl will collaborate with Roberts to develop this drug for the Canadian market. Phase II clinical trials are currently scheduled for this indication looking toward approvals in Canada and the United States.

Dr. Robert Vukovich, chairman and president of Roberts said, "We are extremely pleased to be associated with this dynamic organization as the agreement will accelerate Midon's penetration of this important market.

"Currently, there is no approved therapy for orthostatic hypotension in the United States or Canada. To date, approximately 4,000 patients have participated in clinical studies of Midon in the United States and overseas. Some patients have been treated over several years and the results indicate that the drug is effective and well tolerated.

The Chairman of Deprenyl Research, Dr. Morton Shulman, said, "Acquisition of the Canadian rights to Midon is an important further step in the development of Deprenyl Research as a Canadian pharmaceutical organization.

"We are especially pleased to be associated with Roberts Pharmaceutical in this project as they have many new drugs under development and it is our hope and expectation to have a continued and fruitful relationship with this growing U.S. drug corporation."

ATLANTA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Fulton Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ:FFSB) Thursday reported a net loss of $5.8 million, or $1.37 per share, for the three months ended June 30, 1990, compared with net loss of $7 million, or $1.68 per share, for the second quarter of 1989.

Henry B. Garmon, chairman and chief executive officer of Fulton Federal, stated: ''A $1.7 million increase in non-interest income was the principal reason for this improvement, resulting from a $1.5 million charge in the 1989 second quarter's results regarding an unrealized loss on an interest rate swap option, combined with a $368,000 unrealized gain on Fulton Federal's high-yield bond portfolio recognized in 1990's second quarter results.

''The increase in net interest income of $1.2 million from the second quarter of last year was offset by an increase of $1.8 million in the provision for possible losses on loans and securities. Expense levels between the two quarters remained relatively constant.''

At June 30, 1990, total assets of Fulton Federal were $2.17 billion, a reduction of $135.5 million from the total assets of $2.3 billion at Dec. 31, 1989.

Fulton Federal also said that the previously announced sale of its mortgage servicing business closed on July 31. The amount of the gain Fulton Federal will record from this sale will be quantified following the determination of certain post-closing adjustments.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - S.E. Nichols Inc. (ASE:NCL) announced that it has filed today a voluntary petition in the United States Bankruptcy Court, Southern District of New York, for protection under the provisions of Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code.

In connection with the filing of its Chapter 11 Petition, Kenneth A. Davis President and Chief Executive Officer of Nichols, stated:

For the past 15 months, the Company has been in the process of restructuring its business which has included closing unprofitable stores, selling its wholesale division and converting its traditional full line discount department stores to deep discount drug and general merchandise stores. Despite these efforts, which have included the successful reopening by the Company of 16 deep discount drug stores under the name PharmhouseTM, the Company has been confronted with serious financial problems resulting from its inability to continue to satisfy its obligations under its outstanding 14 7/8% and 15% Debentures as well as its heavy continuing rental costs for unused space in stores closed pursuant to its retail restructuring program. As previously reported, management of the company has attempted to obtain outside debt and/or equity financing to meet these obligations and to attempt to restructure the Company's outstanding Debentures, but such attempts have not been successful to date. In that connection, as also previously announced, the Company failed to pay the interest due June 1, 1990 on its 14 7/8% Debentures, and, accordingly, it is in default under the terms of such Debentures, thereby triggering the cross-default provisions of certain of its other long term debt instruments. Finally, the Company has encountered increasing problems in obtaining adequate vendor support.

Davis further stated that, in spite of the foregoing problems, the results of operations of its Pharmhouse stores to date have been encouraging, and management of the Company firmly believes that the operation of an increasing number of these deep discount drug and general merchandise outlets represent a solid foundation for the Company's future growth and return to profitable operations. He explained that, in order to assure that its Pharmhouse retail business would remain viable and ultimately realize its growth potential despite the above-noted problems, the Company determined that it would be in the best interests of the Company's shareholders and employees and ultimately its creditors to seek protection under Chapter 11.

Davis emphasized that the relief that the Company is seeking under Chapter 11 would enable it to continue to conduct its Pharmhouse and other business operations without interruption and to continue with its program of converting the Company's former discount department stores to Pharmhouse deep discount outlets.

In that connection, the Company also announced that it has received a commitment from Sterling National Bank for a revolving credit facility of up to $10,000,000 to be secured by its merchandise inventories and other assets. Advances under this secured credit facility will be subject to the Company's then available inventories and other conditions. The implementation of this revolving credit facility is subject to approval by the Bankruptcy Court and to the preparation of definitive documents.

The Company currently operates 16 deep discount Pharmhouse stores and expects to reopen three additional Pharmhouse stores, for a total of 19 stores, by the end of August 1990.

WORCESTER, MA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Peoples Savings Bank, a wholly owned subsidiary of Peoples Bancorp of Worcester Inc., (NASDAQ:PEBW) and First Agricultural Bank, Pittsfield, a wholly owned subsidiary of Multibank Financial Corp. (NASDAQ:MLTF), Thursday announced the execution of a definitive agreement for First Agricultural Bank to purchase the deposits and certain assets of the Williamstown branch offices of Peoples.

The two Williamstown offices, located at 57 Spring Street and 455 Main Street have combined deposits of approximately $15 million. The branch offices were acquired by Peoples in connection with its acquisition of the former First Service Bank for Savings of Leominster in April 1989, in a regulatory-assisted transaction. First Agricultural Bank presently operates a branch facility at 60 Spring Street, Williamstown.

Woodbury C. Titcomb, president and chief executive officer of Peoples, said, ''We appreciate the support and loyalty shown by our Williamstown customers. However, we believe that these customers could be better served by an institution headquartered locally, and we are pleased that we were able to negotiate a mutually satisfactory agreement with First Agricultural Bank.

''The sale of these branches will allow our organization to better concentrate its efforts on serving our customer base in central Massachusetts, which has grown dramatically as a result of two significant acquisitions in the past 16 months, namely certain assets and deposit liabilities of the former First Service Bank for Savings in Leominster and more recently, selected assets and deposit liabilities of the former Milford Savings Bank.''

Gary P. Scarafoni, president and chief executive officer of First Agricultural Bank, said, ''We view this transaction as a major opportunity to expand our banking presence in the Williamstown area. This action represents a long-term commitment by our organization, and we look forward to serving the banking needs of the community.''

The transaction is subject to the approval of state and federal regulatory authorities and is expected to be completed prior to year end. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

Peoples Savings Bank provides a wide range of financial services to a broad customer base throughout 29 offices located in central and northwestern Massachusetts.

FRAMINGHAM, MA (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Perini Corp. reports net income of $917,000 or 10 cents per common share for the second quarter of 1990, compared with $3,716,000 or 97 cents per common share for the second quarter 1989.

For the first six months of 1990, the company reports net income of $2,468,000 or 36 cents per common share, compared with net income of $7,122,000 or $1.88 per common share for the first six months of 1989.

Earnings per common share for both the second quarter and six-month results ending June 30, 1990, were affected from the increase in the average common shares outstanding from the company's stock offering in June 1989 of 470,000 shares and the sale in July 1989 of 262,774 shares of the company's treasury stock to its Employee Stock Ownership Trust.

Construction and real estate revenues totaled $442,851,000 for the first six months of 1990 compared with 400,293,000 for the first six months of 1989.

The June 30, 1990 construction backlog totaled $1.02 billion compared with a backlog of $1.01 billion at the same date in 1989.

The operating results for the second quarter of 1990 followed the pattern experienced in the first quarter of 1990. Domestic construction, led by its heavy construction operations, made a very strong contribution to Perini's operating income. Building operations also made a positive contribution, due largely to increased revenues generated by a high level of activity in the hotel/casino industry.

Perini International contributed to the second quarter results, but at a lower level than 1989 due to a market slowdown. Canadian operations also did not match 1989's favorable results. Although substantial pipeline work is in backlog, the scheduling of field work is such that most of the operating contribution should come later in 1990.

Real estate did not close any major transactions in either the second quarter of first six months of 1990, resulting in unprofitable operations compared to strong operations results a year ago, which is the major reason for the earnings decline compared to 1989.

The company said that due primarily to softness in the real estate markets it is less optimistic about anticipated results for the year 1990, and now expects they may fall significantly short of 1989 results. Although some smaller real estate transactions were completed in the second quarter no major closings took place, following a pattern similar to that experienced in the first quarter of 1990.

The company currently has certain major transactions planned for the latter part of the year, which, if all were completed, could improve its 1990 outlook. However, due to the slowdown in the national market and the difficulties in obtaining financing being experienced by potential purchasers of developed real estate, such closings may delayed.

The market for domestic construction and pipeline work continues to be strong with backlog for the second quarter near record levels.

HOUSTON (AUG. 2) BUSINESS WIRE - Continental Airlines Holdings Inc., announced a second quarter 1990 consolidated net income of $98.3 million, or $2.21 per share.

Total consolidated revenues for the quarter were $1.5 billion. The 1990 second quarter results compare with a 1989 second quarter consolidated net loss of $109.3 million, or $2.88 per share, on revenues of $1.4 billion.

On April 19, 1990, the Bankruptcy Judge in Eastern Air Lines' Chapter 11 case appointed a trustee to manage Eastern's reorganization efforts and, as a result and pursuant to generally accepted accounting principles, the company excluded Eastern's operating results from its consolidated results as of April 19.

The company's second quarter results include Eastern's operating revenues of $115.9 million and a net loss of $12.6 million before preferred dividend requirements of $6.9 million for the period from April 1 through April 18, 1990.

For the first half of 1990, the company reported total revenues of $3.4 billion and a net loss of $8.8 million or $0.51 per share, as compared to the first six months of 1989 when the company reported a net loss of $364.9 million, or $9.43 per share, on revenues of $3.3 billion. Included in the company's six months 1990 results are Eastern's revenues of $673.1 million and its $149.1 million net loss before preferred dividend requirements of $14.7 million for the period Jan. 1 through April 18, 1990.

Continental Airlines recorded net income of $96.8 million on revenues of $1.3 billion during the second quarter of 1990, a $64.7 million improvement from the same quarter last year when it reported net income of $32.1 million on revenues of $1.3 billion.

Included in Continental's second quarter 1990 results were special items totaling $123.2 million, largely gains associated with the early retirement of debt and settlement of certain litigation. Special items in the second quarter of 1989 totaled $28.9 million.

By MICHAEL STRAUSS - Comtex Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) COMTEX - Despite a modest economic growth forecast of 2.2 percent in 1990 and 2.9 percent in 1991, a top Bush administration official said today the U.S. is well positioned to weather a potential oil price jump resulting from Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

"Our economy today is able to absorb (oil) price increases much better than in the past," said Michael J. Boskin, the chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers. "A 25 percent price increase that stuck would see a temporary decline in the growth of GNP by a few tenths of a percentage point. This would not in itself be enough to drive us into recession."

Appearing before the Joint Economic Committee of Congress to give the administration's mid-year economic outlook, Boskin said the chance of a recession in 1991 are slim despite lower Gross National Product estimates and a ballooning budget deficit.

"The probability of a recession is low, but certainly not zero," Boskin said. "I think some pessimistic forecasts of some economists was a result of the downward move in the GNP."

In January, the administration had projected a growth in GNP of 2.6 percent for 1990 and 3.3 percent in 1991. The January forecast had pegged the fiscal year 1991 federal deficit at $93.2 billion, excluding funding for the savings and loan bailout, and the CEA says that figure has now soared to $168.8 billion.

"Higher interest rates maintained through the first half, led us to reduce the projected growth rates," Boskin said.

Of the resulting $75.7 billion change in the projected deficit for fiscal 1991, $49.3 billion was due to what Boskin called "technical re-estimates" consisting of higher government outlays and lower revenue estimates and $24.2 billion to changing economic assumptions such as higher interest rates.

Boskin confirmed the administration is urging the Federal Reserve Board, an independent agency which sets the nation's monetary policy, to ease credit if a successful deficit reduction package of approximately $50 billion in new taxes and spending cuts can be negotiated with Congress. The deficit talks are presently deadlocked and with the House set to adjourn for its August recess after tomorrow, significant movement on the issue is not expected before September.

"If we get a credible (reduction) package, the Fed has the ability to offset any economic contraction by easing interest rates," Boskin said. "Monetary policy has a lag so they should act as soon as possible (after the plan is in place)."

Although the economy has averaged a sluggish 1.4 percent growth rate for the past six quarters, including preliminary estimates of 1.2 percent in the second quarter of 1990, Boskin expects the economy to gain steam in the next six months.

"Exports, business investment and consumer spending are expected to pick up the economy in the second half of this year," Boskin said.

The administration expects the unemployment rate will be 5.4 percent in 1990 and rise slightly to 5.6 percent in 1991 while inflation is projected at 4.8 percent in 1990 and 4.2 percent in 1991. Short-term rates on 3-month Treasury bills are pegged at 7.7 percent in 1990 and forecast at 6.8 percent in 1991.

The long-term outlook calls for GNP growth above 3 percent between 1992 and 1995 and, assuming a long-term deficit reduction plan is in place, Boskin said this will result in steady reductions in the inflation rate and will allow interest rates to decline steadily through 1995.

Last month, the director of the Congressional Budget Office, Robert Reischauer, predicted long-term GNP growth averaging 2.6 percent annually from 1992 through 1995. Asked to reconcile the CBO forecast with the government's higher rate of 3.15 percent, Boskin replied, "We differ on the economy's long-term potential."

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows on July 13, 1990, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Selective Insurance Group Inc. (TICKER: SIGI) resident in New Jersey, Selective Insurance Company of America, filed suit challenging the constitutionality of the Fair Automobile Insurance Act of 1990.

The suit against the act, charging violations of several provisions of both the New Jersey and U.S. constitutions, was filed in the Chancery Division of the Superior Court in Mercer County, New Jersey.

On July 16, 1990, Selective Way Insurance Co., a separate, wholly-owned subsidiary of Selective Insurance Group uninvolved with private passenger automobile insurance in New Jersey, joined with 32 other insurance companies in filing a similar suit in the same court.

The lawsuits endeavor to prevent additional premium taxes and assessments, as imposed on insurers to pay debts of the New Jersey Automobile Full Insurance Underwriting Association ("JUA"), from unconstitutionally taking earnings of Selective Insurance Company of America.

Potential direct cost of such charges to Selective were estimated as high as $64 million within Selective Insurance Group's 1989 10-K report.

In a somewhat related matter, the Appellate Division of the Superior Court of New Jersey remanded to the Commissioner of the Department of Insurance certain questions involving the Commissioner's seeking of "restitution" from 15 servicing carriers for the JUA.

That decision followed the filing of a suit seeking declaratory and injunctive relief by Selective and eight other other former service carriers with the Appellate Division against the Commissioner and the JUA.

Selective and the eight other former servicing carriers filed a petition with the New Jersey Supreme Court for certification to review the Appellate Division remand order.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows as of July 25, 1990, Pacific Telecom Inc.(TICKER: PTCM) reported that all appovals for the merger of North-West Telecommunications Inc. and Pacific Telecom Merger Company, a subsidiary of PacifiCorp,(TICKER: PPW) had been obtained.

The 8-K filing reported that that transaction was expected to be completed on July 31, 1990.

The Internal Revenue Service ruled that the merger was to be considered a "tax free" reorganization, which allows for PacifiCorp's contribution of North-West to Inner PacifiCorp Inc. as well as Inner's transfer with North-West shareholders of company stock for company stock without tax consequences.

Based on an average of closing prices PacifiCorp common stock during the pricing period of $20.15, as adjusted for a PacifiCorp dividend, 111.18 million PacifiCorp shares are to be required to seal the merger.

The merger was expected to result in the acquistion of North-West by PacifiCorp as a wholly-owned subsidiary during the third quarter of 1990, upon the issue by PacifiCorp to Inner of common stock equal to the cash portion of the $272 million merger price for the stock of North-West.

As further reported within the 8-K report, "In an unrelated matter, on July 18, 1990, a United States District Court Judge for the District of Oregon ruled on motions for summary judgement and dismissed all remaining claims against [PacifiCorp] and others for breach of fiduciary duty, common law fraud and violations of federal and state securities and RICO statutes in connection with a series of transactions involving American Network, Inc. (Amnet), including [PacifiCorp]'s initial investment in Amnet."

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows in July of 1990, Great American's (TICKER: GTAM) major creditor reinstated collection proceedings against it over Great American's default on its $5 million credit agreement with that institution.

On July 25, 1990, that creditor acquired at public sale, for a price of $3.5 million, 85% of the common shares of State Bank and Trust Co. from Great American.

The creditor had held that interest, the sole interest in State Bank owned directly by Great American, as collateral against the $5 million-in-principal loan.

That $3.5 million was applied against that principal.

The remaining 14.5% of State Bank was owned by American Bank & Trust Company, Great American's sole and wholly-owned remaining subsidiary.

The creditor agreed not to actively enforce its claims on the resolution of the remaining $1.5 million in debt principal, plus interest and legal fees, pending discussions regarding such resolution.

The creditors, as of the 8-K filing, held the outstanding shares of American Bank & Trust as collateral against the loan.

Management of both Great American and American Bank & Trust continued their efforts with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Office of Financial Institutions for the State of Louisiana to find a purchaser for American Bank & Trust.

Great American would receive no proceeds from such sale.

In other news, Thomas A. Boone resigned as president of Great American, replaced by Gregory J. Cotter, who agreed to work in that capacity free of charge.

Mr. Boone, as of the 8-K filing, continued as chief executive officer and president of American Bank & Trust.

LONDON (AUG. 2) - About 200 Kuwaiti nationals were killed or wounded Thursday when Iraq invaded the tiny Gulf state, Kuwaiti ambassador Gazi al Rayes said here.

Speaking at a news conference in the Kuwaiti embassy here, he appealed to Arab and other friendly countries for help and said superpower intervention could help resolve the crisis.

"The United States, as the main power, has a duty to see that other countries abide by international law," Mr. Gazi said.

Asked if Kuwait wanted the United States to intervene militarily, Mr. Gazi said "Whatever they can do and is possible for them we ask them to do".

He cited "intervention of the superpowers" as one of the possible solutions to the crisis but declined to be drawn on what role he thought they should play.

Mr. Gazi said that two of the Royal Palaces were badly damaged in the Iraqi attack. The envoy said Kuwaiti oil production had so far not been disrupted but that Kuwaiti tankers had been told to stay out of the region.

Mr Gazi said he was aware of reports that the United States had frozen both Iraqi and Kuwati assets and described the move as "normal proceedure".

KHARTOUM (AUG 2) - The last two of six Cuban medical workers held by an Ethiopian guerrilla group since January were released here Thursday.

Dr. Humberto Gonzalez Sanchez, 28, and nurse Cardida Benabudez Carmona, 34, were handed over to the Palestinian ambassador to Sudan, Abu Rajaie, by the director of political affairs in the Sudanese Foreign Ministry, Al Amin Abdel Attif.

The ceremony was held in the ministry of information in the presence of a visiting Cuban delegation, headed by the director of African section in the foreign ministry in Havana, Reinaldo Calviac Lafferxo.

The two Cubans were captured by the rebels of Oromo Liberation Front (Olf) following the fall of the Ethiopian town of Assosa, 700 kilometres west of the capital Addis Ababa, to the rebels January 5.

Olf representative Tadessa Ebba told the ceremony that ''we found them helpless and abandoned by the Ethiopian officials, who fled by airplanes''.

The first two of the six Cubans were flown to Sana'a, Yemen, and handed over to the Cuban ambassador there in April. The next two were released in Khartoum and handed over to U.S. ambassador James Richard Cheek in June.

Addressing the occasion, a representative of Sudan security said Sudan accepted to mediate in the release of the six Cuban medical workers for ''humanitarian reasons. We know that the Cubans were helping the rebel Sudan Peoples Liberation Army (Spla) which is also being helped by the Ethiopian government.''

The hand-over ceremony was held amid tight security measures, with heavily armed security personnel patrolling the area.

Responding to questions after the handover, Dr. Sanchez told reporters that ''I feel good and happy.''

''We have been well treated by the Oromos. They were very good and we had no trouble with them at all,'' he said in English, while his companion who does not understand English smiled and held his hand.

Later they were whisked off by the official car of the Plo ambassador.

The Olf has been fighting the Ethiopian government since early 1970s to change the system in Ethiopia.

COLOMBO (AUG 2) - A Sri Lankan bus driver who drove his bus into the path of a train killing 38 people in January 1989 has been jailed for 190 years by a southern court, news reports said Thursday.

The high court in Balapitiya sentenced Sriyan Ananda on Tuesday for causing the death of 38 people by driving in a reckless and negligent manner.

The accident occurred when the bus collided with a moving train at a level crossing in southern Ahungalla on January 17, 1989.

Among those killed were 28 children returning home from school and a three-month-old infant. Seventy-six people were injured.

According to evidence given by some 50 witnesses Mr. Ananda failed to heed the warnings of a woman by the roadside and the screams of school children inside the bus indicating that a train was approaching.

In a statement from the dock, Mr. Ananda said the engine stalled as the bus approached the level crossing because a wheel had slipped into a pothole.

AMSTERDAM (AUG 2) - Dutch chemicals group AKZO said Thursday its net profit fell 18.2 percent in the first half of this year to 407.4 million guilder (226.3 million dollars).

Group financial director Syb Bergsma said that second half profit was also expected to be lower than in the second half of last year, but the fall would slow. "We are at the trough of the wave," he added.

But in light of the first half results the world's 12th largest chemicals group had decided to speed up the introduction of cost-cutting measures, with job cuts "one of the options" under consideration, Mr. Bergsma said.

The measures would mainly affect the marketing and research and development divisions, and the fibres and polymers operation, he added, but refused to give further details.

Turnover was down 4.2 percent in the first half over the same period last year at 8.9 billion guilder (4.9 billion dollars), while operating profit fell 15.2 percent to 738.6 million guilder (410.3 million dollars).

Net earnings per share fell to 9.17 guilder against 11.5 in the first half of last year.

Mr. Bergsma described the results as disappointing, and said that the fall was largely due to a drop in both volume and value of sales in the chemicals products division.

Turnover in this sector were down 8.9 percent at 2.98 billion guilder, and operating profit plunged 38.8 percent to 234 million guilder.

This was the result of a "steep fall in prices compared to the high level of the first half of 1989" and a "net fall in demand" for base products, Mr. Bergsma said.

The growing influence of environmental protection concerns had also affected sales of some specialised products, including tetra, a basic component of chloro-fluoro-carbons (CFC's).

The group based its relative optimism for the second half on a good showing by its other operations, with turnover in coatings up 18.3 percent at 2.06 billion builder for a 13.8 percent increase in operating profit to 164 million.

Pharmaceuticals did particularly well, with operating profit up 16 percent at 210 million guilder although turnover was virtually unchanged at 1.38 billion.

BANGKOK (AUGUST 2) - Japan is to give 1,616 million yen (11 million dollars) in aid to Laos, a spokesman for the Japanese Foreign Ministry announced here Thursday.

Makoto Yamanaka said Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama, currently on a two-day trip to Laos, had signed the agreement with counterpart Phoune Sipaseuth in the capital Thursday afternoon.

The aid is to be used to develop agricultural and other rural programs in the country and to help repair the Nam Ngum Dam power station, which is suffering from severe neglect.

Mr. Nakayama is the first Japanese cabinet member to visit Laos in 23 years.

Late last year, Laotian Prime Minister Kaysone Phomvihane visited Tokyo, saying that Laos could learn from Japan's modernisation effort. It was the first visit by a Laos head of state to an industrialised democracy in 14 years.

Japan strongly supports Kaysone Phomvihane's attempts at economic reforms and has sent an official of the government-owned Export-Import Bank of Japan to Vietiane to act as an economic policy advisor for six months.

NICOSIA (AUG. 2) - Kuwaiti radio made an impassioned appeal for help from Arab heads of government and state after Iraqi troops invaded Thursday in a lightning operation.

Arab countries observed a cautious silence, several hours after the overnight attack was launched. Arab foreign ministers held an emergency meeting in Cairo, while Syria consulted Egypt and Saudi Arabia to discuss a possible Arab summit.

The radio called on Arab kings, emirs and presidents to come to Kuwait's help, noting that the country belonged to the Arab League, an organisation "whose first duty is to protect its members."

"We cry when an Arab cries, we are sad when he is sad, and we die when he dies," it said.

"God is greater than the aggressors, and we will repel them with His help, and our people's mutual aid and the solidarity of the Arab nation."

The radio, monitored in Cyprus, broadcast appeals and patriotic songs despite reports that Iraqi troops had surrounded the information ministry in Kuwait City where the station is normally located.

OSLO (AUG. 2) - The price of oil from the Norwegian sector of the North Sea soared Thursday after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

In midday trading, the oil was up four dollars a barrel compared to Wednesday, a Statoil spokesman said.

Prices went up two dollars during the night, and that oil was selling for 22.50 in the early morning. As the situation grew tenser in the Gulf, prices leaped another two dollars, the spokesman said. The price increase is the biggest since 1986.

The soaring prices reflect growing concern among industrialized countries that oil deliveries from Kuwait might be drastically cut or come to a complete stop for a time due to the Iraqi military takeover. The International Energy Agency (IEA) said Thursday that stocks in the major consumer countries would last for about 100 days.

During the last few months, Kuwait has produced some two million barrels of oil a day.

OSLO (AUG 2) AFP - A total of 104,900 people were registered as unemployed in Norway at the end of July, official sources said on Thursday.

The number is by 10,400 compared to the previous month, and constitutes 4.9 percent of the work force.

Worst hit is the county of Aust-Agder in the southern part of Norway.

The over-all increase is bigger than expected, even when seasonal changes are taken into consideration, the State Directorate of Labor said. Despite the growing number of people without work, the Ministry of Labor assessed the situation on the labor marked as stable.

TRIPOLI (AUG. 2) - Libya Thursday denied a Chadian claim that it was preparing a ''total war'' against Chad, Jana news agency said.

Jana quoted an official Libyan statement as saying the Chad government issued a communique Tuesday making ''false allegations that the Libya is coordinating with Sudan'' to launch the war.

The Libyan statement said: ''We stress that there is no truth in these allegations... At the same time Libya is ready to establish fraternal relations with all neighbouring states...''

''Nothing has hampered the Libyan Arab will in this connection except the lack of response from the Chad regime to the efforts which are being made for the creation of a favourable atmosphere for establishing good neighbourly relations,'' the statement added.

It said Chad ''has persisted in poisoning the atmosohere and maintaining the state of tension in the area by heightening the spirit of animosity''.

TEHERAN (AUG. 2) - Official Teheran Radio on Thursday reported the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait without comment, while a deputy foreign minister met with a Kuwaiti official here.

The radio reported only that the invasion followed a breakdown in efforts to resolve the oil and border dispute between Iraq and Kuwait.

The foreign ministry was later expected to issue a communique condemning Iraqi aggression, according to informed sources here.

Deputy Foreign Ministry Hussein Sheikholeslam and Mandani Mal-Abdullah, who is in charge of the Kuwaiti Embassy in Teheran, discussed the Iraqi invasion, the IRNA news agency said.

The only public criticism came from the Iranian delegation at an Organisation of the Islamic Conference meeting in the Egyptian capital.

"We remain opposed to all interference in the internal affairs of a sovereign state," said Mohammad Ali Sarmadi, Iran's spokesman at the Cairo conference.

If Iraq installs a "puppet regime" in Kuwait, it will have attained its goal, he added.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) - There were divergent reports here Thursday, in the wake of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, on the whereabouts and destination of a U.S. aircraft carrier flotilla that was moved into the Indian Ocean last week.

The Cable News Network and a U.S. news agency quoted unidentified Pentagon sources as saying the Independence group was steaming toward the Gulf.

But a Pentagon official who declined to be named told AFP the Independence battle group was still in the Indian Ocean.

The official said reports on movement of the group were "pure speculation."

He added that "if we want to move (the Independence), we won't tell anybody."

The Independence battle group is considered the most powerful in the U.S. Navy. It includes two cruisers, a guided-missile destroyer, two frigates and an ammunition supply ship.

The department official said the flotilla arrived in the Indian Ocean last week on a scheduled deployment.

The official said the United States currently had eight warships in the Gulf, a flotilla he called Joint Task Force Middle East.

Last week, that flotilla began joint exercises in the Gulf with the Kuwait's neighbour, the United Arab Emirates, after Iraq massed troops along the border with Kuwait.

The Italian government is "extremely anxious" about the developments in the Gulf region, the statement concluded.

FREETOWN (AUG. 2) - Embattled Liberian President Samuel Doe has asked Sierra Leone authorities to allow two of his government ministers to come here for "urgent medical attention", diplomatic sources said Thursday.

His forces and rebels trying to oust him have been pitted in fierce fighting in and around Monrovia for the past few days.

The ministers' names were not disclosed and authorities here were studying the request, the sources said.

Meanwhile two Nigerian frigates accompanied by a tug docked here Thursday after failing in a bid to evacuate some 3,000 Nigerians from war-torn liberia.

The frigates, NNS Ambe and NNS Damisa anchored off the Liberian coast for eight days but decided not to go ahead with the evacuation because of fierce fighting in Monrovia.

Commandant Alfred Oni, in charge of the fleet, said the vessels would return to Lagos in a few days after replenishing stocks in Freetown.

On Monday, another ship left here after evacuating some 900 Ghanians who were earlier stranded in Monrovia but made their way to Freetown.

Meanwhile a U.S. Navy ship arrived here early Thursday as part of a West African training cruise programme for 19 West African states.

It is not known whether the arrival of both the U.S. and Nigerian ships were coincidental.

NICOSIA (AUG 2) - Kuwaiti radio on Thursday denied the existence of a provisional government which Iraq said had been installed after the overthrow of the ruling Al-Sabah family.

"Kuwait is still Kuwait with its citizens and its government and there is no other government but that run by (emir) Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah and Crown Prince Sheikh Saad al-Sabah," the radio said.

It denounced "this lie used (by Iraq) to invade our country."

Iraq announced that its troops intervened in Kuwait at the request of the "new free Kuwaiti government to assist it in repulsing all interference" in its domestic affairs. But it named no members of the adminstration.

Kuwaiti radio earlier made an impassioned appeal for help from Arab heads of government and state after Iraqi troops invaded the country Thursday in a lightning operation.

NEW YORK (AUG 2) - Iraq's military invasion of Kuwait early Thursday has drawn nearly unanimous censure, although there was no immediate reaction from Arab countries.

The United Nations Security Council unanimously adopted a resolution condemning Iraq for invading its neighbour and called for an immediate and unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi forces. Iraq rejected the admonition.

In Washington, following an all-night emergency session, President George Bush signed an order freezing all Iraqi assets. Kuwaiti assets in the U.S. were also frozen at the request of Kuwaiti officials.

A similar move was under preparation by Britain. Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said his government would try to prevent a transfer of assets by a ''puppet regime'' in Kuwait. The Kuwait Investment Office recently gave Kuwait's assets in Britain as about 50 billion pounds sterling (about 90 billion dollars).

The Soviet Union, which for years provided arms to Iraq, said the invasion

''totally contradicts the interests of Arab states'' and called for the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwaiti territory.

President Bush praised the Soviet reaction, underlining the importance of international cooperation. He spoke of a ''completely unjustified act'' on the part of Iraq and, with respect to the freedom of shipping in the Gulf, said the United States would ''defend ... its vital interests.''

Israel, while also sharply condemning the invasion, ruled out any military intervention at the present time. Defence Minister Moshe Arens indicated that the Israeli army would only intervene if and when Israel felt threatened by Iraq.

Turkey expressed serious concern over the situation and reported that Baghdad has closed their mutual border to traffic from Turkey.

Denouncements also came from the European Community (E.C.) and the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (Nato) in Brussels, as well as East and West Germany, Austria, Portugal, Spain and Sweden.

In Cairo, the current meeting of the Organisation of the Islamic Conference (Oic) Thursday called for an immediate halt to all military operations between Iraq and Kuwait.

A statement by Oic secretary-General Hamid al-Ghabid as quoted by the Egyptian news agency Mena called for ''the withdrawal of the troops which carried out these operations over the internationally recognised borders between the two countries''.

Al-Ghabid appealed to the two sides to resolve their differences through dialogue. Consultations were underway at the Oic ''to search for ways that could help achieve the optimum solution''.

Kuwait has a modest military of some 20,000 men, according to the defense specialists from the London-based International Institute for Strategic Studies (IISS) and Jane's Defence Weekly.

The Iraqi army is equipped with 3,000 fixed artillery pieces, 500 mobile cannons and 200 rocket launchers capable of firing ground-to-ground missiles, such as the Frog-7 and the Scud-B, with a range of 300 to 900 kilometers (185 to 555 miles).

According to IISS and Jane's Defence Weekly, the Iraqi missiles are capable or carrying nuclear warheads. Iraq has consistently denied developing nuclear weapons but has acknowledged possessing chemical weapons.

The Iraqi navy has some 5,000 sailors and includes five frigates, 38 coastal patrol boats, four corvettes and two mine-sweepers.

The 40,000-strong Iraqi air force includes two squadrons of Tupolev 22 and Tupolev 16 bombers.

Iraq has 17 fighter-bomber squadrons of MiG-23s, Mirage F-1s, Sukhoi-7s, Sukhoi-20s and Sukhoi-25s.

It also has 16 squadrons of jet fighters made up of MiG25s, MiG-21s, Mirage F-1s and MiG-29s, one reconnaissance squadron and two transport squadrons.

-- KUWAIT --

The British-trained Kuwaiti ground forces total 16,000 men and include two armoured brigades, a mechanized infantry brigade and one artillery brigade.

The Kuwaiti army has 275 British-made Vickers Mk1, Centurion and Chieftain tanks, and 250 Soviet- and Egyptian-made armoured cars.

Kuwait has 12 Frog-7 missile batteries.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) - China has bought an additional 247,900 metric tons of U.S. wheat under a price subsidy program, the U.S. Agriculture Department said.

Two private exporting companies, Continental Grain Co. and Cargill Inc., made the deals under the department's Export Enhancement Program (EEP), the department's general sales manager said Wednesday.

With the new purchase, China has bought about 2.2 million tons of U.S. wheat for delivery in the 1990-90 wheat marketing year that began June 1. It bought 5.6 million tons last year.

MANAMA (AUG. 2) - The Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on Thursday brings into sharp focus the question of military cooperation among the six member states of the Gulf Cooperation Council (Gcc).

Beside Kuwait, the Gcc comprises Saudi Arabia, Qatar, Oman, Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates. It was formed in May 1981 to coordinate economic, political and defence policies among these mainly conservative oil-rich states.

At that time, observers and diplomats based in the region said the Gcc was formed in a move to deter Iran from attacking these six Gulf states.

Iran and Iraq were then waging a war along a front close to Kuwait's northern border. The Gulf War began in 1980 and was halted by a truce in 1988.

A few hours after Iraqi troops occupied its territory at dawn on Thursday, Kuwait appealed for assistance from Arab and Gcc states to save it from what it called the ''barbarian invasion''.

Although no mention of defence or security was made in the original Gcc constitution, the leaders of this grouping approved at a summit in December 1987 a joint pact which stressed cooperation in security matters and promised military aid to each Gcc state when attacked by a foreign power.

The Gcc agreed to form in November 1984 a joint rapid deployment force against external aggression comprising units from the armies of each country. These units were placed under a central command in the Saudi Arabian town of Hafar al-Batin, close to the Kuwaiti border.

CAPE TOWN (AUG. 2) - Police teargassed students Thursday who defied an order to disperse a march from the University of Cape Town campus to a nearby police station to hand over a protest memorandum.

About 500 students had attended a mid-day meeting addressed by the black nationalist African National Congress's (ANC) Trevor Manuel at the campus before starting their march to the Rondebosh Police station, witnesses said.

They wanted to hand over a memorandum to President Frederik De Klerk to decry the "repressive measures" of the state, but once off campus grounds they were confronted by about 50 armed policemen, who used a water cannon and teargas when students ignored a warning to disperse and sat in the road.

PARIS (AUG. 2) - Tourists in the French capital Thursday jumped fully clothed into Paris fountains or simply stayed indoors to escape a blistering heat wave which has settled over France.

As the thermometer reached 34 degrees Celsius (94 degrees Fahrenheit) in the shade in Paris at 4.p.m. (1400 GMT), the southwestern city of Bordeaux was the hottest place in France with a record 36 degrees (96F). And the weathermen say that more is to come.

In the courtyards of the Louvre museum in central Paris, tourists Thursday clustered around the fountains, watched by an attendant who ordered offenders out of the water. Some were in bathing costumes, but others jumped in fully clothed.

"It's as hot as in Singapore," said Singapore visitor Jean Goh before rushing back to her hotel to take a cool shower.

But a sales vendor explained that drinks sales were down as the temperatures soared, with people preferring to stay at home to escape the broiling heat.

Only a few brave sun-worshippers basked on the Seine river banks, and Paris streets were generally quiet, deserted as every August by hordes of Parisians on their "grandes vacances" (big vacation).

But while tourists on the French beaches enjoyed the sunshine, the heat wave has fuelled alarm among farmers over the persistent drought, and triggered a panic warning on increasingly severe water shortages from the government's geological and mining research bureau.

"It is the first time in a century that there has been such a drought after two consecutive years without autumn and winter rain," a report published by the research bureau said.

French Agriculture Minister Henri Nallet said earlier this week that he feared for the corn and sunflower harvest if the hot dry weather persisted.

The government research bureau detailed water shortages throughout the country after a month virtually without rain. Comparing the water situation with that in April, the report showed a creeping spread of drought-hit regions.

The situation was "critical" in the south-west, on the French riviera and in some regions of central France.

Local authorities in much of France have banned residents from watering lawns and washing cars.

Among the effects of the combined heat wave and drought, thousands of tiny spiders invaded the village of Gy-Les-Nonains, near Montargis south of Paris.

Residents said the spiders crept inside the houses from rape-seed fields, covering the floors and walls.

In western Britanny, firemen were called in to hose down farm buildings where chickens were kept, in a bid to bring down the inside temperatures which can be as high as 60 degrees (140F). But 20,000 died on one farm from asphyxia, local authorities said.

Fish are also suffering from the heat wave: one trout farm in western Charentes is losing 25 to 30 kilos (55 to 66 pounds) per day because of the water temperature.

The weather outlook has meanwhile brought disappointment to summer skiers: the eastern Alps have stopped glacier skiing since last weekend because of a lack of snow.

NEW DELHI (AUG. 2) - Some 27 people, including eight security troops and nine Sikh militants, were killed in Punjab state late Wednesday and Thursday, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said.

The news agency said a sporadic gunfire exchange that erupted between Sikh militants and security forces Wednesday afternoon was continuing late Thursday in Amritsar district on the border with Pakistan.

Of the 27 killings, 15 were in Amritsar, a militant stronghold, police said.

Police shot dead Malgar Singh, a hardcore militant carrying a price of more than 2,800 dollars on his head, in a gunfight in Amritsar district's Kalianwali village Thursday.

Another unidentified militant also died in the fight, PTI said.

Mr. Malgar Singh, accused of several killings and bombings, was an activist of the Babbar Khalsa, one of half-a-dozen hardcore militant groups fighting for an independent Sikh homeland called Khalistan or "Land of the Pure" in Punjab.

Punjab police chief K.P.S. Gill, quoted by PTI, described the killing of Mr. Malgar Singh as "the biggest success" in a 25-day-old sweep against Sikh separatists.

Elsewhere in the same district, a gunbattle between militants hiding in maize and paddy fields and the elite federal National Security Guards left four militants and two commandos dead, PTI said.

The encounter, which began Wednesday afternoon, was continuing, the news agency said but gave no details.

PTI said militants shot dead three Sikh brothers, two of whom were policemen, after abducting them overnight Wednesday in the border town of Baba Bakala, also in Amritsar district.

Another 16 people - four security troopers, three militants and nine civilians - died in a number of violent incidents linked to the bloody secessionist campaign across Punjab in the last 24 hours, it added.

Some 1,400 people have been killed this year in violence linked to the Khalistan campaign. India accuses Pakistan of helping Sikh separatists, but Pakistan denies the charge.

NEW DELHI (AUG. 2) - Sacked Indian Deputy Premier Devi Lal was unrepentent Thursday as he dubbed Prime Minister Vishwanath Pratap Singh "spineless" and alleged he had been dismissed because of a conspiracy.

Mr. Lal, 75, who was ousted late Wednesday eight months after he took the job of cabinet number two, denied calling Mr. V.P. Singh "spineless" in a published interview but said he was making the charge now.

Mr. Lal, a former wrestler, charged that he was being hounded by sections of Mr. V.P. Singh's Janata Dal (People's Party) because of his crusade against what he described as an urban bias in the government.

Mr. Lal, a peasant leader, was dismissed after he made public last week a forged letter purportedly written by Mr. V.P. Singh, accusing Commerce Minister Arun Nehru of corruption.

The sacked politician maintains that he received the document by mail and merely forwarded it to Mr. V.P. Singh.

He followed it up with an explosive interview in a weekly magazine in which he called Mr. V.P. Singh "weak" and "spineless," hurling abuse and corruption charges against cabinet colleagues.

Mr. Lal told reporters outside his residence adjoining the presidential palace that he had not used the word "spineless" in the interview, which he said was conducted in Hindi.

"I never used the word. I didn't know the word. But today I realise he (Mr. V.P. Singh) is spineless," he said, addressing reporters from a wooden cot in typical rural style.

"There is a conspiracy against me," he added, and lashed out against key associates of Mr. V.P. Singh, including External Affairs Minister Inder Gujral and Home Minister Mufti Mohammed Sayeed.

Earlier, addressing a crowd of some 300 supporters, Mr. Devi Lal declared that he would remain a member of the Janata Dal and would not let the Congress (I) party of former premier Rajiv Gandhi return to power.

In a separate statement, Mr. Lal accused unnamed industrialists and business firms of conspiring to finish him politically, and vowed to stage a comeback.

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AUG. 2) - Scottish North Sea oil production was brought to a halt Thursday as 5,000 offshore oil and gas workers staged an unofficial 24-hour strike in a row over safety and working conditions, according to the Offshore Industry Liaison Committee (OILC) representing the trade unions.

Workers were being shipped ashore after refusing to restart work, according to Shell UK Exploration (Shell Expro), which owns 50 percent of the North Sea production.

More than 30 offshore installations off the coast of Aberdeen in north-east Scotland were affected by the stoppage, which started early Thursday morning, said Ronnie McDonald, leader of the OILC - which organised the strike.

"The response has been magnificent" said Mr McDonald, "It is a long drawn-out fight for a trade union agreement which will cover basic conditions and terms of work."

But Chris Fay, Managing Director of Shell Expro, described the action as "being staged with safety as a pretext", saying it interrupted implementation of safety measures.

The unions want workers to be involved in safety management to reduce the risk of accidents on oil rigs.

The strike comes only eight days after six people died when a helicopter transporting oil rig workers crashed into the sea in the Brent field near the Shetland Isles.

The unions are threatening continued industrial action during the summer and are organising ballots for official strike action.

NEW YORK, UNITED NATIONS (AUG 2) - The United Nations Security Council rammed through a lightning condemnation of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait Thursday and demanded immediate withdrawal of Iraqi troops.

But despite the council's unusual speed and unanimity, there were no illusions among diplomats here of prompt compliance from Baghdad, whose army rolled over its tiny neighbor's border and seized the Kuwaiti capital in the early morning hours.

The vote of the 15-member council was 14-0, the delegate from Yemen, the only Arab member, abstaining, saying he had received no instructions from his government.

The surprise vote was from the Soviet Union, which sells Iraq large quantities of military hardware.

As one of the five permanent members of the council, the Soviet Union could have vetoed the resolution.

Instead, voting in favor, it joined the other four -- the United States, Britain, France and China -- in strenuously condemning the Iraqi invasion.

These four also lined with the powerful non-aligned group in the council, made up of Colombia, Malaysia, Zaire, Ethiopia, Ivory Coast and Cuba.

Iraqi U.N. delegate Sabah Talat Kadrat, addressing the council, defended the invasion as "an internal affair which does not concern the council, because Iraq had been invited to render assistance to Kuwait."

He added that Iraqi trooops would withdraw "within a few days or weeks, as soon as order is restored" in Kuwait.

Diplomats here interpreted his statement as indicating that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would pull his army out of Kuwait when and if he wants, without regard to world opinion.

U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar, leaving the security council meeting, praised the swiftness of the council's action.

"The events of the past hours are of the gravest consequence to the United Nations and to its member States," he said.

"All members shall settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security are not endangered," Mr. Perez de Cuellar added.

The United Nations has a good mediating record in the Gulf, having negotiated a settlement two years ago to the eight-year Iran-Iraq war.

But this time, diplomats asserted here, the secretary-general appeared to have missed the mark in his calculations.

Last week, after Iraqi troops began moving to Kuwait's border, Mr. Perez de Cuellar said he did not believe there would be either an Iraqi military action or a U.S. intervention.

With the first portion of the prediction proven wrong, it was the second part that was of high concern here as events in the Gulf evolved Thursday.

VICHY, FRANCE (AUG 2) - The 25 players on Kuwait's national football team here for a month's training, were "absolutely stunned" by the Iraqi invasion of their country, their coach said Thursday.

"We learned the news on television," Hussain Abdullah said.

The team had stopped training in this central city, he added, and players were not certain they would remain in Vichy until the end of the month.

"Myself, I feel like returning home," the coach said. "Even if I have to fight upon arriving, I'm ready to do it."

Mr. Abdullah went on: "We are totally stunned because Kuwait is a peaceful country."

"Since this morning, we've been trying to telephone our families and friends back home. It's not very easy, but I heard there was a curfew in force and fighting in the streets. But apparently they are not occurring throughout the country."

ISLAMABAD (AUG 2) - Pakistan said Thursday that Iraq's use of force in Kuwait was unacceptable and raised fundamental questions about the security of small and vulnerable states.

A Foreign Office spokesman said Pakistan "is deeply distressed at the latest turn of events ... and feels that international differences and disputes must always be solved through peaceful negotiations."

"The use of force or threat of use of force is entirely unacceptable," the spokesman said, adding that Pakistan hoped the differences would be resolved peacefully.

Pakistan, an Islamic state, had maintained neutrality during the eight-year Iran-Iraq war. It was one of the first Moslem countries to react to the Iraqi pre-dawn invasion of Kuwait.

The spokesman said Pakistan was confident that the initiative taken by Saudi Arabia and other Arab states to promote a dialogue would lead to an "honourable settlement."

The possibilities opened by the parleys between Iraq and Kuwait in Jeddah on Wednesday "had not been exhausted by any means." There was every hope that these talks would be continued until an honourable and peaceful settlement was reached, the spokesman said.

Without naming Iraq, the spokesman said Pakistan "regrets" that force was used before the negotiation process could gain momentum and solve the problem according to the Arab League charter and the "legitimate interests" of the two neighbouring states.

He said Pakistan was maintaining close consultations with Arab and Islamic states about the "grave situation in Kuwait which has far-reaching regional and global implications."

"It raises fundamental questions about the security of small and vulnerable states," the spokesman said.

LONDON (AUG 2) - The BBC World Service is to increase its broadcasts in Arabic in direct response to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, the World Service said Thursday.

The World Service Arabic transmissions, which the BBC said Iraq had made intermittent attempts to jam in recent weeks, will be extended by one hour in te evening and half-an-hour in the morning.

"The extra time will be devoted to the Iraqi invasion," said Sam Younger, Head of the BBC Arabic Service. "As always at times like this we expect many listeners in the region will turn to the BBC for accurate information."

Earlier Thursday the World Service broadcast messages for British nationals in Kuwait, advising them to stay at their homes or hotels.

The service, normally on air for nine hours a day, serves the Gulf, the MIddle East and North Africa and is the oldest of the BBC's language services, dating from 1938.

NAIROBI (AUG. 2) - Liberia's seven-month-old civil war, which has so far left more than 5,000 civilians dead, will be over inside the next ten days, rebel leader Charles Taylor told journalists in Monrovia Thursday.

Taylor said the immediate task of his forces was to eliminate the troops of rival rebel leader Prince Johnson before tackling soldiers loyal to embattled President Samuel Doe and toppling the Liberian leader.

Taylor's National Patriotic Front (Npfl) has been stalled around ten kilometres from the presidential villa for the past four weeks. Johnson's forces have managed to penetrate the capital, fighting fierce battles with Doe's troops.

Npfl spokesman Thomas Wofwiyu accused the United States Wednesday of supporting Johnson's forces by supplying them with weapons and helping them to slip into the centre of Monrovia.

Washington has not replied to the accusations but has repeated its offer to provide assistance to President Doe should he decide to flee the country.

Western diplomats in West Africa said President Doe was far more likely to be toppled by a reported lack of sufficient food and water at his villa than by rebel efforts.

Meanwhile, leaders of the Economic Community of West African States (Ecowas) are due to hold an emergency meeting in Banjul, Gambia next week to try and find a peaceful solution to the Liberian conflict, the Ghana News Agency (Gna) reported in Accra Thursday.

Efforts by the organisation last month to mediate between Doe and Taylor's Npfl broke down after the rebels walked out of negotiations but Ecowas executive secretary, Abass Bundu said he was confident a solution could be found. He ruled out the use of force.

NICE, FRANCE (AUG 2) - The Emir of Qatar, Sheikh Khalifa ibn Hamad al-Thani, cut short a vacation in southern France and flew home on Thursday because of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, an informed source said.

The emir, who was staying at his property in Cannet, near Cannes on the French Riviera, flew out of the Nice-Cote d'Azur airport aboard his private plane.

He returned to Qatar "because of the Iraq-Kuwait conflict," the source said, adding that flight plans had been made as soon as news of the invasion broke.

PARIS (AUG. 2) - The Iraqi invasion of Kuwait early Thursday pushed oil prices sharply higher and boosted the prices of two traditional "refuges", gold and the U.S. dollar, with the latter coming back into favor after a week's slide.

In London, North Sea Brent crude oil for September delivery jumped as high as 23.55 dollars a barrel, against 20.45 at the Wednesday close, though the gain was cut back by mid-afternoon to 22.75 dollars following rumors Iraqi might withdraw its troops within 48 hours.

The dollar stabilized around the end of the trading day in Europe at about 1.6050 Deutsche marks and 5.36 French francs, after having risen as high as 1.62 marks and 5.43 francs. Wednesday evening, the dollar was at 5.3395 in Paris and 1.5940 marks in Frankfurt.

Dealers said the foreign exchange markets were extremely nervous, and "huge sums" changed hands, especially in dollar-yen trading, as the Japanese currency came under strong attack because of Japan's total dependence on oil imports.

All stock markets reacted to the news of the invasion, with drops of about 1.2 per cent in Frankfurt and 2.1 per cent in Paris. Wall Street was off 25 points in mid-session.

But business analysts refused to talk about a "mini oil shock", in reference to the two oil shocks of the 1970s that brought sharply higher oil prices and have often been blamed for "stagflation" of industrial economies (low economic activity combined with high inflation).

One European oil company analyst commented that "Unless we get involved in a disaster scenario in which Iraq bombs the Saudi oilfields, we are going toward higher crude oil prices, yes, but not enough higher that one can talk about an oil shock".

Business analyst Jean-Michel Charpin of Banque Nationale de Paris (BNP) said he feared that short-run rises in oil prices might revive fears of higher inflation and defer a move to lower interest rates in both France and the United States.

Analysts feel the dollar is unlikely to resume its downtrend of the last few days as long as the Gulf conflict threatens oil supplies and crude prices trend upward.

A Japan government spokesman said the Iraqi invasion will have no major impact on oil supplies.

LONDON (AUG 2) - The Iraqi invasion of Kuwait would produce a major shift in the strategic balance of the Middle East if it is sustained, military analysts said here Thursday.

Philip Robins, head of the Middle East program at the Royal Institute of International Affairs, said Iraqi President Saddam Hussein was unlikely to order a strike against any other states in the region for the time being.

"But the freedom of action of the smaller Gulf states and even Saudi Arabia will be affected because they will have to placate Hussein in future," he said.

"The Iraqis have been on the ascendant for many months," Mr. Robins said, adding that "they are the best armed of all the Arab states and have the largest military force."

"The imbalance has existed for some months and they are now trying to harvest the fruits of that imbalance," Mr. Robins said.

Mr. Hussein had "gambled" on a quick strike against a much smaller country because of deep resistance in Iraq to another war following the country's 11-year war with Iran.

Don Kerr, Middle East expert with the International Institute for Strategic Studies, described the Iraqi invasion as Mr. Hussein "baring his chest and drumming on it."

He predicted Mr. Hussein would either agree to restore the deposed Kuwaiti regime or would set up a client government and withdraw in exchange for control of the southern part of the Rumaila oilfields and the two islands at the mouth of the Umm Qasr port which Iraq intends to use as its major oil exporting base.

"He might manage to invade other countries but I doubt whether he could effectively maintain them under his control," Mr. Kerr said, adding that Mr. Hussein "does not appear to have a large reserve of people whom he could trust to run his interests outside his direct control."

MONTREAL (AUG. 2) - Thousands of Canadians massed Wednesday night in a Montreal suburb - some of them wearing feathers and beating drums - calling for military intervention against Mohawk Indians who have been blocking a bridge to the city for more than two weeks.

Police said between 5,000 and 10,000 protesters from the southern suburb of Chateauguay demanded stronger action to remove Mohawks who have been protected by police and blockades at the Mercier bridge.

The Mohawks have refused to move from the site as a sign of solidarity with their northwestern brethren of the Oka reservation who had protested development of a golf course on land they claim as theirs.

A clash between the Oka Mohawks and police left one policeman dead.

Tension has been steadily rising among Chateauguay's commuters who have had to take long, roundabout routes to get to the city.

Some of the protesters beat on drums and donned feathers or paramilitary gear similar to their Indian foes Wednesday night and overturned police barricades protecting the Mohawks.

The demonstrators demanded that federal and provincial authorities use a firmer hand to remove the Mohawks from the bridge. About 150 anti-riot police were at the scene.

Police have set up a blockade around Indian areas in Oka where Mohawks have refused to move for 22 days.

Quebecois Premier Robert Bourassa and Quebec's vice president for the Assembly for First Nations, Chief Konrad Sioui, are to meet Thursday in an attempt to end the crisis.

JOHANNESBURG (AUG. 2) - South Africa would have to invest a sum equal to 40 percent of its entire annual budget to close the yawning chasm between whites and blacks in education, according to a damning report Thursday.

A two-year nationwide survey of 10,000 people of all ages, commissioned by a new independent pressure group, Third Alternative, said the education budget would have to be around 29 billion rands (11 billion dollars) to redress the imbalance.

The total budget this year was 73 billion rands (28 billion dollars).

Twenty-three percent of black adults have had no schooling, and 55 percent of all black adults are illiterate, the report said.

Only one quarter of black pupils who started school in 1978 completed their final exam, the matriculation.

One quarter of the 636,000 black pupils who dropped out of school in 1988 did so in their first year, aged around seven. Most quit because their parents could not afford to send them, the survey showed.

Around 1.6 million school-aged black children were currently not attending school.

The 180,000 teachers in black schools constituted only 39 percent of the number that would be needed in 10 years time, the report said.

And on the burning question of the integration of South Africa's racially segregated schools, 47 percent of whites were in favour, compared to 83 per- cent of blacks.

CAPE TOWN (AUG. 2) - Four days into a two-week nationwide strike ballot by the 157,000-strong National Union of Metalworkers of South Africa (NUMSA) a union spokesman said Thursday preparations for a strike were already underway.

Some 5,000 NUMSA workers in the western Cape were "gearing themselves up for a fight," the spokesman said here.

Meanwhile in Johannesburg, South Africa's largest black union, the 200,000-strong National Union of Mineworkers (NUM), was to take an improved pay offer from the five coal mining houses in the Chamber of Mines back to its 16,000 colliers.

The coal miners had already voted 90 percent in favour of a strike to bring the nation's 22 collieries to a standstill. The NUM is demanding pay hikes of between 18 and 20 percent, up to 5.7 percent ahead of the official inflation rate, and met the Chamber of Mines for talks Wednesday.

MOSCOW (AUG. 2) - There were no survivors in the crash Wednesday of a Soviet passenger aircraft in Azerbaijan, the Tass new agency reported Thursday.

The small Yak-40 Aeroflot plane had 26 registered passengers and four crew members aboard.

The independent Interfax news agency reported, however, that "several passengers without tickets" had been on the flight from the Armenian capital of Yerevan to the Nagorny-Karabakh regional capital of Stepanakert.

The wreckage of the plane was spotted by helicopter about 20 kilometres (13 miles) from Stepanakert but it was unable to land because of bad weather.

BERLIN (AUG. 2) - Otto Lambsdorff, West German Liberal leader and a key figure in the Bonn government coalition, called Thursday for German reunification to go ahead in October instead of December because of East Germany's severe economic problems.

"The earlier the better," Mr. Lambsdorff said here after meeting with East German Liberal leaders to discuss a merger with his West German FDP Liberals, due to occur at a congress in Hanover August 11 and 12.

Currently, German reunification is scheduled to take place with the first pan-German elections December 2.

However Mr. Lambsdorff said the East German public was impatient for unity and that the process should be speeded up to attract badly needed investment.

He said Liberals in both Germanies preferred reunification to occur at the time of regional elections set for October 14, or, "at the latest, on December 1".

Meanwhile, senior officials from both Germanies reported major advances Thursday in negtiations on a treaty spelling out details of the unification process.

In a joint press conference, West German Interior Minister Wolfgang Schaeuble and Guenther Krause, East German secretary of state to the prime minister, said a "consensus, to a great extent" had been reached on how structural changes in East Germany are to be financed.

The two men, who were to continue Friday three days of negotiations, said they also made advances on pan-German public services.

However some East German laws would remain in force, as requested by East Germany, Mr. Krause said.

Mr. Schaeuble said a first draft of the treaty could be signed Friday after the current round of negotiations, and a final text could be ready by the end of the month and ratified in September.

However disagreement remained over the ministry charged with forming new Laender, as German states are known, and over whether Berlin should become the capital of the future single German state.

JAMMU, India (AUG. 2) - Indian authorities clamped an indefinite curfew on the northern region of Kashmir Thursday after 16 people were killed in fresh outbreaks of violence, 11 shot dead by the army, officials said.

Authorities gave security forces shoot-to-kill orders in anticipation of organised violent pro-independence protests by militants and their supporters on Thursday, a Moslem religious holiday.

Soldiers opened fire in the town of Pattan, killing 11 people, after a Moslem crowd attacked an army convoy.

Five other people had died in incidents linked to the bloody separatist campaign elsewhere in Jammu and Kashmir state's Moslem-majority Kashmir valley in the previous 24 hours, officials said.

The clampdown came amid fears of pro-independence demonstrations as Moslems observed Muharram, a religious holiday commemmorating the martyrdom of Imam Hussain, the prophet Mohammad's grandson, 1,400 years ago.

Moslems reached by telephone from here complained the security dragnet had hampered religious ceremonies.

Kashmir's supreme Shiite leader, Agha Syed Mustaffa Almausvi, was turned back from Srinagar by security forces when he arrived to lead a religious congregation, they said.

"It is a serious matter involving the denial of our religious freedom," a Moslem resident said.

An official spokesman here said intelligence reports had predicted that Moslem secessionists would take advantage of religious rites to hold anti-India rallies or attack troops.

Violence linked to the secessionist drive has left more than 1,000 people dead so far in 1990.

TEHERAN (AUG 2) - Iran on Thursday condemned the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and demanded the withdrawal of Iraqi troops to the internationally recognized border.

Iranian television, quoting a foreign ministry communique, added that Iran "for national security reasons could not stay indifferent" in the face of the Iraqi operation.

KUWAIT (AUG. 2) - Kuwait issued a plea to the world for help Thursday after Iraq forces staged a lightning invasion, seized control of the capital and ousted the country's ruling emir, Sheikh al-Ahmed as-Sabah.

''We appeal to all our friends and the world, including the United States, to come to our aid,'' said Kuwaiti ambassador to the United States, Sheikh Nasir as-Sabah, in Washington. He said there had been many casualties but gave no exact figures.

''U.S. military intervention is paramount and important,'' said as-Sabah at a press conference amid reports that some fighting was still going on in the oil-rich Gulf kingdom.

Heavily-outnumbered Kuwaiti troops continued to offer resistance to Iraq's forces, the Egyptian news agency Mena reported. According to eyewitnesses, one of the emir's brothers had been killed in the fighting.

The emir was reported to have escaped to safety in Saudia Arabia in a helicopter, according to Israel army radio quoting Abu Dhabi radio.

As-Sabah said the emir and the crown prince were in good health, in a safe place and conducting the resistance (against Iraq). He did not reveal where the Kuwaiti rulers and their ministers were hiding.

Iraqi troops backed by tanks, armoured cars and personnel carriers thrust across the border into Kuwait early Thursday in a well-oiled military operation. They quickly reached the capital some 100 kilometres away.

The Kuwaiti ambassador in Brussels claimed between 100 and 200 people had been killed during the Iraqi invasion. He told Belgian radio that some Kuwaiti troops were still fighting.

LISBON (AUG 2) - A newly organized committee here plans to airlift food and medical supplies to famine victims in drought-hit Angola, a spokesman for the group said Thursday.

The group, made up of Angolan businessmen living abroad and Portuguese figures from a wide political spectrum, has warned that up to one million people could die from starvation in Angola by October.

Members of the committee said they had the support of Portuguese President

Mario Soares and Angolan Ambassador to Lisbon Rui Mingas.

Distribution of the aid is expected to be carried out by humanitarian organizations with the help of Angolan authorities, who pledged their assistance after the rebel National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA) pledged not to attack the convoys.

UNITA reportedly had welcomed the operation.

Meanwhile Luanda, home to more than a million people, has been hit by a new power outage since the beginning of the week after rebels sabotaged a high-voltage electricity line.

Forty pylons north of Luanda were destroyed in an attack, military sources said Thursday.

A third round of peace talks between UNITA and the Angolan Government is due to begin here shortly and could bring a cease-fire agreement, according to observers.

BRUSSELS (AUG. 2) - The European Economic Community called on Eritrean rebels Thursday to open the captured Red Sea port of Massawa so humanitarian aid could get through to famine victims in northern Ethiopia.

The 12-nation EEC's "urgent appeal" to a representative of the Eritrean People's Liberation Front (EPLF) in Washington came after a ship carrying a United Nations team on a food-relief mission was refused entry to Massawa last week.

An estimated four million people face starvation in the region because of drought.

The port has been closed to relief efforts since the rebels, seeking independence for the northeastern Ethiopian province of Eritrea, captured it in February.

The EPLF has been battling a series of Ethiopian governments for about 30 years.

PARIS (AUG. 2) - The Paris Bourse did not panic on Thursday following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, operators said, but suffered a substantial loss all the same as the CAC-40 index was down 2.12 percent at the close.

It was off 0.56 percent at the opening, and the loss had reached more than three percent in mid-afternoon, before stock prices made up a bit of ground.

Operators said volume was higher than in previous days, especially on oil and arms stocks, but had not reached an exceptional level. The majority of them expect the conflict to be confined to Iraq and Kuwait, but analysts expressed concern about the risks to Western economies, particularly France.

They said that higher inflation could result from sharply higher oil prices and a higher dollar, making it unlikely that interest rates would come down -- a development the Bourse has been hoping for for some months.

There was considerable interest in Thomson-CSF, with a million shares changing hands as the price rose by 5.4 percent. Salsigne, the only French gold miner, jumped by the same amount, and Matra was up by five percent.

On the downside, CSEE plunged by 9.4 percent, while Club Mediterranee shed 4.4 percent and Rhone Poulenc 4.7 percent.

HAMBURG (AUG. 2) - Iraqi troops Thursday ousted from power the emir or prince of Kuwait, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad as-Sabah, who had ruled his country in a benevolent but autocratic way.

As-Sabah was born in 1928 and headed the country since 1977. He is regarded as one of the wealthiest people in the world due to the immense resources of oil-rich Kuwait.

Official estimates in 1985 put Kuwait's population at 1.72 million, but only 681,288 were Kuwaiti citizens. The country has invested billions of petro-dollars in Western industry stocks.

In 1981, the now deposed emir responded to increasing public pressure and allowed elections for the 50-seat parliament, which was dissolved by his late father in 1976 following harsh criticism against the government.

But as-Sabah dissolved the new parliament in 1986 on the grounds that it was destabilising the country. Opposition deputies had been critisising ministers for their handling of government affairs and accused some of them of being corrupt.

Following pro-democracy demonstrations at the end of 1989 and at the beginning of this year, elections for a ''transitional assembly'' were held in Kuwait during which 50 deputies were elected and 25 nominated by the emir.

Out of the 50 elected Mps, 35 were pro-government, six were from the Moslem Shiite minority and nine backed the opposition, which had pointed out that the elections were unconstitutional. The assembly was to work out a new constitution.

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (AUG. 2) - Silke Maier-Witt, a suspected member of the terrorist Red Army Faction, was turned over to the federal prosecutor's office here by East German authorities Thursday, a spokeman said.

Ms. Maier-Witt, 40, a West German, went east in 1980 and made a new life under the assumed name Sylvia Bayer.

She surrendered peacefully here Thursday, the spokesman said.

West German authorites suspect her of having taken part in the 1977 kidnap and murder of West German businessman Hanns-Martin Schleyer.

She was expected to be indicted later in the day, they said.

Ms. Maier-Witt is the sixth suspected member of the left-wing terrorist group to be handed to over to West German authorities by East Germany.

BUCHAREST (AUG. 2) - Romanian student leader Marian Munteanu, in jail since the crushing of anti-government demonstrations in mid-June, was freed Thursday by state prosecutor Gheorghe Robu.

"The conditions that led to his preventive detention no longer exist and there is no longer any reason to believe his release would endanger public order," Mr. Robu said a press statement quoted by the Rompres news agency.

The state prosecutor said it had been necessary to keep the student leader in jail until now because of "extreme insecurity" brought about by the events of June 13, 14 and 15."

Mr. Munteanu was seriously injured on June 14 after authorities sent in the miners to crush anti-communist demonstrations in central Bucharest. He was then arrested four days later while in hospital.

Mr. Munteanu, leader of the Romanian Student League, was charged with "instigating violence" and "destroying public property" and detained in a jail in a Bucharest suburb.

The release order came one day after Romanian President Ion Iliescu's call for political calm in the country in the wake of a number of demonstrations to protest Mr. Munteanu's continued detention.

NICOSIA (AUG 2) - Dubbed "The Prussia of the Arab world" by some diplomats, Iraq has resorted to force to settle what had been a largely rhetorical feud with its neighbor Kuwait and made crystal clear its determination to become the dominant Arab political power.

Even before Thursday's sweeping invasion of Kuwait, Iraq had developed into the pre-eminent Arab military and technological force.

Its ground units number some 650,000 men, bolstered by an elite presidential guard of 45,000.

The Iraqi air force, with some of the best pilots in the Arab world and between 400 to 500 aircraft at their disposal, has an overall strength of 35,000 men.

Reservists numbered some 350,000 men at the height of the Iran-Iraq war and have just been mobilized.

The eight-year conflict with Iran, which ended in a cease-fire in August 1988, has furthermore left Iraq's 44 divisions battle-hardened and combat ready.

In December 1989 Iraq stunned the world with its launch of a three-stage rocket capable of putting satellites into orbit and carrying military warheads.

"It was a veritable thunderbolt," commented one Western diplomat, "that shook the strategic balance in the region."

Arab states hailed the event, including Kuwait. "I am proud of what Iraq has done because this technological prowess will benefit the whole Arab world," said the director of a Qatar newspaper.

Bursting with self-confidence, Iraq since then has boldly raised the stakes in an ominous test of wills with the West.

The authorities in March brushed aside international appeals for clemency and executed Farzad Bazoft, an Iranian-born British-based journalist, on spying charges.

When British and U.S. customs officials the same month disclosed what they said was a plot to smuggle nuclear detonators to Baghdad, Iraq's collision course with the West was confirmed.

In April officials in Britain and several other Western European countries charged that Iraq was trying to import components that could be used to manufacture a giant gun.

Western leaders were further shocked when Iraqi President Saddam Hussein last April announced that his army possessed sophisticated chemical weapons and would not hesitate to set half of Israel ablaze if Iraq came under an Israeli attack.

President Hussein's defiant, hardline posture in the face of Israel, the United States and Britain earned him the admiration of many in the Arab world. With great pomp and much pride, Iraq hosted an Arab summit in May, attended by all members of the Arab League except Syria and Lebanon.

But despite its military and technological might, Iraq is burdened by a 70 billion dollar debt left over from the Gulf war, a foundering economy and an ageing petroleum infrastructure.

Convinced that overproduction by Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates had been deliberately designed to undermine the Iraqi economy by depressing world oil prices, President Hussein in mid-July threatened to use force to bring quota-busters into line.

"Iraq's ambitions are above all directed toward the Gulf," a Baghdad-based Western diplomat said recently. "It's not looking for a clash with Israel. Its not interested by what happens in the Mediterranean."

"What Iraq wants above all is for the Gulf monarchies to help it rebuild after the war, as it is convinced that Iraq had defended the entire Arab nation -- and the Gulf states in particular -- against Iran."

ALGIERS (AUG 2) - Algeria demanded the "immediate withdrawal" of Iraqi forces after their "unacceptable invasion" of Kuwait in a statement released Thursday by the foreign ministry spokesman.

The statement said that Iraq should "respect the sovereignty and the independence" of Kuwait and described the invasion as "an exceptionally serious precedent."

Algeria expressed its "profound consternation and extreme concern," and called for a negotiated settlement to the conflict.

In Rabat, the Moroccan government said in a statement released by the information ministry that it "severely condemns the military occupation of our brother country Kuwait, an occupation which took place in violation of all fundamental principles which govern international law."

"These flagrant violations," said the statement, "also go against the charters of the United Nations and the Arab League."

BAGHDAD (AUG 2) - Iraq announced late Thursday that it was suspending its debt repayments to the United States until Washington revises its decision to freeze Iraqi assets and properties in the United States, the official INA news agency reported.

Quoting Acting Finance Minister Mohammad Mahdi Saleh, the agency said Baghdad's action was in retaliation against the decision by U.S. President George Bush to freeze Iraqi assets in the United States.

Mr. Saleh described Mr. Bush's decision as "unfair and without foundation," adding that Iraq did not want an escalation with Washington which would jeapordize economic cooperation between the two countries.

Mr. Saleh said Iraqi assets in the United States, whose value he did not disclose, were derived from oil-related transactions and served as dollar payments for Iraqi purchases abroad.

Iraq has said that its troops had intervened in Kuwait at the request of the "new free Kuwaiti government to assist it in repulsing all interference" in its domestic affairs.

The invasion came a day after bilateral talks in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, to resolve a bitter oil production and border dispute collapsed.

KUWAIT (AUG 2) - Significant numbers of Iraqi troops backed by tanks and personnel carriers were heading late Thursday towards the oil ports of Al-Shuaiba and Al-Ahmadi, south of here, an eyewitness said.

"From 7:00 p.m. local time (1600 GMT) to 10:30 p.m., 'ring number seven' (a beltway around the towns) was transformed into a truck, tank and troop transport line," said the witness, whose apartment overlooks the highway.

Iraq invaded Kuwait early Thursday in a lightning operation after bilateral talks in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, to resolve a bitter oil production and border dispute collapsed.

The Mina Abdallah refinery is located in the area where the new troop deployments occurred.

A diplomatic source here said the troop movement was "logical" after the Iraqi takeover of Kuwait's city center.

Other eyewitnesses said calm had been somewhat restored to the downtown area and that only intermittent gunfire could be heard.

TYRE, LEBANON (AUG. 2) - At least 60 people were "killed or wounded" when a car bomb exploded in this southern Lebanon port city late Thursday, hospital sources said.

The blast occurred around 11:00 p.m. (2000 GMT) near a building owned by the pro-Syrian Shiite Moslem Amal militia, which controls Tyre, police said. Police estimated that the vehicle which exploded was packed with about 100 kilograms (220 pounds) of TNT.

Casualties were heavy because the car bomb blast occurred just ten minutes after another, weaker explosion took place in the area, attracting a crowd.

ASPEN, CO (AUG. 2) - Iraq's lightning invasion of Kuwait marks a blunder for U.S. intelligence, which failed to anticipate the strike despite the presence of 100,000 Iraqi troops on the Gulf countries' common border, analysts say.

Since Iraqi troops began to mass on that frontier last week, officials in several nations had played down the Iraqi threat as a bluff to pressure Kuwait into paying billions of dollars in compensation for oil that Baghdad alleged Kuwait had pumped out of disputed territory.

U.S. intelligence agencies appeared to have concluded that after eight years of war with Iran, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would be reluctant to pick another fight.

Wednesday, as an estimated 100,000 Iraqi troops were poised to attack their tiny oil-rich neighbor, a White House spokesman voiced "concern" and called for Iraq and Kuwait to resume stalled talks on an oil production and pricing dispute.

The spokesman, Roman Popadiuk, said the United States was monitoring the situation in the Gulf closely. After the invasion, Kuwait's ambassador to the United States, Saud Nasir al-Sabah, told a press conference in Washington that the emirate had had "suspicions" of hostile Iraqi intentions. But he added that Kuwait had been assured by foreign leaders, including U.S. officials, that Kuwait would not be invaded.

U.S. officials, however, insisted that U.S. intelligence had not blundered. Before leaving Washington on a trip to to Colorado to honor a long-standing commitment to give a speech on defense, President George Bush was asked if the United States had been taken by surprise.

"Not totally by surprise because we have good intelligence and our intelligence has had me concerned for some time about what action might be taken," he replied.

A State Department official, speaking under ground rules that barred his being identified, echoed that view Thursday. "We had good intelligence and our intelligence people said that they were concerned about the situation," the official said.

The official said the assistant secretary of State for Near Eastern and South Asian affairs, John Kelly, summoned the Iraqi ambassador for consultations twice on Wednesday.

In the second meeting with Ambassador Mohamed Al-Mashat - shortly before midnight - Kelly expressed in the strongest terms Washington's opposition to the use of military force to settle disputes, the official said.

Kelly also stressed the need for Iraq to protect American lives in Kuwait, the official said. It was not clear why U.S. officials chose that moment to summon the envoy when the troop buildup had apparently been going on for days.

The Washington Post Thursday quoted a Pentagon official as saying Iraqi troops "started to move" during the day Wednesday in a massive formation close to the border and that by the end of the afternoon some Pentagon officials were predicting that an Iraqi invasion was inevitable.

Government analysts who had downplayed the prospect of an invasion argued that the logistical support needed for such a strike - fuel, ammunition, and food - had apparently not accompanied the troops amassed on the border.

Experts said that at least in the first stage of the invasion, Iraq may not have needed much logistical support. The Kuwaiti capital, Kuwait City, is only 70 kilometers (45 miles) from the Iraqi-Kuwaiti border to the north. A modern tank meeting little resistance could cover that distance in two hours without refueling, and also benefits from the fact that Kuwait has good roads, analysts said.

WASHINGTON (AUG 2) - Six U.S. oil workers were missing in Kuwait Thursday and were in the hands of invading Iraqi forces, a State Department official said.

"We can confirm that one of the American oil companies has reported that six of its workers in oil fields near the Iraqi border have gone missing," the official said.

He said that at this stage he could identify neither the company nor the workers.

He said the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait had asked the Iraqi forces for information about the whereabouts of the missing Americans and reminded them of their commitment to protect U.S. citizens.

Earlier another State Department official said: "There are a few Americans who worked in the oil fields near the border and they have been moved by the Iraqis and at this point we are not sure where they are," the official said on condition of annonymity.

President George Bush, questioned earlier in the day about reports that Americans working in Kuwait were being rounded up by Iraqi forces, said such action "would affect us in a very dramatic way because I view a fundamental responsibility of my presidency is protecting American citizens.

"If they're put into harm's way, I have certain responsibilities," he said. Mr. Bush said Thursday he was not contemplating U.S. military intervention in Kuwait but also refused to rule it out.

NAIROBI (AUG. 3) - The third world needs greater financial support to develop without undue damage to the environment, United Nations Environment Program (UNEP) director Mostafa Tolba told environment ministers meeting here Thursday.

"We cannot start action towards non-destructive development unless the divide between rich and poor is closed," he said.

The ministers were attending a UNEP governing council meeting before a meeting of experts who are to thrash out the issues to be discussed at the U.N. conference on the environment to be held in Brazil in 1992.

West German Environment Minister Klaus Toepfer said tough action was needed to stop global warming and deforestation.

Mr. Toepfer said the UNEP conference on the environment and development to open Monday should agree on specific steps to reduce emissions of carbon dioxide, one of the main greenhouse gases responsible for global warming.

If the rise in global temperatures is allowed to continue unchecked, it could cause cataclysmic climate changes throughout the planet, delegates said.

"Ecologically, we are all in the same boat," Mr. Toepfer said. "Everybody will be a loser unless we cooperate in protecting the environment."

Several delegates from developing nations expressed concern that mounting awareness in the West of the need to avert further environmental damage could divert funds and attention from much-needed development.

"The West should help developing countries fund environmental pollution measures," said Zambian Minister of State for Water, Lands and Natural Resources Anthony Ndalama.

"Africa as a whole has been suffering economic deprivation, as a result of unfair pricing mechanisms for its commodities," he said.

Depressed world prices for commodities such as coffee, tea and cocoa have hit many African countries hard.

TOKYO (AUG. 2) - The United Arab Emirates' Abu Dhabi National Oil Co. has notified oil importers here that it will cut its direct deal September oil shipments to Japan by 10 per cent, industry sources said Wednesday.

The cut is in line with agreements reached at the meeting in late July of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to boost world prices by cutting back supplies, they said.

The UAR is Japan's largest oil, accounting for 20.4 per cent of this country's total oil imports last year.

Japan was also previously informed that the UAE would reduce August shipments by 30 per cent from the initially agreed volume, the sources said.

TAIPEI (AUG. 2) - Total assets of Taiwan's offshore banking units amounted to 17.34 billion U.S. dollars in the first half of 1990, up 35 per- cent over the same period last year, the Central Bank said Thursday.

Claims on financial organizations accounted for 86.8 percent of the assets, with loans to non-financial institutions and investments in securities accounting for the rest, the Central Bank said.

Deposits from financial institutions made up 93 percent of liabilities, with 80 percent of the deposits coming from Asia, 11 percent from the United States and four percent from Europe.

Eleven 11 local and 15 foreign banks have joined Taiwan's offshore banking units system since it was introduced in June 1984 in an effort to develop the island as one of regional financial centers in the Asia-Pacific area.

Frankfurt (AUG. 2) - Deutsche Bank, West Germany's largest commercial bank, reported here Thursday its group first-half operating result surged 17 percent over the same period of 1989.

As is customary, the bank in its letter to shareholders did not divulge the operating result which includes earnings from trading on its own account.

But it said the partial operating result, which excludes own-account trading, reached 2.2 billion Deutschmarks (1.37 billion dollars), up 14 per- cent on the partial result in the first six months of 1989.

The bank said its business turnover reached a volume of 376.3 billion marks (235 billion dollars), up 27.4 billion marks or 7.6 percent on the turnover of the first half of 1989.

The shareholders letter attributed the operating result rise mainly to improved earnings on interest. It said the bank was ''confident about developments in the second half of 1990''.

The bank said the parent stock company accounted for 232.7 billion D-marks of the overall business volume, up 13.1 percent, and for 1.5 billion D-marks, up 12 percent, of the partial operating result.

Deutsche Bank reported that it now held 85 percent of the Deutsche Kreditbank, the former East German State Bank. The West German bank now had 140 branches and 9,300 employees in East Germany.

The earnings rise outpaced the growth in turnover, which reached 13.84 billion D-marks, up two per cent from the first half of 1989.

The West German carmaker said its production in the first half of 1990 reached 278,470 cars, a gain of 2.3 percent over the same period a year earlier.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AUG. 2) - The Australian dollar plunged more than one U.S. cent to close at 78.30 cents Thursday in the wake of a surprise decision by the central Reserve Bank to cut interest rates.

At least one major bank, the Commonwealth Bank, immediately announced a 0.25 percent reduction in home mortgage rates to 16 percent, although the government had not expected mortgage rates to be affected so quickly.

Two other major banks, ANZ and the National Australia Bank, said they would meet Friday to review their interest rates.

Treasurer Paul Keating said the Reserve Bank's move to cut cash rates, a decision which stunned financial markets, was an effort to prevent the economy sliding into recession.

"We have never embraced a scorched earth policy, we are not looking for a recession and we want this change to make that clear," he said.

But he said the government still had a strong monetary policy in place.

Mr. Keating told a news conference he expected a one percentage point cut in cash rates to flow immediately into lower bank prime rates.

The Reserve Bank action, which followed Wednesday's consumer price index release showing a reduced inflation rate, was not expected by financial markets before the August 21 budget.

Westpac Banking Corp.'s financial markets economist Dennis Mahoney described the move as justified because it had been obvious for several months that the economy was slowing and the private sector was in "considerable distress."

However, the timing was a surprise, he said. "It caught the markets unawares. This was to be a quiet day in the office, but it's turned out to be quite a turbulent one."

Citibank economist Antonio Dottore said he was "surprised and puzzled" by the move.

"Most people were expecting it but not until after the budget," he said.

ANKARA (AUG. 2) - Iraq "unilaterally" closed a key border post with Turkey early Thursday, allowing passage only to vehicles leaving Iraq, while Turkey summoned the Iraqi ambassador here to express "concern" over Baghdad's invasion of Kuwait.

The Turkish Anatolia news agency said the border crossing at Habur, south of Silopi, in southern Turkey and Zakho in Iraq was closed on the "unilateral decision of Iraq".

It said all vehicles from Turkey were refused entry, though foreign vehicles could still leave Iraq. Habur is the main passage point for tank trucks transporting Iraqi oil for shipping from the southern Turkish oil port of Yumurtalik.

The Turkish foreign ministry, meanwhile, summoned the Iraqi ambassador here, Aduljabbar Jawad, to express "Turkey's concern following the entry of Iraqi troops into Kuwait", a foreign ministry spokesman said.

He met with the deputy secretary of state in the foreign ministry, Tugay Ozceri, who urged that "the situation be ended before it takes on a bigger dimension", the spokesman said.

Numerous Turkish workers are employed in Kuwait.

Turkish border guards also said they had requested a meeting with Iraqi officials over the border closing.

STOCKHOLM (AUG. 2) - Two Soviet hijackers facing extradition from Sweden begun hunger strikes, the director of the prison where they are detained said Thursday.

Meanwhile another imprisoned Soviet hijacker took a step closer to extradition from neighbouring Finland.

Director of Stockholm's Kronoberg prison Lars-Aake Pettersson, said Mikhail Mokretsov, 18, and Anatoly Mishalenko, 19, were placed under observation after refusing food and liquids Thursday morning.

The two hijacked internal flights in the Soviet Union on June 30 and July 5.

The Swedish High Court Tuesday approved the extradition of Mr. Mishalenko, while Mr. Mokretsov's case was still to be considered, the court having delayed a decision Wednesday after the 18-year-old attempted suicide.

A third hijacker, Dimitri Semionov, 17, was returned to the Soviet Union July 17.

Meanwhile in Helsinki Thursday, Finnish Interior Minister Jarmo Rantanen rejected a plea for asylum by Mikhail Vorfolomeiev, 21, who hijacked an internal Soviet flight to Finland on June 24.

Mr. Rantanen said his case did not meet criteria laid down by the U.N. for granting political asylum.

The case now goes to the Finnish Justice minister, who will decide if the youth should be extradited to the Soviet Union, or tried by a Finnish court.

On July 27, Finland extradited Oleg Kozlov, 20, who hijacked an Aeroflot flight to Helsinki on June 19.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) - The U.S. Embassy in Kuwait is safe and there has been no attempt to penetrate it since Iraqi forces invaded the tiny Gulf state, a State Department official said Thursday.

"We have reports that Iraqi forces are in control of much of Kuwait, but we can't confirm," said the official.

Asked about reports that invading Iraqi forces had surrounded the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait, the official said: "The embassy is safe and there has been no attempt to penetrate it."

He said there had been gunfire in the vicinity of the U.S. diplomatic mission but no U.S. casualties had been reported.

He said the reports indicated that fighting was continuing.

The official, who was in regular contact with Kuwaiti officials, confirmed that the Emir of Kuwait, Sheikh Jaber Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah, was safe but would not comment on his whereabouts. Reliable sources in Riyadh said the Kuwaiti emir had sought refuge in Saudi Arabia.

KARLSRUHE, WEST GERMANY (AUG 2) EFE - A former member of the leftist Red Army Faction (RAF) guerrilla group detained in East Germany was handed over to West German authorities Thursday, a spokesman for the West German attorney general announced.

Silke Maier-Witt was the sixth of a total of eight RAF members detained in East Germany to be extradited to West Germany to face charges.

She is accused of taking part in the kidnapping and murder of West German industrialist Hans Martin Schleyer in 1977, and an assassination attempt on the attorney general that same year.

The left-wing RAF carried out a campaign of violence against prominent West German businessmen and politicians throughout the 1970s and 1980s.

PANAMA CITY (AUGUST 2) EFE - A bomb placed under a car exploded in the Panamanian capital Thursday, close to the houses of two high-ranking Panamanian state officials without causing casualties, authorities said.

The bomb went off outside the houses of Comptroller General Ruben Dario Carles and Electoral Tribunal magistrate Manuel Icaza, destroying Icaza's car .

Windows in the area were shattered, and a hole ripped open in the road.

No group has claimed responsibility, and it is not known what type of explosive was used.

The United States invaded Panama December 20 last year, toppling dictator Manuel Noriega and installing Guillermo Endara as president.

PANAMA (AUG 2) EFE - The environmentalist organization Greenpeace Thursday asked the Panamanian and U.S. governments to ban ships from carrying radioactive material through the Panama Canal.

"If one of these ships had a serious accident in the Canal, Panama would be uninhabitable for hundreds of years," Greenpeace officials said at a press conference in the capital.

The London-based ecology group said that there have been three recent accidents involving vessels from the Pacific Nuclear Transport Ltd. company which carries highly radioactive nuclear material from Japan, through the Panama Canal, to France and Britain.

Greenpeace called on the Panamanian government to ban further transport of nuclear material until the relevant environmental tests have been made and asked the United States to back its request so as to assure the protection of the Panamanian population and environment.

In 1989, 11 boats each carrying at least 65 tons of nuclear material went through the Canal and the next one is due to cross this weekend.

Greenpeace added that, although safety measures had been taken, they were insufficient and criticized the absence of an emergency plan in case of an accident.

CATANZARO, Italy (AUG. 2) EFE - Twenty people, including five police officers, were wounded Thursday during a protest against U.S. plans to move 72 F-16 fighter-bombers from Spain to a NATO air base in southern Italy which has yet to be constructed, police said.

The demonstrators, in the southern Italian town of Catanzaro, were demanding that plans to build the Crotone air base to house the 401st Tactical Fighter Wing be scrapped.

The planes are currently housed in the Torrejon U.S. air base near Madrid, but a 1988 agreement between Spain and the United States mandates that the planes be removed from the country by May 1992.

On Tuesday the U.S. House of Representatives voted 312-82 to stop funding on the construction of Crotone for 14 months amid criticism that improved East-West relations have rendered the costly base unnecessary.

CHICAGO (AUG. 2) UPI - Wheat futures rallied on professional buying Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade, but closing prices for other grains and soybeans were mostly lower.

Much of the buying in wheat was said to be short-covering on ideas the market had been oversold. Wheat had made contract lows for several days. Gains were limited by the continued lack of any significant export sales of wheat.

Corn was pressured by widespread selling and favorable weather conditions, along with the lack of export business. December corn fell to a low of $2.46 1/2 per bushel, and was down 3 1/4 cents for the day.

Soybeans rallied early in response to higher prices for crude oil and gold then turned lower as sellng interest picked up. Beans were pressured by the posting of heavy delivery notices for the August contract. Country movement was light.

At the close, corn was unchanged to down 3 1/4, soybeans off 3/4 to 4 3/4, wheat unchanged to up 3 1/2 and oats down 3 3/4 to 4 1/4.

HANOI (AUG. 2) XINHUA - THE SMUGGLING OF FOREIGN COMMODITIES IS BECOMING INCREASINGLY RAMPANT IN VIETNAM AND THE OFFICIAL PRESS HERE DESCRIBES IT AS A "CRITICAL CALAMITY" FOR THE COUNTRY.

ACCORDING TO "QUAN DOI NHAN DAN", THE VIETNAMESE ARMY'S NEWSPAPER, THE COMMODITIES BROUGHT INTO THE COUNTRY THROUGH SMUGGLING CHANNELS TOTAL TWICE THE AMOUNT IMPORTED THROUGH LEGITIMATE MEANS.

THE NEWSPAPER DISCLOSED THAT THE SMUGGLING ACTIVITIES INVOLVE MANY ECONOMIC ELEMENTS. "WHAT IS SERIOUS IS THAT QUITE A FEW GOVERNMENT INSTITUTIONS, ORGANIZATIONS AND EVEN THE ARMED FORCES TAKE PART IN SMUGGLING," IT ADDED.

THE SMUGGLED COMMODITIES, WHICH ACCOUNT FOR AT LEAST 60 TO 65 PERCENT OF THE TOTAL ON THE MARKET, HAVE BEEN ENTERING VIETNAM BOTH FROM AIR, SEA AND LAND, IT SAID.

THE VIETNAMESE-CAMBODIAN BORDERS ARE REPORTED AS KEY CHANNELS FOR THE SMUGGLED GOODS, WHICH INCLUDE TRUCKS, CARS, VIDEO-TAPE RECORDERS, CIGARETTES, BEER, GARMENTS, TEXTILES, PLASTIC PRODUCTS, SHOES AND OTHER ARTICLES FOR DAILY USE.

THE LARGE AMOUNT OF SMUGGLED COMMODITIES IS SERIOUSLY AFFECTING THE VULNERABLE VIETNAMESE ECONOMY. HOME-MADE PRODUCTS ARE UNABLE TO COMPETE WITH FOREIGN ONES BOTH IN PRICE AND QUALITY, THEREBY LEADING TO HUGE PILING OF STOCKS. MANY FACTORIES AND ENTERPRISES HAVE STOPPED PRODUCTION OR GONE BANKRUPT.

IN RECENT MONTHS, THE PRICES OF GOLD AND THE U.S. DOLLAR HAVE BEEN RISING RAPIDLY BECAUSE MANY INSTITUTIONS AND INDIVIDUALS ARE ACTIVELY ENGAGED IN CURRENCY SPECULATION.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 3) XINHUA - INTERFERON IS THE FIRST TREATMENT TO RELIEVE AND EVEN CURE LINGERING HEPATITIS B INFECTIONS, THE LEADING CAUSE OF CIRRHOSIS AND LIVER CANCER, U.S. RESEARCHERS SAID.

RESULTS FROM A CLINICAL TRIAL INVOLVING 126 PATIENTS AT 12 MEDICAL CENTERS THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES INDICATE THAT INTERFERON ALPHA-2B, A SYNTHETIC VERSION OF A NATURALLY OCCURRING IMMUNE SYSTEM HORMONE, CURES 10 PERCENT OF PATIENTS AND ABATES THE VIRUS INFECTION IN 30 PERCENT.

ACCORDING TO TODAY'S "NEW ENGLAND JOURNAL OF MEDICINE," EVEN USING THE MOST EXQUISTELY SENSITIVE PROBES FOR THE HEPATITIS VIRUS, INVESTIGATORS COULD FIND NO SIGNS OF THE DEADLY MICROBE IN THE CURED PATIENTS' CELLS.

CHRONIC HEPATITIS B IS A MAJOR CAUSE OF LIVER CANCER AND CIRRHOSIS. UNTIL NOW THERE HAS BEEN NO WAY TO TREAT THIS CHRONIC CONDITION.

INTERFERON WAS FOUND LAST YEAR TO BE AN EFFECTIVE TREATMENT FOR THE TYPE OF NON-A, NON-B HEPATITIS THAT WAS RECENTLY DESIGNATED HEPATITIS C WHEN TRACES OF THE VIRUS THAT CAUSES IT WERE DETECTED. BEFORE THAT, THIS HEPATITIS WAS UNTREATABLE.

INTERFERON INDUCED LONG-LASTING REMISSIONS IN ABOUT 25 PERCENT OF THOSE WITH HEPATITIS C, WHEREAS IT INDUCED SUCH REMISSIONS IN 40 TO 50 PERCENT OF PATIENTS WITH HEPATITIS B.

HEPATITIS B IS SPREAD THROUGH BLOOD AND SEXUAL CONTACT, AND HEPATITIS C IS SPREAD LARGELY THROUGH BLOOD. ANOTHER TYPE OF THE VIRUS, HEPATITIS A, IS SPREAD THROUGH CONTAMINATED FOOD AND WATER AND CAUSES SHORT-TERM LIVER INFLAMMATION.

WORLDWIDE, 300 MILLION PEOPLE, OR 5 PERCENT OF THE POPULATION, ARE CHRONICALLY INFECTED WITH THE VIRUS.

AMERICAN EXPRESS BANK has been licensed to operate in Poland, and will become the first major Western bank to issue credit cards in the Eastern Europe.

FROM THE BULLS:

"The market held up well, considering the banks were savaged," says LARRY WACHTEL of PRUDENTIAL-BACHE SECURITIES INC. "It could have gotten clobbered but didn't. That's good." ("Investor's Daily", 8/2)

FROM THE BEARS:

A major bear market began at the start of 1990, says JAMES DINES in the "Dines Letter." "The entire subsequent action has been a bear market rally." He calls the move to 3000 a "sucker's rally, a kamikaze top formation." While he believes some kind of August rally might spring from the ashes, he advises investors to nurture their 1 buying power and accumulate cash. (CNBC "World Business", 8/2)

"This is a market that is only interested in a narrow group of growth stocks," says STEVEN EINHORN, portfolio strategist at GOLDMAN, SACHS. "That is a market that doesn't have a healthy foundation, which is a market that is vulnerable. This is a market that will not prove to be rewarding relative to bonds or relative to cash." Einhorn is recommending that balanced accounts remain only 50% invested in stocks, with 40% in long-duration bonds and 10% in cash. (WSJ, 8/2)

"Generally, the stock market reaches certain points in its cycle where it's very vulnerable to major decline," says WALTER WILLIAMS of AMERICAN BUSINESS ECONOMETRICS. "We have a confluence of negative factors that, right now, give you one of those times." He points to lower corporate earnings, low liquidity growth rates and the possibility of a recession as some of those factors. (FNN "World Business Update", 8/2)

STOCK MARKET:

"I sense a growing nervousness and bearishness," says J. DAVID MILLS, portfolio manager of BOSTON CO. ADVISERS. He says growth-stock investors are losing confidence that their stocks will continue to be big winners in the second half. "The ability to forecast earnings in this economy is tough." (WSJ, 8/2)

"I feel we are in a trading range market with Dow 2800 as the midpoint," says JOHN H. LEE of PENSION MANAGEMENT INC. "However, I think there is more money to be made on the long side than on the short." But he advises investors to be selective. ("Investor's Daily", 8/2)

"All year, this market has been a tug of war between disappointing earnings, which are bad for stocks, and declining interest rates, which are good for stocks," says BYRON WIEN, investment strategist at MORGAN STANLEY. "Right now, the focus of the market is more on earnings than it is on rates." (WSJ, 8/2)

"If the [Friday unemployment] numbers show further weakness, it could lead the Federal Reserve to ease interest rates," says KIDDER, PEABODY trader DICK MAKIN. "That would limit the downside to stocks. But you still need some spark -- like progress on the federal budget deficit -- for the market to shed the doldrums." ("USA Today", 8/2)

In London trading this morning, strength in the oil shares is masking weakness in the broader market, says SHEARSON'S London-based analyst MICHAEL BENSON. He looks for a delayed opening of oil stocks in New York, with the broader market moving lower until trading in oil issues lifts it. He thinks oil stocks will make new highs but may not be able to sustain them. "It could be a wild and jerky day on Wall Street," says Benson. (FNN "World Business Update", 8/2)

"It definitely feels to us as though the jury's verdict has been delivered

" says ELDON MAYER, chairman of LYNCH & MAYER, a growth- stock oriented money management firm. "Until further notice, the leadership of the market is in a narrowing phase, and that has to be bad news to investors in general. The hope of the market breadth improving is pretty much dashed now." (WSJ, 8/2)

"There has been a tendency, particularly in the last two weeks, to do a little profit-taking in the winners whether there was disappointment or not," says ROBERT FARRELL, chief market analyst at MERRILL LYNCH. "It started when we had some of the breaks begin to appear in the technology stocks and McDONALD'S." (WSJ, 8/2)

"We have an underpining of weakness [in the stock market]," says JACK 2 BARBANEL, president of FIRST GLOBAL ASSET MANAGEMENT. "The bond market rallies and the stock market doesn't go anywhere. We've gotten our lower interest rates and look where the stock market is. What Wall Street should be praying for is not necessarily lower interest rates [but] a budget compromise." (Reuters, 8/1)

DAVID BOSTIAN, chief economist for JESUP, JOSEPTHAL & COMPANY, said the weak economic reports yesterday meant "recession is coming" but that stocks did not rise in expectation of lower interest rates because of the "negative impact of recession" on corporate profits. "There's still hope," he says, "that the Fed will ease further, but don't I think the Fed's easing will be rapid enough to help corporate profits -- and that's what the market pays attention to." (NYT, 8/2)

The individual investor is fleeing the Japanese stock market due to the illicit practice of brokerage firms compensating large clients for losses they may incur. ROBERT ZIELINSKI of JARDINE FLEMING SECURITIES says, "[Authorities] are trying to make the Japanese stock market a little more fair by eliminating these practices." But he maintains that unless they are successful soon, the market will feel the loss of the individual investor. (CNN "Moneyline", 8/1)

"Don't be shaken out of your good stocks," advises the CABOT MARKET LETTER where editor CARLTON LUTZ believes it's still a bull market. SUMMIT TECHNOLOGY is "now offering the best buying opportunity you'll see all year." (CNBC "World Business", 8/2)

TERRY MURPHY of SMITH BARNEY now rates NOVELL INC. an "aggressive buy" instead of a hold. She says profit is likely to be higher than previous expectations. She predicts earnings of $2.52 for 1990 and $3.18 in 1991, compared to earnings of $1.46 for 1989. ("Investor's Daily", 8/2)

RICHARD BOVE of DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS says the selloff of bank stocks is

"lunacy. The situation is nowhere near as bad as the market is viewing it. ... People should be buying money-center bank stocks." But GEORGE SALEM of PRUDENTIAL-BACHE says dividends are vulnerable and notes that he has "been a big bear on these [stocks] for over a year." He recommends only three of the 23 bank stocks he follows: J.P. MORGAN, FIRST WACHOVIA and NBD. ("USA Today", 8/2)

"Investors are worried about California real estate," says NANCY SPADY, analyst at MORGAN STANLEY. "Unfortunately, I don't think people are differentiating between commercial and residential lenders." She maintains a buy recommendation for GREAT WESTERN FINANCIAL and H.F. AHMANSON because of their focus on residential real estate lending. Both stocks fell yesterday in the general decline of bank and S&L stocks. (WSJ 8/2)

With the Dow in a trading range, JOHN H. LEE of PENSION MANAGEMENT INC. advises selective buying. He likes oil stocks and consumer non- cyclicals specifically, CPC INTERNATIONAL, UNILVER PLC, CONAGRA CORP. and TOOTSIE ROLL INDUSTRIES. ("Investor's Daily", 8/2)

"The last few weeks [in the market] have been very difficult," says MORRIS SMITH, new manager of the FIDELITY MAGELLAN FUND. "The most important thing to remember in this environment is don't be oriented toward the short term all the time. You've got to keep a longer term perspective." His favorite stock now is FANNIE MAE: "Once the market gets over these fears about the credit situation in the country and higher interest rates, the stock should do quite well." FALLS CHURCH, VA (AUG. 2) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

The jump in the dollar is a "flight to safety," according to WALTER WILLIAMS of AMERICAN BUSINESS ECONOMETRICS. "If the situation stabilizes, I'd look for the decline in the dollar to resume very shortly," says Williams. (FNN "World Business Update", 8/2)

It is "really hard to say" whether the dollar can hold the gains it has acheived after yesterday's invasion, says LIAM NEWBERG of MERRILL LYNCH. "There have been lots of predictions that the dollar was going to dip ...

but when you have something unsettling like this, obviously the dollar's going to increase as a safe-haven currency." (FNN "World Business Update", 8/2)

"A lower dollar is the equivalent of lower interest rates," says KEITH RAPHAEL, a CHASE MANHATTAN vice president for foreign exchange. "I doubt we'll see another easing in credit policy before October. Instead, the Fed will hope weak fundamentals will weaken the dollar enough to improve the trade deficit." The resulting rise in exports would be a welcome boost for the U.S. economy, he says. (WSJ, 8/1)

There is "a very bullish tone [to the bond market] and it's emanating from the money market," according to JIM BENHAM of BENHAM CAPITAL MANAGEMENT. Benham advises caution, and likes the short-term issues best. He warns that "if we have stagflation, the long end won't hold up." But if a budget agreement is hammered out, "We could have a rip-roaring market," says Benham. ("Investor's Daily", 8/2)

PETER MAYERS, Treasury securities trader at the New York office of BANK JULIUS BAER of Zurich, says that bond traders were "shocked" by the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PURCHASING MANAGEMENT report "and once again investors rushed to lock in declining yields, which led many of them to the longer Treasury maturities." He continues, "We can't see the yield on the short notes remaining much longer at so low a discount to what investment professionals can get on similar or shorter maturities such as commercial paper." Mayers says, "We think it won't be long before the Fed eases." (NYT, 8/1)

The failure of Congress to raise the debt ceiling has hurt the prospects for the upcoming auction, according to some dealers. Without a new "debt ceiling the dealers cannot presume settlement," says BRIAN FABBRI of MIDLAND MONTAGU SECURITIES. WAYNE AYERS of BANK OF BOSTON concurs, saying "That is not a source of good news for the auction." ("Investor's Daily" 8/2) 1

"The market is pricing in very slow economic growth and another easing and therefore nothing is standing in its way, not even the auctions," says JOSEPH PLOCEK of McCARTHY, CRISANTI & MAFFEI INC. ("Investor's Daily", 8/2)

THE ECONOMY:

"The Purchasing Managers' Report, while increasing prospects for lower rates since it portrayed a weak economy, also depresses earnings prospects " says A.C. MOORE, director of research at ARGUS RESEARCH CORP. "That was enough to result in the downtick in the market." The NAPM index fell to 47.4% from 51.1% in June. Economists had expected a 50.8% reading. Any level below 50 indicates the manufacturing sector of the economy is declining. (UPI, 8/1)

"I think you have to be worried about the economy at this time," says ROBERT BRUSCA, chief economist for NIKKO SECURITIES. His concern stems from the surprising reading of the NAPM index. "Almost no one was looking for this index to fall at or below 50%, so the decline was really quite steep and rather troubling." (CNBC "Business View", 8/1)

"It's not too soon to talk about [recession], since it doesn't depend on what's happening with us, but abroad," says ALBERT WOJNILOWER, senior advisor at THE FIRST BOSTON CORP. He believes actual contraction of the economy is unlikely until foreign demand for U.S. goods slows markedly. (Reuters, 8/1)

"I can't convince myself that we're in the middle of a recession," says FRANCIS SCHOTT, chief economist at EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY. "The economy is moving sideways, not down." But DAVID JONES, chief economist at AUBREY G. LANSTON & CO., says, "What we have got is an economy that is slowly sinking into possibly a mild recession by either late this year or early next." ("USA Today", 8/2)

GEOFFREY MOORE, a professor at COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY, expects a recession early in 1991, but for now says, "My own view is it's simply a matter of very great uncertainty. There are signals of recession and signs that we'll keep on with a slow-growing economy." (Reuters, 8/1)

"If consumers get nervous and business gets nervous and pulls back more, we could drop into a recession," warns JOSEPH CARSON, senior economist at CHEMICAL BANK. "Confidence is very important." (Reuters, 8/1)

Market sentiment needs a confidence boost to offset fears of a sluggish economy, says DAVID BLITZER, chief economist for STANDARD & POOR'S. "At this point the financial markets are looking for some confidence that things will continue to grow, and I think that confidence needs progress on the budget -- clear direction from the federal government in terms of policy-making." ("Nightly Business Report", 8/1)

Brent North Sea crude for September delivery is up $2.48 to $23.28, highest in four and a half years. Expect prices to continue to move higher says, MARI BUGLASS this morning from London where she is senior oil analyst for SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON. She says last year's high of $25.30 on West Texas intermediate could easily be taken out today. (CNN "Business Morning", 8/2)

IN WASHINGTON:

PRESIDENT BUSH is threatening to step up attacks on the Democrats about the budget deficit, which could hurt the chances of a deficit- cutting compromise this fall. "Brother, he's got fire in his belly," says HOUSE

REPUBLICAN LEADER ROBERT MICHEL of Illinois. He adds, the President is "certainly not going to keep his trap shut all during August." "It's going to make it very difficult to arrive at a negotiated settlement if the administration deliberately poisons the political atmosphere over the next few weeks, which they seem intent on doing," says SEN. JIM SASSER (D. - Tenn.). SEN. PETE DOMENICI (R. - N.M.) concedes, "The odds of us not being able to get it done are increased over two weeks ago." (WSJ, 8/2)

In the continuing budget saga, the ARMED SERVICES COMMITTEE votes against the funding of additional B-2 bombers to the outcry of the administration. CHAIRMAN LEE ASPIEN (D. - WISC.) explains, "Our budget recognizes that defense spending is going down and in the long run it is not going to be possible to fund all systems currently under development." ("Nightly Business Report", 8/1)

The RESOLUTION TRUST CORP. announces it will put 71 properties from failed S&Ls on the auction block Nov. 15 in Dallas. Included are six hotels, 31 shopping centers and 28 office buildings. "This is our fall inventory reduction sale," says WILLIAM SEIDMAN, head of the RTC. ("USA Today", 8/2)

CHARLOTTE, MI (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Spartan Motors, Inc. (NASDAQ: SPAR) second-quarter earnings tripled over the year-earlier level to $840,793 or $.18 per share, from last year's net income of $263,960 or $.06, George W. Sztykiel, president, reported today.

Revenues for the second quarter, ended June 30, 1990, rose to $14,711,920, up 65 percent from $8,911,898 in revenues for the second quarter last year.

Six-month net income was $1,156,104, or $.25 per share, on revenues of $25,571,315, as compared to net income of $657,104, or $.14, on revenues of $18,763,942 last year.

Sztykiel said the company is gratified that the investment made in plant expansion and in new product and new market development is beginning to pay off. He said the company is expected to continue to operate at this new, higher level, for at least the next few quarters, including through the summer months, which are historically slow.

July, for example, historically one of the slowest months of the year, has enjoyed order levels that approximate those of the preceding months. He attributed this performance in part to the excellent acceptance of the company's new Series 90 design fire truck chassis.

This chassis, with its 12 1/2-inch longer cab, is the quietest, coolest and roomiest in the industry, Sztykiel noted.

Spartan is also enjoying record new motorhome chassis orders, in spite of an overall industry slowdown. Sztykiel attributes this to the fact that, during slow times, buyers are more selective and demand higher quality and the special features which Spartan custom chassis offer.

While fire truck chassis dominate in dollar amount shipments, the company is now shipping two motorhome chassis to every fire truck chassis. Fire truck chassis are more than twice as expensive than the average custom motorhome chassis.

Spartan Motors, Inc. is the leading manufacturer of custom-designed fire truck chassis, motorhome chassis and other specialty and emergency vehicle chassis.

SAN ANTONIO, TX (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. Long Distance Corp. (USLD) today reported net income of $116,420 on revenues of $5.2 million for the third quarter ended June 30, 1990, up from a net loss of $131,656 on $2.4 million in revenues for the same period in 1989. This represents a 115 percent increase in revenues compared to the same quarter a year ago.

Third-quarter revenues also represent a 26 percent increase over the second quarter ended March 31, 1990, when the company recorded revenues of $4.1 million. The third quarter's $116,420 net income compares with a $309,645 net loss in the second quarter.

"Achieving consistent profitability has been our primary goal for 1990," said Parris H. Holmes Jr., president of USLD. "These earnings are a direct result of a continuing surge in new business. For five consecutive quarters USLD has enjoyed at least a 15 percent increase over the preceding quarter's level of business, and management believes this business expansion can continue over the next four quarters."

Holmes continued, "If we are successful at maintaining this rate of growth we will exceed $6.2 million of business during our fourth quarter ending Sept. 30, 1990. This would result in nearly $19 million in revenues for USLD's 1990 fiscal year and generate over $34 million in revenues for fiscal 1991.

"USLD is currently realizing a 3 percent pre-tax profit margin and management believes that over the next five quarters this margin could grow to approximately 7 percent, resulting in $200,000 in profits for the fourth quarter and over $2 million in profits for fiscal 1991. Due to a $1 million loss during the first half of 1990, the company is projecting a net loss of $700,000 for its current year, after realizing a projected $300,000 in profits for its last two quarters," Holmes said.

USLD's primary business is providing long distance telephone service to the hospitality and pay phone industries. The company also provides billing and collection services to interexchange carriers. The company currently provides over 2.5 million minutes per month of long distance service to its hotel, pay phone and hospital customers and processes 3 million records per month through its billing and collection subsidiary.

On July 9, 1990, the company's common stock began trading on NASDAQ under the symbol "USLD."

COEUR D'ALENE, ID (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Hecla Mining Co. (NYSE, PSE: HL) earned $2 million, or seven cents a share, in the second quarter of 1990, an improvement over 1989's second quarter, when the company showed a loss of $3.2 million, or 12 cents a share.

In the second quarter of 1990, revenue was up 33 percent to $34.5 million compared to $25.9 million in the same period last year. Increased gold production and a $2.4 million net tax benefit, primarily from a favorable settlement of outstanding tax issues from prior years, kept Hecla profitable in the second quarter despite lower precious metals prices. For the first six months of this year, Hecla earned $6.6 million, or 24 cents a share, on revenue of $68.5 million. That compares to a loss of $5.7 million, or 21 cents a share, on revenue of $50.3 million in the first six months of 1989.

Gold operations performed admirably, producing more than 32,500 ounces of gold during the second quarter compared to about 19,500 ounces in the second quarter of 1989. Sharply increased gold production was aided by the smooth start-up of the Yellow Pine operation in Central Idaho which produced nearly 8,500 ounces during the month of June. Yellow Pine is expected to yield 60,000 ounces of gold during the 1990 mining season. The Republic Unit produced almost 21,000 ounces of gold in the second quarter of this year.

Silver production increased during the first half of 1990 compared to the same period last year as a result of increased production at the Greens Creek Unit in Alaska. Although at current prices Hecla does not show a profit from silver operations, the company's cash cost of production is low enough to maintain a positive cash flow.

The price of gold decreased during the second quarter of 1990, averaging $365 per ounce compared to $374 per ounce during the second quarter of 1989. Silver fared no better, with an average price of $5.01 per ounce in the second quarter of this year compared to $5.51 per ounce in the second quarter of 1989.

Hecla Mining Co., headquartered in Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, is a leading domestic producer of newly mined silver and gold, and a supplier of premium ball clay, kaolin and specialty aggregates. The company has operations and projects under development in 12 states and three Canadian provinces.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Solid core insurance and pension operations of The NWNL Companies, Inc. (NASDAQ-NWNL), fueled strong earnings for the second quarter of 1990, although the company's results were affected by several unusual developments with significant financial impact.

Second quarter income including capital gains and losses from continuing operations reached $19,812,000, or $1.59 per share, compared with $16,305,000, or $1.26 per share, for the same quarter in 1989.

For the year to date, income including capital gains and losses from continuing operations totaled $36,540,000, or $2.90 per share, compared with $27,913,000, or $2.16 per share, for the first half of 1989. Book value increased to $40.25 per share from $38.70 as of the end of 1989.

NWNL has decided to divest Provident General Insurance Co., its personal lines property and casualty insurance subsidiary. Financial results from this business segment are now separately reported as discontinued operations and a charge of $5.8 million was taken in the second quarter to reflect the expected cost resulting from the divestiture.

John E. Pearson, chairman and chief executive officer, said, "It has become increasingly apparent to us that NWNL's real strength lies in its core businesses, which are individual life insurance and annuities, group insurance and pensions. Provident General is an effective competitor in the employer-sponsored auto and homeowners insurance market, but we have concluded that expanding our core business operations is the best strategic use of our resources."

NWNL has retained the investment banking firm of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette to assist with the divestiture.

Other significant second quarter developments were: -- A $13 million one-time addition to earnings from the release of accrued income taxes which were no longer necessary following a second quarter settlement of the 1981-1985 tax years.

-- Net after-tax capital losses of $10.8 million primarily due to increases in writeoffs and allowances for losses on problem investments. Continued tightening of credit by lenders to the real estate sector during the second quarter, combined with other economic conditions, has caused NWNL's expectations of recoveries on problem mortgages to be less than previously anticipated.

Therefore, even though commercial mortgages in NWNL's portfolio which are delinquent or in foreclosure have declined since the first of the year, NWNL has significantly increased allowances for losses. This reflects the company's policy of reserving or writing down assets to address problems as conditions warrant.

Key results from core businesses for the first half of 1990 included: -- Individual insurance income of $21.8 million excluding realized gains and losses, down slightly from 1989;

-- Growing strength in the Group Insurane Division, where income excluding realized gains and losses was $9 million, up 58 percent from the 1989 total; and

-- Income excluding realized gains and losses of $11.3 million in the pension division, compared with $9.7 million in 1989.

NWNL's related businesses also achieved favorable financial results. For the life and health reinsurance division, income excluding realized gains and losses reached $6.9 million for the first six months of 1990 compared with a small loss in 1989. The property and casualty reinsurance subsidiary also continued to contribute positively to earnings.

President and chief operating officer John G. Turner said, "These results indicate that we have chosen the right strategic direction for the company and we feel confident that increased concentration on our core businesses will enable us to achieve our long-term objectives."

Insurance in force for the company rose to $94.9 billion through the end of June. Assets increased to $8.4 billion.

The NWNL Companies, Inc., is a Minneapolis-based diversified holding company specializing in insurance and financial services.

LONDON (AUG 2) PR NEWSWIRE - TI Group continued to achieve growth in profits in the first half of 1990, the company reported today. Pre-tax profit was 63.3 million pounds sterling, compared with 49.2 million pounds in the first half of 1989, an increase of 29 percent. Earnings per share were up 22 percent from 22.2p to 27.0p.

The interim pre-tax profit for 1990 includes 3.3 million pounds for which there was no corresponding credit in 1989, representing half of the annual pension surplus which now arises under SSAP24. Adjusted for this item the increase in pre-tax profit is 21 percent and in earnings per share 12 percent.

The directors have declared an interim dividend of 6.5p (1989 5.75p), an increase of 13 percent, payable on Oct. 5, 1990 to members on the register at the close of business on Aug. 16, 1990.

Operations "Our strategy, which has resulted in a balanced geographic and industry spread, has been a continuing source of strength in the first half of 1990.

Financial Commentary "Operating profit and operating cash flow are running significantly ahead of last year. The increase in cash flow has been used to fund higher tax and dividend payments. Acquisitions, reorganization costs and other movements in funds exceeded disposal proceeds to give an overall outflow for the first half of the year. We continue to hold substantial positive cash.

"The Multiple Option Facility established in 1988 has been re-negotiated to improve flexibility. At the same time the size has been increased from 300 million pounds to 380 million pounds to permit new banks to participate and others to increase their level of participation.

"We have recently established a sponsored ADR facility in the U.S.A. to facilitate investment in TI by U.S. investors and our U.S. employees.

Prospects "I am pleased with our results for the first half of 1990. TI is well positioned for the future and, as indicated a year ago, the group results are now more evenly balanced over the year. The industry and geographic spread resulting from our strategy is, as expected, proving to be a source of strength, despite the more difficult economic conditions in some parts of the world, and our strengthened management team is performing well.

"The directors have confidence in TI's future progress," said Christopher Lewinton, chairman.

DONALDSVILLE, LA (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Melamine Chemicals, Inc. (NASDAQ: MTWO), today announced the results of its operations for the quarter and year ended June 30, 1990.

Net earnings for the year ended June 30, 1990, were $7.6 million or $1.39 per share as compared to net earnings of $6.5 million or $1.19 per share a year ago. For the three months ended June 30, 1990, net earnings were $1.9 million or $.35 per share as compared to $1.7 million or $.30 per share for same period in fiscal 1989.

James W. Crook, chairman, stated the improved results for the year reflect the benefit of improved sales prices and lower raw material costs. Although production was disappointing and limited the amount of product available for sale, record profits were attained.

Crook also stated that while progress is being made in completing the start-up of the new M-II plant, a significant number of problems remain. In addition, because of encouraging developments in the identification of potential markets for unrecrystallized M-II product, coupled with the cost of building a chemical treatment facility, the company will continue its efforts to sell the unrecrystallized M-II and has deferred indefinitely adding a chemical treatment facility.

Melamine Chemicals, Inc., announced the declaration of a quarterly dividend. The board of directors declared a quarterly dividend of 6 cents per common share payable on Aug. 31, 1990, to record holders as of Aug. 17 1990.

Melamine Chemicals, Inc., is engaged in the production and marketing of melamine, a specialty chemical having numerous industrial and commercial applications. The company is actively engaged in the development of new melamine process and applications technology. The company is one of only two producers of melamine in North America and one of the five largest producers worldwide.

The redemption price is $25 per share plus any accumulated and unpaid dividends. The anticipated redemption date is mid-September, subject to obtaining regulatory approvals necessary in conjunction with a standby underwriting. Additional information on the redemption will be set forth in the redemption notice to be mailed to holders of the Series E preferred stock.

business, Seminole Fertilizer Corporation, have been terminated and no further discussions are contemplated.

ANNAPOLIS, MD. (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - UNC Incorporated (NYSE: UNC) today reported improved earnings from continuing operations for the second quarter and first half of 1990 following recent actions to reduce debt and curtail exposure to decreased defense spending in order to concentrate its future efforts on the commercial aviation industry.

In restating results for the prior periods which exclude the newly discontinued operations, earnings from continuing operations were $.04 per share in the second quarter vs. $.01 per share in the prior year, and $.11 per share in the first half of 1990 as compared with $.03 in 1989.

Under the terms of the agreement, the initial contractual reimbursement of approximately $30 million from the DOE will be received in early August.

As of the end of the second quarter, the company also discontinued its environmental businesses by selling UNC Geotech and UNC Remediation for $24 million in cash to a subsidiary of Chemical Waste Management Inc., and discontinuing UNC Reclamation by reducing its carrying value to its estimated net realizable value.

UNC Incorporated, listed on the New York Stock Exchange, is engaged in overhauling aircraft engines and aircraft components; manufacturing and repairing jet engine parts; and providing other services to the nation's aviation industry.

MORRIS TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Allied-Signal Inc. (NYSE: ALD) today announced it will construct a new plant in Longwy, France, to manufacture polyester fiber for passenger car tires, seat belts, and other industrial applications.

The new plant is expected to begin operation in early 1993 at a cost of $160 million. When fully operational, employment is expected to be about 300. The facility will be constructed so that capacity to meet market demand can be added incrementally, at a minimum cost, and without disrupting ongoing manufacturing.

Allied-Signal has been manufacturing high performance polyester since 1971 in Moncure, N.C., and has annual industrial polyester sales of about $150 million, including exports to Europe.

"The Longwy site is strategically located so that we have excellent access to all our European customers. It will also allow us to take advantage of new markets in Eastern Europe as they develop," said Fred Poses, president of Allied-Signal Engineered Materials.

"Allied-Signal has established itself as the world's high quality, low cost manufacturer of tire and industrial polyester fibers. We have anticipated building a plant in Europe for a long time and we have determined that the time is right," Poses said. "We have had excellent cooperation from the government of France, and look forward to building a world class facility in Longwy like the one we have in the U.S."

Poses said Allied-Signal believes European tiremakers will follow the lead of U.S. and Far East manufacturers who have switched to the use of all polyester for tire reinforcement. The European tire market currently uses a combination of rayon, nylon and polyester reinforcement.

"Through the technological advances made by Allied-Signal over the last decade, tire manufacturers can substitute polyester for rayon and maintain the desired performance properties at a significantly lower cost," he said.

Allied-Signal Inc. is an advanced technology company with businesses in aerospace, automotive products and engineered materials.

SPOKANE, WA (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Inland Gold and Silver Corp. (NASDAQ: INGS) today reported net income of $80,484 or 1 cent per share from sales of $848,000 for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990. The company had a loss of $50,961 from no sales made during the same period in 1989.

Gross profit from operations for the three month period was $271,268 compared to a gross loss of $44,671 for the same period last year.

The increase in second quarter earnings is a direct result of the sale of gold carried forward of (12,965 ounces) of 1989 Toiyabe Mine production. 8,000 of these ounces were sold forward at $420 per ounce for Feb. 1, 1990 delivery. 2,000 ounces were sold forward at $424 per ounce for April 1, 1990 delivery, the sale of which is reflected in the second quarter earnings. The remaining 2,965 ounces are currently held in inventory.

General and administrative expenses for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990 totaled $300,109 as compared to $110,694 in 1989. This increase is directly attributed to a buildup of administrative and technical personnel.

As a result of second quarter earnings and production, the company's total assets increased to $11,824,526 at June 30, 1990, from $10,842,592 at Dec. 31, 1989, and total stockholders' equity increased to $10,693,884 from $9,939,647 at Dec. 31, 1989. Net income for the six months ended June 30, 1990 was $755,237 or 6 cents per share as compared to a loss of $59,924 for the same period last year.

Mining at the company's Toiyabe property, now enlarged to approximately 34,000 acres, is in full operation. Gold production of approximately 15,000 ounces is expected to be realized during 1990. Gold bullion being held in inventory as of July 18, 1990 was approximately 7,000 ounces. At the present time, the company intends to hold its gold in anticipation of more favorable gold prices.

Inland's CEO, James F. Etter stated, "Even with gold prices at disappointing levels, operations at our Toiyabe Mine are profitable. In addition, we are immediately initiating significant increases in exploration activities at Toiyabe based on very favorable and encouraging recommendations of noted geologists, Dr. Ralph J. Roberts and Dr. Raul J. Madrid. Concurrently, the company has increased its land position over 7,000 acres to a total of approximately 34,000 contiguous acres. More information relating to Toiyabe exploration is being released under separate cover tomorrow. With our continued strong balance sheet, Inland is focussing on expansion of our gold reserves."

The company's 34,000 acre Toiyabe property, located in Nevada, has yielded approximately 70,000 ounces of gold to date with productin ongoing. Two 50/50 joint ventures currently underway, containing approximately 130,000 ounces of recoverable gold, are in the permitting process. Inland is also engaged in two additional joint venture exploration projects, one near Republic, Wash. and the other in Lake County, Ore. Inland has recently acquired an exclusive lease agreement on a 2,160 acre property located 4 1/2 miles from FMC Gold Co.'s Paradise Peak Mine. Geological and Geophysical work will begin immediately.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Price Stern Sloan Inc. (NASDAQ: PSSP) today reported a net loss of $916,000, or $.24 per share, for the six months ended June 30, 1990, compared with a net loss of $1,024,000, or $.27 per share, in 1989. Sales for the 1990 period were $16,128,000 compared to $17,934,000 a year ago.

For the second quarter, traditionally the company's weakest, PSS registered a net loss of $944,000, or $.25 per share, compared with a net loss of $565,000, or $.15 per share, for the corresponding period of 1989. The 1989 second quarter net loss included a tax benefit of $411,000. The comparative loss without this benefit in 1989 was $976,000. Sales for the second quarter were $7,261,000, compared with $8,268,000 for the corresponding prior year period.

The decline in sales for the six months of 1990 was attributable primarily to the discontinuance of an outdated line of books that had accounted for almost $1,000,000 in revenue during the prior year period.

Chairman of the Board L. Lawrence Sloan said that, "the company has continued to focus on asset management and controlling costs, even without the benefit of higher volume. The company's balance sheet has been strengthened, with reduced inventory levels and receivables, improved cash flow and bank borrowings below projected levels at the end of the period. As we previously announced, we are considering selling certain assets to further reduce debt."

RICHARDSON, TX (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Convex Computer Corporation (NYSE: CNX) and the Ohio Supercomputer Center (OSC), Columbus, Ohio, announced today that apE, version 2.0, a visualization third party software package developed by OSC, has been ported to Convex supercomputers.

ApE software is a toolbox of functions for creating, modifying, and manipulating graphical data. The system was developed by the Ohio Supercomputer Graphics Project to meet the visualization requirements of a diverse group of researchers and artists.

The apE 2.0 visualization environment includes: graphical programming tool and network distribution system, interactive image and polygonal data viewing, 2-D color and contour imaging and 3-D surface, volume, and terrain imaging, image processing and manipulation tools, and user and programmer documentation.

"Porting apE 2.0 to the Convex supercomputer provides widely available visualization productivity software that works well in heterogeneous environments," said Scott Dyer, an associate director for OSC.

"The high-density storage capabilities and integrated parallel/vector processing speed of the Convex C series of supercomputers combined with apE software allow scientists to analyze large amounts of complex visualization information quickly and efficiently."

apE provides an integrated visualization system by combining a flexible, evolving toolset with a graphical programming paradigm. Based on a dataflow model, apE allows users to graphically construct pipelines of programs to convert, render, and view their data.

Users can create their own dataflow operation modules and can incorporate graphical output at every stage of their simulations. For example, researchers at Ohio State used apE software to visualize temperature contours within Lake Erie.

Because fish are often found along the thermocline, where warmer water meets cooler water, this visualization helps pinpoint their location in three dimensions and will eventually be used by commercial fishermen.

"This integrated visualization software package provides an environment in which today's users can understand and characterize the great volume and complexity of data produced by supercomputers," said Paul Lambert, Convex's graphics and visualization product manager.

"ApE complements the visualization technology direction we announced several months ago with the licensing agreement of the Application Visualization System (AVS) from Stardent Computer, Newton, Mass. The combination of these tools provides a full range of capabilities for all of our customers."

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - BankAtlantic (NASDAQ-NMS: ASAL) today reported an increase in net income to $138,000, or $0.04 per share, for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared to net income of $109,000, or $0.03 per share for the same period of 1989.

For the six month period ended June 30, 1990, BankAtlantic posted a net loss of $847,000, or $0.24 per share, vs. net income of $170,000, or $0.70 per share, for the comparable period in 1989. A net loss of $985,000 in the first quarter of 1990 was attributed largely to a $1.36 million provision for loan losses associated with the write down of one commercial loan. Included in the 1989 results was a gain of $1.53 million, net of tax, associated with the sale of Federal Home Loan Bank advances in the second quarter of 1989.

"Core banking activities, as reflected by net interest income, increased after provision for loan losses to $11 million in the quarter ended June 30, 1990, vs. $9.4 million in the same quarter of 1989. In order to be prudent in the current environment BankAtlantic increased its provision for loan losses for the recent quarter by approximately $1.6 million, compared to $900,000 in the comparable quarter in 1989," said BankAtlantic Chairman Alan B. Levan.

Non-interest income was $5.3 million in the quarter ended June 30, 1990, including a gain of approximately $2.1 million on the sale of home equity loans, and a gain on the sale of mortgage-backed securities of approximately $779,000.

Partially offsetting these gains were non-interest expenses associated with severence costs relating to a previously announced reduction in staff in the second quarter. Costs relating to this action were fully expensed in the quarter ended June 30, 1990, and amounted to approximately $428,000.

At June 30, 1990, BankAtlantic exceeded all the current capital requirements set by the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act (FIRREA). Tangible capital was more than double the 1.5 percent required, and stood at 3.09 percent of assets. PROVIDENCE, RI (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Fleet/Norstar's New England banks have become the primary sponsors of the world's largest bicycling fund-raiser, the 11th Annual Pan-Mass Challenge (PMC), taking place on Aug. 18 and 19.

The PMC, which benefits the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute's Jimmy Fund, begins in Sturbridge, Mass. and ends in Provincetown, where riders participate in a bicycle parade through town and embark on a celebratory ferry ride back to Boston. For those who prefer a shorter but still demanding ride, there is an 80-mile One-Day Challenge from Sturbridge to Middleboro, Mass.

"Fleet/Norstar, through its five New England banks, is extremely pleased to be the sponsor of the Pan-Mass Challenge,a superior sporting event that benefits one of New England's favorite charities, the Jimmy Fund," says

Robert L. Mushkin, vice chairman, Fleet/Norstar Financial Group. "In fact, we plan to go beyond monetary support and encourage our employees to do the one- or two-day ride or serve as volunteers," he said.

Last year, nearly 1,000 riders exceeded the PMC's million dollar fund-raising goal and raised an unprecedented $1.2 million for the Jimmy Fund. The 11th Annual PMC is aiming to attract as many as 1,300 riders with a highly ambitious fund-raising goal of $1.5 million.

Billy Starr, the founder of the PMC, had personal reasons for starting this event. His mother, uncle, and cousin all died from cancer and he envisioned a bicycle fund-raiser as a way to do something positive in response.

Many of the riders participate in the PMC because they, too, have been directly affected by cancer. Some have lost close friends or relatives, others have fought their own personal battles and won, while still others are riding with the hope that their mother and father - or even their son or daughter - will survive cancer.

But the PMC is not just for people with a personal experience with cancer. As Jeannie Fisher, a fifth year rider from Westfield says, "I feel lucky to have my health so I want to give something back." According to Starr, "The PMC is for anyone who enjoys cycling and wants a challenging ride to benefit a great cause,'

The PMC is not only the world's largest cycling fund-raiser, but also one of the very top fund-raising events in New England and the largest single fund-raiser for the Jimmy Fund.

In its first decade, the PMC donated $3.7 million to Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, home of the Jimmy Fund and one of 20 federally designated comprehensive cancer centers. The PMC succeeds in contributing approximately 90 percent of its income by keeping administrative and overhead costs at a minimum and using volunteer services of hundreds of people.

GREENWICH, CT (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - W. R. Berkley Corporation (NASDAQ: BKLY), an insurance holding company, today announced that net income per share (including investment gains or losses and federal income tax benefits) was $1.07 for the second quarter of 1990 in comparison with $1.14 recorded in the comparable period of the prior year. Net income per share for the first six months of 1990 was $2.27 in comparison with $2.48 per share earned during the corresponding 1989 period. The year to date and quarter to quarter earnings comparisons were adversely impacted by a reduced level of "fresh start" tax benefits. For the second quarter and first six months of 1990 in comparison with the corresponding 1989 periods estimated tax benefits resulting from the fresh start provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 decreased by $510,000 (4 cents per share) and $1,020,000 (9 cents per share), respectively. Realized investment gains or losses did not have a significant effect on earnings per share in either the 1990 or 1989 periods.

Net income for the second quarter of 1990 was $12,707,000 in comparison with $13,372,000 earned during the comparable 1989 period. Net income for the six months ended June 30, 1990 was $26,897,000 in comparison with $29,250,000 recorded during the first half of 1989.

Total revenues of $136,949,000 and $237,554,000 for the second quarter and first six months of 1990 were virtually unchanged from the comparable 1989 levels as significant increases in both investment and service fee income offset a decline in earned premium. The growth in service fee income resulted from the combined effects of internal expansion and acquisitions completed during 1989.

Net premiums written for the quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990 were $106,045,000 and $206,518,000, respectively. These amounts each represented a decline of approximately 4 percent in comparison with the premiums written during the corresponding 1989 periods as the company's subsidiaries maintained pricing discipline in a competitive insurance market.

W. R. Berkley Corporation is a holding company whose subsidiaries operate in three major segments of the insurance business: regional property casualty insurance; specialty lines of insurance (including excess and surplus lines, commercial transportation and reinsurance); and insurance services operations (including management of alternative insurance market mechanisms).

NEW ORLEANS, (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Entergy Corp. (NYSE: ETR) today reported higher consolidated net income and earnings per share for the second quarter of 1990, compared to the same period last year, due primarily to increased revenues, lower interest charges and reduced preferred dividend requirements.

Consolidated net income was $109.4 million, compared to $94.6 million for 1989's second quarter, an increase of 15.7 percent. Earnings per share were 55 cents, up from 46 cents a year ago. The average number of shares outstanding continued to decline, dropping from 204.6 million to 200.2 million due to the company's ongoing common stock repurchase program.

The board of directors voted on July 27 to declare a 25 cents per common share dividend, payable Sept. 3 to stockholders of record as of Aug. 10, and to increase the stock repurchase program by one-third, allowing for the repurchase of its common stock at a level equivalent to $200 million per year. As of July 31, the company had repurchased and retired nearly 6.2 million shares of its common stock at a total cost of approximately $128 million.

Financial Results Explained "Total operating revenues and total operating expenses both rose in the second quarter," said Jerry D. Jackson, Entergy Corp. executive vice president of finance and external affairs, "but revenues exhibited a greater amount of increase, by about $6 million, accounting for part of the higher net income."

Revenues went up due largely to increased collections of amounts that were previously deferred under the various phase-in plans, Jackson explained.

"Interest expense and preferred dividend requirements decreased in the second quarter compared to the same period in 1989 as a result of the System's cost reduction program in which certain high cost debt and preferred stock was retired or refinanced with lower cost debt," Jackson said.

Although the service area experienced above-average temperatures in mid-June and several peak load records were set at that time, the average temperatures for the second quarter were much the same as those during the April through June period last year. A new system peak of 11,810 megawatts occurred at 5 p.m. on June 19. Louisiana Power & Light Co. also set a record at the same time. Mississippi Power & Light established a new mark the following day.

Retail sales for the second quarter 1990 rose 1.0 percent over last year with residential sales up 1.4 percent, commercial up 1.9 percent, and industrial 0.3 percent. Wholesale sales, which are smaller in volume than retail sales, increased 71.7 percent because of larger purchases by both municipalities and other utilities. This boosted total energy sales by 5.9 percent for the quarter.

Regulatory and Legal Matters In other second quarter events, the remaining necessary regulatory authorizations were granted to Entergy Operations Inc., a new subsidiary established to operate (but not own) the System's four nuclear units. A second proposed subsidiary, Entergy Power Inc., anticipates final approval later this month. This company will purchase Arkansas Power & Light Co.'s interests in the Independence 2 and Ritchie 2 generating units and then sell the capacity and energy from these units outside the service territory.

Another major second quarter development was the vote by the New Orleans City Council on May 17, rejecting the proposed buyout of New Orleans Public Service Inc. The 5-to-2 vote ended several years of study and consideration.

There was also an important legal development in the second quarter. On April 16, the U.S. Supreme Court denied petitions that sought to overturn the May 1989 decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit, which affirmed the FERC allocation of the energy and costs of Grand Gulf 1 nuclear unit.

CHICAGO (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Ameritech Mobile Communications, Inc. (NYSE: AIT) has signed an agreement with AT&T to develop a new, second generation cellular technology.

The new technology, Code Division Multiple Access (CDMA), has the potential to expand the capacity of existing cellular systems more than ten-fold, according to Roger Pachuta, vice president of network and customer services for Ameritech Mobile.

AT&T is working with QUALCOMM, the San Diego firm that invented CDMA technology, in the evaluation and development. During the past year, QUALCOMM successfully demonstrated its technology in two separate trials.

"Ameritech Mobile is pleased to enter this agreement, which concludes six months of work on CDMA technology with both AT&T and QUALCOMM," Pachuta said. "The technology shows great promise for the enhancement and expansion of current cellular systems and services."

Digital technology is being developed by Ameritech Mobile and other U.S. mobile communications service providers to expand capacity on existing mobile communications systems within the listed cellular radio spectrum. Expanded capacity is necessary to meet projections of annual industry growth surpassing 50 percent year-over-year.

Without the additional capacity brought by digital technology, cellular systems in major cities such as New York, Los Angeles, Chicago and Detroit will not be able to meet customer service demands within the next few years.

While evaluating the benefits of CDMA technology with AT&T and QUALCOMM, Ameritech Mobile continues to support Time Division Multiple Access (TDMA) another digital technology. TDMA technology would offer a three-fold increase over today's analog technology and has the industry standards process behind it.

Ameritech Mobile is evaluating both technologies to determine which will provide the most efficient and beneficial use of limited cellular radio spectrum.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Atlas Consolidated Mining & Development Corp. (AMEX: ACMB) today reported a major muckrush in the first lift underground mine adversely affected copper mining production in the second quarter.

To compensate for the ore tonnage shortfall, production from the open pits is being maximized, Juan de Ibazeta, chairman, stated in reporting a second-quarter profit of $629,000 as compared to the $177,000 reported for the like period last year. For the six-month period ended June 30, 1990, Atlas posted a net profit of $4,410,000, or 5.3 U.S. cents per share, compared to earnings of $15,488,000, or 18.5 U.S. cents per share, recorded for the same period in 1989.

During the second quarter, Atlas continued negotiations with its foreign currency creditors on the proposed financial restructuring plan. The plan calls for a substantial repayment of its foreign currency loans, at a discount of at least 35 percent. Funds for repayment are to come from a $30 million long-term loan from Mitsubishi Metal Corporation and the proceeds of a proposed rights offering.

The plan, which required the unanimous approval of all Atlas creditors, could not be implemented on schedule because two creditors failed to give their consent in time to meet the approval deadline.

A revised plan is currently being discussed with Atlas creditors. It calls for an initial payment of $30 million from the Mitsubishi loan proceeds, and for Atlas on a best efforts basis, to make available within 18 months of the plan's implementation, a second payment of at least $30 million from the proposed rights offering and other sources.

Pursuant to a recent amendment of the company's articles of incorporation,

Atlas will make available to commercial clients its expertise and capabilities in various phases of mining, as well as the production facilities of its foundry, machine shop and electrical/instrumentation workshops. This will enable Atlas to maximize utilization of its capabilities and generate additional revenue.

ATLANTA (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Craftsman Electronics Inc., a privately held, high-techology liquidator firm based in Atlanta, announced today that it has just received a $51 million order from the Soviet Union to supply 30,000 personal computers and related equipment for that country's educational systems, to be paid for in U.S. currency.

Under the terms of the 12-month contract, commencing September 1990, Craftsman will deliver 2,500 personal AT computers per month along with printers, software and color monitors. The Soviet Union has secured a loan from a European bank to pay for the order in U.S. currency.

"This equipment will be used primarily in the Soviet Union's high schools and universities," said Nick Tzavaras, chief operating officer. "At present, Russia's educational system is placing heavy emphasis for its students to have a greater understanding of the functions of computers. As a result there is a great need for equipment on which students can become more literate with today's technology."

Tzavaras added that the contract was awarded to Craftsman in the face of heavy competition from other countries throughout the world. "We are actively pursuing additional opportunities in Eastern Europe and believe this will be the first of many orders."

Craftsman, which is just over a year old, has already carved a special leadership niche for itself in the United States through its strategy of purchasing closeouts of excess inventory, primarily of desk and laptop computers, from major manufacturers, and selling these to recognized mail order, telemarketing and resale-oriented companies.

Until recently there were no other national companies which, acting as a catalyst, handled this function. Craftsman relieves manufacturers of excess inventory of older, but technically viable equipment. These products are then sold at reasonable discounted prices to those companies whose customers are not looking for state-of-the-art products when purchasing computers and software.

Additionally, Craftsman sells some of its own inventory to the public through direct mail advertising. The company has already opened two retail stores, one in Atlanta and the other in Dallas. Plans for expansion call for the opening of nine additional stores over the next 12 months.

DALLAS (Aug. 2) PR Newswire - The following was released today by Boone Co.:

Dallas investor Boone Pickens today called on Toyota Motor Corp. to immediately open its U.S. tax records for inspection to assure the American public it is complying with all U.S. tax laws.

Pickens urged the action in a letter to Toyota Chairman Eiji Toyoda.

Pickens told Toyoda the company must be forthcoming with the tax information "to avoid tarnishing its image in the United States."

Toyota is one of 17 Japanese companies named by U.S. Rep. Duncan Hunter (R-Calif.), as targets of a tax evasion investigation by the Internal Revenue Service.

Pickens' private investment company, Boone Co., is the largest shareholder in a Toyota-controlled Japanese auto parts maker, Koito Manufacturing. "I strongly believe that it is in Koito and Toyota's best interests for these matters to be clarified," Pickens told Toyoda. A recent IRS report indicates that U.S. companies pay three times as much in taxes on their U.S. assets as foreign companies operating in America.

In addition, the U.S. House Ways and Means Committee's Oversight Subcommittee has launched an investigation to determine whether Toyota and 35 other European and Asian parent companies are violating U.S. tax laws. Estimates of lost U.S. tax revenues resulting from the tax evasion practices of the targeted firms range from $30 billion to $200 billion.

"I'm a strong supporter of foreign direct investment, both in the United States and Japan, and I'm very concerned about the charges that foreign firms may be underpaying their U.S. taxes," Pickens wrote to Toyoda.

According to House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt (D-Mo.), foreign controlled corporations operating in the United States claimed total receipts of about $7.7 billion, but paid less than $12 million in taxes.

HARVEY, IL (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Bliss & Laughlin Industries Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: BLIS) said today it turned a profit on a 25 percent revenue increase in the third fiscal quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Gregory H. Parker, chairman and chief executive officer, said the company's new Canadian Drawn Steel Company operation contributed favorably to the 1990 third fiscal quarter results.

Net income in the third quarter was $265,000, or 8 cents per share, compared to $362,000, or 15 cents per share, in the 1989 period. Net revenues for the fiscal 1990 third quarter were $34,315,000, up 25 percent from $27,350,000 a year earlier.

For the nine months ended June 30, 1990, the company reported a net loss of $517,000, or 19 cents per share, compared to net income of $1,426,000, or 64 cents per share, in the first nine month period of 1989. Revenues were $85,063,000, an increase of 4 percent over revenues of $81,603,000 in the comparable 1989 period.

Per share results for the 1990 third quarter are based on 3,284,000 average shares outstanding, up 36 percent from 2,410,000 shares a year earlier. The increased number of shares reflect the sale of 1,559,759 common shares to Stelco Inc. on May 11, 1990, for which Stelco paid $18.7 million in cash, or $12 per share. In turn, Bliss & Laughlin Industries acquired the assets of Stelco's Canadian Drawn Steel Company business unit for $12.4 million in cash.

The $6.3 million in net proceeds realized in the Stelco transaction was used to reduce outstanding debt. The resulting lower debt position enabled the company to negotiate a more favorable financing agreement with the Northern Trust Company.

Parker said third quarter income was impacted by a higher than anticipated loss at the company's Cartersville, Ga., facility due to competitive pricing pressures in the Southeast and continuing higher than anticipated start-up costs. "We are working to overcome this by increasing production of value added products which command higher margins and by producing flat bars there for both our Harvey, Ill., plant which is operating at near capacity, and our Medina, Ohio, facility."

Shipments in the 1990 third fiscal quarter were up over the 1990 second fiscal quarter and the third fiscal quarter of 1989. Higher backlog indicates that shipments in the fourth fiscal quarter, historically the company's slowest period, will be much stronger than a year earlier.

Bliss & Laughlin Industries raised selling prices on certain products on July 1, 1990, which it believes will more than offset the higher prices levied on its raw material by major suppliers on that date.

Headquartered in Harvey, Bliss & Laughlin Industries Inc. is a manufacturer of cold finished steel bars, producing the widest range of grades, sizes and shapes in the industry.

PEARL RIVER, NY (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - NYNEX Mobile Communications Company today announced that in late 1991 it will introduce the nation's first wireless personal telephone service (PTS) in New York City. Using a new digital transmission standard, PTS will greatly expand the breadth of cellular telephone services available to consumers.

"For densely populated areas like New York, PTS will offer consumers the most flexible, portable and practical personal communications system available," said Bob Keller, chief operating officer of NYNEX Mobile. "When PTS is introduced next year, a telephone number will no longer represent a place but, rather, a person."

Central to NYNEX Mobile's PTS system is a multi-million dollar agreement to purchase digital cellular telephone switching equipment from AT&T Network Systems. The equipment will use code-division multiple access (CDMA) digital technology to facilitate operation of NYNEX Mobile's system.

In addition, NYNEX Mobile simultaneously announced an agreement to purchase $3 million worth of digital telephone handsets from Qualcomm, Inc. for resale to consumers.

"Using radio frequencies already allotted for cellular telephone transmissions, the digital equipment, combined with NYNEX Mobile's engineering expertise, will make PTS a reality for New York consumers," Keller said. "NYNEX Mobile -- along with NYNEX's Sciences and Technology Group -- has been testing PTS equipment for the past year in preparation for this move."

New Phone Technology, Service Options The new phones are expected to be less expensive, significantly smaller and lighter than the cellular models in use today. Portability will be further enhanced as the phones will "sleep" when not in use, minimizing battery drain and ensuring that users are reachable at all times.

Qualcomm, a pioneer of CDMA, has been closely followed and evaluated by NYNEX Science and Technology, and other industry leaders, in their development of CDMA.

NYNEX Mobile Communications Company, a member of the NYNEX family of companies, is the largest provider of cellular telephone service in the Northeast. NYNEX Mobile provides cellular service to more than 250,000 customers in the New York-New Jersey metropolitan area; portions of Upstate New York, including Buffalo, Albany, and Syracuse, and Dutchess, Orange, Rockland, Putnam and Westchester counties; Providence, Rhode Island; Pittsfield and Worcester, Mass., and the greater Boston area.

SEATTLE (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Ackerley Communications Inc. (AMEX: AK) reported sales for the second quarter ended June 30 were $45.9 million, up 7 percent from $42.8 million a year earlier. Sales for the half reached $89.7 million, up 6 percent from $84.4 million last year.

Adjusted operating profit (defined as net revenue less operating expenses plus other income before depreciation, amortization and interest) -- the "cash flow" by which the company measures its performance -- equalled the same periods last year at $10.1 million for the quarter and $16.7 million for the half.

The company showed a net loss applicable to common shares of $2.5 million or 16 cents per share for the quarter ended June 30, compared to net earnings of $.4 million or 3 cents per share, for the comparable quarter last year.

For the half, the company had a net loss applicable to common shares of $7 million, or 45 cents per share, compared to the year- earlier first half loss of $2.4 million or 16 cents per share. The increased net loss was primarily due to acquisitions which have increased the non-cash expenses of depreciation and amortization, as well as interest due to borrowings associated with these same acquisitions.

PARKERSBURG, Iowa (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Wayne Dudley, chairman of Top-Air Manufacturing Inc. (NASDAQ: TOPM) of Parkersburg, today announced the financial results for the fiscal year ended May 31, 1990.

Net sales were $5,325,942 as compared to net sales of $4,894,927 for fiscal 1989. This represents an increase of 8.8 percent. The company reported income before income taxes of $701,667 as compared to $710,288 for fiscal 1989. Net income decreased from $521,708 in 1989 to $452,441 primarily as a result of net operating loss deductions used in 1989 to lower income taxes paid.

Dudley felt the company had performed very well under the existing conditions. An exceptionally wet, cold spring forced the cancellation or postponement of some spraying causing sales to slow down during the company's most productive months. "The weather definitely affected us, but we believe it will have a positive effect on fiscal year 1991. Many of the farmers that could not get access to custom applicators because of limited time will be buying their own equipment. Sales for the first month of fiscal year 1991 increased 13.5 percent over the same period of the previous year," stated Dudley.

"We anticipate a good year in 1991. Orders are coming in at a steady pace as demand continues to grow. Our optimism continues to run very high for the 1990's We expect the future to be very profitable for the farmer, which will translate into continued good times for Top-Air."

Top-Air is a publicly owned company trading on the Over-the-Counter stock market with the NASDAQ trading symbol TOPM.

Dublin, Ohio (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Wendy's International, Inc. (NYSE: WEN) today reported stronger earnings for the second quarter ended July 1, 1990. Net income rose 60 percent to $15.4 million or $.16 per share, compared to $9.6 million or $0.10 per share in the same period of 1989. This is Wendy's highest quarterly earnings in four years.

"We are delighted with second quarter results," said James W. Near, president, CEO, and COO. "We're running our business better on every level -- in the restaurants and throughout the company. Dramatic improvements in operations contributed significantly to these high-quality earnings." Revenues for the quarter were $262.6 million, less than the $279.9 million million of the year-ago period. Wendy's had 41 fewer company-operated restaurants than last year, most of which were sold to franchise owners.

Near said the average company restaurant was significantly more profitable during the quarter. Restaurant operating margins improved to 14.8 percent from 10.2 percent in the second quarter of last year, and 9.8 percent in the first three months of 1990.

The company reduced restaurant operating costs in the second quarter by $10 million, and total cost of sales were reduced by $16 million from 1989. Wendy's continued to reduce the use of discount coupons in the second quarter, which contributed to improved profitability.

Average net sales in domestic company restaurants were $216,000, up from $211,000 in the second quarter of 1989. Domestic franchise restaurants had average net sales of $210,000 compared to $203,000.

Systemwide sales, or sales of both company and franchised restaurants, were $803 million for the quarter and $1.522 billion for the first half versus $790 million and $1.509 billion a year ago, respectively.

Earnings for the first six months were $18.9 million or $0.20 per share compared to $16.0 million or $0.17. Year-ago earnings included a one-time nonoperating FASB 96 gain of $5.2 million or $0.05 per share. Revenues for the first half were $503.9 million (with fewer stores as noted above) compared to $539.4 million.

Near pointed to the popularity of several menu items including special promotions like the Dave's Deluxe hamburger and Chicken Parmesan, and lower priced items on the Super Value Menu as evidence that Wendy's has the right mix of product offerings. He said new products contribute to the company's success, and he expects new offerings based on extensive consumer research and test marketing to continue to fuel the company's momentum.

He cited as examples the recent announcements of the nationwide introduction of a Grilled Chicken sandwich and the switch of french fry cooking oils to 100 percent, cholesterol-free vegetable oil.

The advertising campaign featuring Wendy's founder, R. David Thomas was another factor contributing to strong second quarter results. "Dave's role in commercials has struck a responsive chord in a lot of people. It conveys our tradition of quality food, great value, menu variety and individual customer service. Customers like and respond to the advertising. This advertising makes our employees feel good about the company, too," he added. Dividend Declared

The board of directors approved a quarterly dividend of six cents per share, payable August 27 to shareholders of record August 13.

There were a total of 3,729 Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers restaurants open worldwide at July 1, 1990, including 1,064 operated by the company.

Near added: "We keep building momentum, and we're staying on the course we have charted. It's the right one. It means value for our customers, our employees, and our shareholders."

HIGHLAND PARK, MI (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Chrysler Corporation (NYSE: C) today announced that the tentative retail prices for its 1991 model domestic passenger cars, averaged for all models across the board, result in a less than 1 percent increase over comparably equipped 1990 models.

Chrysler said it wants to price moderately for the 1991 model year and decelerate confusing incentive programs that have plagued the industry.

"We're continuing the pricing restraint we've tried to exercise throughout the late 1980s," said Chrysler Chairman Lee A. Iacocca.

"We've worked hard to make our design, engineering and quality competitive across the board. Now we want to be the company to bring sanity back to pricing. We want to simplify our pricing to help car buyers make better informed, more intelligent purchase decisions."

"Prices on some models will be increased to reflect significant improvements and equipment changes," Iacocca said, "but other models will be offered at significantly lower prices.

"The result is a very modest price increase, well below inflation." The base price changes range from a $1,100 reduction in the tentative Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price for a Dodge Monaco to a $1,050 increase in the tentative MSRP on a Chrysler Imperial.

The tentative prices released to dealers do not necessarily reflect what the company's final prices will be when they are announced later this year.

"An excellent example of our pricing philosophy," Iacocca said, "is our announcement of new Plymouth Sundance and Dodge Shadow America models, which are nearly $1,200 less than Sundance/Shadow base models last year. We believe they will be the lowest priced air bag-equipped cars in the United States."

Chrysler will continue to make air bags standard on all its U.S.- built cars. Chrysler said it will offer anti-lock braking systems on 75 percent of its models, tops in the industry.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AUGUST 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Pratt & Lambert, Inc. (AMEX: PM) today reported second quarter net sales in 1990 of $65,370,000, down 1.9

percent from $66,652,000 last year. Net income was $2,342,000, a decline of 7.3 percent from $2,527,000 in 1989. Earnings per share were 40 cents, versus 41 cents last year, calculated on approximately 6 percent fewer average shares outstanding in the 1990 period, due to stock acquired under a repurchase program announced in September 1989.

For the first six months, net sales were $124,804,000 off 1.0 percent from $126,071,000 in 1989. Net income declined 21.6 percent to $3,037,000 from $3,876,000 last year. Earnings per share were 52 cents compared with 62 cents in 1989. Average shares outstanding in the first half of 1990 and 1989 were 5,790,292 and 6,125,544, respectively.

R.D. Stevens, Jr., chairman of the paint, coatings and adhesives manufacturer, said that the modest sales decline reflected soft demand for adhesives in end uses related to construction, footwear and recreational vehicles. "While we don't look for an early recovery in these markets, we anticipate that strengthening sales during the second half in other lines will more than eliminate the current shortfall," he added.

Pratt & Lambert's president, J.J. Castiglia, noted that despite flat sales in the second quarter, gross profit margins increased due to higher selling prices and a more favorable product mix. "In addition, expense containment efforts this year have been particularly effective, even though heavy advertising expenditures were incurred in the second quarter on behalf of our new Calibrated Color System IV," he stated.

The company also announced plans to install additional processing equipment at its industrial coatings and adhesives plant in Kimberton, Pa. Castiglia said the project will accommodate increased demand for ultraviolet curable coatings, concurrently, reducing raw material costs and improving productivity. "This product group, combined with our Novocoll line of laminating adhesives, offers considerable promise for our Pierce & Stevens division," he added.

Stevens said that although the economy is far from buoyant, the company expects reasonably strong third and fourth quarters, fueled primarily by its environmentally compliant industrial product lines.

WILMINGTON, DE (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Delphi Financial Group Inc. (NASDAQ: DLFI) today announced that earnings per share rose 37 percent to $.86 for the six months ended June 30, 1990, compared to $.63 per share for the same period in 1989.

Net income was $9.5 million compared to $5.9 million for the first half of the prior year. As a result of the initial public offering of 2.2 million shares on March 13, 1990, weighted average shares outstanding increased to 11.1 million for the first half of 1990, from 9.2 million for the same period in 1989. Total revenues grew 4 percent to $144.4 million compared to $138.4 million for the comparable period last year. Trailing 12 month net income was $25.3 million, or $2.46 per share, for the period ended June 30, 1990, and income from continuing operations was $21.7 million, or $2.12 per share.

Net income for the second quarter of 1990 of $5.7 million was consistent with net income for the second quarter of 1989. The elimination of a $1.2 million loss on an unprofitable discontinued line of business, a $1.6 million decrease in interest expense and continued favorable underwriting results all contributed positively to the 1990 second quarter results. These factors were offset by lower earnings on assets managed by outside investment advisors. Earnings per share for the second quarter of 1990 were $.48 on weighted average shares of 12 million compared to $.61 on weighted average shares of 9.2 million for the second quarter of 1989.

As contemplated in Delphi's registration statement and prospectus dated March 13, 1990, and pursuant to the General Electric Capital Corp. (GECC) Warrant Agreement, GECC requested on Aug. 1, 1990, that the company prepare and file a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission for the sale of 420,000 shares of common stock.

SOMERS POINT, N.J. (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Action Savings Bank, SLA (NASDAQ: ANSL) today reported a net loss of $9.4 million or $8.49 per share for the three months ended June 30, 1990, and a net loss of $12.7 million or $11.48 per share for the nine months ended June 30, 1990.

These results compare to a net income of $736,000 or $.67 per share for the three months ended June 30, 1989, and $2.3 million or $2.13 per share for the nine months ended June 30, 1989. The bank's net interest income decreased from $2.6 million for the three months ended June 30, 1989, to $637,000 for the comparable 1990 period, and from $7.9 million for the nine months ended June 30, 1989, to $4.8 million for the comparable 1990 period. That decrease was primarily due to the increase in the bank's nonperforming loans.

The bank's nonperforming loans (loans 90 days or more delinquent) were $36 million or 12.8 percent of total assets as of June 30, 1990, compared to $30.2 million or 9.98 percent of total assets as of March 31, 1990, and $9.4 million or 3.21 percent of total assets as of Sept. 30, 1989. The increase in nonperforming loans and classified assets is primarily a result of the slowdown in the real estate market in the bank's southern New Jersey market area, and has resulted in an increase in the bank's provision for loan losses.

The bank's level of assets classified as substandard, doubtful and loss in accordance with the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) Asset Classificaticn System has also increased. In periods preceding June 30, 1990, the bank's classified assets were equal to the nonperforming assets. However, a distinction is now being made resulting from the OTS examiners classification of certain loans and investments other than those 90 days or more delinquent. Accordingly, the bank's level of classified assets as of June 30, 1990, are as follows:

Classification	Amount (000's omitted)
Substandard	$59,349
Doubtful	3,015
Total Classified Assets	62,364

During the three months ended June 30, 1990, the bank established a $9.8 million provision for losses compared to $170,000 for the three months ended June 30, 1989. For the nine months ended June 30, 1990, the bank established a $13.8 million provision for losses compared to $467,000 for the comparable 1989 period. Further, during the three months ended June 30, 1990, the bank applied a total of $6.4 million of that provision to loan and real estate investment losses. As a result of that application, as well as losses from operations, the bank has recognized a $2.1 million tax benefit during that period.

As of June 30, 1990, Action had assets of $281.1 million, net loans receivable of $235 million, allowance for losses of $7.7 million and shareholders equity of $6.4 million or $5.79 per share and 2.27 percent of assets. As a result of the above mentioned results, the bank is not is compliance with the Office of Thrift Supervision capital requirements. According to those requirements adopted pursuant to the FIRRE Act effective Dec. 7, 1989, the bank must have core capital equal to 3 percent of assets, and tangible capital equal to 1.5 percent of assets, and risk based capital equal to 6.4 percent of risk-weighted assets (as defined) at Dec. 31, 1989, which will increase to 7.2 percent on Dec. 31, 1990, and to 8 percent on Dec. 31, 1992. At June 30, 1990, the bank had the following capital ratios:

Core capital to assets	2.27 percent
Tangible capital to assets	2.27 percent
Risk based capital to risk-weighted assets	4.08 percent

Consequently, the bank must file a capital plan with the OTS no later than

Aug. 29, 1990, demonstrating the methods by which an improvement in the capital position will effectuate compliance with the capital regulations. Under the applicable regulations, the bank cannot declare a dividend, and will be subject to limitations with respect to asset growth until capital compliance is achieved.

The bank has engaged an investment banker, Legg Mason Wood Walker Inc., and special counsel to provide assistance in connection with the capital plan. The bank intends to consider, with the assistance of its advisors, possible alternatives available to the bank to achieve regulatory capital compliance, including the possibility of a merger or other transaction with a third party which will bolster the bank's capital. The bank has received preliminary expressions of interest in discussing the possibility of such transactions, but the bank does not know whether serious discussions will actually occur.

The bank is headquartered in Somers Point and operates eight offices in Atlantic, Cape May and Ocean counties, N.J.

CHICAGO (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - HMO America, Inc. (NASDAQ: HMOA) today announced that continuing growth in membership enrollment and average monthly premiums led to record net revenues and stronger operating income for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990. Because of the company's growing profitability, tax loss carryforwards have been fully utilized, leading to a decline in fully taxed net income.

Management noted that the company's operating performance continues to reflect HMOA's underlying strength. Total membership in the Chicago area's leading independent health maintenance organization reached 179,670 at June 30, 1990, up 10 percent from 163,403 a year earlier. Commercial membership, the focus of HMOA's aggressive marketing programs, rose 16 percent to 121,196, while enrollment of public members through the Illinois Department of Public Aid remained essentially unchanged at 58,474 compared to 58,532 a year ago.

"Continuing growth in membership, particularly among our targeted commercial groups, demonstrates the effectiveness of our marketing and delivery of our services," said Theodore Tannebaum, chairman of the board. "We are particularly encouraged by the percentage of existing subscribers who renewed their relationships with us during the recent open enrollment cycle at many of our larger accounts. That's the strongest expression of satisfaction that can be obtained from our ultimate consumers."

Dr. Robert Weinstein, president and chief executive officer, said total revenues for the quarter increased 31 percent to a record $43,656,944, compared to $33,303,291 for the second quarter a year ago. Operating income rose strongly as well, increasing 15 percent to $2,133,378 for $1,854,382 in last year's second quarter. Growing profitability enabled the company to utilize all of its tax loss carryforwards, leading to a decline in net income to $1,346,766, or 18 cents per share for this year's second quarter, from $1,854,382, or 25 cents per share for the prior year period.

Operating the largest independent health maintenance organization in the Chicago metropolitan area, HMO America, Inc. is a well regarded participant in the fast-growing HMO industry. Its Chicago HMO and HMO America-Indiana operating units covered a combined total of 179,670 individuals at the close of the second quarter on June 30, 1990.

JENKINTOWN, PA (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Flagship Financial Corp.'s (NASDAQ-NMS: FLGF) management announced today a net loss of $258,000, or $.07 per share, for the three months ended June 30, 1990, after providing an additional $1.5 million above the normal quarterly accrual of approximately $250,000 to its allowance for loan losses.

This compares with $1.6 million of net income, or $.46 per share, for the same period in 1989. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, net income was $1.1 million, or $.31 per share, as compared to $3.2 million and $.92 per share for the same period in 1989.

Both Flagship thrift subsidiaries recently completed their first FDIC examinations, which applied different loan loss reserve standards than previous federal examinations. In an effort to bring the reserve closer to commercial bank standards and provide protection from a softening economy, it is management's intent to increase the total quarterly loan loss provision to between $700,000 and $900,000 for the next four quarters.

Frank P. Felton III, chairman and chief executive officer, stated, "We believe the decision to build loan loss reserves is prudent in light of the change in regulatory standards and the weakening real estate market. The company is extremely well-capitalized and able to undertake these actions to further protect future earnings."

Total provision for loan losses was $1.75 million for the quarter, as compared to $87,000 for the same quarter in 1989 and $210,000 for the first quarter of 1990. After the provision, the allowance for loan losses totaled $3.8 million, or .55 percent of loans.

At June 30, the company's capital position remained strong as evidenced by total capital of $99.8 million and tangible capital representing 8.71 percent of tangible assets. Both Flagship thrift subsidiaries continue to substantially exceed the federal government's fully phased-in capital requirements.

Non-performing assets at June 30 were $12.7 million, or 1.34 percent of total assets. This represents an increase from March 31 and is due almost entirely to the classification of two construction loans totaling $7.1 million. Both loans had previously been disclosed as potential problem loans.

"Our non-performing asset ratio remains below industry averages and we believe the portfolio of problem loans is more than manageable," Felton said.

The company's net interest rate spread averaged 2.36 percent for the quarter, an increase over the 2.19 percent spread for the three months ended March 31, 1990. This improvement resulted from the combination of higher consumer loan yields and a decrease in the cost of funds to 7.76 percent for the quarter from 7.87 percent for the first quarter of 1990.

Operating expenses were $5 million for the quarter, or 2.13 percent of average assets, as compared to $4.6 million or 2 percent of average assets for the first quarter of 1990. This increase primarily reflects the costs of refurbishing select branches and marketing expenses attributable to new product offerings by First American Savings.

John M. Mason, president and chief operating officer, said, "We have always viewed 1990 as a year of restructuring. Consequently, we expected to incur higher operating expenses this year as we enhance our retail products and services to position the company for greater future profitability. Along these lines, we expect decisions to be reached shortly regarding our overall retail market presence and selective balance sheet restructuring."

On July 27, 1990, the board of directors declared the regular quarterly common stock cash dividend of $.10 per share. This dividend will be paid on Aug. 17 to Flagship stockholders of record on Aug. 3.

Flagship Financial, which ranks among the 10 largest publicly traded thrift institutions in Pennsylvania, conducts business through its wholly owned subsidiaries First American Savings and Brandywine Savings Bank. First American operates 12 full-service and six "convenience" branches in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Brandywine Savings operates nine full-service branches in Chester County, Pa. The common stock of Flagship Financial is traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Esso Production Malaysia Inc. (EPMI), an affiliate of Exxon Corporation (NYSE: XON), and Petroliam Nasional Berhad (Petronas) have completed the agreement for EPMI's supply of gas for the second phase of Malaysia's Peninsular Gas Utilization project (PGU-II). This gas development and sales agreement is based on terms and conditions the parties had agreed in principle in 1989.

Under the terms of the agreement, Esso will be the major gas supplier to Malaysia's PGU project. Esso has participated in the supply of gas to Peninsular Malaysia since 1984 under Phase I of the project, which is currently limited to customers on the east coast of Peninsular Malaysia. In Phase II, gas will be supplied from offshore East Coast fields to power plants and industries throughout Peninsular Malaysia and to Singapore. Gas transmission will be through a 450 mile (730 km) onshore pipeline system being installed by Petronas. Total gas demand, which will be handled by the system, is expected to rise to about one billion cubic feet per day by the year 2000.

Esso is developing the Jerneh gas field for planned start-up of deliveries in April 1992, to meet gas demand requirements. Jerneh, which contains three trillion cubic feet of gas, is the largest gas field Esso has discovered in Malaysia. It is located about 60 miles (100 km) offshore Peninsular Malaysia, in the South China Sea, in a water depth of about 195 feet (60 meters). The initial Jerneh project includes two platforms, a gas and a condensate pipeline to shore, as well as onshore facilities for receiving, storage and shipment of condensate. Jerneh will have an initial capacity of 450 million cubic feet per day which will be increased to 750 million cubic feet per day as demand grows in the 1990s. This first stage of the Jerneh project will cost about one half billion U.S. dollars.

Under the agreements, Esso plans to develop additional fields to meet demand growth. Investment during the 20-year period of the project is currently expected to total over 4 billion U.S. dollars, which represents another significant Exxon commitment to a long-term presence in Malaysia.

ACRE, Israel (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Electrochemical Industries (Frutarom) Ltd. (AMEX: EIF) today reported results for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990. Comparative results are available for the six-month period only, since the company was not required to report quarterly results in 1989.

Net income for the first half of 1990 amounted to NIS 5.2 million ($2.5 million), compared with NIS 4.7 million ($2.3 million) in the first six months of 1989. Net income for the second quarter was approximately NIS 831,000 ($400,000).

Consolidated sales for the for the first six months of 1990 amounted to NIS 115.6 million ($55.6 million), compared with NIS 127.9 million ($61.5 million) in the same period last year. Consolidated sales for the second quarter of 1990 were NIS 58.5 million ($28.2 million).

Joseph Geva, chief executive officer and vice chairman of EIF, explained that the decrease in sales was due partially to the drop in world sales prices for PVC, the company's major product, and a decrease in production due to the shutdown of Oil Refineries Ltd. (ORL) during May and June of this year. ORL is the company's sole supplier of ethylene, which is a main raw material for PVC production. While the shutdown period increased EIF's production costs, the company utilized this period to carry out maintenance and installation of new equipment recently acquired as part of its investment program.

Sales of the company's flavors and fragrances division increased by 12 percent in the first half of 1990, compared with the same period last year.

Operating profit for the first six months of 1990, before financial expenses, amounted to approximately NIS 9.9 million ($4.8 million), compared to approximately NIS 12.1 million ($5.8 million) in the first half of 1989. Operating profit for the second quarter was NIS 3.3 million ($1.6 million). The decrease in the operating profit in the second quarter is due mainly to the shutdown period.

The company reached an understanding with ORL with regard to supply and price of ethylene over the coming five years.

Electrochemical Industries (Frutarom) Ltd. manufactures and markets chemicals, raw materials, flavors and essences for a wide variety of industrial applications. As one of Israel's leading firms, EIF is the country's sole producer of PVC, which it markets both domestically and overseas.

HOUSTON (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Texaco (NYSE: TX) is launching a test program to make fast oil changes easier and more convenient for motorists by building 10 "Star Lube" single-bay oil change facilities at Texaco salaried-operated stations in Phoenix, Ariz., and Tulsa, Okla., it was announced today by Texaco Refining and Marketing Inc. (TRMI).

As a separate glass-enclosed structure, the Star Lube facilities will be aesthetically pleasing while also offering the convenience of getting an oil change without leaving the car. The company said it believes that it is the first major oil company to offer quick oil changes at a single-bay facility that is constructed strictly for the purpose of changing oil.

The company will build five Star Lubes in each of the test-market cities at existing Texaco stations. Typically, these stations already have a convenience store and car wash in addition to self-serve gasoline islands, offering motorists the opportunity to use all of these services in one stop, according to the company.

The Star Lube's glass enclosed structure is designed to look like a greenhouse from the outside and will conserve energy by using old oil taken from customers' cars to power the buildings' heaters during cold weather. Other used oil collected at the facility will be disposed of in an environmentally acceptable manner using only certified waste oil disposal firms. Each outlet will require an employee to work with the customer at the surface level and an employee located below the surface in the oil changing "pit."

Andron Architects and Associates of Raleigh, N.C., worked with Texaco in designing the Star Lube facilities.

"We believe there will be a significant demand for the Star Lube concept since it offers motorists an opportunity to buy gasoline, groceries, get a car wash and oil change quickly and conveniently," said Glenn F. Tilton, president of TRMI. "A major attraction for the company is that the facilities can be built faster and more economically than multiple-bay oil change structures and they offer us another marketing vehicle to sell our Havoline line of motor oils," he added.

Larry W. McDonough, Star Lube project manager, noted that Star Lube oil and filter change services will be competitively priced and the customer will be offered a free car wash with the oil change. The company expects to begin opening Star Lubes this fall and plans to have all 10 prototypes completed by the end of 1990.

BIRMINGHAM, MICH. (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - PhoneHomes, Inc. has just announced an innovative real estate marketing concept for the benefit of licensed real estate companies and the home-buying public. By phoning 313-932-HOME, this new information service enables callers to hear advertisements about homes for sale, using their touch-tone telephone, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. PhoneHomes is now selling its services to real estate companies in the northwest Detroit suburbs and expects to expand throughout the Detroit area in the coming months.

According to Arnold Simkus, the company's director of sales and marketing, PhoneHomes offers significant benefits to both real estate companies and prospective home buyers. "By providing buyers with easily accessible and up-to-date home information, a real estate company can significantly differentiate itself from competitors and attract new listings. PhoneHomes will also boost sales productivity by capturing leads around the clock and focus agents on qualified, better-informed prospects," he said.

"PhoneHomes uses advanced telecommunications and computer technology. This innovative service enables callers with a touch-tone telephone to search a computer database of homes based on their choice of area and price, or listen to a schedule of open houses for the coming weekend. A special feature of the system enables callers to enter a specific house number and the first two letters of the street name for information about a particular home," said Simkus.

Callers who phone 313-932-HOME in the Detroit area pay only for the local telephone call to access the PhoneHomes computer. PhoneHomes charges real estate companies $15-$24/month for each home advertisement, which includes custom recordings and the optional open house listing. In addition, a real estate agent, office or company can lease their own Private Access line into the PhoneHomes computer and use it as a private property information line or after hours answering service. According to Simkus, the Private Access service can be customized to meet the individual requirements of a specific customer.

PhoneHomes, Inc. is a new Michigan-based company committed to providing quality service to real estate companies. As the company expands its service area, it expects to introduce additional innovative real estate products and services in the near future.

DALLAS (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - The Southland Corp. announced today that the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has declared effective the company's registration statement on Form S-4, which reflects terms of its revised exchange offers that were announced on July 16, 1990.

Additionally, the company announced that the steering committee representing its public security holders supports the exchange offers. The steering committee, which is advised by Kidder, Peabody & Co. Inc. and the law firm, Chapman and Cutler, encourages Southland bondholders and preferred stockholders to tender their securities consistent with the terms of the exchange offers, including but not limited to, the condition that at least 95 percent of each issue of debt securities be tendered, and conditioned upon final documentation reasonably satisfactory to the steering committee.

The exchange offers are the first step of a two-part plan that calls for the restructuring of Southland's outstanding public debt and 15 percent Cumulative Exchangeable Preferred Stock, followed by a $430 million cash infusion from Ito-Yokado Co. Ltd., and Seven-Eleven Japan Co. Ltd., two long-standing Southland business partners.

As previously announced, under the exchange offers, Southland bondholders and preferred shareholders are being offered new debt securities and approximately 25 percent of newly issued Southland common stock. Existing stockholders would retain approximately 5 percent of the common stock, and following consummation of the exchange offers, Ito-Yokado and Seven-Eleven Japan would purchase 70 percent of the stock. The exchange offers have been extended to expire at midnight, New York City time, on Aug. 15, 1990, unless further extended.

In addition, the company announced that it called to order, then immediately adjourned on Aug. 1 the special meeting for holders of its preferred stock to vote upon the approval and adoption of certain amendments to the company's restated Articles of Incorporation (as more fully described in the company's proxy statement-prospectus). The meeting will reconvene at 10:00 p.m. Dallas time on Aug. 15 at 2711 North Haskell Avenue, Southland's headquarters in Dallas. Recordholders of preferred stock as of the close of business on July 13 will be eligible to vote at the meeting in person or by proxy. If the exchange offers are further extended, the company intends to postpone or adjourn the special meeting so that it will occur on the expiration date.

This announcement does not constitute an offer to sell or to buy any security or the solicitation of any consents or proxies, which offers and consent or proxy solicitation shall only be made by means of a proxy statement/prospectus.

MIAMI (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - "We are Florida's business airline, and we want that story told. Now," said Jack E. Robinson III, president and chief executive officer of Eastern Express, explaining a 48-hour selection process that culminated with Bennett & Company being named the commuter airline's public relations agency.

The decision to take the Eastern Express story aggressively to the public and media through public relations was made Monday. Five agencies were invited to make presentations, and were interviewed beginning at 6 p.m. Wednesday. The final choice was made Wednesday just before midnight.

"We exhaustively considered the credentials of five fine agencies," Robinson said. "Bennett & Company had the best mix of business media, travel industry and Hispanic experience."

The other four agencies considered were Pearson McGuire & Associates, IMPS Corp., Gordon & Associates and a joint venture of the Gothard Group and the Pantin Partnership.

"Our public relations mission has always been to promote Florida's business as we promote the interests of our clients," said Laura Phillips Bennett, president of Bennett & Company. "With Eastern Express, we have a client that perfectly matches both of our missions. It's a client wiht a solid story and strategy, and it's a client that's going to be excellent for the Florida business community."

Bennett & Company had conducted a survey of business executives' attitudes toward commuter airlines as part of their decision. "Bennett & Company stood alone in that regard among the presentations," said Kathy Garciga, Eastern Express' director of sales and marketing. "We were very impressed that the agency was anxious and inventive in learning about our industry even before receiving the assignment."

The selection team included Robinson and Garciga, plus Tim Swies and Ed Irons, vice presidents with the airline's advertising agency, McFarland & Drier of Miami.

Eastern Express is the only commuter airline whose strategy is primarily to serve intra-state business travelers -- as opposed to the more common "feeder" philosophy of other commuter carriers.

Currently, Eastern Express flies 42 flights to 12 Florida and Bahamian cities. Future expansion will increase the system to 19 cities and about 100 flights.

Bennett & Company, founded in 1982, is one of the Southeast's largest public relations agencies.

EXETER, NH (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Tyco Laboratories, Inc. (NYSE: TYC) announced the completion of its acquisition of all of the operating assets of Wormald International Limited. Wormald is a worldwide fire protection and distribution company with major contracting, manufacturing and distribution facilities located throughout the United Kingdom, Continental Europe, Australia, New Zealand, Asia, and many other countries, as well as operations in the United States and Canada.

As a result of the Wormald acquisition, Tyco expects to operate at a fiscal 1991 sales rate of approximately US $3.4 billion. Wormald's businesses are complimentary to Tyco's Grinnell Fire Protection operations both geographically and by product lines. Wormald companies, covering all aspects of fire protection, have dominant market positions in many countries around the world, while Grinnell is the largest fire protection company in North America.

Wormald adds to Grinnell's product line the advanced technology used to provide special hazards protection for the chemical, petro-chemical, aerospace and off-shore oil industries, among others; plus a complete line of fire extinguishers.

Grinnell manufactures all of the equipment utilized in automatic sprinkler systems, whereas Wormald only manufactures a portion. This combination will increase Grinnell's markets for its products through the use by Wormald of Grinnell manufactured products in its contracting operations, for distribution to other sprinkler contractors throughout the world, and for the distribution of all its other flow control products.

"The merger of Grinnell with Wormald will create the world's preeminent manufacturer, designer, provider and installer of fire protection and detection systems and equipment," said John F. Fort, chairman and chief executive officer of Tyco.

L. Dennis Kozlowski, Tyco's president and chief operating officer and also president of Grinnell Corporation, added, "The market for fire protection has grown dramatically in the U.S. and Canada as fire laws require hotels, motels, office buildings, nursing homes, schools and other structures to install life safety and property protection systems. We believe the addition of Wormald, with its strong presence in other parts of the world where we presently do not do business, will result in many synergies and the increased profitability of both companies."

Tyco is a worldwide manufacturer of fire protection/flow control systems, electrical and electronic components and packaging materials.

ELGIN, Ill. (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - William H. Murphy, president of Katy Industries, Inc. (NYSE: KT), today reported income from continuing operations of $4,306,000, or $.60 per share, for the three months ended June 30, 1990 compared to income from continuing operations of $2,709,000, or $.35 per share, for the same period last year. Net income for the 1990 quarter was $3,677,000, or $.50 per share, after a loss of $629,000, or $.10 per share, from discontinued operations. This compares to net income of $2,211,000, or $.27 per share, after a loss of $498,000, or $.08 per share, from discontinued operations in 1989.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the company reported income from continuing operations of $22,653,000, or $3.35 per share, compared to $6,763,000, or $.92 per share. Net income after losses from discontinued operations and the cumulative effect of the change in accounting principle was $23,315,000 or $3.45 per share in 1990 and $3,536,000 or $.40 per share in 1989.

Sales from continuing operations were $59,700,000 and $118,844,000 respectively for the second quarter and the six months of 1990 compared to $50,283,000 and $93,946,000 for the same periods of 1989.

Murphy commented that the increase in income from continuing operations for the quarter of 59 percent was primarily a result of increased income from Katy's German subsidiary, Schon, reduced Indonesian oil exploration expenses and the fact that the 1989 quarter included a nonrecurring charge net of related tax benefits, of $1,275,000 or $.20 per share relating to a performance guarantee of a subsidiary.

Murphy also noted that the results for the six months of 1990 included a gain of $14,250,000 or $2.19 per share on the sale of a minority interest in a German subsidiary.

TOMS RIVER, NJ (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Statewide Bancorp (NASDAQ-NMS: STWB) announced today that significant additions to the allowance for loan losses during the second quarter resulted in a loss for the quarter of $86.5 million and a loss for the six months ended June 30 of $96.2 million. This compares to a $5.2 million gain for the second quarter of 1989 and a $11.6 million gain for the first six months of last year. The second quarter provision for loan losses totaled $83.4 million and increased the allowance for loan losses to $75.5 million at June 30, 1990, net of $28 million in loans charged against the allowance during the quarter.

Douglas E. Johnson, president and chief executive officer of Statewide, said that the additional reserves were added due to the further deterioration of previously identified non-performing loans and in recognition of the decline of the economy and the general weakening of other loans in the portfolio even though such loans may still be performing. Johnson stated, "We are not immune from the economic difficulties which have seriously affected the earnings of many financial institutions in this region."

Total non-performing assets stood at $140.9 million at June 30, 1990, compared with $129.2 million at March 31, 1990, exclusive of the $30 million in loans charged against the allowance during the quarter. Reserves as a percentage of non-performing loans increased from 17.1 percent at March 31 to 67 percent at June 30.

As had been previously disclosed, Statewide Bancorp has been reviewing its entire loan portfolio since early in 1990. Although this special review is not entirely complete, all major borrowers have been currently analyzed. Johnson stated that although there can be no assurances that non-performing asset or reserve levels will not increase above June 30 levels, he is confident that the allowance is adequate based on the current information. As a result, the monthly provision for loan loss has been reduced to $400,000 effective in July.

With the reduction of the monthly provision for loan losses, Johnson said he feels strongly that Statewide Bancorp can return immediately to profitability. In fact, the corporation recorded earnings of $218,000 in July exclusive of the $4.3 million gain from the sale of $26.8 million in credit card receivables to Mellon Bank, Pittsburgh. Future earnings will be helped by previously announced expense reductions and revenue enhancements which will amount to $6 million annually.

Statewide and its principal subsidiary, the First National Bank of Toms River, N.J., both have primary and total capital ratios (including the unallocated portion of the allowance) in excess of current minimum regulatory guidelines. However, new regulatory capital guidelines, including risk-based guidelines, become effective at Dec. 31 this year. If such guidelines were applicable as currently written, neither Statewide nor the bank would meet the minimum levels.

As part of an effort to bring Statewide and the bank to the minimum capital levels required by the guidelines by the end of the year, Johnson announced plans to downsize both Statewide Bancorp and the First National Bank of Toms River, N.J. The process of selling 20 percent of the branches of First National along with the sale of Statewide's other banking subsidiary, The First National Bank of New Jersey/Salem County has already begun. Johnson noted that these sales are expected to reduce consolidated assets by approximately $300 million and that Ryan Beck & Co. an investment banking firm specializing in New Jersey financial institutions, has been employed to aid in the effort to find appropriate buyers.

The previously announced reorganization of the Lending division has been finalized with the announcement that David White has joined Statewide as executive vice president and senior lending officer. A seasoned commercial lender, White brings to Statewide over 25 years of experience at Chemical Bank N.J. and Bankers Trust Company, New York. White's background and knowledge are expected to provide strong leadership. In addition to White, several experienced lenders and analysts have been added to the staff to enhance the loan underwriting process. Johnson stated that, in his opinion, the lending division is staffed with highly talented people and can successfully compete with any lending group in the state.

With regard to the regulators, Johnson stated that a real spirit of cooperation exists between the regulatory agencies (Comptroller of the Currency and Federal Reserve) and Statewide. In recent meetings, the regulators have indicated that they are satisfied that the actions taken by Statewide are prudent and necessary. The board of directors and management will continue to maintain an informative dialogue with the regulatory agencies.

Statewide still considers its mission to deliver a full range of financial products in the retail, commercial, and wholesale markets priced and delivered at a reasonable cost and with extraordinary personal service. We continue our strong commitment to the communities we serve. Loans will continue to be available to meet the needs of Statewide's customers which include the commercial and residential construction industry.

SANDUSKY, OHIO (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Cedar Fair, L.P. (NYSE: FUN) which owns and operates two amusement/theme parks, today announced results for the second quarter of 1990.

Net revenues for the quarter ended June 24, 1990, were $32.9 million, a decrease of $1.7 million, or 4.8 percent, from the quarter ended June 25, 1989. Net income for the period decreased slightly to $5.9 million, or $.28 per partnership unit, from $6.1 million, or $.29 per unit in 1989.

Richard L. Kinzel, president and chief executive officer of Cedar Fair Management Company, the managing general partner of Cedar Fair, L.P., explained that virtually all of Cedar Fair's gross income is realized during a 130-day operating season from early May to late September, with the major portion historically concentrated in the peak vacation months of July and August.

"On a combined basis, a 3.5 percent increase in in-park guest per capita spending has been offset by an 8.6 percent decrease in early- season attendance at our parks," Kinzel said. "The decline in attendance is largely a consequence of both parks having rainfall on more than half of the weekend operating days in the months of May and June, as well as following a year in which very popular new roller coasters were introduced at both parks. By controlling our costs carefully, we have been able so far this year to minimize the impact of the lower attendance on our bottom line."

Cedar Point is located on Lake Erie between Cleveland and Toledo, and Valleyfair is located near Minneapolis/St. Paul.

PITTSBURGH, (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Consolidated Natural Gas Company (NYSE: CNG) reported today that net income for the first half of 1990 was $93.6 million, or $1.10 a share, compared with $112.0 million, or $1.36 a share, a year earlier. In the second quarter, net income was $2.3 million or 3 cents a share, versus $10.4 million, or 13 cents a share, reported in the 1989 second period.

Exceptionally warm weather was the cause of lower earnings in both periods. In the second quarter, lower wellhead prices for gas and oil were also a factor.

George A. Davidson Jr., Consolidated's chairman and chief executive officer, noted that earnings from retail operations alone would have been some 25 cents a share higher if weather had been the same as in last year's first half. If weather had been normal, earnings from retail operations would have been about 35 cents a share greater.

Davidson said that the company is limiting its expenses wherever possible because of the low earnings. "These weather-influenced results for the first half of the year are very disappointing, and they will make 1990 as a whole a very difficult year for earnings," he said.

Consolidated's retail gas distribution operations were particularly hurt by the unseasonable weather, with operating income off 18 percent in the half. Temperatures in the company's retail service areas were 16 percent warmer than last year. Operating income of the interstate gas transmission operations fell 6 percent in the half, while operating income from exploration and production fell 3 percent.

Consolidated is one of the country's largest producers, transporters and distributors of natural gas. Its primary marketing areas for natural gas are in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, New York and other states in the Northeast. The company explores for and produces gas and oil throughout the United States and in Canada.

MIAMI (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastern Airlines said it will appeal today's District Court ruling on the status of the company's new-hire pilots and stressed the decision will have no immediate effect on those employees or the airline's operations.

Judge Davis' ruling says returning strikers may displace approximately 180 pilots who were still in training when ALPA ended its strike last November. Eastern said it is confident that a stay will be effected and that it will prevail on appeal.

Eastern said its appeal is likely to take some time to be resolved. Therefore, if Davis' decision is ultimately upheld the practical effect would not be immediate. All pilots returning to work from strike must first complete recurrent training and be re-certified for flight status by the Federal Aviation Administration, a process that takes several weeks.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - First Capital Holdings Corp. (NYSE: FCH) today announced that, for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, revenues were up, and operating income was virtually unchanged, while net income declined compared with the second quarter of 1989.

Operating income, exclusive of investment gains and losses, was $13 million for the quarter compared with $13.3 million in the same quarter of 1989. "We are pleased that these results remained consistent despite the effects of higher mortality during the quarter, and reduced interest yield on the company's short-term and variable-rate investments," said Gerry R. Ginsberg, First Capital's president and chief operating officer.

Net income for the quarter was $9.1 million, or $.20 per fully diluted share, compared with $17.7 million, or $.38 per fully diluted share, for the three months ended June 30, 1989. Revenues were $261 million for the quarter compared with $241 million for the previous year's quarter.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, net income was $25.2 million, or $.54 per fully diluted share, compared with $33.3 million, or $.72 per fully diluted share, in the first six months of 1989.

During the 1990 quarter, the company had investment gains of $4.5 million after taxes; the investment reserve was increased by $8.4 million after taxes, which, when netted against investment gains, resulted in a $3.9 million loss.

For the comparable period in 1989, investment gains were $5.9 million after taxes; additions to the investment reserves were $1.4 million, resulting in a net gain from investment transactions of $4.5 million.

"The $8.4 million contribution to reserves is consistent with the amounts contributed during the previous three quarters and is in accordance with our business strategy to continue our trend toward a stronger balance sheet, improved capital ratios, and increased reserves in support of investments," Ginsberg said.

Premiums received were $327 million for the 1990 quarter compared with $1.0 billion for the 1989 quarter, reflecting a move toward slower growth. Premiums received for the first six months of 1990 were $734 million compared with $1.6 billion for the same period last year. Shareholders' equity reached a new milestone of $401 million, or $8.58 per common share, an increase of $19 million during the first six months of 1990.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Employee Benfit Plans, Inc. (NASDAQ: EBPI) today announced that during the three months ended May 31, 1990, the company reported record revenues of $31.7 million, a 77-percent or $13.8-million increase, compared with $17.9 million for the three months ended May 31, 1989. Earnings from operations before interest expense for the three months ended May 31, 1990, were $3.3 million, an increase of 67 percent or $1.3 million, compared with $2.0 million for the three months ended May 31, 1989. The company's reported earnings before extraordinary items were $3.1 million or $.45 per share for this period. These results reflect the negligible effective tax rate for the fourth quarter that was the result of the charge to earnings taken in the third quarter because of the company's decision to discontinue the association and small employer trust reinsurance business line. Earnings before extraordinary items computed at the company's assumed tax rate of 30 percent would have been $2.2 million or $.32 per share for the three months ended May 31, 1990.

For the year ended May 31, 1990, the company reported revenues of $97.8 million, an increase of 47.6 percent or $31.5 million, compared with $66.3 million for the year ended May 31, 1989. This record growth in revenues was attributed primarily to the company's increased penetration of the single employer market and the formation of the company's National Reinsurance Intermediaries Division and secondarily, to the acquisitions of selected assets of National Benefit Administrators in January 1990 and August International Corporation in March 1990.

Earnings from operations before the loss on the discontinuance of business line and interest expense for the year was $8.8 million, an increase of 55.7 percent or $3.1 million, compared with $5.7 million for the year ended May 31, 1989. Excluding the non-recurring cost to discontinue the association and small employer trust reinsurance business line and the results from these operations prior to their discontinuance, earnings per share before extraordinary items would have been $1.07 per share for fiscal 1990. As a result of this non-recurring charge taken in the third quarter, a loss before extraordinary items of $3.1 million or $.54 per share was recorded for the year ended May 31, 1990.

The company's single employer business continues to have substantial growth. The total number of employees and dependents for single employer customers has increased from approximately 460,000 as of May 31, 1989, to approximately 1.4 million as of May 31, 1990.

Employee Benefit Plans, Inc., headquartered in Minneapolis, provides an integrated program of managed health care services to employers that self-fund their benefit programs. The company is one of the largest for-profit managed health care companies in the United States, with approximately 1,600 single employer clients nationwide representing over 1.4 million employees and dependents.

The following table illustrates the company's financial results excluding the association and small employer trust reinsurance business line and the cost of its discontinuance:

YORK, PA (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - York Financial Corp. (NASDAQ: YFED) closed the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, with earnings of $6,670,000 or $2.24 per share.

This represents a decline of earnings for the fiscal year of 14 percent compared to the previous year earnings for fiscal year ended June 30, 1989 of $7,607,000 or $2.61.

Earnings for the fourth quarter ended June 30, 1990, were $801,000 or $.26 per share compared to $1,497,000 or $.51 per share earnings for the fourth quarter of the previous fiscal year.

After reviews by the company's outside accountants, Ernst & Young, and completed routine examinations by its federal regulators, the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS), and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC), the company said it agreed to build its valuation allowances by an additional $1.2 million above the company's budgeted expense for the fourth quarter. Results from operations were otherwise strong and near record high levels, allowing the company to absorb this additional valuation allowance and still report strong quarterly and annual earnings for the fiscal year just ended.

The company said it believes these operating results and the completed review by the federal examiners, as well as the certification of the company's financial statement by Ernst & Young, the company's outside auditors, is a confirmation of its continued strength and high performance financial health.

NEW YORK, NY (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - R.H. Macy & Co., Inc. sent the following letter to its investors today as part of its periodic updates to investors on the company.

"We are pleased to report we have received approval from our senior bank lenders for an amendment to our bank agreement that modifies the coverage ratio requirements through the end of our January 1991 quarter. (The banks had previously approved modifications for the prior two quarters.) It reflects the banks' concurrence with the actions we took to reduce inventory levels and generate cash during the last year's Christmas season. This had a short-term detrimental effect on the bottom line, but prepared us the current and expected flat retail environment.

The amendment would not have been needed until the end of October, but our lead banks suggested it be made now so there would be no question about Macy's financial flexibility and liquidity as we enter the important Fall season.

As we previously informed you, we have also been exploring ways to take advantage of current market conditions to reduce and/or refinance debt. To that end, we are negotiating with the Alexander Haagen Company to sell Bullock's 250,000 square foot office building in downtown Los Angeles. The proceeds will be applied to pay down bank debt due in fiscal 1992, when $205 million -- our largest annual bank payment -- is scheduled to be made.

We are also pleased to report that Corporate Property Investors has agreed to purchase, for $15 million in cash, a one percent equity interest in Macy's, in recognition of our long-standing, ongoing relationship and prospective future real estate activities. CPI becomes the fifth real estate developer with an investment in Macy's. We intend to use the proceeds of this investment to purchase a portion of our subordinated debentures from time to time in the open market at prices deemed favorable subject to obtaining applicable bank consent.

We have a number of other opportunities under review which will lead to a reduction of interest costs and we will keep you apprised as they develop.

Our conservative volume and expense plan for this Spring has proven effective. Our cash availability was almost $65 million higher for the 25th week this Spring, when our needs peaked, than the $113 million projected in February to our banks and the factors. We are confident that this conservative approach will ensure a continuation of our liquid position in spite of a continuing soft retail environment.

Looking to the future, we thought you should know about the new store program we have developed since our L.B.O. We now have nine new stores scheduled to open between 1992 and 1995. The most recent is in Dade County, Fla., our fifth Florida store. We estimate the annual volume of these new stores to be approximately $600 million. Because we have become a highly desirable anchor in the eyes of the major real estate developers, we have negotiated favorable terms for these stores so that they are each projected to be profitable in their first year of operation."

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Nasta International, Inc. (AMEX: NAS) announced net sales of $9,858,000 for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared to $13,868,000 for the 1989 second quarter.

Net loss of the second quarter for 1990 was ($688,000) compared to net income, before discontinued operation of $652,000 for the same period in 1989. Earnings per share were $(.13) for the second quarter of 1990 compared to $.13 for the same period in 1989, before discontinued operation.

Net sales were $12,603,000 for the six months ended June 30, 1990, compared to net sales of $19,999,000 for the comparable period in 1989. Net loss for the six months in 1990 was $(2,381,000) or $(.47) per share compared to net income, before discontinued operation, of $541,000, or $.11 per share, for the same period in 1989.

The second quarter and six months results reflected the soft retailing climate experienced since the fourth quarter of 1989. While management anticipates a profitable third quarter, it expects that the company may have a loss for the full year, primarily due to lower sales volume in the first six months of the year.

The terms of the previously announced merger offer from Tyco Toys, Inc., Nasta's major shareholder, are being renegotiated. It is anticipated that a revised offer will be submitted upon completion of the negotiations.

ATLANTA, (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Atlanta-based Oxford Industries Inc. (NYSE: OXM) announced today that its Cos Cob and JBJ women's moderately priced sportswear lines will be discontinued after completion of fall season deliveries in September.

The company said these lines accounted for only 5 percent of its $550,434,000 sales volume in its fiscal year ended June 1.

J. Hicks Lanier, chairman and president of Oxford, said: "In the past several years, there has been significant growth in imported women's sportswear. During that period, a number of small specialty stores have gone out of business. Many of the remaining ones offer unacceptable credit risks. As department stores have restructured, many have de-emphasized moderate sportswear in favor of higher priced merchandise. These factors led to our decision to discontinue these lines."

In conjunction with the discontinuance, the company announced that the Raw Materials/Technical Service Center and the Finished Garment Distribution Center located in Atlanta will be closed. Combined employment at these two facilities was 85.

The five Oxford manufacturing facilities in Virginia, South Carolina and Georgia which previously produced these lines will now manufacture womenswear for other Oxford divisions. As reported in a recent sales and earnings report, Oxford's Womens' Sportswear Group which markets to mass-merchandisers and Oxford's Dress Division both had excellent results in the past year. The company indicated that demand remains strong in these divisions.

Stock of Oxford Industries Inc. is traded on the New York Stock Exchange with the symbol OXM.

THE WOODLANDS, TX (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - The following statement on Iraq's invasion of Kuwait was issued today by George P. Mitchell, chairman and president of Mitchell Energy & Development Corp.:

"The energy shocks of the '70s amply demonstrated how events in the Middle East can profoundly impact the well-being of our own citizens, and I fear we are in for another such demonstration. In any event, Iraq's invasion of Kuwait should drive home once again the perils inherent in our nation's failure to properly provide for its energy needs. We've allowed our energy capabilities to deteriorate to the point that our economy can be seriously hurt by the power-seeking actions of a Middle-Eastern warlord. The turmoil already has driven world oil prices up, and that will translate quickly into a greater balance of payments deficit because we're now importing 50 percent of our oil.

"It's high time for our leaders in Washington to quit pussyfooting around the issues and come to grips with the national imperative for an energy policy that encourages greater development and use of the resources we have in this country. We have natural gas resources, for example, that could be developed as a substitute for more than half of the eight million barrels a day that we're importing. The Persian Gulf states account for about 25 percent of those imports, and they will increasingly dominate world oil markets as their excess capacity is worked off by greater demand and reduced competition."

WICHITA, KS (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Kansas Gas and Electric Company (KG&E) (NYSE: KGE) has recommended that KG&E common shareholders reject Kansas City Power & Light's (KCPL) (NYSE: KLT) hostile $27 per share cash tender offer as inadequate and not in the best interests of KG&E and its shareholders.

The KG&E board made no recommendation and expressed no opinion on the offer to the holders of the three series of KG&E preferred stock in light of the fact that, among other things, the offer is conditioned upon receipt of a minimum number of common shares and the board's recommendation that the offer should be rejected by the common shareholders. The board noted that the offer is subject to fulfillment of a number of conditions which makes its consummation uncertain.

In a letter to shareholders accompanying a recommendation statement on Schedule 14D-9 filed today with the Securities and Exchange Commission, Wilson K. Cadman, chairman of the board and president of KG&E, said that the board had recommended that common shareholders reject the offer after careful consideration of numerous factors including:

-- The opinion of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, KG&E's financial advisor, that the offer price is inadequate from a financial point of view to the company's common shareholders.

-- Historic and current prices for the company's common shares.
-- The many conditions KCPL has placed on the offer, and the many months, perhaps more than a year, that could be required in attempting to satisfy those conditions, if indeed they can all be satisfied.

-- The company's long-term business plan and prospects, including the company's carefully structured long-term plan for revenue enhancement from increased sales of power and energy in both wholesale and retail markets, coupled with strengthened controls of capital and operating costs.

-- The board's determination that the offer does not reflect the values inherent in the company.

-- The potential adverse tax consequences to certain common shareholders.

-- The board's belief that the acquisition of KG&E by KCPL could have a significantly adverse effect on the company's employees, customers and the communities it serves.

-- The board's belief that the offer raises substantial and serious legal questions and numerous uncertainties under federal and state statutes.

TORRANCE, CA (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - As anticipated, P. Leiner Nutritional Products Corp. (AMEX: PLI) experienced a reduction in sales and earnings in the three months ended June 30, 1990.

First quarter net sales declined 14 percent to $27,553,000 from $32,195,000 in the corresponding quarter of the prior year. Net income for the period amounted to $500,000, equal to ten cents per share, compared with $929,000, or 18 cents per share, a year ago.

Michael Leiner, chairman and chief executive officer, stated: "As we indicated in our news release immediately after the end of the quarter, the slow sales reflected the residual effects of the recent recall of L-tryptophan products. The direct impact of that unfortunate situation on our business now appears to be behind us.

"However, retail movement of vitamins and nutritional supplements slowed for a time, and our introduction of several new products and marketing programs was delayed for some months while we worked through the recall and its aftermath.

"Recognizing early on that sales were depressed, we moved quickly and successfully to lower expenses. This helped maintain significant profitability during the first quarter and will further benefit results for the balance of the year.

"We are now seeing some pickup in the retail sales of vitamins, and we expect that the second quarter will show substantial improvement over the first, with our momentum building as the year progresses. Consequently, we are hopeful that fiscal 1991 will prove to be a satisfactory year for the company.

"As to the longer-term, we intend to continue to build on our well-established national distribution base and to vigorously pursue our many opportunities for growth."

ATLANTA (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Union leaders for the pilots of Delta Air Lines (NYSE: DAL), represented by the Air Line Pilots Association, announced today that they have reached a tentative agreement with the company following 19 months of direct negotiation.

If ratified, the agreement will provide Delta pilots with an industry-leading contract in terms of wages, benefits, and working conditions, while at the same time providing the airline with the cost-effectiveness necessary to gain and prosper in the competitive airline industry.

Under the terms of the tentative agreement, pilots would receive pay increases totalling 12.5 percent over the contract's duration, making Delta pilots the most highly paid in the industry. Significantly, the contract would eliminate Delta's two-tier wage agreement -- or "B Scale" -- in the fourth and fifth years of a pilots employment, effective Sept. 1 1992, and establish a fairer standard for employees in the airline industry by setting a new benchmark for B Scale duration. This contract will be a major step towards ALPA's goal of completely eliminating B Scales in pilot contracts. In addition, Delta's B Scale pilots would receive on average a pay increase of more than 40 percent over the life of the contract.

"We are pleased that we've been able to reach a tentative agreement without having to resort to mediation," stated Capt. Gary Holcombe, chairman of the Delta pilots' Master Executive Council (MEC). "This contract is industry-leading in all aspects, and one that will both compensate Delta pilots fairly and give Delta the resources it needs to continue to grow."

Formal contract language will be written over the next three to four weeks and will then be submitted to the Delta pilots (MEC) for ratification.

The pilots' contract became amendable on March 2, 1989. Under the terms of the tentative agreement, the new contract would become amendable on Sept. 1, 1993.

ATLANTA (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Aaron Rents Inc. (NASDAQ: ARON), the nation's largest furniture rental and sales company, today reported that its core furniture rental business showed continuing growth in the first quarter.

For the three months ended June 30, revenues were $35.8 million with net earnings of $630,000 or $.14 per share of common stock compared with revenues of $36.2 million and net earnings of $960,000 or $.21 per share for the first quarter last year.

Rental revenues for the quarter were up 4 percent over a year ago, said R. Charles Loudermilk Sr., chairman and chief executive officer. The decline in overall revenues and net earnings resulted from lower new furniture sales, with the company's Ball Stalker subsidiary accounting for two-thirds of the decline, combined with pricing competition and resulting lower margins on sales of used furniture.

"The continued increase in rental revenues indicates that our basic business is healthy even in a period of slower economic growth, and that is historically one of Aaron Rents' strengths," Loudermilk said. "Even though Ball Stalker's sales were off from a year ago, the profit performance of this subsidiary has improved to the break-even mark under new management and strong cost controls.

"In addition, Aaron's Rent-To-Own Division has made substantial progress and is not in a position to expand in the near future," Loudermilk said.

As part of the company's plan to improve performance of its furniture sales operations, Robert C. Dickson has been named Director of Merchandising and Marketing, Loudermilk said. Dickson is the former corporate sales manager of Warehouse Home Furnishings Distributors of Dublin, Ga., and previously served in various sales positions with Rhodes Inc. of Atlanta for 10 years.

Aaron Rents Inc., based in Atlanta, operates 165 stores in 52 metropolitan areas of 30 states for the sale and rental of residential and office furniture. The company produces furniture at five plants in Georgia and Florida.

NORTHBROOK, IL (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Pittway Corp. (AMEX: PRY) sales for the three months ended June 30, 1990, increased 11 percent to $229,509,000 as compared to $206,462,000 for the same quarter in 1989. Net income for the quarter amounted to $5,924,000 ($.43 per share) as compared to $8,569,000 ($.62 per share), a decrease of 31 percent.

For the first half of 1990, sales increased 14 percent to $459,398,000 from $404,321,000. Net income amounted to $13,691,000 ($.99 per share) as compared to $17,508,000 ($1.27 per share) for the first half of 1989, a decrease of 22 percent. Last year's amounts have been restated for the Dec. 28, 1989, merger of Pittway Corp. with its majority shareholder.

The announcement was made today by Neison Harris, chairman, and King Harris, president,of the diversified company based in suburban Chicago.

Commenting on second quarter results, King Harris said, "All our main operating divisions reported higher sales during the quarter despite weak economic conditions prevailing in the markets we serve. Operating income, however, declined 10 percent, reflecting weak demand in certain key markets as well as special factors affecting individual divisions. Lower net income also reflects sharply higher net interest expense. Debt levels increased due to a continued high level of capital expenditures plus acquisitions and the merger-related special dividend paid in January.

"Ademco Distribution continued to increase its market share as its principal national competitor closed several distribution outlets. Ademco Manufacturing made good progress introducing its new Vista XM control/communicator. Fire Burglary Instruments was acquired in June as the result of the merger of its parent, FBX Corp., with a wholly owned subsidiary of Pittway. On an overall basis, the Ademco Security Group's sales and operating income improved.

WALTHAM, MASS. (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Oak Industries (NYSE: OAK) today announced improved operating results for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990.

The company reported net income of $1.8 million, or 2 cents per share, for the June 1990 quarter, compared to a net loss of $7.1 million, or 9 cents per share, for the same 1989 period. Sales from continuing operations of $43.5 million were $1.0 million greater than the June 1989 quarter.

For the second quarter, net income from continuing operations was $1.8 million which included nonrecurring income of $1.1 million primarily from the settlement of patent litigation. This compares to a net loss from continuing operations in the June 1989 quarter of $5.6 million, which included $4.9 million of nonrecurring expense.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the company reported income of $2.4 million, or 3 cents per share, which incudes the previously discussed patent settlements. This compares very favorably to the first half of 1989 when Oak had a net loss of $7.6 million, or 9 cents per share, which included $5.9 million of net nonrecurring expenses and the results of discontinued operations. Sales for the first six months of 1990 were $87.0 million, up $1.6 million over the 1989 period.

Exclusive of nonrecurring items and discontinued operations, operating income improved $2.9 million for the first six months of 1990 compared to the same period in 1989. Increased division profitability, reduced corporate expenses, and lower interest costs all contributed to this improvement. The company benefited from programs that have increased sales and margins in the appliance control operations, reduced headcount, and lowered debt.

William S. Antle III, president and chief executive officer, stated, "We are pleased with the progress in implementing our new programs. Businesses with low financial returns and poor strategic positions are being sold, unprofitable product lines pruned, productivity improved, and costs reduced. Results of these efforts are beginning to be evident in the year-to-year improvement of our operating results. Our cash position remains strong and will substantially improve during the September quarter."

CAMBRIDGE, MA (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Polaroid announced today the introduction of the Spectra 2 AF (Auto Focus) instant camera. The new camera combines the color quality of Spectra instant photography with the convenience of decision-free, point-and-shoot operation.

Spectra 2 AF offers instant photography enthusiasts large-format, rectangular instant pictures using Polaroid's popular Spectra film in an easy to use, fully automatic camera.

Available at an economical price, Spectra 2 AF incorporates most of the Polaroid Spectra camera's advanced picture-taking features including sonar autofocus, electronic flash and a 100 percent field-of-view viewfinder.

"Spectra cameras have provided large format, high quality instant images for instant photographers for several years," said Rick Kirkendall,

Polaroid division vice president, consumer marketing. "Spectra 2 AF is an ideal extension to our camera line and helps make Spectra instant photography available to more of our customers."

To simplify Spectra 2 AF's operation for point-and-shoot photographers, Polaroid has re-designed the camera's automatic override system control panel on the rear of the camera. The new camera's streamlined control panel features an exposure control enabling the photographer to adjust the lightness or darkness of the photos.

Spectra 2 AF retains all the technologically advanced automatic picture-taking functions of the classic Polaroid Spectra. The camera features sonar autofocus, built in programmed flash that automatically recharges in one-fifth of a second, automatic picture ejection and automatic film advance.

Like its predecessor, Spectra 2 AF presents a strikingly modern profile. Its sleek, wedge-shaped design is accentuated by a metallic taupe surface and a non-skid cover, allowing the photographer to hold the camera in a comfortable binocular-like grip. A convenient latch automatically raises the camera's assembly for picture-taking, and alerts the system's complex electronic network to begin charging the built-in programmed flash.

Spectra 2 AF uses Polaroid Spectra film. Composed of 18 microscopically thin, coated layers in a versatile rectangular format for both horizontal and vertical picture composition, Spectra film produces photographs of heightened color separation, saturation and brilliance.

The full line of Spectra accessories are compatible with Spectra 2 AF. Several special effects filters, easily clipped to the camera's front lens add to the enjoyment of Spectra photography: a motion filter adds movement to stationary objects; multi-image filters multiply subjects by three or five in a single photo; a starburst filter adds drama to light sources; and a red center spot filter adds a warm halo to portraits.

Polaroid also provides a laser copy print service for Spectra photographs for copies and enlargements accurately reflecting the high quality of original instant photos. Borderless laser copies and enlargements are available in sizes ranging from 2" x 2-1/2" to 11" x 14" gallery prints.

Suggested list price of Spectra 2 AF is $149.99.

ANN ARBOR, MI (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Interface Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: INTF) has authorized the company to repurchase additional shares of its own common stock, announced Carl L. Bixby, the company's CEO and board chairman, today.

The company, said Bixby, recently completed repurchase of 100,000 shares of its common stock, as authorized by its board of directors last February. The new authorization, which allows the company to invest approximately $500,000 in additional stock repurchases, expires Dec. 31, 1990.

Said Bixby, "Our stock is undervalued, and we believe additional repurchases are in the best interest of the company and our shareholders."

At the end of trading on Wednesday, Aug. 1, Interface Systems' common stock sold for $3.75 per share on the NASDAQ-NMS exchange.

Interface Systems is a diversified manufacturer of high-technology products. The company and its subsidiaries manufacture industrial-grade computers and computer terminals, called industrial workstations; plug-compatible printers for users of IBM mainframe and midrange computer systems; remote high-speed PC-to-mainframe data communications systems; and custom-printed circuit boards.

Interface Systems recently reported increased revenues and reduced earnings for the third quarter of fiscal 1990, which ended on June 30 for the company.

Revenue for the quarter was $9,862,659, up 11.5 percent from last year's third-quarter revenue of $8,847,654. Net earnings dropped 21.6 percent to $692,390, or $0.16 per share, from $882,862, or $0.20 per share, for the same period last fiscal year.

According to Bixby, comparisons to fiscal 1989 are somewhat misleading since last year's third-quarter earnings included over $350,000 in tax savings from the application of an NOL (net operating loss), obtained with the company's December 1986 acquisition of Winterhalter, Inc. (Winterhalter is now part of Interface Systems' data communications division, called CLEO Communications). "Before taxes," said Bixby, "our third-quarter earnings were over 75 percent higher than last year's."

Third-quarter results brought Interface Systems' year-to-date revenue to $28,616,353, up 17.7 percent from $24,320,557 for the first nine months of fiscal 1989. Year-to-date earnings stood at $1,708,838, or $0.40 per share, compared to $2,425,415, or $0.56 per share, at the same point last year.

CHICAGO (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - United Airlines today applauded the decision of Chief Judge John Mathias of the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) approving an award to United for authority to operate non-stop service between Chicago and Tokyo.

"We are delighted with Chief Judge Mathias' decision," said Stephen M. Wolf, chairman and president. "It is consistent with United States international aviation policy and recognizes that by choosing United, the ability of the United States to compete in the international marketplace will be strengthened."

As Chief Judge Mathias noted in the conclusion to his opinion, "In the face of growing competition from foreign-flag carriers in the U.S.- Japan and the U.S.-Pacific markets, it is essential that the department see to it that U.S.-flag competition is maintained and enhanced by these awards. United has been proven as the most aggressive and effective competitor in these markets.

"Purely through the expenditure of its own resources and its own will to compete, it has taken the competitively weak Pan Am Pacific routes and become the number one carrier in the Pacific. United is precisely the carrier that can be expected to enhance the overall structure and level of competition in these international markets. It will promote a competitive environment against foreign-flag competition that will sustain the greatest public benefit over time," Judge Mathias said.

Wolf said, "We are particularly grateful for the support United received from Illinois Gov. James Thompson; Virginia Gov. L. Douglas Wilder; six other governors; Chicago Mayor Richard Daley; the Illinois, Virginia and a number of other congressional delegations; and many other civic parties. These parties recognized that United provided not only the most competitive application in the case, but also would bring to their locales the greatest public benefits in terms of number of passengers and tons of cargo carried, seats provided, and city pairs served.

"We are eager to inaugurate our service, which will originate in Washington, D.C. and, through connections there and in Chicago, will provide service to more than 800 city pairs in the United States and throughout the Pacific Rim.

"United will fly the Chicago-Tokyo route using state-of-the-art Boeing 747-400 aircraft," Wolf concluded.

DOT and presidential review of the judge's decision is expected to be completed prior to Nov. 1, 1990.

CINNAMINSON, N.J. (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - DNA Plant Technology Corporation (NASDAQ: DNAP) today reported that for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, its total revenue was $3,515,000 compared to $3,187,000 in the second quarter of 1989.

For the second quarter, the company had a net loss of $1,966,000, $.10 per share, compared to a net loss of $745,000 or $.04 per share in the second quarter of 1989.

For the first six months of 1990, total revenue was $7,042,000 compared to $6,343,000 in the first six months of 1989. The net loss for the first six months of 1990 was $3,038,000 or $.15 per share, compared to a net loss of $1,157,000 or $.06 per share, in the first six months of 1989.

"Revenues from research and product development agreements climbed substantially in the quarter, reflecting increased funding in our key business areas," said Richard Laster, DNAP chairman and chief executive officer. "The increased loss for the quarter is primarily the result of our planned step-up in investment to support the market launch of VegiSnax(R) carrots and celery and also reflects the acceleration of the edible oils program toward commercialization. Introduction of VegiSnax(R) into Pacific Northwest markets began in the second quarter and we are pleased with the progress to date. Plans for a fall expansion of the market are proceeding. McDonald's test of carrot and celery sticks is proceeding in 21 stores with growing interest by McDonald's in broadening exposure of the product.

"Our edible oils program is also making excellent progress, with a large crop of canola nearing harvest in the Idaho growing area. Shipment of oil to potential customers for product testing will commence this fall.

"Revenues of our joint ventures, which are not consolidated into DNAP results, include revenues of Agri-Diagnostics Associates and the initial sales of FreshWorld's VegiSnax(R) vegetables.

"Our financial position remains solid with close to $30 million in cash and no debt," Laster said.

DNAP is a leading agricultural biotechnology company, applying a spectrum of technologies to the commercial development of products and processes for industrial and consumer markets.

CITY OF INDUSTRY, CA (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of RMED International Inc. (NASDAQ: RMEDC) today announced net earnings of $80,000 or $.02 per share for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared to a net loss of $416,000 or $.12 per share for the corresponding period in 1989. For the nine-month period ended June 30, 1990, the company had a net loss of $379,000 or $.11 per share, compared to a net loss of $1,019,000 or $.31 per share for the corresponding period in 1989.

Loss from operations for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, amounted to $147,000 compared to $391,000 for the same period in 1989. The large reduction in the loss form operations was due to the company's administrative restructuring. This was achieved by closing the company's office in Tulsa, Okla., by centralizing its administrative operations in its existing warehouse facility in Industry, by reducing personnel and related costs and by selling non- performing corporate assets.

Earnings for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, included the gain from the previously announced sale of a 50 percent interest in the underlying pending patent of the company's new diaper line still under development. The 50 percent pending patent interest was sold for $225,000 in cash and resulted in a gain of $209,000. The pending patent interest was sold to Brandy Enterprises Ltd., an Illinois corporation, who is also financing the company's first diaper production machinery on an exclusive lease and royalty basis. The company also issued common stock to Brandy in exchange for $75,000 during the quarter ended June 30, 1990.

At June 30, 1990, the company had total assets of $1,655,000 and stockholders' equity of $402,000. Stockholders' equity at June 30, 1990, was in excess of the minimum capital and surplus amount required by the NASD.

The diaper being developed under the pending patent mentioned above will be distributed under the name Tushies(tm) and is a revolutionary diaper in that it is made of cotton rather than wood pulp, uses 60 percent less plastic and fossil fuels than the leading brands and requires no tree or wood products in its manufacture. Distribution of Tushies(tm) is expected to begin in October 1990.

RMED is a manufacturer and distributor of biodegradable, disposable diapers. The company's main source of revenue is generated by sales of its line of non-chemical, biodegradable disposable TenderCare(tm) diapers. RMED distributes TenderCare(tm) in both the United States and abroad. In addition, TenderCare(tm) is carried on American Airlines(r) flights, and TenderCare(tm) brochures are being inserted in all diaper bags manufactured by Gitano(r).

ST. LOUIS (Aug. 2) PR Newswire - McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) today announced that its board of directors has adopted a shareholder rights plan designed to deter coercive takeover tactics and to provide assurance that shareholders will benefit from the long-term prospects and increases in value of the company.

Under the plan, which is similar to shareholder rights plans adopted by many other corporations, shareholders of record on Aug. 13, 1990, will receive a dividend consisting of the right to acquire securities at below-market prices under certain circumstances. The plan includes "flip-in" and "flip-over" features similar to other shareholder rights plans.

If a person or group acquires 20 percent or more of McDonnell Douglas' outstanding common stock, each right will entitle the holder (except for the acquiring person or group) to purchase, for $200, shares of McDonnell Douglas common stock having a market value of $400 (the "flip-in" feature).

If a person or group acquires 20 percent or more of company's stock, but less than 50 percent, McDonnell Douglas may elect to exchange one share of common stock (or a fractional share of a new series of preferred stock) for each right held by shareholders other than the acquiring person or group. This exchange could apply to some or all of the rights outstanding.

In the event of a third party merging with or acquiring 50 percent or more of the assets or earning power of McDonnell Douglas, each right will entitle the holder to purchase, for $200, stock of the acquiring entity having a market value of $400 (the "flip-over" feature).

The rights expire in ten years unless redeemed, exercised, or exchanged at an earlier time. The board will be able to redeem the rights at one cent per right at any time until ten business days following the acquisition by a person or group of 20 percent or more of the company's common stock.

The rights plan is not being adopted in response to any effort to acquire control of McDonnell Douglas, and the corporation and its board are unaware of any such effort.

Well over 1,000 other companies, including other leading aerospace companies, have adopted similar plans designed to protect against takeover tactics that bring unfair pressure to bear on shareholders and deprive the target company's board and its shareholders of their ability to determine the destiny of their company.

Details of the shareholder rights plan will be contained in a letter to be mailed to all shareholders of record on Aug. 13, 1990.

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - AT&T (AMEX: T) Wednesday reduced rates for three of its in-state long distance services and introduced a new service option for WATS users.

The rate reductions, which were approved by the California Public Utilities Commission, apply to AT&T's long distance, MEGACOM (R) WATS and MEGACOM (R) 800 Services.

Chris Ensign, AT&T's state government affairs manager, said, based on today's calling volumes, long distance rates are reduced $10.5 million and rates for AT&T's MEGACOM services are reduced by $3 million.

- For long distance service, AT&T lowered the day rate initial minute charges by one cent in all but one of the seven mileage bands. In addition the price of the direct dialed day rate for each additional minute was reduced by one cent in the two longest mileage bands, for a cumulative reduction of three percent. That represents a $10.5 million savings to AT&T's California customers, based on today's calling volumes.

- For AT&T MEGACOM WATS Service, AT&T lowered the day time rate by nine percent. The service offers large volume business customers AT&T's lowest per call rates for outbound voice and low-speed data transmission.

- Also, AT&T MEGACOM 800 Service rates were lowered four percent for all rate periods. This service lets businesses create unique inbound toll-free calling areas, thereby receiving calls from selected area codes only.

Both MEGACOM services offer a simple rate structure based on distance and duration, with time-of-day, day-of-week and volume discounts.

The commission also approved introduction of AT&T One Line WATS. This new service option for WATS users enables customers to originate intrastate, interstate and international calls on a single dedicated access line.

DALLAS (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Halliburton Co. (NYSE: HAL) today reported that its second quarter 1990 earnings were substantially improved in comparison with the 1989 second quarter. Net income increased 50 percent to $47.1 million, or 44 cents a share, in the second quarter of 1990 compared to $31.4 million, or 29 cents a share, in the year earlier quarter. The earnings improvement resulted from significant increases of revenues and operating income generated by the company's oil field services and engineering and construction services business groups.

For the six month period ending June 30, 1990 the company's net income was $83.3 million and earnings per share were 78 cents, up sharply from the first half 1989 results of $45.1 million and 42 cents a share, respectively.

The oil field services group reported revenues of $695.8 million in the second quarter of 1990, an increase of 19 percent over the 1989 second quarter. Revenue growth was greater than growth of worldwide drilling activity, which increased by 12 percent during the same time period. The group's operating income increased by 99 percent to $64.2 million, compared to the year ago quarter. The continuing recovery of market demand in the United States and a better mix of business were largely responsible for the improved profitability.

The engineering and construction services group's second quarter 1990 revenues increased by 31 percent to $904.8 million while operating income increased by 43 percent to $24.3 million, compared to last year's second quarter. The increases were attributable to revenue and operating income improvements generated by the segment's petroleum and chemical, forest products, maintenance and marine business units.

The insurance services group's second quarter 1990 operating income declined to $5.0 million compared to $15.2 million in the second quarter of 1989. The second quarter of 1990 continued to reflect reduced underwriting results in property and marine lines of business. The year ago quarter included $4.9 million of operating income from a life insurance subsidiary that was sold last year.

Thomas H. Cruikshank, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Halliburton Co., said, "The Company's two primary business segments continue to improve as demand for their services strengthens. The current recovery of oil prices should encourage higher levels of oil and gas exploration and development expenditures which will benefit demand for the Company's oil field services and its engineering and construction services. This contributes to my expectations of a stronger second half of 1990 for Halliburton."

Halliburton Co. is one of the world's largest diversified oil field services, engineering and construction companies. Founded in 1919, Halliburton provides oil field services and products, industrial and marine engineering and construction services, and property and casualty insurance services.

CALGARY, Alberta (AUG. 2) PR NEWSWIRE - Encor Inc. (Toronto, Montreal: ECR) today announced its financial and operating results for the six months ended June 30, 1990. Funds generated from operations totalled $43.1 million or 19 cents per share on a fully diluted basis, down 9 per cent from the corresponding pro forma period in 1989. This reduction is due mainly to lower volumes and revenues which result from producing property dispositions completed in the second half of 1989, as well as lower liquids prices and higher exchange rates in the second quarter compared to the corresponding quarter in 1989. The net loss applicable to common shares for the half year amounted to $41.6 million or 27 cents per share compared to a net loss of $20.0 million or 13 cents per share for the same period in 1989. The 1989 results include $36.1 million in gains on sale associated with dispositions concluded during the first half of the year and income from properties disposed of in the second half of 1989. Before reflecting asset sales, the 1990 earnings results show an improvement of $14.5 million or 26 per cent over the corresponding period in 1989.

Income from operations of $4.9 million for the first half of 1990 represents an improvement of $23.1 million over the corresponding period in 1989 with lower net revenues of $14.2 million being more than offset by lower expenses of $37.3 million. Net revenues in 1990 of $149.8 million declined $14.2 million from 1989 with $13.2 million of this reduction relating to dispositions concluded in 1989. Expenses, at $144.9 million, declined 20 per cent largely because of higher international dry hole and abandonment costs in 1989 which included write-offs of certain assets which had been recognized as pre-production costs in prior years. Other factors contributing to the change in expenses include lower production and depletion costs which resulted from the reduced 1990 volumes and lower amortization of undeveloped rights. Financial charges were 15 per cent lower in the first six months of 1990 reflecting the reduction in long-term debt that occurred in 1989.

Capital expenditures and exploration expenses for the six months were $53.8 million. In western Canada spending totalled $40.1 million, an increase of $7.9 million over 1989 levels. Land acquisitions, up $7.3 million to $8.6 million, accounted for the major portion of the increase. The lands have been acquired to strengthen existing landholdings in strategic exploration areas.

At the end of June, 19 exploratory and 75 development wells had been completed in western Canada, with success rates of 63 percent and 88 percent, respectively. This drilling activity compares with 15 exploratory and 81 development wells in the first half of 1989. International well completions during this period totalled 34, up from 28 in the first half

Encor continues to dispose of selected non-strategic properties. During the six months ended June 30, 1990, the company entered into sale agreements pertaining to western Canada properties with various purchasers which when closed will realize proceeds of $15.2 million. The most significant conditional disposition relates to the company's 10.5 per cent interest in the Sturgeon Lake South area in Alberta for $10 million. In addition, the company has conditionally agreed to sell its 10 per cent interest in the Madura Strait PSC area in Indonesia, effective May 27, 1990, for U.S. $7 million.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - Farmers would gain more freedom to decide what to grow and environmental safeguards would be strengthened under the farm bill passed by the House, but budget constraints could erase parts of the bill.

In the final hours of work on the bill, the House voted Wednesday to tighten the rules on how much money farmers can receive in farm program payments by lowering the limit on direct payments to $200,000 - a $50,000 reduction.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., who wanted tougher rules, said the plan ''left out the barnyard door, swung it wide open'' by failing to impose new limits on partnership and other methods by which farmers receive indirect payments.

The House passed the bill by a vote of 337-91.

Farm payment limits proved to be one of the most contentious issues during farm bill debate. The House voted overwhelmingly last week against banning payments to large farmers.

Conte said tougher payment rules would prevent excessive payments to large farms. He said large farms receive an average of $78,000, compared to $12,600 for small farms.

The House also voted to set up the first-ever national definition of organically produced food and rejected an attempt to eliminate a $4.5 expansion of the food stamp program.

The farm bill, which would set farm policy for the next five years, calls for spending about $54 billion in commodity supports, as well as dictating the scope of public feeding, research, export subsidy and conservation programs.

However, the White House has threatened to veto the farm bill unless there are substantial cuts in farm subsidy spending. Republican leaders on both sides of Capitol Hill have predicted several billion dollars will have to be pared from the bill.

The cuts would be a result of negotiations between the White House and Congress over a package of budget cuts. Agriculture leaders have said they will delay writing a final compromise version of the bill to see what cuts must be accommodated.

Like the bill passed by the Senate last week, the House bill would freeze target prices and support rates, create an oilseed marketing loan aimed at ending the slump in soybean production, and give farmers a limited form of so-called planting flexibility.

The bills continue the policy set in 1985 of trying to make U.S. products more competitive in the world market while protecting farm income.

During five days of debate, the House refused to make major changes in the bill that was drafted by the Agriculture Committee. Committee leaders said they would take care of spending cuts later, when a final compromise bill is written with the Senate.

The 1985 farm policy law, which expires this year, was a landmark because it linked environmental and farm program goals. The new bill would continue the requirement for farmers to practice conservation in order to qualify for government payments.

Due to budgetary limits, the farm bill took the form of a ''hold the line'' bill with few major initiatives. The most notable were decisions to create a marketing loan for soybeans and the planting flexibility proposal.

Both were aimed at the same problem - complaints that federal subsidies for some crops make them unduly popular while other crops are eclipsed, despite market demand.

Under the planting flexiblity plan, farmers would be allowed to adjust the mixture of crops on 25 percent of the land they now devote to wheat, feed grains, cotton, rice and oilseeds, such as soybeans. Crop subsidies would not be paid on ''flex'' acres but loans would be. Farmers would not lose eligibility for future crop supports by taking advantage of flexbility.

The administration proposed a full-scale flexbility program, which it says would be more successful and less costly than the House version, partly because a soybean marketing loan would not be needed.

''Our view is that the oilseed marketing loan proposal is essentially an income transfer program,'' the administration said in estimating the loan could cost $2 billion if prices drop slightly.

The soybean marketing loan would be set initially at $5.25 a bushel, 75 cents higher than the loan now offered.

The bill would make it easier to catch violators of the ''swampbuster'' program, created in 1985 to prevent wetlands from being converted to farmland. That would be counterbalanced by reducing the penalty for unintentional violations and, in limited instances, allowing farmers to convert a small wetland if they restore an equal- or larger-sized former wetland.

In addition, the bill would create two voluntary programs to protect water quality.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AUG. 2) UPI - A Delta 2 rocket successfully boosted a $65 million satellite into orbit Thursday after a spectacular predawn blastoff, completing another link in a global network of space-based military navigation beacons.

The 126-foot, blue-and-white rocket roared to life at 1:39 a.m. EDT and smoothly climbed away from launch pad 17A at the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, lighting up the night sky for miles around as it streaked through a cloudless night sky.

About 25 minutes later, the $30 million rocket's payload, a $65 million Global Positioning System ''Navstar'' navigation satellite, was successfully ejected into its planned preliminary orbit.

''With spacecraft separation, everything appears to have gone very well this morning,'' said an Air Force spokesman in launch control.

It was the eighth in a planned constellation of 21 such high-precision space beacons and like the preceding seven launches, the deployment Thursday went like clockwork.

Once the full ''GPS'' network is in place, military units around the world will be able to pinpoint their positions to within about 53 feet.

Civilians can use the system to pinpoint their locations to within about 300 feet.

An on-board rocket is scheduled to fire later this week to boost the latest GPS beacon into a circular 12-hour orbit 12,500 miles up.

The launching Thursday marked the 19th straight success for rocket-builder McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Co. of Huntington Beach, Calif., the 11th success in a row for the Delta 2 - a perfect record.

The Air Force ordered 20 Delta 2s from McDonnell Douglas in the wake of the Challenger disaster specifically to carry GPS satellites into orbit that originoptions valued at up to $669 million, McDonnell Douglas also agreed to build Delta 2s on a commercial basis as part of a national space policy to encourage development of a private sector launch industry.

The first GPS navigation satellite was safely placed in orbit Feb. 14, 1989, in the first flight of a Delta 2 rocket. Six more successful GPS launches in a row were chalked up prior to this week's mission.

In all, the Air Force plans to launch 21 upgraded ''block 2'' GPS satellites to join seven older and less sophisticated ''block 1'' spacecraft already in space. The satellites are built by Rockwell International's Satellite Systems Division in Seal Beach, Calif., under a $1.2 billion contract.

Equipped with sensitive atomic clocks, four such satellites will be ''visible'' at any given time from anywhere on Earth. Military forces on the ground, at sea or in the air will be able to use signals from the satellites to pinpoint their positions to within about 53 feet.

The satellites originally were to be launched from NASA's space shuttle.

But after the 1986 Challenger disaster, which grounded the shuttle program for 32 months, the Pentagon embarked on an unprecedented rocket construction program to guarantee independent access to space for high-priority military payloads.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - Under the gun from a budget-cutting Congress, President Bush was poised to endorse a reduction and reconfiguration of U.S. military forces to meet new security requirements in the post-Cold War era.

The diminution of East-West tensions, disintegration of the Warsaw Pact and the spread of democracy from Panama to Poland have altered the threats and assumptions underlying U.S. military planning since the end of World War II.

So far, Bush has responded with characteristic caution to suggestions that the prospect for a more peaceful world warrants a substantial and even radical changes in the troops and armaments needed to deter war.

But pressure from Congress has accelerated a reevaluation of U.S. defense needs and foreign policy objectives that otherwise would have been mandated by events abroad, placing the military on a road to major retrenchment.

Acting on recommendations from the Pentagon, Bush will sketch the broad outlines of coming changes in the armed forces in a speech Thursday at the Aspen Institute in Aspen, Colo., in what one administration official called ''a recognition of new political realities.''

No specific figures or timetables were mentioned, although civilian and military officials at the Pentagon - driven in part by pressure from Congress - have been working on reductions as high as 25 percent for the coming years in response to reduced worldwide tensions and the prospect of arms reduction agreements with the Soviet Union.

The reduction of East-West tensions, disintegration of the Warsaw Pact and the spread of democracy from Panama to Poland have altered the threats and assumptions underlying U.S. military planning since the end of World War II.

Bush has responded with characteristic caution to suggestions that the prospect for a more peaceful world warrants a substantial and even radical changes in the troops and armaments needed to deter war.

White House spokesman Roman Popadiuk acknowledged that ''the frictions that have existed among states seem to be decreasing,'' but that Bush ''would also note that there is considerable responsibility on the part of the United States for maintaining its global presence in various regions of the world.''

The dipolar world that existed for more than 40 years in the shadow of a high-stakes struggle between East and West is being replaced by a multi-polar world in which the two major superpowers will play a less dominant role.

The consequences, seen in Soviet troop withdrawals from Eastern Europe and U.S.-Soviet arms reduction talks, will include manpower cutbacks, base closings and reduced commitments of troops, tanks and naval forces abroad.

No longer will the primary focus of American forces be on preparedness for a huge land war in Europe. The new military will be leaner, meaner and more mobile, geared more to smaller-scale conflict than war with the Soviet empire.

Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has estimated the military could withstand a cut of 20 percent to 25 percent in dollars and troops from 1992 to 1997 without jeopardizing national security.

In an article for the Naval Institute's magazine Proceedings, he alluded to turbulent times ahead for a military with a less well-defined mission, ''useful in times of crises but to be watched carefully at all other times.''

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, in an analysis for Congress, estimated a 25 percent cut in forces would include the elimination of 250,000 troops, two aircraft carriers, an air wing, 55 ships and 200 Minuteman II missiles.

Cheney already has proposed reducing the 2.1 million-strong troop strength of American forces by 54,000 in 1990 and 38,000 1991. The Senate Armed Services Committee has urged a cut of 100,000 troops in 1991 and its House counterpart has recommended 129,500.

At the Vienna negotiations on Conventional Forces in Europe, the United States is seeking a limit of 225,000 American combat troops on European soil, which would mean a reduction of about 80,000. No one doubts the American presence will fall well below 225,000 as European unification takes hold.

Defense analysts predict retrenchment will involve shifting more troops from active to reserve status, improving the capability to airlift them to trouble spots elsewhere in the world and closing bases at home and abroad.

Cheney has recommended a 10 percent troop cut in South Korea, Japan and Okinawa and Gen. John Galvin, the commander of NATO forces in Europe, has sent him a list of 100 U.S. installations recommended for closure.

As the risk of war in Europe and elsewhere recedes, Bush has asserted in the face of demands for a deficit-cutting ''peace dividend'' that the U.S. military must remain strong to guard against uncertainty and instability.

However compelling his argument, he faces growing congressional demands for more rapid and ambitious reductions in U.S. forces than those now on the drawing board.

The House Armed Services Committee voted Tuesday to cut $24 billion from Bush's original $307 billion military spending request for 1991. Bowing to the inevitability of budget cuts, Bush has urged Congress to hold the line at an $18 billion cut voted earlier by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

ATLANTA (AUG. 2) UPI - Archbishop Eugene A. Marino, the nation's highest-ranking black clergyman, resigned last month because he was romantically involved with a former singer, church officials said.

Bishop James P. Lyke confirmed widespread reports Wednesday that the 56-year-old Marino became romantically involved with Vicki Long of Riverdale shortly after he took over the Atlanta Archdiocese in May 1988.

Lyke, the auxiliary bishop of Cleveland, is expected to be named the next archbishop of Atlanta. Lyke said he would be in Atlanta Thursday to hold a news conference.

The affair between Marino and Long began within several months of the archbishop's installation and apparently continued until recently, Lyke said.

''Love got the best of him,'' a close associate of Marino was quoted in the Atlanta Constitution. ''He played it all on a roll of the dice. He ended up trading the church for her, and now he's lost both of them.''

Marino stepped down July 10, citing personal reasons and ill health.

''The church of Atlanta needs a shepherd who is physically, spirtually and psychologically healthy,'' Marino said in his letter of resignation.

''I genuinely believe that this painful decision, which is entirely of my own choice, is in the best interest of the church in Atlanta and of my own spiritual and psychological well-being.''

Long, a single mother and former singer, refused to comment. She packed some belongings and her daughter and left her home.

Lyke, who took over the Atlanta archdiocese after Marino's unexpected resignation, said Marino had authorized him to confirm the affair after Atlanta television station WAGA aired the report.

Long, a former resident of Columbus, Ga., filed a lawsuit in 1987 charging the Rev. Donal Keohane had fathered her daughter. The Catholic church is reportedly paying Long child support, although blood tests confirmed Keohane was not the father of the child.

Lyke said he understood that church officials learned of Marino's affair in March, but added he believed Marino decided to resign his post voluntarily.

''I think he probably realized that this was not going to be something that was going to stay out of the public eye,'' Lyke said. ''My sense is that he concluded that he could not function with that kind of pall of possible disclosure over his head.''

Lyke said he was given details of the reason for Marino's resignation at the time of his appointment as apostolic administrator of the archdiocese.

But he said the details were not made public because the church ''had no authorization to report matters of conscience that belong to somebody else.

''If the church had said something, we would have violated the confidence of Archbishop Marino,'' he said.

Parishioners reacted to the news with shock and disbelief.

''It's time for me to allow my faith to come through at its best and be my strength,'' said Rhonwyn Rogers, executive director of the Black Catholic Ministry in Atlanta.

''This is a bombshell and I hate very much to hear this story,'' said Hughes Spalding Jr., a member of Holy Spirit Catholic Church. ''Based on his almost-impossible day-to-day schedule, I can't imagine how he had time to do what is alleged.''

(AUG. 2) UPI - The umpires sent Bud Harrelson to the locker room, but they couldn't take away the New York Manager's television privileges.

Harrelson, ejected in the eighth inning for arguing, watched on the cluhouse televison as Tim Teufel blasted a game-tying two-out homer in the ninth inning Wednesday night and the Mets rallied for a 6-4 victory in 12 innings over the Montreal Expos.

With the victory, the Mets took a one-game lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

''It was a fight. We fought for this one but I loved it,'' said Harrelson, who was ousted for arguing following an inning-ending double play. ''I was in here after they threw me out and I was watching the game on TV and I said 'Hey, Tim is hitting the ball out of the park.'''

Teufel's homer, his third of the year, came off reliever Tim Burke.

''I was looking for a pitch in the strike zone,'' said Teufel. ''Hopefully

I could get something I was comfortable with. I wanted something to drive.''

Gregg Jefferies keyed New York's 18-hit attack by driving in two runs, including the go-ahead run in the 12th, and scoring twice.

Keith Miller singled off loser Bill Sampen, 8-4, to open the 12th and stole second. After Howard Johnson struck out, Jefferies singled home Miller to make it 5-4. Jefferies stole second and scored on McReynolds' single.

''It was an emotional win,'' said Miller, who had three hits. ''Teufel got a big hit for us. He doesn't get a lot of bats but when he does he gets the big hit. We used our whole bullpen and we played big defense and everyone got a hit. We were down 4-l and we were still confident.''

Montreal starter Zane Smith lasted seven innings, allowing three runs and nine hits before tiring.

''I wanted to leave Zane in as long as I could but he got tired,'' Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers said. ''We have to put this loss behind us because we face (Frank) Viola on Thursday. We made a lot of mistakes out there but we did a lot of things right. It isn't the end of the world. And we won't come dressed in black on Thursday.''

The Expos trail the Mets by six games.

Bob Ojeda, 5-5, survived a bases-loaded jam in the 11th and picked up the win with two innings of relief.

(AUG. 2) UPI - Toronto ace Dave Steib took a ''horrible'' first inning and turned it into a real nightmare for the Orioles.

''All I needed was a chance to shut them down the rest of the way,'' Stieb said after the Blue Jays rallied from a four-run deficit to a 7-4 victory over Baltimore.

''What a way to win, in light of my career here,'' added Stieb, who was winless in five starts in Baltimore - the only AL city where he had not won.

''I don't worry about stuff like that,'' said Stieb, who walked three of the first four batters. ''I warmed up well, but noticed the mound was a lot steeper than the mound in the bullpen. It took me awhile to get used to it. It was a horrible first inning.

''I was pleased with (manager) Cito (Gaston) for letting me get out of it. Despite my problems, nobody was up in the bullpen. That gave me confidence. Our team is capable of coming back. They proved it again.''

Stieb, 14-3, has won four straight over his last five starts but it looked bleak when he needed 40 pitches to get through the first inning. He threw 13 of his first 15 pitches for balls and the Blue Jays fell behind 4-0.

Orioles Manager Frank Robinson wasn't breathing easy yet.

''We got four runs but I don't think it's enough against anybody,'' Robinson said. ''All our losses are tough losses now. It was there for us to win, but we didn't get it done.''

Gaston said Stieb's track record kept him in the game.

''You don't rush to take out a starter who is having control problems,'' Gaston said of the 11-year major league veteran, ''especially someone who's been so good over the years.''

Stieb gave up just two hits over the next five innings, before relievers Jim Acker and Tom Henke (22nd save) finished up.

Oriole pitchers Mickey Weston, Jeff Ballard, 1-10, and Mark Williamson were pounded for 12 hits, including home runs by Fred McGriff (24), Glenallen Hill (10) and John Olerud (12).

Kelly Gruber's two-run seventh-inning double snapped a 4-4 tie.

Elsewhere in the AL, California trounced Minnesota, 11-5; Texas slammed Milwaukee, 8-2; Oakland outlasted Seattle, 1-0 in 11 innings; Detroit buried New York, 15-4; Clevland defeated Kansas City, 4-1; and Boston blasted Chicago 9-5.

In the National League, it was: Cincinnati 6, San Diego 3; Chicago 5, Pittsburgh 0; New York 6, Montreal 4, 12 innings; Philadelphia 11, St. Louis 10; and San Francisco 2, Los Angeles 1.

-- AROUND THE AL --

Angels 11, Twins 5

At Minnesota, Bill Schroeder drove in four runs with a homer and a double and Mark Langston broke a personal eight-game losing to lift the Angels. Langston, 5-13, won his first game since June 5. Bryan Harvey went 1 2-3 innings to pick up his 13th save. Roy Smith, 5-9, surrendered eight hits and six runs in 2 2-3 innings.

Rangers 8, Brewers 2

At Milwaukee, Charlie Hough gave up four hits and one run over eight innings for his first victory over the Brewers in eight years. Hough, 8-7, allowed one run, striking out four and walking four. He was 0-9 in 12 starts since his only victory over Milwaukee on July 26, 1982. Milwaukee starter Ron Robinson, 4-3, suffered the Brewers' sixth loss in seven games.

Athletics 1, Mariners 0 (11 innings)

At Oakland, pinch hitter Doug Jennings singled with one out in the 11th inning afternoon to score Lance Blankenship from second base and lift the Athletics. Dave Stewart, 14-8, went the distance for his third shutout, allowing five hits with three walks and five strikeouts. Seattle's Erik Hansen pitched 10 shutout innings and struck out a career-high 11 batters before giving way to Mike Schooler, 1-2.

Tigers 15, Yankees 4

At New York, Mike Heath, Larry Sheets and Gary Ward hit home runs to help Jack Morris win his first game for Detroit since July 6. Heath led a 15-hit attack with three hits and three RBI. Morris, 9-13, gave up two runs on seven hits and two walks while striking out three over seven innings. Yankees starter Andy Hawkins, 2-9, lasted 2 2-3 innings, as New York lost a four-game winning streak.

Indians 4, Royals 1

At Cleveland, rookie Alex Cole stole a team-record five bases, scored twice and knocked in a run to help the Indians snap a four-game losing streak. Greg Swindell, 7-6, gave up nine hits, struck out four and walked two over seven innings. Doug Jones pitched the final two innings for his 28th save. Mark Davis, 1-7, gave up four runs and five hits while walking two and striking out three in 4 2-3 innings.

Red Sox 9, White Sox 5

At Boston, Tom Bolton, 5-1, allowed five hits over eight innings and Tom Brunansky hit his first homer in a month and scored twice to lead the Red Sox to their fourth straight win. Bolton, 5-1, gave up three runs, walked two and struck out one. Chicago's Jack McDowell fell to 6-6.

(AUG. 2) UPI - The House passed the farm bill last night by a vote of 337-91. In the final hours of work, the House voted to tighten the rules on how much money farmers can receive in farm program payments. The limit on direct payments was lowered to 200-thousand dollars- a reduction of 50-thousand dollars.

The crisis on the island nation of Trinidad ended yesterday when Moslem rebels released all of their hostages and surrendered UNconditionally. The failed coup attempt began Friday when the rebels stormed Parliament House. The uprising reportedly left at least 300 people dead, including one former hostage.

The notorious McMartin Pre-School molestation case formally ended yesterday in Los Angeles when a judge dismissed eight remaining charges against defendant Raymond Buckey. Buckey, free of criminal charges for the first time in nearly seven years, filed a 20-Million-dollar suit seeking vindication and the money to rebuild his ruined life.

Hurricane Bertha swirled toward Newfoundland this morning after blowing past Nova Scotia, kicking up waves that sank a Greek cargo ship in the Atlantic. At last report, Bertha was near the extreme eastern tip of Nova Scotia, moving northeast at about 22 miles-an-hour.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) UPI - Survivors of a Greek freighter sunk in violent seas whipped up by Hurricane Bertha were headed for Maine Thursday aboard a Soviet fishing vessel that aided in their rescue.

The 21 survivors included the captain of the 593-foot Corazon that went down Wednesday in towering North Atlantic waves. Six other passengers were killed when the cement-laden cargo ship sunk, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Matthew Giltmer.

The bodies of three of the deceased were recovered; the other three missing sailors were declared dead at sea after Coast Guard and National Guard C-130 planes circled the area until 8:30 p.m., he said.

The 21 survivors were all taken aboard the Soviet freighter Leonid Leonidov because it carries a doctor. One of the survivors had suffered a serious injury, but the rest were in good condition, Giltmer said.

The Coast Guard had received indications the injured person may have been the freighter's captain, Georgios Tsibirlos, 48, of Chios, Greece, but the report was not confirmed, Giltmer said.

The Soviet rescue ship was expected to arrive Friday in Portland, Maine, Coast Guard officials said.

Rescue planes from both services took turns circling the area, about 300 miles east-southeast of Cape Cod, dropping rubber life rafts and floating radio beacon signals and helping the rescue ships spot any of the seamen in the water.

Coast Guard Petty Officer Lionel Bryant said the Corazon, heading for New York with a cargo of cement, was hit by Bertha's 86-mph winds and foundered in the crashing seas.

Her captain radioed Tuesday that the vessel's keel was broken and the crew was preparing to abandon ship.

The ship's life boats were readied for launching but the crew apparently decided not to risk leaving the ship in the huge waves, ''choosing the lesser of two evils,'' Bryant said.

He said the crew finally took to the life boats about 4:45 a.m. Wednesday.

Bryant said that before the ship sank it was slowly breaking up and the bow was submerged.

''Part of the bow was torn away. The keel is broken at midship causing it to buckle in the middle. Waves are crashing across the middle while the stern is three-fourths of the way out of the water.''

Giltmer said early Thursday there would be no further efforts to recover the three missing persons.

''At this point there is only an astronomical chance of even being able to see the bodies,'' said. ''In my opinion it would not be very logical to sent someome to risk his life to recover bodies.

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad (AUG. 2) UPI - Acting Prime Minister Winston Dookaran said his nation made no deals to get Moslem rebels to release hostages and surrender unconditionally after a six-day standoff that killed up to 300 people.

Police and troops arrested 111 rebels of the Libyan-backed Jamaat Muslimeen Wednesday after the insurgents released all their hostages from the state-owned television station and the Parliament building.

The release of all hostages brought to a virtual end the nationwide crisis that erupted Friday when the rebels stormed Parliament and the television station, taking captive Prime Minister Arthur Robinson and some 45 others, demanding Robinson resign and calling for new elections.

Dookaran, the minister of planning and mobilization, said at a news conference Wednesday night, ''The government of Trinidad and Tobago has succeeded in overcoming a very critical situation sparked by a small extremist group.''

Dookaran said the former hostages were receiving medical attention ''after a terrifying ordeal.''

''We offer our sincere condolences to the families of soldiers and policemen who have died,'' Dookaran said. As many as 300 people were reportedly killed in the coup attempt, among them Parliamentary Secretary Leo Desvignes, who died in a hospital Wednesday from bullet wounds.

Desvignes had been released from captivity Sunday because of his wounds.

Dookaran said Robinson, who while being a hostage offered to step down and grant amnesty to the rebels, ''has no intention of resigning.''

''Discussions took place and at the end we received an unconditional surrender,'' Dookaran said. ''We have made no deal with this extremist group. Appropriate charges will be made against this terrorist group, which has caused an unprecedented crisis in this nation.''

He declined to elaborate on the ''unconditional'' surrender or say whether the amnesty would be respected.

Dookaran announced that a state of emergency and dusk-to-dawn curfew would continue in effect in Port-of-Spain until the situation was restored to normal.

Rebel leader Yasin Abu Bakr and 68 others surrendered about 1 p.m. after releasing 29 hostages from the television station. Abu Bakr rested his AK-47 rifle on the ground and bowed to the east, apparently toward the Moslem holy city of Mecca.

''Let God be praised, let God be praised,'' Abu Bakr said in Arabic when reporters asked if he had been given amnesty. He did not say whether he surrendered willingly.

The rebels inside the Parliament building, including Abu Bakr's second-in-command, Balil Abdulah, surrendered a few hours later and released the 17 remaining hostages, including Cabinet members and legislators.

Soldiers ordered the rebels to come out with their weapons in their left hand, then to turn to the right and walk 25 yards and place the weapons on the ground.

After being searched and processed, they were herded aboard a military bus one at a time and taken to a military facility outside the capital.

Robinson, 63, had been released Tuesday and taken by ambulance from Parliament suffering from bullet wounds in the legs.

Food and fuel supplies were running short and accumulated garbage and rotting corpses lay on the streets of the capital.

Most of the downtown shopping area had been looted and gutted by fire.

CAIRO, Egypt (AUG. 2) UPI - President Hosni Mubarak called for an emergency meeting of the Arab League in response to Iraq's invasion Thursday of Kuwait, a foreign ministry spokesman said.

''President Mubarak has called an emergency meeting of the Arab League in Cairo, and of course Iraq's invasion of Kuwait will top the agenda,'' the spokesman said.

In a related development, Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al Faisal said in Cairo Thursday he had convened an emergency meeting of the six-member Gulf Cooperation Council to discuss Iraq's military action against Kuwait.

Kuwait is a member of the GCC, which includes Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Oman, United Arab Emirates and Qatar.

The GCC has a joint defense pact that was originally intended to guard against possible Iranian aggression against the oil-rich states during the 8-year-long Iran-Iraq war, which was suspended two years ago under a U.N.-brokered cease-fire.

Western diplomats said the Arab League and the GCC would most likely issue strong condemnations over the Iraqi invasion but would not resort to force.

''Use of Arab military force against Iraq, even with U.S. and other Western support, seems unlikely,'' said one Western envoy in Cairo.

Arab foreign ministers, including foreign ministers of all GCC states except Kuwait, are in Cairo attending the five-day organization of Islamic Conference meeting.

The foreign ministers of Kuwait and Iraq had stayed away from the OIC meeting in Cairo to deal with the invasion.

The GCC has a small allied military force but this would not be able to withstand Iraq's 1-million-strong battle-hardened armed forces, still bristling with sophisticated weaponry, including chemical weapons, after the Gulf war.

Saudi Arabia is the most powerful member of the GCC, and has a formidable array of sophisticated medium-range ballistic missiles, as well as one of the best-equipped air forces in the region. The remaining GCC states have well-equipped but small armed forces.

Egypt is allied with Iraq and is a member of the Arab Cooperation Council, which in addition to Cairo and Baghdad also groups Jordan and Yemen.

Although Egypt has the largest armed forces in the Arab world, it remained unlikely Mubarak would deploy them against ally Iraq.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) UPI - Medical evidence a black teen had his hands raised when he was fatally shot in the back by a Teaneck, N.J., police officer prompted New Jersey's attorney general to order a new inquiry, a newspaper said Thursday.

The New York Times, citing sources close to the case, said the new evidence centers on the bullet hole in the red down coat that 16-year-old Philip Pannell was wearing when he was shot April 10.

The bullet hole is lower than the corresponding bullet hole in his body, indicating the coat had ridden up because he had raised his hands, the Times reported.

The new investigation by the New Jersey attorney general appears to raise more questions about the accounts of the white officer involved, Gary Spath, and his partner, Wayne Blanco - as well as Bergen County medical examiner Lawrence Denson.

New Jersey Attorney General Robert Del Tufo on Tuesday said he was setting aside the finding of a 3-month-long grand jury probe because of ''errors'' in the medical examiner's post-mortem on the youngster.

On Wednesday, state medical examiner Robert Goode acknowledged he would limit his review to the Bergen County office's case files.

''It is just doing what I do at a different level and a different degree of intensity,'' Goode said. ''Now, instead of paying attention to 10 to 20 percent of the'' autopsies in Bergen County, ''I will be paying attention to a lot more of them.''

Gov. Jim Florio said concern about the medical examiner's findings ''dictates and justifies someone inquiring into the performance of the office.''

Last April's shooting brought on a night of violence in which black youths stoned and overturned police cars, and smashed store windows.

Prior to the violence, the suburb of 40,000 had prided itself on its racial tolerance, first evidenced through voluntary integration in housing and schools in the 1960s.

Denson, 66, the longtime Bergen County medical examiner, did not return telephone calls to his county and private offices seeking comment.

However, reached by The Record of Hackensack newspaper at his home Tuesday Denson said, ''The whole thing is blown up.''

In one other controversial case that involved the Bergen County medical examiner's office - the death of a 19-year-old South Orange concertgoer at the Brendan Byrne Arena - Goode also disagreed with the findings of Dr. Louis Napolitano, who performed the autopsy for the county.

Napolitano found that Adam Katz died after being struck once in the head by a blunt instrument and no drugs were found in his body.

However, Goode ruled Katz jumped or fell to his death from a pedestrian walkway connecting the arena with a parking lot while under the influence of drugs.

SEATTLE (AUG. 2) UPI - The Boeing Co. is cooperating with an investigation into possible wiring problems that may have caused an explosion aboard a Philippine Air Lines 737-300, that killed eight people, company officials say.

The National Transportation Safety Board called Wednesday for immediate inspections of all Boeing 737-300, 737-400 and 737-500 aircraft, warning of possible fuel tank explosions.

The board said evidence indicated the explosion aboard the Philippine Air Line 737-300 May 11 may have been caused by faulty wiring.

The Federal Aviation Administration was studying the board's recommendations, FAA spokesman David Duff said in Seattle, but had not decided whether to order inspections.

Boeing spokesman Tom Cole said the airline manufacturer was cooperating with the investigation and looking for ''every possible cause'' of the explosion.

The blast, which killed eight and seriously injured 30 of the 119 people aboard, occurred while the plane was preparing to take off from Manila.

The safety board said in a letter to FAA chief James Busey that no evidence of a bomb or other sabotage had been found.

''The investigation has yet to reveal the exact ignition source,'' the board said, but added that faulty wiring could create ''the potential for a fuel tank explosion.''

The board cited evidence that a ''float switch,'' which regulated the flow of fuel from the plane's central tank, was defective and, combined with damaged wire near the switch, could have caused sparks that ignited the fuel tank.

''The safety board believes that the finding of damaged float switch wiring and a potentially defective float switch, as well as the potential for a fuel tank explosion, requires the immediate inspection or testing of float switch wiring of the three fuel tanks on Boeing 737-300, -400 and -500 series airplanes,'' the board said in the letter to Busey.

Boeing has delivered about 750 of the 737 series planes to dozens of airlines, which would have to conduct any inspections ordered by the FAA.

Overall, airlines have placed orders for 1,637 of the 737 series planes at a cost of $32 million to $33 million each.

The float switch was provided to Boeing by Revere Aerospace of Wallingford Conn., the safety board said.

''It is possible that the switch did not pass inspection when originally assembled,'' the board said.

The panel recommended the FAA develop new testing methods to guarantee the switches ''are free from defect that could cause an explosion or fire.''

Cole said Boeing believes its current testing methods are ''good.''

The board also said technicians in the Philippines installed additional wiring for wing lights near the fuel tanks, which may have damaged other wires and contributed to the explosion.

But the damage also may have been caused at Boeing's assembly plant in Renton, south of Seattle, the safety board said.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (AUG. 2) UPI - A federal judge refused to lift a 1982 ruling keeping Florida from imposing tighter controls on abortion clinics.

The state, citing the Supreme Court's ruling last year in Webster v. Reproductive Health Services, asked U.S. District Judge Jose A. Gonzalez Jr. in June to lift his injunction barring Florida from imposing stricter rules for the operation of abortion clinics.

But Gonzalez said Wednesday: ''Contrary to public opinion, Webster does not constitute a significant modification in decisional law, nor would it justify or permit any change in the prior judgment of this court.''

In 1982, the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services tried to impose strict rules for abortion clinics that did not apply to other medical facilities. Critics charged the state with using that as a pretext to make it more difficult and expensive to obtain an abortion.

''This (Gonzalez ruling) is extremely significant because in many states people have tried to argue that Webster means they can place greater restrictions on abortion than what was in Webster,'' said Charlene Carres, an American Civil Liberties Union attorney representing Florida Women's Medical Clinic Inc.

''This is the first time a federal judge has applied the case and ruled that Webster does not give state's the authority to regulate abortion clinics,'' she said.

''We have not seen a copy of the decision so we cannot comment,'' said Joe Bizzaro, a spokesman for the Attorney General's Office in Tallahassee.

Under Webster, which marked the first re-definition of federal law on the abortion issue since it was legalized in 1973 under Roe v. Wade, the Supreme Court gave states permission to prohibit public funding of abortion and to require viability testing of fetuses after 20 weeks of pregnancy.

Assistant State Attorney James Peters argued that the proposed clinic regulations would be ''minimally intrusive.''

''The HRS cannot guarantee that abortions are done safely,'' he said in June.

Gonzalez did invite the state to present evidence that abortion clinics are not being operated safely.

''We are not concerned about that invitation because abortion remains one of the safest medical procedures in the state of Florida. Five times safer than giving birth,'' said Robyn Blumner, executive director of the ACLU in Florida.

(AUG. 2) UPI - Iraqi troops invaded neighboring Kuwait today and bombed its capital after talks between the two nations broke down over oil and border disputes. Heavy casualties are reported, and assessments by various diplomats and officials indicate Iraq has occupied its much smaller neighbor to the south. Iraq radio says the Kuwaiti government has been overthrown, but Kuwait has NOT conceded defeat.

The United States today condemned the invasion in strong terms. A White House spokesman says the Bush administration is ''deeply concerned'' about what he termed ''this outrageous act of aggression.'' He says Washington demands that Iraq immediately withdraw its forces. U-S diplomats in Iraq say 12 more American warships are heading for the Persian Gulf to beef up U-S forces already on alert.

The governor of Texas has declared the Galveston Bay Estuary a disaster area after it was polluted with half-a-Million gallons of oil from a weekend spill. State officials today banned seafood harvesting from the bay, and officials began testing shrimp and oysters for contamination. The oil began spilling Saturday from two barges that collided with a Greek tanker.

Reductions in East-West tensions have prompted a push for military reductions, and today President Bush responds to that pressure. In a speech in Aspen, Colorado, Bush is expected to outline a reduction in U-S military forces to meet new security requirements in the post-Cold War era. The armed forces changes are based on recommendations from the Pentagon.

(AUG. 2) UPI - The survivors of a Greek freighter that sank in the North Atlantic yesterday are headed for Maine aboard a Soviet fishing vessel that helped in their rescue. The 21 survivors include the captain of the freighter Corazon, which went down in violent seas whipped up by Hurricane Bertha. Six other people aboard the ship were killed when the freighter sank.

East Germany's economy apparently is in a shambles... and the East German finance minister is making a desperate plea for help from West Germany. Finance Minister Walter Romberg says his country is suffering from ''a rapidly intensifying economic decline.'' The appeal comes one month after the two countries merged their economies and made West Germany's mark the sole currency.

Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan spoke out against national health insurance, saying the nation's poor would suffer under such a system. Sullivan spoke yesterday to black and minority doctors meeting in Las Vegas. He said national health care systems are characterized by delays in health care services. Sullivan says the rich can always afford private health care, but those who rely on national health insurance will have to wait for services.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) UPI - An Avianca jet was rushed into a priority landing at John F. Kennedy Airport because of concern about its fuel level, officials said.

Air traffic controllers handling the Tuesday night flight declared an emergency after the pilot reported having 15 minutes of fuel remaining, the Federal Aviation Administration said Wednesday.

In January, an Avianca Boeing 707 crashed on Long Island after running out of fuel, killing 73 people.

Normally, it is up to a plane's captain to declare an emergency, which is supposed to bring an immediate approval to land.

The plane landed at 9:24 p.m. Tuesday and none of the passengers were injured, the FAA said.

It was the second incident involving an Avianca jet and a shortage of fuel in the last several weeks, the FAA said.

On June 22, an Avianca pilot requested priority handling because of low fuel as he approached the New York area, and that plane landed with about 40 minutes of fuel left.

The FAA said it expected to be listening to tapes of the flight recorder on Thursday to determine if the crew of Tuesday night's Flight 20 had just 15 minutes left before the craft dipped into its ''reserve'' tank - or 15 minutes left before the plane ran dry.

An international flight is required to carry in reserve enough fuel to fly to an alternate airport, as well as enough to hold en route for 45 minutes.

(AUG. 2) UPI - Iraqi troops today overwhelmed neighboring Kuwait in a pre-dawn invasion. Heavy casualties are reported. Iraq radio reports the Kuwaiti government had been overthrown... but the Kuwaiti government has NOT conceded defeat. Saudi diplomats say Kuwait's leaders fled to Saudi Arabia.

The White House announced that in response to the invasion, President Bush has signed an executive order freezing all Iraqi property and assets in the United States and in overseas branches. The action is to protect Kuwaiti assests and property.

Egyptian President Mubarak has called for an emergency meeting of the Arab League in response to Iraq's invasion. And Saudi Arabia has convened an emergency meeting of the six-member Gulf Cooperation Council.

Israel is monitoring the Iraqi invasion closely. An Israeli spokesman says the attack proves that Iraq is the greatest threat to peace in the Middle East. There's NO word if Israel intends to take any action.

President Bush is expected to sketch the broad outlines of the future of the U-S armed forces now that the Cold War has ended. Bush will make his landmark speech today at the Aspen Institute in Colorado.

Texas has declared a disaster area in the Galveston Bay Estuary in the wake of its being polluted by a-half-Million gallons of heavy oil. There's also a ban on the removal of shellfish and other marine animals from the estuary.

Hurricane Bertha is on line for the Canadian province of Newfoundland early today. However, forecasters say Bertha will lose steam as the day wears on. At last report, it was near the eastern tip of Nova Scotia.

Skies over New England are clearing early today as Bertha whirls toward Newfoundland. Forecasters say a high-pressure system from the Great Lakes is drifting eastward, replacing the hurricane weather along the East Coast.

CLEVELAND (AUG. 2) UPI - Former Cleveland State University coach Kevin Mackey has been indicted on charges of cocaine use and driving under the influence.

A Cuyahoga County grand jury Wednesday also indicted Alma Massey, 36, on one count of possession of heroin.

Massey and the 43-year-old former coach were together July 13 when arrested after they left a reputed drug house in Cleveland.

Mackey was fired by CSU six days after his highly publicized arrest. His arrest came on the heels of signing a contract for the 1990-91 Viking basketball season.

Mackey is in a Houston facility, undergoing treatment for alcohol and drug abuse.

Mackey is to appear in Cleveland Municipal Court next month on charges of DUI, consumption of alcohol in a motor vehicle and a violation of the city's open-container law.

Mackey faces a maximum 18 months in jail and a $2,500 fine for the drug charge and a maximum six months in jail, suspension of his driver's license and a $1,000 fine on the DUI.

EAST BERLIN (AUG. 2) UPI - The East and West German governments signed a treaty Thursday establishing voting procedures for all-German elections under which small political parties will have a chance to win legislative representation.

The five parties comprising East Germany's coalition government agreed late Wednesday to back the Election Treaty presented by Bonn. Heated arguments over proposed electoral procedure had threatened to bring down the East German government.

Under the agreement, East Germany will join West Germany's federal republic before the Dec. 2 united German elections.

The Election Treaty was signed Thursday in East Berlin by East German State Secretary Guenther Krause and West German Interior Minister Wolfgang Schaeuble, who said, ''It is a good day for Germany.''

The treaty must be ratified by the two German Parliaments.

Under the treaty, a controversial West German ''5 percent clause'' will apply at the Dec. 2 elections. Under the clause, parties have to attract at least 5 per cent of the vote to elect members to Parliament.

Schaeuble said that under the new clause, the small groups that led East Germany's peaceful revolution last fall will have ''a fair chance.''

Inclusion of the clause in the election treaty will make it easier for small parties like those of de Maiziere's conservative allies to hang onto seats in the all-German Parliament.

The 5 percent rule is largely aimed at preventing a repetition of the Weimar Republic of the 1920s when Parliament, weakened by the presence of dozens of small extremist parties, was incapable of preventing Adolf Hitler's rise to power.

Parties may form electoral alliances as long as they do not appear in the same state. A similar clause existed in East German legislation but not in West German voting laws.

The conservative German Social Union is certain to join hands with the Christian Social Union. The two will be able to form an alliance because they do not exist in the same states: the German Social Union only exists in East Germany and the Christian Social Union in the West German state of Bavaria.

The two parties are close allies of West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Christian Democratic Union and its East German sister party, Lothar de Maiziere's CDU.

A senior CDU party official in Bonn admitted candidly that ''this is purely a law in favour of the DSU''.

Later this month the two states are also due to sign a final Unification Treaty, following the July 1 implementation of a Treaty of Economic, Currency and Social Union.

MIAMI (AUG. 2) UPI - A federal judge scolded a defense lawyer for one of Manuel Noriega's co-defendants for allowing two journalists posing as aides to review secret Noriega documents held in a Panamanian warehouse.

Journalist Ricardo Sanchez-Borbon recently published an article in Panama's La Prensa about the documents and another unidentified journalist was expected to write an article based on the papers.

Lawyer Michael O'Kane told U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler on Wednesday that he thought the documents, contained in a heavily guarded warehouse in Panama, were public documents.

Hoeveler said the information should be viewed only by lawyers or investigators working for them.

''This case is not going to be tried in the newspapers or on television,'' Hoeveler said.

O'Kane represents pilot Daniel Miranda, one of 15 defendants charged with Noriega in a 1988 cocaine trafficking indictment.

Hoeveler also ordered prosecutors to prepare a list specifying some of the secret documents the U.S. seized during the December invasion of Panama.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael Sullivan said there were 20 to 30 file cabinets stuffed with documents that included ''sensitive information, such as dossiers on the personal habits of Panamanian politicians.''

The documents, seized from Noriega's office, ''could have ramifications both inside and out of Panama,'' Sullivan said.

Frank Rubino and Steve Kollin, two of Noriega's attorneys, argued that the documents were Noriega's personal property and that the U.S. government had no right to withhold them from the ousted general's own lawyers.

''Somehow they (U.S. officials) have the right to the documents through sheer power of war,'' Rubino said. He said it is unfair for prosecutors to be allowed to decide which of Noriega's documents would be turned over to his defense team.

The judge said it was not clear what the documents were and ordered prosecutors to compile a list.

Noriega, who did not attend the hearing Wednesday, is awaiting trial on charges of protecting Colombian drug shipments bound for the United States between 1981 and 1986.

His lawyers complained that they still cannot persuade bankers to release money from Noriega's frozen accounts so they can pursue a defense.

''We're still broke,'' Rubino said.

At Hoeveler's urging, the government agreed last month to unfreeze between $4 million and $6 million held in various European bank accounts so Noriega could pay his lawyers.

Hoeveler said he would take up the pay issue at a later hearing.

The judge also rejected Rubino's request that Noriega be tried separately from Miranda because Miranda's lawyer, O'Kane, also represents two European photographers who have filed civil suits against Noriega.

The photographers were wounded during the December invasion of Panama. Their suit blames Noriega because he ''let loose the dogs of war'' by declaring war between Panama and the United States.

O'Kane told the judge he had no intention of sabotaging Noriega's defense.

Wednesday.

The market opened higher, rising more than eight points in early trading.

Bouts of strong profit-taking quickly killed the rally and sent stocks steadily lower, market watchers said.

An estimated 75.7 million shares changed hands, compared with 75.7 million shares Wednesday.

Advances outperformed declines 153 to 122, while 202 issues remained unchanged.

Analysts said stocks climbed following a government decision to ease its monetary policy for the fourth time since January 23. The Reserve Bank cut interest rates by one percent.

In Johannesburg, gold mining stocks catapulted on the Johannesburg Stock Exchange in heavy trading as bullion prices soared to nearly $380 an ounce over the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

MIAMI (AUG. 2) UPI - Hurricane Bertha weakened to a tropical storm Thursday for the second time, pounding Newfoundland with 70 mph winds while Tropical Storm Cesar formed off the African coast.

At least eight deaths were attributed to Bertha, which disabled a Greek cargo ship in the Atlantic off Massachusetts and triggered deadly riptides on Florida's Atlantic coast.

The Canadian government issued a wind warning for the south coast of Newfoundland and heavy rainfall warnings for Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and eastern New Brunswick were discontinued.

At 6 a.m. Thursday, Bertha was centered near latitude 47.8 north, longitude 59.6 west, near Port Aux Basques, Newfoundland. It was racing north-northeast at nearly 23 mph and was expected to continue that motion for 12 to 24 hours.

Bertha's maximum sustained winds were near 70 mph, 4 mph below the hurricane threshold. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami predicted Bertha would continue to weaken and dissipate.

''We think that Bertha is going to become an extra-tropical storm in the next 24 hours or so,'' said Lixion Avila, a specialist at the National Hurricane Center.

The storm passed 250 to 300 miles east of Nova Scotia late Wednesday and was moving over Newfoundland Thursday morning. Winds extended outward up to 300 miles.

''It's been a large storm with winds extending far out from the center,'' said hurricane forecaster Miles Lawrence. ''Also, the fact that it moved slowly over a period of a few days allowed it to generate some waves and swells that persisted.''

The 593-foot Greek freighter Corazon foundered in towering waves whipped up by Bertha, the Coast Guard said. Six crew members were killed and 21 others abandoned ship and were rescued by three cargo ships.

Earlier, Bertha produced heavy swells that punched through sand bars off the Florida coast, triggering deadly riptides.

Two people drowned Tuesday after being swept out to sea by riptides blamed on Bertha. Guards saved at least 240 other people off the central Florida coast in the past two days.

Bertha formed as a tropical depression June 29 and grew to hurricane strength Saturday. It weakened Sunday to a tropical storm, then was re-born Monday. Bertha was the first hurricane of the Atlantic-Caribbean season, which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30.

Forecasters at the hurricane center also monitored Tropical Storm Cesar, which grew to storm strength from a depression off the coast of Africa.

Cesar became the third named storm of the season Thursday when its winds reached 40 mph, 1 mph over the tropical storm threshold.

At 8 a.m. EDT, Cesar was centered near latitude 16.7 north, longitude 35.1 west, or about 625 miles west of the westernmost Cape Verde Islands. It was moving west-northwest at near 16 mph and was expected to continue that motion through Friday.

Forecasters also were monitoring a strong tropical wave that produced heavy thunderstorms over the Lesser Antilles. A reconnaissance plane found that it had not developed the circulating winds of a tropical depression but forecasters said there was still a chance it could do so.

Arthur, the first tropical storm of the season, dissipated in the western Caribbean south of Jamaica June 29.

(AUG. 2) UPI - Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait and bombed its capital before dawn today in an attack that follows a breakdown in talks on oil and border disputes between the two nations. U-S diplomats in the Persian Gulf say Washington sent 12 warships, including an aircraft carrier, to reinforce its seven warships already in the waterway.

World governments sharply criticized Iraq's invasion of tiny Kuwait. The U-N Security Council condemned the action, and demanded that Iraqi forces be withdrawn immediately. President Bush this morning froze Iraqi assets in the United States, Britain, Israel, the Soviet Union and NATO also condemned the invasion.

Crude oil prices shot up from 23-dollars to 25-30 a barrel in London today amid reaction to the invasion of Kuwait. The Iraqi military action also triggered panic buying of dollars and gold as safe havens for investments threatened by Middle East instability. In Europe, the dollar rocketed against all major currencies except the pound sterling.

Soviet President Gorbachev and maverick politician Boris Yeltsin joined forces on an economic plan to move the Soviet Union toward a market economy. The Interfax News Service says they agreed to establish a panel to prepare the economic plan by next month. It's based on Yeltsin's 500-day plan announced last month.

The National Transportation Safety Board has called for inspections of all Boeing 737400 and 737-500 aircraft, warning of possible fuel tank explosions. The board says evidence indicates an explosion aboard a Philippine Air Lines jet last May might have been caused by faulty wiring. Eight people were killed in the May 11th blast.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (AUG. 2) UPI - "Twin Peaks," ABC's offbeat cult series about murder and intrigue in a small town in the Northwest, led the pack Thursday as nominations were announced for the 42nd annual primetime Emmy Awards.

"Twin Peaks" took 14 nominations, followed by the oft-honored NBC series "L.A. Law" with 13 nominations.

Among the nominations for "Twin Peaks" were outstanding drama series, outstanding lead actor in a drama series to Kyle MacLachlan and outstanding lead actress to Piper Laurie.

"Twin Peaks" creator David Lynch, who was previously known for dark movies such as "Blue Velvet" and "Eraserhead," was nominated for top director for his work on the two-hour pilot that whetted viewers' appetites for the answer to the much-asked question of who killed Laura Palmer.

Two comedy series, NBC's "Cheers" and CBS's "Murphy Brown," were nominated in 12 categories each, while ABC's yuppie drama "thirtysomething" followed with 11 nominations.

ABC and NBC tied with 95 nominations. CBS shows compiled 73 and the upstart Fox network had 26.

The Emmys will be presented Sept. 15 at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium and will be broadcast on the Fox network.

"The Tracey Ullman Show," which Fox dropped this year due to poor ratings, had nine nominations to lead Fox shows.

"The Simpsons," the oddball cartoon comedy on Fox that became a mini-social phenomenon, took three nominations, including best animated series.

Joining "Twin Peaks," "L.A. Law" and "thirtysomething" with nominations for outstanding drama were ABC's Vietnam series "China Beach" and NBC's time-travel adventure "Quantum Leap."

Top comedy nominations went to "Designing Women" and "Murphy Brown" on CBS "The Golden Girls" on NBC, "The Wonder Years" on ABC and last year's winner, "Cheers."

"Roseanne," the ABC series usually camped at the top of the ratings, drew only two nominations, one of them for co-star John Goodman as top comedy actor.

MacLachlan will compete for the top drama actor Emmy with Peter Falk of ABC's "Columbo," Edward Woodward of CBS's "The Equalizer," Robert Loggia of "Mancuso FBI" on NBC and Scott Bakula of "Quantum Leap."

Laurie's competition for top drama actress comes from Dana Delany, last year's winner for "China Beach," Jill Eikenberry of "L.A. Law," Angela Lansbury of CBS's "Murder, She Wrote" and Patricia Wettig of "thirtysomething."

Nominees for top comedy actress included last year's winner, Candice Bergen of "Murphy Brown," Kirstie Alley of "Cheers," Blair Brown of the cable series "The Days & Nights of Molly Dodd," Delta Burke of "Designing Women" and past winner Betty White of "The Golden Girls."

Joining Goodman as nominees for top comedy actor are Craig T. Nelson of ABC's "Coach," past nominees Ted Danson of "Cheers," Fred Savage of "The Wonder Years" and last year's winner, Richard Mulligan of NBC's "Empty Nest."

(AUG. 2) UPI - The U.S. dollar soared in frenetic trading Thursday against major foreign currencies in reaction to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. Gold catapulted in what analysts described as a flight to quality by almost $10 an ounce.

In earlier trading in Asia, the dollar soared sharply against the Japanese yen and other major currencies on news of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. The Bank of Japan reported the dollar closed at 148.90 yen, up 2.25 from 147.50 yen on Wednesday.

Players rushed to buy the "safe-haven" U.S. currency immediately after the news reached the market, analysts said. "Market players jumped to safety," said Tetsuya Taura, a chief director of Sumitomo Bank. "The situation could further escalate and expand to other neighboring countries."

Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait after talks over oil and borders between two of the world's oil rich nations in Saudi Arabia broke down. The dollar fluctuated in an exteremely wide range as bearish sentiment toward the dollar was shaken by the development in the Middle East.

Analysts said Japan's heavy dependence on imported oil spurred the dollar's advance against the yen.

Elsewhere in Asia, the dollar closed higher in Hong Kong at 7.765 Hong Kong dollars, up from 7.7640 Wednesday, and also finished higher in Singapore at 1.8070 Singapore dollars, up from 1.8050.

In Europe, the dollar rose swiftly in all continental markets as traders opted for the greenback as a safe haven and because it is the key currency for purchasing oil, the price of which has rocketed since Baghdad launched the attack.

The dollar opened higher in Frankfurt at 1.6125 German marks, up from 1.5920 on Wednesday.

The dollar also rose in Zurich to 1.3720 Swiss francs, up from 1.3525 Tuesday, the last time it was traded before a national holiday Wednesday.

The dollar surged at the opening in Paris, Brussels and Milan, to 5.4025 French francs, up from 5.3395 francs, to 33.02 Belgian francs, up from 32.71, and 1,176.75 Italian lire, up from 1,165.35.

Only the British pound defied the trend, as the dollar opened unchanged in London at $1.8450.

In early New York trading, the dollar rallied against key foreign currencies in what traders described as a fast paced trading frenzy.

Traders quoted the dollar at 1.6130 German marks, up sharply from 1.5889 Wednesday, and at 150.65 Japanese yen, up from 147.30.

On the bullion markets, gold soared as speculators attempted to find a safe haven against inflation amid worries over interest rates following the clash between two of the world's major oil producers.

Gold surged $7 an ounce higher at the opening in Zurich to $379.50 and opened $6.25 higher in London at the same $379.50.

The London morning gold fixing was $382.60, up $9.35 from Wednesday's close.

Elsewhere in Europe, in Paris, gold soared $10.87 an ounce to $385.42. In earlier trading in Asia, gold closed at $379.75 on the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, up $8.10 from Wednesday's close.

Silver also opened stronger, climbing ten cents in Zurich at $4.85 an ounce and opening six cents higher in London at $4.90 an ounce.

In early trading on New York's Comex, a 100-troy-ounce gold futures contract for August delivery was quoted at $380, up $6.70 from Wednesday's close. A 5,000-troy-ounce silver futures contract traded at $4.900, up 7.8 cents an ounce.

LAKE BUTLER, FL (AUG. 2) UPI - Mercy killer Roswell Gilbert walked out of prison Thursday, freed after 5 1/2 years through a clemency order, and said he shot his ailing wife out of desperation and now regrets it.

''The best word to use (for my actions) is desperation,'' the feeble Gilbert said at a news conference. ''It's a lousy excuse but that's what it was.''

Gilbert, 81, was bent and drawn as he walked out of the North Florida Reception Center with his daughter, Martha Moran, and his lawyer Brad Stark.

At a news conference he talked about shooting his wife of 51 years, Emily, in the head five years ago to end her suffering from Alzheimer's disease and a bone disease.

''I shouldn't have killed my wife. I know that,'' he said.

Gilbert was asked if he would do it again and said, ''Oh no, no. It takes 51 years of love to do that.

''I always felt hopeful. I knew the public at least understood what I did if they didn't approve of it.''

Asked how it felt to be free, Gilbert said, ''It's great so far.

Gilbert, whose weight dropped from 185 to 147 pounds in prison, had been sentenced to life in prison with no chance of parole for 25 years and is in poor health. He is blind in one eye, suffers from breathing difficulties and circulatory problems, and is losing his hearing.

He left the North Florida Reception Center one day after Gov. Bob Martinez obtained the necessary Cabinet signatures to grant him immediate clemency because of his failing health.

''I've been waiting 5 1/2 years and its a wonderful day,'' said Moran, who lives in Baltimore. ''I want to take him back to Fort Lauderdale for a chance to rest and relax and put a good meal in his stomach and fatten him up. It's been a horrendous experience for the whole family.

Gilbert admitted he had shot Emily, 73, twice in the head as she lay on a sofa in their oceanfront condominium March 4, 1985. He said he could not stand to see her in pain any longer from osteoporisis, a painful arthritic disease, and Alzheimer's disease.

Gilbert said he had a change of heart in prison and, if given the same choice again, ''I would have tried to help her as much as I could'' instead of killing her.

''It came after night after night reflecting over what you did and why,'' said Gilbert, whose story was made into a television movie starring Robert Young.

''I'm not going to go around saying I did the right thing. I said I've never wanted to appear as a role model. I'll be glad to speak about Alzheimer's disease. It's a horror. It's an absolute horror,'' he said, his face twisting into a grimace.

In granting clemency, Gov. Bob Martinez emphasized that he did not condone Gilbert's shooting of his ailing wife, but he said it is important to ''mix compassion with justice.''

Gilbert's release was set in motion Wednesday moning when Martinez met with legal advisors and said he would seek clemency.

Attorney General Bob Butterworth and Comptroller Gerald Lewis signed the clemency order. Education Commissioner Betty Castor, who was out of town, gave her legal counsel authority to sign the order.

The clemency order required the signatures of at least three of the six Cabinet members.

The governor said Gilbert was granted clemency because of the probability that his health would continue to decline if he remains in prison. He said the clemency was not inconsistent with his tough stand against violent crimes and his advocacy of the death penalty.

''Just because you are tough on law and order and sign death warrants doesn't mean you don't have any feelings,'' the governor said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - U.S. factory orders dropped 1.5 percent in June to $237.4 billion on weak demand for durable goods, especially military hardware, the Commerce Department reported Thursday.

June's decline, which totaled $3.7 billion and was anticipated by many economists, follows a revised increase of 2.2 percent in May and a 2.1 percent decrease in April, according to the department's Census Bureau.

''The June decline was concentrated in the durables sector, which decreased 2.8 percent,'' the Commerce Department said. ''Over half of the decline ... was in defense capital goods, which though volatile have been declining recently.''

New orders for non-durable goods were unchanged at $112.3 billion.

''New orders for defense capital goods for the first half of this year totaled $48.7 billion, 3.5 percent below the first half of 1989,'' the department said.

Not counting defense items, factory orders were off 0.7 percent in June, a government spokesman said. Not counting transportation equipment, factory orders were down by 1 percent, the spokesman said.

''Within the major industries the largest decrease in June was in transportation equipment down $1.7 billion or 4.9 percent to $33.8 billion '' the Commerce Department said. ''Defense aircraft and parts accounted for most of the decline.''

June orders for primary metals, electrical machinery and non-electrical machinery also fell.

Factory inventories, meanwhile, declined 0.5 percent, or $1.9 billion, in June to $370.5 billion for the largest drop this year, after no change in May and a 0.1 percent decrease in April, the Commerce Department said.

The inventory-to-shipments ratio, which tracks delivery time, stood at 1.54 in June - the lowest level since January 1989.

Factory shipments for June advanced by 0.5 percent, or $1.3 billion, to $240.1 billion after gaining 2 percent in May and slipping by 1.3 percent in April.

Unfilled orders dipped 0.5 percent, or $1.9 billion, in June to $517.7 billion after increases of 0.4 percent and 0.3 percent in May and April, the department said.

(AUG. 2) UPI - Tens of thousands of Iraqi soldiers today swept into neighborhing Kuwait in a pre-dawn invasion that has sent the Kuwaiti government into exile in Saudi Arabia. Casualties reportedly are high. The U-N Security Council met in emergency session this morning to condemn the invasion in a resolution that demanded Iraq withdraw its troops ''immediately and unconditionally.''

In Washington, President Bush condemned the invasion as ''outrageous.'' According to U-S diplomats in Iraq, 12 warships, including an aircraft carrier... are steaming to the Persian Gulf to reinforce an American task force already on alert. Asked if U-S intervention was possible, Bush says he is NOT contemplating U-S military action in the Persian Gulf.

Fearing the military danger as well a surge in oil prices, world governments roundly condemned Iraq's invasion. Officials of the Arab League and the Gulf Cooperation Council and Japan severely condemned Iraq, as stock markets fell and oil soared by three dollars a barrel. World currency and precious metals markets also are reacting wildly to the invasion.

CAIRO, Egypt (AUG. 2) UPI - Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait before dawn Thursday and seized control of its smaller neighbor hours after talks between the two Persian Gulf nations collapsed over Iraq's oil and territorial claims.

Kuwait's ambassador to the United States said Kuwait's ruler fled to Saudi Arabia and confirmed that Iraq ''is commanding the whole country with their fingers.'' He said his country sought U.S. military assistance but President Bush said he was not considering military intervention.

''We have made a universal cry for help to all our friends,'' the Kuwaiti ambassador, Sheik Saud Nasir al Sabah, told reporters at a news conference in Washington. ''We don't stand a chance if we don't get help from our friends. My country is under occupation and my people are suffering.''

Heavy casualties were reported and world currency, oil and precious metals markets reacted wildly to the invasion.

Kuwait's troops are outnumbered by Iraq's by 5-to-1 but several hundred elite Kuwaiti forces put up what one French diplomat described as ''heroic resistance'' to the Iraqi assault. The forces and six Kuwaiti helicopter gunships tried to retake the emir's palace and other installations back from the Iraqi troops.

The U.N. Security Council, in an emergency session early Thursday, condemned the invasion in a resolution that demanded Iraqi President Saddam Hussein withdraw his troops ''immediately and unconditionally.''

The United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, West Germany and Israel were among numerous nations that condemned Baghdad's action.

Bush signed an executive order freezing all Iraqi property and assets in the United States and in overseas branches. The order also freezes Kuwaiti assets and property to prevent takeover by the invading Iraqi forces.

Bush strongly denounced the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait but said he is not contemplating sending troops.

''We're not discussing intervention,'' Bush told reporters. ''I would not discuss any military options even if we agreed upon them. But I'm not contemplating such action and I would not discuss it if I were.''

U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, Thomas Pickering, said there has been a ''complete takeover'' by Iraqi troops of the government in Kuwait, but later he told the Security Council the Kuwaiti leadership still controlled its government.

Iraq said it had seized control of key installations in Kuwait, including the emir's palace and claimed it intervened in the oil-rich desert emirate to support unspecified revolutionaries who had overthrown the Kuwaiti government.

There was no confirmation of the Iraqi claim, except for a report on Monte Carlo radio, an independent Moslem-owned radio station based in Paris, saying a temporary Kuwaiti government was formed in Baghdad which announced the overthrow of the ruling Al Sabah family and asked Iraq for assistance.

Diplomats estimated Iraq deployed an estimated 60,000 troops in its pre-dawn invasion and used Mirage fighter jets to bomb Kuwait City. One Yugoslav diplomat reported that 350 Iraqi tanks rolled into the Kuwaiti capital. The Iraqis also used artillery against Kuwaiti frontier posts.

Iraq, which reportedly had massed 100,000 troops near Kuwait, has accused its neighbor of drilling for oil in a disputed border well and demanded $2.4 billion in compensation. Iraq also accused Kuwait of dumping oil on markets, forcing down prices and weakening Iraq's economy battered from a war with Iran.

U.S. diplomats in the Persian Gulf region said Washington sent 12 warships including an aircraft carrier, to reinforce its seven vessels already in the strategic waterway.

In Washington, the Kuwaiti ambassador said Kuwait's Emir Sheikh Jaber Al Ahmad Al Sabah escaped from his palace by helicopter and was in Saudi Arabia, organizing resistance to the Iraqi invasion.

The ambassador also told reporters that along with the emir, the prime minister and all the other Kuwaiti ministers also were safe and out of the country ''at a certain location.''

Official Iraqi radio reports and officials in Baghdad said Iraq had overthown the Kuwaiti leadership, imposed a state of emergency throughout Kuwait and sealed the borders. Still, the Kuwaiti government had not conceded defeat.

Official Kuwait Radio, monitored in Cairo appealed to it citizens ''to stand together against the Iraqi invasion.''

''The hour for jihad (holy war) has come ... we will make the aggressors drink from the glass of death,'' the radio said.

Despite the appeal, Monte Carlo radio reported that thousands of Kuwaiti residents were fleeing to neighboring Saudi Arabia.

One West European diplomat in Cairo said there was continued fighting in the city of Kuwait with small arms fire and explosions being heard.

A witness told the British Broadcasting Corp., ''We have been able to hear shelling and see plumes of smoke from the center of the town.''

Global currency and precious metal markets reacted sharply to the Iraqi invasion with dealers clamoring to buy U.S. dollars and gold as safe havens for investments threatened by the instability in the Middle East.

The U.S. dollar is coveted because it is used to make oil purchases. Iraq's attack caused a precipitous climb in crude oil prices, which rose from $20.80 a barrel in New York to between $23 and $25.30 a barrel in London.

ULAN BATOR, MONGOLIA (AUG. 2) UPI - Secretary of State James Baker announced Thursday he will cut short his visit to Mongolia and return to Washington to help deal with the U.S. response to the Iraqi invasion of oil-rich Kuwait.

Baker arrived in Ulan Bator earlier Thursday for a 23-hour official visit and a weekend of hunting, fishing and camping. He said he planned to finish the official schedule but would return home Friday afternoon.

The secretary kept his hosts, including senior Mongolian government officials, waiting for more than an hour at the Ikh Tengher state guest house in a wooded valley in Ulan Bator, where they were awaiting an official banquet.

Baker arrived to say he had just talked with President Bush by telephone and that he would leaving early.

''Although it really breaks my heart to say this, I think I should return home'' to consult with U.S. officials on the Kuwait situation, Baker said.

''I'm very sorry in any event,'' he said.

''After we conclude our official schedule tomorrow, and hopefully we will be able to host you at our return reception tomorrow instead of Sunday as planned, my colleagues and I will fly back to the United States.''

A U.S. official with Baker said Bush ordered the secretary to return home. Baker will forego his outdoors weekend despite lengthy preparations.

Earlier, Baker took time out to view a mini-traditional festival called Nadam, watching half-naked wrestlers, calling a horse race and even shooting a bow, firing three arrows as a wrinkled Mongolian archery master looked on.

The Kuwait crisis overshadowed the entire visit, however. On Friday Baker is to meet with Mongolian opposition leaders and hold a news conference before leaving.

Baker condemned the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and said he asked the Soviet Union to halt any military or arms shipments bound for Iraq.

The secretary made the comments aboard his Air Force jet between Irkutsk in the Soviet Union, where he had met with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, and his arrival in Ulan Bator.

''We condemn this and we call on Iraq to withdraw,'' Baker told reporters on the plane.

He said he was informed Iraqi forces had crossed into Kuwait just before his meeting Thursday morning with Shevardnadze in Irkutsk and conveyed the information to him.

Baker said he asked Shevardnadze ''that he halt any military or arms deliveries that they might have in the pipeline for Iraq.''

Baker's visit to Mongolia was the first by a secretary of state since the United States established relations with Mongolia in January 1987 and comes as the communist nation has just begun inching toward democratic politics and a market-oriented economy.

Sunday, the country held its first free election, in which a small coalition of democratic opposition parties won a solid minority in Parliament and forced the Communist Parety to share power after 69 years of one-party rule.

Baker had planned a weekend hunting, fishing and camping trip and would have been largely out of contact in the Gobi Desert.

His meeting with government and party leaders will include signing at least two agreements, such as a consular accord and the establishment of a Peace Corps program. The first Peace Corps volunteers are expected to arrive in Mongolia next summer.

U.S.-Mongolian relations remain in their infancy, with a small level of exchanges. Two-way trade totaled only $1.6 million last year and the only Americans in the country are a few diplomats at the tiny U.S. Embassy.

After seven decades of Stalinist-type communism and domination by the Soviet Union, the country is one of the world's poorest and most backward. Its opening to the West really began only last year.

The Mongolians need just about anything the United States can offer. Half the nation's 2 million people are nomadic herdsmen eking out largely subsistence livelihoods. Agriculture is inadequate, industry inefficient and obsolete and country will be slow in accepting aid and investment. Its principal exports are wool, camel hair, meat and coal, and about 90 percent of its foreign trade has been with the East bloc.

Lewis, a former city employee and convicted drug dealer, initially told the grand jury he and Barry did not share cocaine during four days in December 1988 in a downtown Ramada Inn. He later changed his story, testifying they repeatedly smoked crack from makeshift pipes.

Lewis, the central figure in seven of the 14 counts, testified as part of a plea bargain stemming from drug charges in Washington. He still faces sentencing on a drug conviction in the Virgin Islands.

''Charles Lewis is kept captive by the government, holding the key to his freedom so long as he will testify against Mr. Barry,'' charged Mundy, who said many government witnesses were compromised by plea agreements or grants of immunity.

''This is a case without drugs,'' Mundy said, noting a lack of physical evidence on every count but the one surrounding the Jan. 18 FBI sting operation, at which the government provided the crack Barry smoked.

''All this depends on the testimony of (people) under the gun.''

IRKUTSK, SIBERIA, USSR (AUG. 2) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Secretary of State James Baker announced a breakthrough Thursday on a formula to end 12 years of war in Afghanistan with U.N.-sponsored elections and other steps.

Shevardnadze said the Soviet Union will stop production of rail-based mobile nuclear missiles Jan. 1 in another sign of the superpowers' improved relations.

The two men also disclosed Secretary of Commerce Robert Mosbacher and American business leaders will travel to Moscow in September for an ''extended forum'' on how the United States might help the crippled Soviet economy.

There was no announcement of a specific date for the next summit meeting of Presidents Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev but Baker and Shevardnadze set a schedule of lower level sessions to prepare for it.

The announcement on Afghanistan reflected a major shift by Moscow, which for the first time accepted both the holding of open elections to determine a legitimate Afghan government and a transfer of power from the present Moscow-backed Kabul regime of President Najibullah to an interim authority during those elections.

''We would like to see the resolution of what has been a very, very tragic situation for the Afghan people,'' Baker said after 10 hours of talks with Shevardnadze over two days in the Siberian heartland.

''The point is that we are working very hard on it, and we are going to continue work hard on it,'' Baker said.

Afghan President Najibullah was at a Soviet resort reportedly for medical reasons during the U.S.-Soviet discussions, but Shevardnadze said his sudden trip ''has no relation'' to the talks with Baker.

Baker later flew to Mongolia on the fourth and final leg of his twelve-day Asian tour in the first ever visit to that country by a senior U.S. official just days after landmark multi-party elections in which the ruling Communist party agreed to share power. Baker later said he was cutting short the Mongolia trip to return to Washington in light of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

Baker and Shevardnadze, meeting for the 11th time this year, also reported unspecified progress in their discussions about the civil war in Cambodia and the divided Korean peninsula.

Shevardnadze, speaking at a joint news conference with Baker, praised Washington for its decision last month to lessen support for rebels fighting the Cambodian government allied with Moscow.

''Irkutsk is an Asian city, and it is not a coincidence that here we decided to discuss very thoroughly and in detail the problems of Asia and the Pacific,''Shevardnadze said.

Baker and Shevardnadze said the two superpowers must still negotiate some difficult specific points on Afghanistan, and that any final agreement must be accepted by the warring parties in that country.

But their talks yielded the basic formula for ending the 12 years of conflict in the subcontinent nation.

''We both recognize the role of the United Nations and some form of monitoring and control of the elections by the United Nations,'' Shevardnadze said. ''There is also mutual recognition of the need for free elections, and there is recognition of that by the Afghan government.''

''There is recognition of the need to create some kind of commission or authority to conduct free and fair elections. I believe this is a very important recognition.''

While Shevardnadze indicated the Soviet Union's Kabul ally has accepted the plan, Baker suggested the Afghan rebels might be more resistant to laying down their arms and participating in elections.

The breakthrough U.S.-Soviet understanding, Baker said, does not ''mean the parties whose interests we have supported on the past are moving closer together.''

More than 14,000 Soviet troops died in the conflict with U.S.-backed Moslem rebels before Soviet forces were withdrawn in 1989.

Baker noted differences between the two sides remained, particularly on issues about Latin America where he blamed Cuba for its role in the El Salvador conflict and others in the region.

Baker also downplayed the significance of the Soviet announcement that it will stop making mobile nuclear missiles, saying that since the weapons have already been deployed production is no longer an issue.

Shevardnadze and Baker, an avid sportsman, took time out from the three rounds of bilateral talks to go fishing on Lake Baikal, the world's deepest lake in one of the most scenic regions of the Soviet Union.

GALVESTON, TX (AUG. 2) UPI - Workers began Thursday slowly refloating a mangled barge responsible for most of a 500,000 gallon Galveston Bay oil spill that has closed the bay to fishing and threatened birds, turtles and shellfish.

The bay - bordered by environmentally sensitive marshlands - was declared a disaster area by Gov. Bill Clements and closed to all fish and shellfish harvesting by state wildlife and health officials.

The heavy crude poured into the bay Saturday after a Greek tanker collided with two of three barges being pushed by a tug.

The Houston Ship Channel - which has been closed to all but limited barge traffic since the collision - was shut down early Thursday as work began to refloat the Apex barge 3417.

The process was expected to take all day because of fears the barge could split or spill the estimated 10,000 gallons of oil remaining aboard.

Divers discovered a crack extending the width of the barge and a 7-foot hole in the stern, in addition to more holes and tears in two tank compartments, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Glenn Rosenholl.

''They are working very carefully with a sling, trying to keep it as stable as possible before, during and after they move this barge,'' Rosenholl said.

The Coast Guard said a shift in winds pushed some of the oil toward the north end of the bay, endangering additional sensitive breeding grounds for fish and shellfish.

''What we found this morning was oil a little bit farther north than we've seen in the past, within a mile of Houston Point and near the islands in the ship canal, which is a habitat and spawning area,'' said Coast Guard Petty Officer Rick Meidt.

Patches of oil have spread at least 17 miles over the bay. Some crude has been picked up by skimmers and vacuum trucks and winds and tides have dispersed more, but the Coast Guard could not account for about 300,000 gallons that supposedly leaked from the damaged barges.

Environmentalists believe much of the crude has sunk to the bottom of the bay, setting up a long-term disaster for saltwater marshes that serve as feeding and breeding grounds for at least 100 species of birds, 75 types of fish, shrimp, oysters and other marine life.

''Under any set of circumstances, over time this is an environmental disaster,'' said Ted Eubanks of the Houston Audubon Society.

Fear that shrimp, crabs and oysters have been contaminated by the oil prompted the harvesting ban, which will remain until further notice.

Bait shop owners around the bay said the fishing ban could put them out of business if it lasts very long. In a normal year, anglers visiting Galveston Bay account for half the $1 billion spent on commercial and recreational fishing along the Texas coast.

Workers with the Houston Audubon Society said they have found hundreds of birds stained by oil on the water and beaches. Most of them have light staining on their feathers but environmentalists said they could die from ingesting oil-contaminated marine life. Two oil-covered dead birds were found on Pelican Island Tuesday.

State officials hoped to begin applying oil-eating microbes on parts of the spill Thursday. Federal officials gave the go-ahead Wednesday for use of the innovative process that was used successfully on a small part of the Mega Borg oil spill off the Texas coast in June.

''We're now trying everything we know how to do to mitigate this damage to our bay. This is it. This is all we can do,'' said Texas Water Commission Chairman B.J. ''Buck'' Wynne. ''We can face the people of Texas and say that we're doing everything that can be done.''

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard and National Transportation Safety Board resumed a hearing into the cause of the collision between the tanker Shinoussa and the barges.

The tanker's helmsman, Mohammad Haque, testified Wednesday the barges appeared suddenly behind a Liberian tanker as it was nearly past the Shinoussa in the ship channel.

''I thought we might all be killed,'' Haque said.

''The pilot ordered me to turn 15 degrees port (left). I did that and the bow turned to the port side. Then the pilot ordered me to turn hard of starboard (right),'' he said.

The Shinoussa's bow shifted left with the first turn, but the last-ditch adjustment that followed came too late, he said. Haque said Raymond Fincher, the ship channel pilot responsible for bringing the tanker into port, cursed and accused him of turning contrary to his order.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - The American Legion sued the federal government for the first time in its 71-year history Thursday, calling for completion of a study ordered by Congress on the health effects of Agent Orange on Vietnam veterans.

American Legion spokesman John Hanson said the nation's largest veterans group and the Vietnam Veterans of America filed two similar suits concerning the Agent Orange issue in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. The suits ask that the Department of Veterans Affairs and federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta be forced to finish a widescale study of Agent Orange's impact on Vietnam veterans.

Agent Orange, which contained the toxic contaminant dioxin, was sprayed from January 1965 to April 1970 in Vietnam to destroy ground cover and crops.

About 36,000 Vietnam veterans have filed claims contending they were medically disabled by Agent Orange, and the dispute over whether they deserve compensation has raged for 15 years. By regulation, the VA presumes all veterans who served in Vietnam were exposed to Agent Orange.

''We are doing this because the government failed to complete studies (on Agent Orange) that Congress mandated,'' Hanson said. ''We are not so concerned with why it has not been done. We are mainly concerned with the fact it has not been done and veterans and their families are suffering.''

VA and CDC officials had no immediate comment on the suit.

A 1979 law ordered the VA to conduct a comprehensive study of how exposure to Agent Orange affected the health of Vietnam Veterans. In 1982, the VA asked the CDC to perform such a study, but it was halted in 1987 after federal health officials said military records contained insufficient information to draw any conclusions.

Paul Egan, a spokesman for Vietnam Veterans of America, which has 40,000 members, called the reasons given for halting the study ''nonsense,'' and such research ''certainly can be done.''

''The government deliberately canceled the study. They didn't want to take a chance that evidence might emerge that would justify the compensation'' of Vietnam veterans for Agent Orange-related ailments, Egan said.

Egan also said his group has documents suggesting the government also tried to quash the study to shelter itself from other possible claims stemming from the use of dioxin-contaminated herbicides in agriculture and lawn care.

In May, the VA made its first admission linking Agent Orange to a serious medical problem when it agreed to pay $8 million a year to about 1,100 Vietnam veterans afflicted with a class of cancer called soft-tissue sarcomas. The deicision was based an advisory committee's finding that there was ''at least as likely as not'' a signficiant statistical link to the wartime herbicide and that type of cancer.

Earlier this year, the VA announced it would grant about $20 million annually to about 1,700 Vietnam veterans stricken by non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, but the agency refused to acknowledge a link to Agent Orange.

An estimated 2.6 million military personnel served in South Vietnam during the Vietnam War, which officially ran from August 1964 through May 1975.

CHICAGO (AUG. 2) UPI - Trading was choppy and grain and soybean prices were mostly lower at midmorning Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The early rally in soybeans was attributed to higher prices for crude oil and gold in the wake of the invasion of Kuwait. But soybeans turned lower as the buying interest dried up. Heavy delivery notices for the August soybean contract also pressured the market.

Corn was depressed by follow-through selling in a continuation of Wednesday's weakness. Favorable weather conditions and the lack of export business also weighed on corn values.

December corn traded below $2.50 per bushel for the second consecutive day.

Wheat was narrowly mixed. Indications the market was oversold provided underlying support, but the absence of export sales kept wheat on the defensive.

Country movement was light.

The midmorning prices:

Corn Sep 2.53 1/4 off 2 1/4; Dec 2.47 1/2 off 2 1/2; Mar 2.55 1/4 off 2 1/4.

(AUG. 2) UPI - Iraq's invasion of its tiny but oil-rich Gulf neighbor Kuwait was condemned Thursday by governments worldwide through the United Nations, and Washington backed up its words with swift action by freezing all Iraqi property and assets in the United States.

An additional 12 American warships sailed from the Indian Ocean to join the seven ships already in the Persian Gulf region.

While President Bush denounced the invasion of Kuwait as ''totally unjustified,'' he said he was not contemplating U.S. military intervention in the Persian Gulf crisis.

Citing concerns about U.S. dependence on oil from the region, Bush said he was considering a host of other possible responses. He offered no details, and called for international condemnation of the Iraqi blitz against the oil emirate that has been closely identified with U.S. interests in the area.

''We do not rule anything in or anything out,'' deputy White House spokesman Roman Popadiuk also said. ''Options are something we do not discuss.''

The U.N. Security Council adopted a unanimous, and in principle, binding resolution at dawn denouncing the invasion and demanding the ''immediate and unconditional'' withdrawal of Iraqi forces.

Iraq responded by saying it was an ''internal matter'' and Iraqi troops had been requested by a ''free, provisional government.'' They would be withdrawn when order is restored, which could be ''a matter of days or weeks.''

Oil prices soared as much as $5 a barrel on fears of possible disruptions in Gulf supplies. Gold jumped as well.

The ailing U.S. dollar also regained some strength because dollars are used to purchase petroleum.

In freezing Iraqi property and asets in the United States and overseas territories, Bush called on others to do the same because of the ''outrageous'' military action by Iraqi president Saddam Hussein.

Bush's executive order also froze Kuwaiti property and assets ''in order to prevent their takeover,'' presumably by a possible Iraqi-installed puppet government.

London responded to Bush's call by freezing Kuwait's substantial assets in Britain to prevent any puppet government from transferring them following the invasion by Iraq. Kuwait has more than $10 billion invested in Britain.

The Soviet Union, a major arms supplier to Iraq, called in a statement for ''the unconditional and immediate withdrawal'' of Iraqi troops. It said no dispute justifies the use of force which runs counter to Arab interests.

Israel, for its part, said Iraq had carried out ''a blatant act of aggression'' and was the main threat to peace in the Middle East.

Defense minister Moshe Arens, however, said he did not believe any Israeli action was required as the country is ''ready and prepared and can deter.''

Saddam recently said Iraq had the ability to ''wipe out half of Israel'' with chemical weapons.

Secretary of State James Baker cut short a visit to Ulan Bator, Mongolia, and was returning to Washington to help deal with the U.S. response to the Iraqi invasion.

Baker was in Ulan Bator for a 23-hour official visit and a weekend of hunting, fishing and camping. He said he planned to finish the official schedule but would return home Friday afternoon.

China reacted by saying it was ''deeply concerned and worried'' about the fighting between two of its friends.

Syrian president Hafez al Assad, Damascus radio reported, telephoned Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and proposed an emergency Arab summit to discuss the ''dangerous situation in the Gulf.''

Mubarak, meanwhile, convened an emergency session of the Arab League and there was also an emergency meeting of the 6-nation Gulf Cooperation Council. The council comprises Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Bahran, Oman, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates.

Any military action to aid Kuwait was called unlikely by Western diplomats on the scene.

Oil market analysts said petroleum prices would rocket to as high as $30 if there were any U.S.-Saudi Arabian move to impose economic sanctions on Iraq - by American vessels at sea, and by closing Iraqi pipelines across Saudi territory.

There have lately been demands in the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives for sanctions against Baghdad.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - The lawyer defending Mayor Marion Barry Thursday admitted Barry lied to his constituents while using cocaine but said the government used an unfair standard in charging Barry with 14 drug and perjury counts.

''He's being prosecuted because he is the mayor,'' attorney R. Kenneth Mundy said in closing arguments at the 9-week-old trial. ''The government has indicated that if he were a common man, he wouldn't be here for these offenses.''

On Wednesday, Mundy had told jurors that after they viewed a videotape of Barry smoking crack and heard 10 government witnesses say he used cocaine, he was not going to claim Barry was not an ''occasional'' cocaine user.

In concluding his statements Thursday, Mundy went a step further, acknowledging that Barry secretly used cocaine while publicly leading an anti-drug campaign and denying drug involvement.

''Despite all the denials, Mr. Barry was an occassional user of cocaine,'' Mundy said. ''(But) I don't want you to divine from this ... that we are pleading guilty or admitting to any of these charges. There have been occasional uses of drugs.''

Mundy contends the government never proved Barry used cocaine on the dates and times charged and asked jurors to acquit him on those grounds.

He also reiterated a theme that Barry was targeted because of his position and treated unfairly by the government, who used an elaborate and expensive sting operation to catch Barry in a misdemeanor count of cocaine possession.

''The government in effect used a sledge hammer to kill a fly,'' Mundy said, at times nearly screaming.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Judith Retchin had concluded the prosecution case by accusing Barry of being a traitor in the drug war.

''The general was working with the other side,'' Retchin said. ''You can't win a war with your camp divided.''

Mundy countered that the government wanted to ''hold (Barry) up for scorn and ridicule for his apparent hypocrisy.''

''Is it wrong if I walk along the ice and fall into it'' and still tell others not to walk along the ice? asked Mundy. ''The ice is treacherous.''

After Mundy's closing arguments, the government was expected to counter with a short rebuttal before U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson instructed the jury and deliberations began.

Barry, 54, is charged with three felony counts of perjury, 10 misdemeanor counts of cocaine possession and a single misdemeanor count of conspiracy to possess cocaine. If convicted of all counts, he could be sentenced to a maximum 26 years in prison and fined $1.85 million.

Retchin focused mostly on the three perjury charges, which under federal sentencing guidelines carry an almost certain prison term.

The perjury counts charge Barry lied when he told a grand jury he did not know of Lewis's drug involvement, never gave Lewis cocaine and never received cocaine from Lewis anywhere or from anyone else at the Ramada.

BATON ROUGE, LA(AUG. 2) UPI - Attorney General William Guste has sent letters to all 144 legislators asking them to return to the capitol to override the governor's vetoes of two strict anti-abortion bills.

The letters were mailed Wednesday, the same day ballots went to the lawmakers for them to decide if a veto session is necessary. The session will begin Aug. 18 unless a majority of either house votes against returning to the capitol. Lawmakers have until Aug. 13 to respond.

Guste said the official policy of Louisiana ''for many years'' has been that life begins at conception.

''The most sacred and fundamental duty of government is to protect all human life,'' he wrote. ''I, therefore, urge you to allow a veto session to be held by not returning the ballot which has been sent to you. It is only if the veto of one of these two bills is overridden will we be able to bring the issue of protecting all human life to the Supreme Court in an effort to overturn the Roe vs. Wade decision.''

Two attempts were made during the recently ended legislative session to severely restrict abortions in Louisiana.

The strictest of the two measures, by Rep. Louis ''Woody'' Jenkins, D-Baton Rouge, would have criminalized all abortions, except when a woman's life was endangered by the pregnancy. A second measure, passed after Gov. Buddy Roemer vetoed the Jenkins bill, added limited exceptions for victims of rape and incest.

Roemer vetoed that bill also, saying the exceptions were too limited and the bill was technically flawed. The bill started out in the House to decriminalize battery on flag desecrators but was amended in the Senate to become an anti-abortion bill.

Roemer vetoed the Jenkins bill during the regular session. The House voted to override the veto but it was sustained in the Senate. His veto of the second anti-abortion bill came after the Legislature adjourned, and lawmakers have not had the chance to try an override.

Senate President Sammy Nunez has said, even if a veto session is convened, the upper chamber cannot reconsider the Jenkins bill because it technically no longer exists since it was removed from Senate files after the veto was sustained.

The governor's office said it is not lobbying the lawmakers on the veto session. Roemer has said that is a personal decision for each lawmaker to make.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - The Senate approved the first of this year's 13 spending bills Thursday, a $20.9 billion package of energy and water development projects including the mammoth superconducting super collider.

The fiscal 1991 appropriations bill, passed on a voice vote, provides $318 million to build the giant particle accelerator, one of the most ambitious scientific projects ever undertaken, at Waxahachie, Texas.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, called the bill's passage ''another milestone in making the worlds' most significant scientific project of the last quarter of the 20th century a reality.''

The super collider will be an underground tunnel of supermagnets, 54 miles in circumference, capable of smashing protons together at near-light speed. Scientists hope it will help them unlock the secrets of the smallest building blocks of the universe.

The Senate vote followed last week's announcement by the Energy Department that it expects to present Congress next month with a total cost estimate of $7.8 billion for the super collider.

The House already has approved $318 million for the super collider this year in a similar energy and water development spending package. House and Senate negotiators will meet to reconcile differences in the two versions.

The Senate bill also includes $3.2 billion for the cleanup of radioactive waste and other hazardous materials at the Energy Department's nuclear weapons plants, laboratories and reprocessing facilities around the country.

An additional $292.8 million is slated for programs to devise new ways of storing spent fuel from commercial nuclear reactors, including development of a permanent underground repository for high-level radioactive waste in Nevada.

The total appropriations package is about $580 million more than the administration had requested for energy and water projects, and about $2.4 billion more than Congress appropriated for the category last year.

As usual, about half of the package is dedicated to the Energy Department's atomic weapons activities. The bill also includes funding for the Army Corps of Engineers and Bureau of Reclamation water projects, and for solar and renewable energy programs.

The easy Senate passage of the measure is indicative of the aparently growing support in Congress for the super collider project.

But Gramm cautioned after the vote Thursday that the continuing negotiations between the administration and Congress to reduce the budget deficit could still torpedo the project.

Without congressional action to cut the deficit by Oct. 1, the start of the new fiscal year, the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law would trigger more than $100 billion in spending cuts, some of which would have to come from the super collider money.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (AUG. 2) UPI - The United States urged its NATO allies at a special meeting Thursday to join a commercial embargo of Iraq and freeze Iraqi assets in response to its invasion of oil-rich Kuwait, sources said.

NATO called the invasion a ''clear violation of the charter of the United Nations.''

''NATO strongly condemns Iraq's military aggression against Kuwait and calls for an immediate and unconditional withdrawal of all Iraqi forces from Kuwaiti territory,'' an alliance spokesman said in a statement.

NATO's political committee later held a special meeting, lasting close to 90 minutes, at which the United States asked other countries to join in a complete commercial embargo of Iraq, including an arms embargo, NATO sources said.

The United States also urged the other 15 NATO countries to freeze Iraqi assets in their countries and to take steps to prevent Iraq from taking over Kuwaiti assets, the sources said.

NATO's international staff said it was preparing a paper on the economic consequences of a commercial boycott of Iraq. Early indications suggest the impact would be very severe, the sources said.

No decisions were made at the meeting, which was described as a ''valuable forum'' for sharing information about the Iraqi invasion.

The U.S. request for sanctions against Iraq will be relayed to national capitals and another special meeting of NATO's political committee is scheduled for Friday.

''It is important that the international community act together to ensure that Iraqi forces depart immediately,'' President Bush said in Washington.

The 12-nation European Community and its member states ''strongly condemn the use of force by a member state of the United Nations against the territorial integrity of another state,'' the EC said in a statement.

The EC said its members ''ask for an immediate withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait territory.''

No immediate EC sanctions against Iraq were announced but the EC said its member states ''maintain the matter under review and are ready to take into consideration further initiatives.''

(AUG. 2) UPI - President Bush says he's NOT contemplating military intervention to help the country of Kuwait, which was invaded by Iraq. Bush says he's committed to whatever steps are necessary to protect U-S Gulf interests and he strongly denounced the attack as a ''totally UNjustified act.'' The president is meeting with his top advisers to discuss- quote- ''all options available.''

Iraq invaded its Middle Eastern neighbor after the nations broke off talks on oil and border disputes. Iraqi warplanes bombed the Kuwaiti capital as backing forces virtually took control of the smaller country. Kuwaiti soldiers were said to be protecting the emir's palace. But Saudi diplomats say the Kuwaiti ruler and other officials have already fled to Saudi Arabia.

U-S Peace Corps volunteer Timothy Swanson will board a plane to Manila today for his trip back to the United States. The Cheyenne, Wyoming, man was freed by communist rebels today after a month-and-a-half in captivity. The guerrillas freed Swanson and a Japanese rural technician... and warned the United States and Japan to stay clear of their military operations.

The third tropical storm of the season formed this morning off the coast of Africa. Forecasters say Tropical Storm Cesar came to life about 625 miles west of the western-most Cape Verde Islands. Cesar had top sustained winds clocked at 40 miles an hour and was moving west-northwest at about 16 miles an hour. The storm is expected to strengthen but is still days away from threatening any land.

(AUG. 2) UPI - A federal judge in Florida says the public has some misconceptions about last year's U-S Supreme Court ruling on abortion. The U-S district judge yesterday refused to lift a 1982 ruling that prevents Florida from tightening controls on abortion clinics. Judge Jose Gonzales says the high court ruling does NOT justify- as he put it- ''any change in the prior judgment of this court.''

URBANA, IL (AUG. 2) UPI - Pigs fed a special diet can produce meat that is 97 percent lean and with significantly lowered levels of saturated fat, researchers reported Thursday.

Peter Bechtel of the University of Illinois, working with the Harlan E. Moore Heart Research Foundation, reported that pork from swine fed a diet that included 20 percent full-fat extruded soybeans had an improved fat composition.

''We improved the ratio of polyunsaturated to saturated fats in loin chops by more than 50 percent, and in bacon by 100 percent,'' said Dennis Leszczynski, a food scientist with the Harlan E. Moore Heart Research Foundation.

''The loin chops we worked with have only 3 percent fat,'' he said. ''When you consider that we are also improving the quality of the small amount of remaining fat, I think this pork would be considered by many to be an actual health food.''

The improved fat content is not accompanied by any adverse effect on the taste or texture of the meat, he said.

''We conducted sheer tests and sensory analyses and even tested how well the bacon sliced,'' he said. ''In no cases did we find any significant differences between the control group and the group fed extruded soybeans.''

The feeding system should be economical under existing market conditions, he said. Pigs only need be fed the special ration of extruded soybeans during the finishing stage of growth over a period of six to eight weeks.

''To balance out the little bit of added fat from the extruded soybeans, we substituted wheat midlings for the normal ground corn,'' he said.

The soybean extruder is a commercially available piece of equipment to cook and process beans using pressure and friction, he said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - President Bush had few military options available to him Thursday to counter the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, with the only substantive U.S. force in the region being the aircraft carrier USS Independence.

The carrier and its six-ship battle group were in the Indian Ocean, near the Persian Gulf, and the carrier's 80 fighter and attack jets were within range of Iraq, said a Pentagon spokesman, Marine Lt. Col. Stuart Wagner.

However, Bush told reporters early Thursday he was not considering the use of U.S. military force.

The Pentagon has never sent an aircraft carrier into the Persian Gulf because that would make it ''too big a target'' in a small space, and that policy will not change with the USS Independence, Wagner said.

Accompanying the Independence were two cruisers, a guided-missile destroyer, two frigates and an ammunition ship. The battle group entered the Indian Ocean earlier this week as apart of its regularly scheduled deployment.

In addition to the carrier battle group in the Indian Ocean, the United States has eight warships in the Persian Gulf. Known as the Joint Task Force-Middle East, the contingent consists of the command ship, USS LaSalle, one guided-missile cruiser, one destroyer and five frigates.

No substantial U.S. ground troops are in the region.

The closest U.S. ground force is a Marine amphibious landing group in the Mediterranean, but that force consists of only about 2,000 men. The Iraqis are believed to have two divisions, or 30,000 troops, occupying Kuwait.

In addition, Iraq has an army of about 1 million men and 5,500 battle tanks.

''We don't have the forces to go in there and drive them out of Kuwait,'' Wagner said. ''To get that size of a U.S. force there would take some time.''

Bush also has to consider the safety of the 3,800 Americans in Kuwait, but it is unclear what the United States could do to get them out of the city already occupied by Iraqi troops.

Wagner said there were no indications the Americans in Kuwait ''are in harm's way.''

If Bush were to consider an air strike, the USS Independence carries about 20 F-14 Tomcat jet fighters, 20 F/A-18 Hornet fighters, 20 A-6 Intruder attack planes and six helicopters. Iraq has about 513 combat aircraft.

Bush would have to decide what to hit in an air strike - the Iraqi capital of Baghdad or Iraqi troops in Kuwait - and he would also have to consider the chances of a full-scale U.S. involvement in a conflict with Iraq.

''Is the United States going to go to war over Kuwait?'' one Pentagon official asked. ''I don't think so.''

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AUG. 2) UPI - The latest win figures released Thursday have confirmed what analysts have suspected for several months - Atlantic City's casino industry is in trouble.

Nine of the city's 12 casinos made less money last month than they did in July 1989, according to estimates compiled by the Casino Association of New Jersey.

''The market is dead flat, and overall the industry in New Jersey is struggling,'' said Thomas Carver, president of the trade group.

While the $290.5 million money gamblers lost in casinos in July this year represented a 0.7 percent increase over 1989's $288.4 million, Carver said the figures were misleading because the Trump Taj Mahal was not open last year.

The Taj, the city's biggest casino, took in more than $40 million in July, Carver said. If the Taj is exluded from the figures, monthly revenues for the city's 11 other casinos actually fell about 13 percent from last July, an association spokesman said.

Two casinos managed to improve their July win figures: Claridge revenues increased 13.2 percent, from $11.7 million to $13.3 million, and the Sands revenues rose 2 percent, from $21.2 million to $21.5 million.

Casinos reporting decreases in their July win figures were led by Trump Castle, where revenues fell 27.9 percent, from $29.7 million to $21.4 million. Revenues at Donald Trump's third casino, Trump Plaza, were off 23.6 percent, from $30.6 million to $23.4 million.

Industry officials blamed lagging casino fortunes on state regulations that limit the number of slot machines in a casino and the hours gaming halls can be open.

Gaming laws prohibit casinos from devoting more than 30 percent of their floor space to slot machines and require that they close for six hours a day during the week and four hours on weekends.

Figures compiled by the association show that slot machines have become the most profitable casino games, accounting for an average of 55 percent of the revenues generated.

The industry has has little success in getting the state to relax the regulations, but Carver said the latest figures may force lawmakers to take notice.

''We have proposed a series of economic and regulatory initiatives to Trenton which we believe can begin to stimulate the New Jersey casino industry,'' Carver said. ''We need the assistance and cooperation of government at all levels, and we need it now in order to reverse this decline.''

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, IL. (AUG. 2) UPI - Sunday Silence, last year's

Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, was retired to stud after sustaining a ligament tear in his leg, trainer Charlie Whittingham said Thursday.

Whittingham said though the 4-year-old could still run, it is possible he could suffer a life-threatening injury should he race again.

''I've never had one like him before,'' Whittingham said. ''I'll be lucky if I ever have another one.''

The announcement comes just 15 days after a similar decision from the handlers of Easy Goer, who with Sunday Silence formed one of thoroughbred racing's great rivalries.

Sunday Silence was the heavy favorite in Saturday's Arlington Challenge Cup at Arlington International Racecourse. His retirement prompted trainer D. Wayne Lucas to withdraw Steinlen from the field for that race, leaving only three starters for a reduced purse of $250,000.

Arlington President Ken Dunn said the track hoped to attract as many as three other starters before drawing for post positions later Thursday. The race originally was conceived as a showdown between Sunday Silence, the 1989 Kentucky Derby winner, and Easy Goer. Easy Goer, however, suffered a career-ending leg injury. Thus began a series of mishaps and defections that caused the Challenge Cup field to unravel.

Clever Trevor, a local handicap favorite, was withdrawn earlier also because of a leg injury, and faces the second knee surgery of his career. Opening Verse, who finished a close second in this year's Michigan Mile, was withdrawn from the race earlier Thursday after a good workout on the turf and will be pointed toward the Arlington Million, scheduled for Sept. 2, Arlington officials said.

Steinlen, the 1989 Turf Horse of the Year, also will be trying for a repeat victory at this year's million.

''Horse racing is a very risky type business,'' Arlington owner Richard Duchossois said. ''Everything changes from day to day. That's part of what makes it so exciting.''

It was Duchossois who devised the Challenge Cup as a way to promote world class racing in the Midwest.

''It's unfortunate,'' Whittingham said. ''It's something I never do, but I was already counting the money,''

Lucas called the Challenge Cup a ''good idea.''

''Unfortunately, the handicap division this year has narrowed down and continues to narrow down,'' he said. ''I would hope Arlington Park and Dick Duchossois will continue to try to bring this thing together because it's a great thing for racing.''

TAYLOR, MICH. (AUG. 2) UPI - Masco Industries Inc. said second-quarter earnings plunged over 60 percent and sales fell 9 percent, in part due to weakness in the auto industry,

Net income fell to $11.1 million or 14 cents a share, compared with $28.5 million or 32 cents a share.

Sales for the quarter ended June 30 totaled $418 million, down from $460 million in the year-ago period.

Masco said sales of its transportation-related products dropped during the second quarter as a result of significant production cutbacks in the auto industry.

Sales of speciality products declined 11 percent due to the sale of Masco's Flo-Con Systems Inc. subsidiary late in 1989.

Profits were affected by lower sales; margin pressures, especially for agricultural and defense products and a higher effective income tax rate.

Second-quarter results were enhanced by an extraordinary gain of 2 cents a share resulting from the early extinguishment of convertible debt securities.

Second-quarter 1989 results benefited from approximately 10 cents a share after-tax income resulting from sale of a portion of the company's TriMas Corp. common stock holdings and gains from sales of marketable securities.

Masco said the slowing of the general economy has softened a number of the company's markets - a condition likely to continue through the second half of 1990.

But the company said it continued to expect ''significant future growth'' in the long term.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (AUG. 2) UPI - The European Community said Thursday it is ''gravely concerned'' by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and called for an immediate withdrawal of Iraqi forces.

The 12-nation group said the invasion ''constitutes a breach of the United Nations Charter and an unacceptable means to solve international difference.''

''The Community and its member states are now gravely concerned at the latest developments in the dispute and in particular at the military aggression carried out by Iraq,'' the EC said in a statement.

''The Community and its member states call upon all governments to condemn this unjustified use of force and to work for an early re-establishment of the conditions for the immediate resumption of peaceful negotiations,'' the statement said.

''In this light, they ask for an immediate withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait territory,'' the EC said, adding that member states ''maintain the matter under review and are ready to take into consideration further initiatives.''

An EC spokesman said the invasion of Kuwait posed no present threat to Community oil supplies, citing reduced summertime demand, plentiful reserves in Europe and surplus capacity in other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) UPI - Christopher Edley, president and chief executive officer of the United Negro College Fund, will retire at the end of the year, it was announced Thursday.

Edley, 62, has been head of the non-profit organization since 1973.

His successor will be announced in October, said spokeswoman C. Adrienne Rhodes.

In the announcement that he was stepping down, Edley was praised for his efforts in raising more than $556 million for the College Fund's 41 private colleges and universities.

Edley also was credited with guiding a special campaign that resulted in a $50 million grant from Walter Annenberg, described as the largest single gift in the history of black philanthropy.

''Under Mr. Edley's direction, the fund's annual campaign has grown five-fold, due in large part to its aggressive pursuit of individual giving,'' the statement said.

During Edley's tenure, the College Fund also inaugurated its award-winning ''A Mind Is a Terrible Thing to Waste'' campaigns donated by the advertising industry.

Edley, a native of Charleston, W.Va., came to the College Fund from the Ford Foundation, where was program officer in charge of government and law from 1963 to 1973.

Before that, he was assistant district attorney in Philadelphia and regional counsel for the Federal Housing and Home Finance for the middle Atlantic states.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - Two key senators, seeking to spur negotiations, proposed Thursday that the United States condition military aid to El Salvador on the resumption of full-scale peace talks.

Sens. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., and Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said at a news conference their plan is designed to move the conflict between the government and the rebel FMLN ''from the battlefield to the negotiating table'' and to ''empahsise our commitment to a negotiated solution.''

The Dodd-Leahy plan would cap military aid to El Salvador at $85 million for fiscal 1991, all of it held back if the government refuses to negotiate a peace settlement, rejects mediation by the United Nations, fails to prosecute those responsible for the murder of Jesuit priests last year or engages in acts of violence against civilians.

One half of the $85 million and any money from previous years in the pipeline would be withheld if the FMLN refuses to negotiate, refuses a mediation role by the United Nations, conducts a major offensive, receives a significant amount of lethal equipment from other countries or engages in acts of violence against civilians.

CAIRO, EGYPT (AUG. 2) UPI - The Arab League convened an emergency session Thursday to consider its response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, which asked Arab nations and the United States for military intervention to liberate its territory.

Lebanon was the first Arab country to condemn Iraq's invasion, amid reports fighting continued in Kuwait and that the brother of Kuwait's ruler was killed.

''Kuwait has asked Arab nations to prepare an allied expeditionary force to liberate its territory from Iraqi occupation,'' said a diplomatic source at an Arab foreign ministers meeting in Cairo.

Sources said Kuwait asked the Arab League, which convened in emergency session at the request of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, to activate a joint Arab defense pact and come to the emirate's aid ''as soon as possible.''

There was no immediate response from the Arab League. The pact has never been activated before, even in an Arab-Israeli war.

The sources said Kuwait had also asked its partners in the six-member (Persian) Gulf Cooperation Council to abide by the group's defense pact and come to the emirate's aid. Other GCC members are Saudi Arabia, Bahrain Oman, United Arab Emirates and Qatar.

''Kuwait is expecting Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates to take the lead, in conjunction with friendly countries such as Egypt, and help the heroic Kuwaiti armed forces, who are still struggling against all the odds to free their homeland from the aggressor,'' an Arab diplomatic source said.

Saudi Arabia is the most powerful GCC member with a formidable array of sophisticated medium-range ballistic missiles and one of the best-equipped air forces in the region.

Neither Egypt, an ally of Iraq, nor Saudi Arabia, one of Kuwait's closest allies, made any immediate comment on the Iraqi invasion.

Egypt has the largest armed forces in the Arab world but it remained unlikely Mubarak would deploy them against ally Iraq.

The calls for Arab help came as Kuwait's ambassador in Washington said he had asked the United States for military intervention.

Western diplomats said the Arab League and the GCC would probably strongly condemn the Iraqi invasion but not resort to force.

The GCC's small allied military force is not considered a match for Iraq's 1-million-strong armed forces with sophisticated weaponry left from Baghdad's nearly eight-year war with Iran, suspended under a 1988 cease-fire.

Arab foreign ministers, including foreign ministers of all GCC states except Kuwait, were in Cairo for a five-day Organization of Islamic Conference meeting that began Tuesday.

On Thursday the 45-member OIC called for a halt to the fighting but did not condemn the invasion.

''We call for an immediate halt in all military operations between Iraq and Kuwait and the withdrawal of forces which conducted these operations to internationally recognized borders between the two states,'' said OIC

Secretary-General Hamed El Ghabed.

Kuwaiti delegates to the OIC meeting wept openly upon hearing news of the Iraqi invasion and about 50 Kuwaitis living in Cairo chanted, ''death to (Iraqi leader) Saddam'' Hussein.

The leader of Kuwait's delegation at the OIC meeting said heavy fighting was continuing in the streets of Kuwait.

''Resistance to the aggressors is continuing and will continue,'' Abdulrahman al Awadi told reporters.

Kuwaitis reached by telephone from Cairo said shooting and explosions could still be heard at 5:45 p.m. and that fighting was heavy around the palaces of the emir and the crown prince, where crack Kuwaiti troops were camped.

Witnesses in Kuwait said the brother of Kuwait's Emir, Sheikh Fahad al Ahmad al Sabah, head of the emirate's Olympic Committee, was killed while defending the royal palace.

Lebanon became the first Arab state to condemn the invasion and Lebanese Premier Selim Hoss, in Cairo for the OIC meeting, called on the Arab League to follow Beirut's lead.

''None of us can find any justification for what has happened between the two sisterly nations, no matter what the pretext,'' Hoss told reporters at Cairo's downtown Semiramis hotel, where fellow Arab foreign ministers were meeting.

IRAQ (AUG. 2) UPI Population: 17.6 million (1989 est.) Area: 167,925 square miles. Capital: Baghdad. President Saddam Hussein al Takriti (July 6, 1979 to present.)

History - The British-installed royal family was massacred in a left-wing army coup in Baghdad July 14, 1958. Iraq has since been run by leaders who rose through the army and, since 1968, in the name of the Ba'ath Party, the nationalistic pan-Arab socialist movement.

Geography - Snowy mountains of the Kurdish north give way to a vast arid desert and, still farther south, to marshland. Syria and Jordan are to the west, Turkey to the north, Iran to the east and Saudi Arabia and Kuwait to the south. The Tigris and Euphrates rivers meet in southern Iraq to form the Shatt-al-Arab waterway, which marks the southern border with Iran. It flows into the Persian Gulf at Basra on a 36-mile coast that is Iraq's only outlet to the sea. Larger than California, Iraq is divided administratively into 18 provinces.

People - About 90 percent are Moslem with Shiites outnumbering Sunnis 50 to 40 percent. About 8 percent are Christian. The Jewish community mostly emigrated after the 1958 coup. The Kurds of northern Iraq, non-Arabs whose tribes extend into Turkey, Iran and the Soviet Union, are a historically troublesome minority who periodically seek independence from Baghdad. Culturallly isolated Marsh Arabs inhabit the southern marshes.

Government - Saddam Hussein al Takriti succeeded the ailing Maj. Gen. Ahmed Hassan el-Bakr July 6, 1979, as president and head of the Revolutionary Command Council.

Military -Total armed forces - active service, 1 million; reserves, 850,000 People's Army.

Army - 955,000 men; 5,500 main battle tanks; artillery, 3,000; helicopters 160; surface-to-air missiles, 330.

Navy - 5,000; 5 frigates; 38 patrol and coastal combatants, including 6 torpedo craft and 6 amphibious ships.

Air Force - 40,000 men; 513 combat aircraft, including 2 bomber squadrons and fighter-attack planes that include Soviet-built MiG-23s, MiG-25s, MiG-29s and French-built Mirages that carry the deadly Exocet air-to-ground missile.

Economy - Iraq is a founding member of OPEC and one of the world's leading producers of oil, which accounts for 96 percent of exports. In pre-oil days a poor country best known for its dates, Iraq generally spent its wealth on economic betterment of the nation until the war with Iran. More than half the labor force is in agriculture. Political suspicion has long limited tourism to Baghdad and such ancient sites as Babylon.

Recent developments - Hostilities with Iran erupted into war Sept. 22, 1980, with fighting concentrated around the neighboring countries' oil refineries and shipping depots near the Shatt-al-Arab waterway but including bombing raids on the two countries' capitals and other major cities. The war ended in August 1988, when Iraq accepted a U.N. resolution calling for a cease-fire.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AUG. 2) UPI - Municipal officials will not post ''Smokers Beware!'' signs at the city limits but the Marlboro Man might want to give San Luis Obispo a wide berth as the nation's toughest anti-smoking law took effect Thursday.

The ordinance, adopted by the City Council in June, prohibits smoking in any indoor public area in the city, including all stores, restaurants and bars.

Councilman Jerry Reiss, who proposed the ordinance, said he originally planned to exempt taverns from the anti-smoking ordinance in the college town of about 35,000 midway between Los Angeles and San Francisco..

''But the more I thought about it, the more I realized it made no sense,'' he said. ''Second-hand smoke is a health hazard whether it's in a restaurant, a store or a bar.''

City Attorney Jeff Jorgensen said people who smoke in public areas and business operators who allow smoking or serve smokers will be given a series of warnings. If the warnings do not stop the smoking, authorities will issue a $100 fine for a first offense, $200 for a second offense and $500 for a third violation.

People who observe smokers in public places cannot dial the 911 emergency telephone number to call police to the scene, he said. ''They can write a letter to the city and file a complaint.''

''The only time you'd ever see a police response is in an extreme case, like if some guy stands in the middle of a room and screams, 'I'm going to smoke and none of you can stop me,''' the city attorney said.

Before the council vote the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. distributed leaflets to residents, urging them to lobby the council against the ''outrageous attack on your rights.'' At the same time, the medical community campaigned for the smoking ban.

Tavern owners fear the ban will drive their customers away.

''I tell some of these guys they can't smoke, they'll just find a bar in another city,'' said Joe McCarthy, 83, owner of McCarthy's, a small downtown tavern.

''People can smoke a lot worse things than cigarettes,'' he said.

WASHINGTON, IL (AUG. 2) UPI - It might be a good idea if state animal control officers were given some marksmanship training.

An animal control officer shot the wrong mammal with a dart gun - himself.

Kelly Arrowood, 28, had to be treated briefly at a Peoria hospital Wednesday because he accidentally discharged a dart muscle relaxant into his arm as he was chasing a well-known, garbage-eating beagle.

After he shot himself with the drug Vetelar, Arrowood said he felt woozy. He drove to a gas station and passed out in his car. The next thing he says he remembers is another animal control officer tapping him on the shoulder.

Though Arrowood had no memory of the conversation, the other officer said Arrowood had called him by radio and told him that he was at the gas station.

(AUG. 2) UPI - Crude oil prices soared on world markets Thursday and gained as much as $3 a barrel as Kuwait's invasion by Iraq threatened to disrupt supplies from the Middle East.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, crude oil futures opened higher sharply. The September contract began the day up $2.06 to $23.60 a barrel, and retreated some by early afternoon when it was quoted up $1.86 to $23.40 a barrel. The trading range was between $22.95 and $23.80 a barrel.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate had gained 85 cents Wednesday to close at $21.54 a barrel, only hours before the pre-dawn invasion of Kuwait by Iraq.

October crude contracts traded at their lock limit, up $1 at $23.10.

In early afternoon trading on the spot market, WTI was quoted at $23.40, up from $21.50 Wednesday. Other spot crudes rose even further, with Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent quoted at $22.50 a barrel, up from $20.50 Wednesday.

The United Arab Emirates' Dubai Light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - was quoted at midday at $21.00, up from $18.10 Wednesday.

Oil markets regained some composure after President Bush said the United States will not launch a military intervention in support of Kuwait.

''We remain committed to take whatever steps are necessary to defend our long-standing interest in the gulf,'' Bush told reporters. ''We're not discussing intervention.''

Bush ordered the freezing of both Iraqi and Kuwaiti in the United States, a move soon to be followed by Britain and France.

But analyst Joseph Tovey, with Tovey & Co. Investment Bankers, warned that Iraq has created a situation with far more serious consequences than sharp market swings.

''This means that the control of the Gulf oil market now is into the hands of one individual, (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein,'' Tovey said. ''Hussein has said he will use his army, which has already use lethal chemical weapons in many instances, to dominate the Persian Gulf, and that if this meant invading Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, he will not hesitate to do so.''

''There is a strong chance now that Hussein will blackmail other Gulf countries and decide on production and prices,'' Tovey added.

In London, the Brent gained more than $3 over its overnight indication and was quoted at $23.00 a barrel.

Iraq invaded Kuwait after the two OPEC members failed earlier this week to resolve their oil and border dispute.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said it would not side either of its two feuding members nor comment on the possible impact of the situation on production levels or prices.

''We did not become involved in the Iran-Iraq war, which lasted eight years,'' said an OPEC spokesman in Vienna.

Egypt announced it was increasing its oil prices by $4 a barrel, after deciding on a $3 hike Wednesday. Egyptian oil now trades between $21.30 and $18.70 a barrel.

Uncertainty about medium-term trends dominated the oil market as traders and analysts anxiously awaited Iraq's next move and could not immediately predict the future of production levels and prices. They said the hectic week of trading was reminiscent of the early days of the Iraq-Iran war.

''No one knows what will happen next, but Iraq has achieved its goal to push prices up,'' said James Fiedler of E.D. & F. Man International Futures Inc. said. ''We have not seen a market like this since the early days of the Iran-Iraq war.''

In Paris, the member countries of the International Energy Agency said they were prepared to cope with any disruption caused by the Iraqi attack as Baghdad said it fully controlled the capital of Kuwait.

The IEA, which represents 24 major industrialized nations, said in a statement its emergency stocks amounted to 160 days of imports, or 468 million tons. The stocks included 158 million tons of stocks for Europe, 226 million tons for North America and 84 million tons for the Pacific region.

Crude oil prices first soared in Tokyo, rising by $1.50 a barrel as news of the invasion reached Japanese markets late in the session. Japan, which imports about 70 percent of its crude from the Middle East, is particularly vulnerable to political developments affecting world oil supplies, mainly because any sharp increase in prices affects the inflation rate.

Japan, the world's second largest oil importer, relies on Iraq and Kuwait for more than 10 percent of its crude purchases and 13 percent of its refined oil products imports.

Japan called for the immediate withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait soon after a dawn emergency meeting of the United Nations condemned the invasion.

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AUG. 2) UPI - Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach made an unannounced visit to Phnom Penh to discuss forthcoming talks with the United States on a political settlement of the Cambodian conflict diplomats and government officials said Thursday.

''There was complete agreement, a united position on all major questions '' said a diplomatic source who asked not to be identified.

A Cambodian official said the one-day visit that began Tuesday was unofficial and unlikely to be reported in the official media.

Diplomats said the talks focused on the first meeting on Cambodia between U.S. and Vietnamese officials, scheduled to begin Monday in New York.

The talks are part of a change in U.S. policy, warmly welcomed by both Hanoi and Phnom Penh, that ends U.S. diplomatic support for the three-party coalition fighting the Vietnamese-installed government of Cambodia.

One diplomatic source said Thach met with members of the politburo of the Cambodian Communist Party to work out a unified position for the New York talks.

Among the key points were a moratorium on outside military supplies, a cease-fire, formation of an interim government, the holding of general elections and the establishment of a U.N. control mechanism to supervise the settlement.

Diplomatic sources said they expected the New York talks to lead to the first direct diplomatic contacts between Washington and Phnom Penh.

The first official contacts of any sort took place last month when a U.S. military delegation visited Cambodia to inspect and repatriate remains believed to be from some of the 83 Americans missing in action in Cambodia from the Vietnam War.

Although a government-to-government agreement on MIAs was signed, the contacts were described as ''purely humanitarian.''

International aid officials in Phnom Penh said they were preparing a joint appeal to their governments to vote against seating of the resistance coalition at the forthcoming U.N. General Assembly session, ending 11 years of recognition of the coalition as the legitimate government of Cambodia.

Aid workers said a change in U.N. accreditation, leaving the Cambodian seat vacant, would help break Cambodia's isolation and open the way for desperately needed reconstruciton and development aid.

Most aid from the West is blocked by the U.N. recognition of the resistance coalition, which includes the feared and hated Khmer Rouge, whose three-year rule of Cambodia in the 1970s resulted in the deaths of more than 1 million Cambodians.

Meanwhile, the Cambodian government signed an agreement with a British non-governmentmental organization to begin clearing the tens of thousands of mines laid in Cambodia during 20 years of war and revolution, the director of the organization said Thursday.

''We have agreed on a five-year project of mine clearance that is completely humanitarian in nature,'' said retired Col. Colin Mitchell, director and senior trustee of the HALO trust.

HALO stands for Hazardous Area Life-support Organization.

Mitchell, a highly decorated veteran of the British army with service in Europe, the Middle East and Africa, said he would seek both government and private funding for the project.

In Bangkok, Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama said Thursday the Khmer Rouge cannot be ruled out in any future Cambodian peace settlement.

A Thai government spokesman said Thai Prime Minister Chatichai Choohavan and Nakayama agreed that the four Cambodian factions should agree on the formula of the Supreme National Council - the body to govern the country before a general election.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - President Bush denounced Iraq's invasion of Kuwait Thursday as ''totally unjustified,'' banned all trade with Iraq - including oil imports - and froze Iraqi assets in the United States, but held back from U.S. military intervention in the Persian Gulf crisis.

Citing concerns about U.S. dependence on oil from the region, Bush said he was considering a host of other possible responses, although he offered no details, and called for international condemnation of the Iraqi blitz against Kuwait, a small but oil-rich emirate that has been closely identified with U.S. interests in the area.

''We remain committed to take whatever steps are necessary to defend our long-standing interest in the gulf,'' the president told reporters before holding an emergency meeting with his top national security advisers at the White House.

But the president said, ''We're not discussing intervention.'' He added, ''I would not discuss any military options even if we agreed upon them. But I'm not contemplating such action.''

In an executive order freezing Iraqi assets in the United States, Bush also banned all commercial transactions and a Treasury Department official said that action forbids imports of oil as well as other goods, and exports to Iraq from the United States.

The official, who asked not to be identified, was unable to comment on the consequences of the embargo. But, according to government figures provided to reporters, Iraq is currently the sixth largest supplier of oil to the United States, providing an estimated 450,000 barrels per day.

In 1989, Iraq provided 6 percent of U.S. oil imports. In the first five months of this year, Iraqi oil was 8 percent of the U.S. import total.

The official had no estimate of the value of Iraqi assets frozen by the presidential order, but said, ''I believe it is significant.''

While Bush was being cautious about his military options, a U.S. naval task force with a dozen ships was reported to be steaming toward the gulf from the Indian Ocean. The aircraft carrier Independence has been operating in the area and U.S. forces had been conducting aerial refueling exercises with the Kuwaiti air force.

Bush spoke with reporters Thursday morning in the Cabinet Room before departing for Aspen, Colo., for a meeting with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

Although Bush planned to deliver a speech on post-Cold War foreign policy during his trip to Colorado, he scrapped a planned overnight stay and arranged to return to Washington Thursday night.

In response to the developments, oil prices went up on world markets and the U.S. dollar performed strongly against the currencies of Japan and Europe, which are more dependent on Persian Gulf oil.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein had made threats against Kuwait in the past two weeks over what he claimed was excess Kuwaiti oil production that was holding down oil prices.

Iraqi forces swept into neighboring Kuwait overnight and occupied the small nation, driving its government to seek refuge in Saudi Arabia. Kuwait, which has some of the world's richest oil fields, is located at the head of the Persian Gulf, wedged between Iraq and Saudi Arabia.

In his morning comments at the White House, Bush said, ''The United States strongly condemns the Iraqi military invasion of Kuwait. We call for the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of all Iraqi forces.

''There is no place for this sort of naked aggression in today's world,'' Bush said.

Bush praised the U.N. Security Council for its ''quick and overwhelming vote'' condemning the Iraqi action and said additional U.N. action would be contemplated.

Bush said he and Brent Scowcroft, his national security adviser, had conferred by telephone with Secretary of State James Baker, who was in Mongolia.

Baker, he added, had discussed recent tensions in the gulf with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze during the past two days in Siberia, ''and so far I've been pleased with the reaction of the Soviet Union.''

KUWAIT (AUG. 2) UPI -
Population: 1.9 million (est. 1989)
Area: 6,880 square miles
Capital: Kuwait
Ruler: Sheikh Jabir al-Ahmad al-Sabah (Jan. 1, 1978 to present-)

History - Ruled by the al-Sabah dynasty since 1759, Kuwait was a British protectorate from 1899 until it became an independent sheikhdom June 19, 1961. From near complete reliance on Britain at the time of independence, Kuwait gradually moderated its strongly pro-Western stance through increased contact with the Soviet Union. In the Iran-Iraq war, which erupted Sept. 22, 1980, Kuwait sided with Iraq, as did Saudi Arabia.

Geography - Hot, dry and almost entirely desert, Kuwait lies in the northeast corner of the Arabian Peninsula, wedged between Iraq to the north and northwest and Saudi Arabia to the south. To the east is a 310 mile coast on the Persian Gulf (known locally as the Arabian Gulf). Kuwait's flat landscape is relieved mainly by modern office buildings, apartment towers and hotels that mushroomed from the early 1960s in what had been a mud-walled port for traders and pearl fishermen. Kuwait is the size of Massachusetts, but only 0.05 percent of its territory is arable.

Military -Total armed forces - active, 20,300.

Army - 16,000 men; 275 main battle tanks; artillery, 56.

Navy - 2,100. 23 patrol and coastal combatants.

Air Force - 2,200. 36 combat aircraft, including two squadrons of French-built Mirage F-1CK, and 18 armed helicopters.

Economy - Kuwait is a founding member of OPEC and has one of the world's largest oil reserves - and highest per capita incomes. Vast oil wealth permitted Kuwait to move swiftly through generations of technology. But the decline of the world oil market by 1982 left the nation pumping and selling less than one-quarter of the oil it was shipping a few years earlier. Dasalination plants provide much of the desert nation's water.

People - Less than half of the population - 41 percent - is native Kuwaiti. The rest are mostly Palestinians, Indians, Pakistanis and Egyptians who found work on every level, from government executives and doctors down to laborers. Islam is the official religion - Sunni Moslems are dominant - and Arabic the official language, but English is widely used.

Recent developments - In 1988, a Kuwaiti Airways jet was hijacked by pro-Iranian Shiite Moslems who demanded the release of 17 Shiite terrorists. The ordeal lasted 16 days as Kuwait refused to release the terrorists.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) UPI - Rep. Floyd Flake, D-N.Y., and his wife have been indicted on federal charges for allegedly embezzling money earmarked for a housing project for their own personal use and not paying taxes, officials said Thursday.

The indictment handed up in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn charges that Flake and his wife, Margarett Elaine Flake, skimmed money for their own use from the church-sponsored senior citizens housing project in Queens, U.S. Attorney Andrew Maloney said in a statement.

Maloney said the indictment accuses the couple of conspiracy to defraud the IRS, embezzling funds, tax evasion and filing false tax returns and false certified financial statements for a non-profit corporation.

The charges resulted from a two-year investigation into the alleged misappropriation of a $10 million federal Housing and Urban Development loan awarded in 1982 to the church for the housing project. They apparently are unrelated to Flake's work as a congressman.

Flake was indicted on 17 counts, nine of which also charge his wife. If convicted, each could face up to 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine on the two most serious charges, defrauding HUD.

Flake, 45, an ordained minister who heads the Allen African Methodist Church, was first elected to represent the Sixth District in southeastern Queens in 1986.

At a morning news conference, Flake denied the charges, saying that Maloney failed to understand that the money was used for expenses related to a pastor's duties as spiritual and community leader.

''Our abiding belief in God and in the American system of justice reassures us that, despite the awful price, justice will triumph and we will be vindicated at trial,'' Flake said.

''The prosecutor does this without giving any consideration to the unique responsibility of a pastor who must tend to the needs of his congregation literally 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and despite the rules and discipline of the African Methodist Episcopal Church.''

Flake's lawyer, Gus Newman, said Flake would remain in Congress and had notified congressional and Democratic Party leaders of the indictment.

The investigation of the Flakes reportedly was triggered in part by information from Thelma Singleton-Scott, who has charged that Flake harassed her from her job as a church aide after she broke off a two-year love affair with him.

Flake has denied the affair ever took place.

Maloney said the indictment accuses the Flakes of embezzling approximately $75,000 from the 300-unit Allen Senior Citizens apartments between 1983 and 1987 and failing to report those funds on their income tax returns.

The couple also allegedly failed to report $66,700 Floyd Flake received from the church by concealing the money in different bank accounts, some of which had been opened so that they appeared to be official church accounts, Maloney said.

''The defendants' conduct deprived the senior citizens, whom they were pledged to protect, of the federal funds specifically designed for their care,'' he said.

Flake said he was upset that his wife was also the target of an indictment even though he said she had little role in the housing project or in preparing the couple's tax returns.

Margarett Flake's lawyer, Ted Wells, said it was unprecedented that she faced many of the same charges as her husband.

''Her indictment calls into question the fairness of the entire prosecution,'' Wells said. ''It's outrageous for her to be indicted.''

Mrs. Flake, 42, is an administrator at a parochial school that is financially supported by their church.

Flake is the third New York City congressman in recent years to face charges. Both Mario Biaggi and Robert Garcia were convicted in the Wedtech scandal. Garcia's conviction was later overturned by a federal appeals court.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - As mop-up crews battled a damaging slick in Texas's Galveston Bay, the Senate approved an oil spill bill Thursday raising the liability of spillers eight-fold and requiring the government to direct cleanup of major accidents.

Senators, citing a spate of recent oil spills from New York Harbor to the shores of California, voted 99-0 to adopt a compromise bill that also requires double hulls on all tankers and sets up a $1 billion federal trust fund to pay for emergency cleanup and victim compensation.

The House is scheduled to give final legislative approval to the same legislation this week, sending it to President Bush, who is expected to sign it into law.

The congressional action comes more than a year after the disastrous Exxon Valdez spill in Alaska's Prince William Sound, which was aggravated by a poor cleanup response by Exxon, the oil industry and Coast Guard.

The oil industry is unhappy with several aspects of the compromise bill - particularly the costly requirement for double hulls - but the string of oil spills around the country since the Exxon Valdez gave the bill irresistible momentum.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, praised the bill, but expressed regret that it took so long for Congress to act, saying the legislation came too late to help his constituents.

''Even as we speak here today, oil is fouling beaches and wildlife in Galveston Bay,'' Gramm said. ''It won't solve that problem.''

However, senators were unanimous in saying the bill would make major improvements in federal and industry efforts to prevent future spills and ensure effective cleanup.

A key section of the bill would raise the liability of spillers for cleanup costs and damage payments roughly eight times higher than the limits now applicable under federal law.

For example, although Exxon has voluntarily paid more than $2 billion to clean up the Alaska spill, experts estimate it would be legally liable for only $14 million under current federal law. Lawmakers said the low limits gave oil shippers little incentive to prevent spills.

The new liability limits, which range up to $350 million per incident, do not apply to accidents caused by gross negligence or criminal misconduct on the part of tanker or facility operators.

In addition, injured parties can sue for higher compensation under state laws that do not set any ceiling on spiller liability. Eighteen states have unlimited liability for oil spills.

Oil industry officials warned that states with unlimited liability laws faced a cutoff of oil shipments because few tanker operators would risk a major accident that could bankrupt them.

Where cleanup and compensation costs exceed a spiller's liability limit, the government could tap the $1 billion federal trust fund, which is financed by a 5-cent-per-barrel tax on oil.

To assure minimal disruption to affected communities, the fund also could be used for damage payments to fishermen and others who lose their livelihood and cannot get recompense from the spiller within 60 days after an accident. The government would then sue the spiller to recoup the damage payments.

The bill, mired for years in congressional disputes, was energized by the wreck of supertanker Exxon Valdez on March 24, 1989, which dumped nearly 11 million gallons of crude oil into Alaska's pristine Prince William Sound. The spill blackened miles of beaches and killed thousands of birds, sea otters and other animals.

Public outrage was heightened by the slow and confused cleanup response by Exxon and oil industry crews. Coast Guard officials said they could not take over the cleanup because they did not have enough money and were uncertain about their authority to intervene.

The bill would directly address that problem by giving the president responsibility for ensuring a quick and effective cleanup, either by ordering the spiller to take action or sending the Coast Guard into action. The president also would have the final say on how long cleanup operations must continue.

Another key provision of the bill requires virtually all oil tankers and barges operating in U.S. waters by the year 2015 to be equipped with double hulls, designed to provide extra protection against spills in the event of groundings or collisions.

Environmentalists contend a double hull could have prevented the Exxon Valdez fiasco, but oil industry officials argue that an additional shell would make a foundering ship take on more water and increase the risk of capsizing.

TRENTON, NJ (AUG. 2) UPI - Who was that masked candidate?

That's the question passers-by in Trenton were asking Thursday as congressional candidate Max Kortepeter rode up to the New Jersey Statehouse on horseback to hold a news conference.

''I'm going to lasso votes and put my rivals in the jailhouse,'' Kortepeter said. ''There's too many hombres in this race for me.''

Kortepeter, a government and foreign affairs professor at New York University, is an Independent running against state Sen. Richard Zimmer and Democratic businesswoman Marguerite Chandler for the 12th District seat being vacated by Republican Rep. Jim Courter. Courter is retiring from politics after his defeat by fellow Rep. Jim Florio, D-N.J., in last year's governor's race.

Kortepeter wore a white hat and a Lone Ranger-style mask as he rode up to the Statehouse steps astride a rust-colored quarterhorse gelding.

''The party system is corrupt and old-fashioned and run-down,'' Kortepeter said after removing the mask. ''I'm going to clean out the bad guys.''

Kortepeter said he chose to appear on a horse because it was symbolic of his hope to clean up the environment - ''Horses don't pollute; they fertilize'' - but also admitted it was ''a good attention getter'' for an otherwise invisible campaign.

With Zimmer and Chandler each spending hundreds of thousands of dollars on newspaper ads, radio commercials, home videos and other campaigning, Kortepeter conceded he needs all the free publicity he can get.

His fund-raising effort has been ''strictly nickels and dimes'' so far and has a goal of only $25,000, the 60-year-old Montgomery resident said.

Thursday's appearance was a clear example of low-cost campaigning: The 16-year-old horse, Montaque, was borrowed, press releases were created on a home computer and the black-and-white, one-page campaign brochures were handed out by Kortepeter's daughter, Serena, who was born the same year as the horse.

Kortepeter also said that he supports legal abortion, wants to cut defense spending and detailed a plan to cut the federal deficit by $100 billion over five years.

He then tipped his hat, tugged on Montaque's reins and rode off in search of the sunset.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) UPI - The Dow industrials stabilized with a loss of about 30 points in heavy early afternoon trading Thursday after taking an early pounding tied to news of Iraq's overnight invasion of Kuwait.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 5.94 Wednesday, was down 33.17 to 2866.09 at 1 p.m. EDT.

Declines pounded advances 1,199-355 among the 1,906 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Volume amounted to about 173,000,000 shares after 1 p.m., compared with 110,270,000 in the same period Wednesday.

Iraq's troops invaded Kuwait before dawn Thursday and seized control of its smaller neighbor hours after talks between the two Persian Gulf nations collapsed over Iraq's oil and territorial claims.

Kuwait's ambassador to the United States said Kuwait's ruler fled to Saudi Arabia and confirmed that Iraq ''is commanding the whole country with their fingers.'' He said his country sought U.S. military assistance but President Bush said he was not considering military intervention.

Heavy casualties were reported and world currency, oil and precious metals markets reacted wildly to the invasion.

The U.S. dollar, which is coveted because it is used to make oil purchases rallied in morning trading in New York. Oil prices soared along with gold prices, which investors flock to in times of turmoil, but Treasury bonds were sharply lower since higher oil prices have inflationary implications.

As gold and oil prices surged, stock traders grabbed precious metals and energy issues. Analysts said the decline in the Dow industrials would have been much steeper if not for sharp gains in the energy-related components in the index, since other issues tumbled.

And since the situation in Iraq and Kuwait remains uncertain, traders said they were not sure about the chances of a rebound on Wall Street later in the session.

On the trading floor, oil issues dominated the action. Texaco was the most active issue, up 1 1/2 to 65 1/2.

Global Marine, an oil and gas contract drilling company, followed, up 1/4 to 5 3/8. Boeing was third, down 2 to 53 3/4. USX, the parent of Marathon Oil, was next, up 1/2 to 34 5/8. Exxon was fifth, up 1 5/8 to 53 3/4.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T was down 1/2 to 36 1/4, IBM was off 1 1/8 to 110 1/2, Chevron was up 5/8 to 79 3/8 and Du Pont, parent of Conoco, was up 1/4 to 41 1/4.

In the gold sector, Battle Mountain Gold was up 1/2 to 12 3/8, Homestake Mining was up 1/4 to 20 1/8, and ASA Ltd. was up 1 to 49 3/4.

Prices were lower in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Echo Bay Mines led the Amex issues, up 1/2 to 13 3/4.

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AUG. 2) UPI - The state Supreme Court ruled Thursday the families of Japanese nationals who died in the crash of a Boeing 747 five years ago in Japan cannot seek damages from the airplane manufacturer in U.S. courts.

The ruling, if it stands, means all the damage claims must be tried in Japanese courts.

The ruling was a major victory for The Boeing Co. because high damage awards are much harder to obtain in Japan than in the United States.

The nearly unanimous ruling by the state's highest court involved claims filed in King County Superior Court on behalf of 71 Japanese nationals who were among 525 victims aboard the Japan Air Lines 747 that slammed into a mountainside Aug. 12, 1985, while en route from Tokyo to Osaka.

Boeing previously had lost the liability portion of the case when King County Superior Court Judge Gary Little ruled that cracking in the plane's bulkhead, resulting from faulty repairs by Boeing in 1978, led to the crash.

The cracks caused rapid depressurization and loss of the aircraft's tail section.

Prior to trial, the liability and damages issues were split so they could be heard separately.

With the liability question out of the way, the only remaining question was where the damage claims would be filed. In 1987, the lower court ruled Boeing could be sued for damages only in Japan and dismissed damage claims filed on behalf of Japanese nationals.

Justice Barbara Durham wrote the opinion affirming the ruling. She was joined by all other members of the court except Justice Robert Utter, who wrote a concurring opinion in which he complained about splitting the trial into liability and damage phases. The rest of the court did not agree with Utter.

The high court found in favor of Boeing on two key issues.

The first dealt with the doctrine of ''forum non conveniens,'' under which courts have discretionary power to decide where a case should be tried.

Durham said attorneys for the Japanese victims of the crash did not challenge a finding by Judge Little that an adequate alternative forum to U.S. courts was available in Japan.

Among other things, Little said nearly all of the witnesses, documents and other evidence pertaining to the issue of damages are located in Japan, and said ease of access to sources of proof favored trial in Japan.

The plaintiffs also lost on an argument that fundamental fairness required the damage issue be heard in a state court because of restrictions in the awarding of damages and other factors present in the Japanese legal system.

Durham noted, however, that the plaintifs did not challenge a finding of fact by the trial court that ''the courts of Japan are an adequate and available alternative forum.... Japanese law provides an adequate remedy for plantiffs' injuries.''

CHICAGO (AUG. 2) UPI - The American Bar Association opened its annual meeting Thursday with its board of governors meeting, kicking off a week of activities that will include notable speakers and legal education programs.

The board of governors meeting was expected to last two days to formulate ABA policy on such items as abortion and cameras in the courts.

The convention will feature a number of famous speakers and seminars on pressing legal issues.

(AUG. 2) UPI - Kuwait's ambassador to the United States says Iraq is controlling his entire country following a pre-dawn invasion. The envoy made a universal cry for help. Heavy casulties are reported in the fighting. An independent Moslem-owned radio station in France says a temporary Kuwaiti government has been formed in Baghdad.

President Bush has frozen all Iraqi and Kuwaiti property and assets in the United States as a result of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. Bush says he's NOT contemplating sending troops to the besieged oil kingdom. But the president says he's committed to whatever steps are necessary to protect U-S interests in the region.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) UPI - The father of one of three youths accused of raping and beating a female jogger in Central Park last year testified Thursday his son was questioned by police in front of his mother who speaks only Spanish.

Raymond Santana told defense attorney Peter Rivera his son, Raymond Jr, signed a confession in his presence, but he didn't read it himself.

Santana Jr., 15, is on trial with Yusef Salaam, 16, and Antron McCray, 16, for the April 19, 1989, ''wilding'' rampage by a gang of youths through Central Park that left the 30-year-old women battered and near death.

Wednesday, Salaam testified and steadfastly denied participating in the attack.

Santana, a short stocky man who speaks broken English, said Thursday he and his mother, Natividad Colon, arrived at the Central Park police precinct about 4 a.m. April 20, a few hours after the attack.

He said he was led to believe his son would be released in a few hours and left his mother there and went to work. He said police continued to question the youth.

Earlier Thursday, Assistant District Attorney Elizabeth Lederer questioned Colon through an interpreter about her insistence she could not speak English.

Under close questioning, Colon admitted yelling, ''Leave me alone'' at a reporter outside her home after the attack.

Santana said later in the day police called him back to the station and he finally saw his son about 7:30 p.m., nearly 24 hours after the attack.

''I asked to talk to Raymond,'' He said. ''The officer said 'I got his confession all ready. You can talk to him.'''

Santana said his son ''didn't act like Raymond. He was weak from hunger and sleepy.

He said police allowed the youth to eat and get some sleep, and a few hours later, ''They took out my son's confession. The officer said he had to redo it.

''He started writing it and then he asked my son about a pipe and a knife. They were asking about names. They were screaming names into the room,'' Santana said.

He said the session ended about 1:30 a.m. April 21 when the detective handed his son the confession and told him to read it and sign it and the father to sign it.

He said Raymond read it and signed it.

''Did you read it?'' Rivera asked.

''No, because he read it,'' Santana replied.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (AUG. 2) UPI - Police Thursday pulled two Canadian engineers off a passenger train with 255 passengers aboard and charged them with drinking on the job.

Niagara Regional Police said Charles Goodenough, 49, of Mississauga, Ont., and Kenneth Roach, 36, of Cookstown, Ont. were charged with impaired operation and driving with a blood-alcohol content over.08, the legal limit in Canada.

Police said the crewmen, VIA Rail Canada employees operating an Amtrak train, were given informal breath tests, then taken to police headquarters and given alcohol tests.

They said a uniformed officer had received information the crew had been drinking on the train, which had 255 passengers on board, many bound for the ''Caribana 1990'' festival in Toronto.

As part of normal procedure, Canadian engineers replace American engineers in Niagara Falls, Ont., and guide the Amtrak train to Toronto.

An Amtrak spokesman said the train, which originated in New York City, was running behind schedule because of delays throughout the New York state system.

The train arrived in Toronto more than 4 hours behind schedule.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - Vice President Dan Quayle announced the selection Thursday of 11 members of a special panel that will study the future of the trouble-plagued National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The members of the Advisory Committee on the Future of the U.S. Space Program were selected ''on the joint recommendation'' of NASA Administrator Richard Truly and Norman Augustine, who ealier was named to head the panel.

The committee ''will advise the NASA administrator on overall approaches NASA management can use to implement the U.S. space program for the coming decades,'' according to a statement Quayle's office.

''The committee will have a broad charter and will report its findings within approximately four months'' to Truly and Quayle, who chairs the National Space Council.

Augustine's selection July 25 to lead the review generated questions about the impartiality of the committee. Augustine is chairman of the Martin Marrietta Corp., a major NASA contractor. Several members named Thursday also are linked to corporations that do business with the space agency.

The panel was named in response to a string of problems at NASA, including the discovery of a defect in the Hubble Space Telescope and the grounding of the space shuttle fleet due to fuel leaks.

Laurel Wilkening, provost of the University of Washington in Seattle and former member of the National Commission on Space, was named as vice chairman of the committee.

The other members tapped Thursday:

Edward Aldridge Jr., president of McDonnell Douglas Electronics Systems Corp.; Joseph Allen, president of Space Industries International Inc.; D. James Baker, president of Joint Oceanographic Institutions Inc..

Edward Boland, a former Democratic congressman from Massachusetts; Daniel Fink, retired senior vice president of General Electric Co.; Don Fuqua, president and general manager of the Aerospace Industries Association of America Inc.

Retired Air Force Gen. Robert Herres, former vice chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and former commander in chief of the U.S. Space Command; David Kerns, chairman of Xerox Corp.; Louis Lanzerotti, of AT&T Bell Laboratories, chairman of the Space Studies Board of the National Research Council; Thomas Paine, former NASA administrator and chairman of the National Commission on Space.

LONDON (AUG. 2) UPI - Stock prices, hammered by news of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, closed broadly lower in brisk trading Thursday on the London International stock exchange.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which climbed 12.8 points Wednesday, tumbled 34.5 points to 2,304.5. The narrower top 30 industrial average fell 41.4 points to 1,811.4.

Volume swelled to around 562 million shares from the 419 million shares that changed hands Wednesday.

Analysts said stocks tumbled from the opening bell as rising crude oil prices sparked worries of Britain's inflation racing through ten percent from its current level of 9.8 percent.

Oil and related stocks soared as crude prices surged, while other shares were depressed by the prospects for inflation. Analysts said the market was gripped by fears that higher oil prices would heighten inflationary pressures, making the possibility of lower interest rates even more remote.

"It was very volatile," said Kevin Gardner, an economist at Warburg Securities, in assessing Thursday's trading.

The Financial Times Index "actually opened slightly higher but then swung down on the uncertainty over the Kuwait-Iraq situation," Gardner said.

Analysts noted the biggest losers were among international issues in what they said amounted to an emotional response. Some investors felt they should cut their exposure to Middle East troubles, analysts said.

Among the most widely traded stocks, British Petroleum climbed 38 cents to $6.50 as North Sea Brent crude prices climbed from $20 a barrel to over $23 a barrel.

Also among the active oil issues, Shell Transport and Trading climbed 24 cents to $8.92 and Enterprise Oil gained 20 cents to $12.22.

British Aerospace climbed 27 cents to $10.33 becasue of the increased tension in the Middle East. The company supplies arms to the region and is the main contractor for all Yamamah agreements with Saudi Arabia.

Midland Bank PLC fell 21 cents to $4.96 after reporting earnings were in the black for the first half compared with a loss a year earlier.

Midland's Chairman Sir Kit McMahon described the bank's disappointing profits as "clearly unacceptable results, which are receiving urgent and radical action." The bank is expected to cut up to 4,000 jobs by the end of 1991.

Among other highlights, Imperial Chemical Industries tumbled 43 cents to $18.36 and B.A.T. Industries eased eight cents to $10.36.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange retreated broadly as investors sold off stocks in hectic trading on worries over the global impact of Iraq's invasion and occupation of neighboring Kuwait. The closely watched German Stock Index fell 23.51 points to 1,869.38.

Analysts noted most of the selling pressure came from professional traders with institutions and small investors keeping to sidelines.

In Italy, the Milan Stock Exchange main market index lost 2.9 percent of its value, but analysts said this is only partly due to the Iraqi invasion, the rest due to local reasons. The closely watched Milan Index lost 1.1 percent of its book value on Wednesday.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - The number of ducks in the United States and Canada has dropped by almost a quarter due to widespread drought and the destruction of wetlands vital to waterfowl, federal officials said Thursday.

A survey conducted by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service shows duck populations are 22 percent below average levels for the period 1955 through 1989.

''The status of ducks is a warning signal for wetlands and the many fish and wildlife species that depend on them,'' said John Turner, director of the fish and wildlife agency.

Turner said the 1990 count of 31.3 million breeding ducks is the third lowest on record, after 1985 and 1989.

''These numbers should be of concern not only to waterfowlers and birdwatchers, but to everyone who cares about wildlife and the environment '' Turner said.

CAIRO, EGYPT (AUG. 2) UPI - Kuwait, invaded and occupied by its militarily superior Persian Gulf neighbor Iraq, appealed Thursday for U.S. military intervention and urged Arab allies to activate a defense pact against Iraq.

President Bush denounced the Iraqi blitz as ''totally unjustified'' and immediately froze Iraqi assets in the United States, but said he was not contemplating intervention in the crisis by U.S. military forces.

The assault followed a collapse in talks between the two nations on Iraq's territorial and oil claims against Kuwait and amid a massive buildup of Iraqi forces near the Kuwaiti border.

Heavy casualties were reported and the crisis wreaked havoc on world currency, oil and precious metals markets.

''We have made a universal cry for help to all our friends,'' Kuwaiti Ambassador to the United States, Sheik Saud Nasir al Sabah, told reporters at a news conference in Washington. ''We don't stand a chance if we don't get help from our friends.''

''My country is under occupation and my people are suffering,'' he said.

Al Sabah said the invasion forced Kuwait's Emir, or ruler, to flee to Saudi Arabia, confirmed that Iraq ''is commanding the whole country with their fingers'' but that Kuwaiti troops outnumbered by Iraq's by 5-to-1 were putting up resistance.

''There is still fighting in the streets, and especially around the palaces of the Emir and crown prince. We can hear gunfire and explosions,'' a resident of the Kuwaiti capital told United Press International.

Witnesses in Kuwait said the brother of Kuwait's Emir Sheikh Fahad al Ahmad al Sabah, head of the oil-rich emirate's Olympic Committee, was killed in action while defending the royal palace.

Iraq claimed the invasion was to support unspecified revolutionaries who had overthrown the Kuwaiti government and its troops would be withdrawn when order is restored which could be ''a matter of days or weeks.''

''The Iraqi forces will be withdrawn as soon as the situation is settled down and as soon as the free government of Kuwait'' is established,'' said Iraqi ambassador to the United States, Mohammad al-Mashat. ''We hope this will be a matter of a few days or a few weeks at the latest.''

''We reject any foreign interference in the current events,'' al-Mashat said in a brief statement to reporters in Washington. ''Such interference will only aggrevate the situation.''

The U.N. Security Council, in an emergency session early Thursday, condemned the invasion in a resolution that demanded Iraqi President Saddam Hussein withdraw his troops ''immediately and unconditionally.''

U.S. diplomats in the Persian Gulf region said Washington sent 12 warships including an aircraft carrier, to reinforce its seven vessels already in the strategic waterway.

The Arab League convened an emergency session to consider its response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, which asked its Arab allies and the United States to intervene militarily.

''Kuwait has asked Arab nations to prepare an allied expeditionary force to liberate its territory from Iraqi occupation,'' said one of the diplomatic sources, who are attending an Arab League foreign ministers meeting in Cairo.

The sources said Kuwait asked the Arab League to activate the joint Arab defense pact and come to the emirate's aid ''as soon as possible.'' The pact has never been activated before, even in an Arab-Israeli war.

Kuwait's defense is no numerical match for the Iraqi military. Baghdad boasts a battle-hardened armed forces of 1 million men, a formidable air force and substantial tank divisions. Kuwait's armed forces total about 20,000.

Ambassador Al Sabah said he asked for U.S. military intervention, which Bush said he was not contemplating.

''We're not discussing intervention,'' Bush told reporters. ''I would not discuss any military options even if we agreed upon them. But I'm not contemplating such action and I would not discuss it if I were.''

Citing concerns about U.S. dependence on oil from the region, Bush said he was considering a host of other possible responses, although he offered no details, and called for international condemnation of the Iraqi blitz.

Bush also signed an executive order that froze Iraqi assets and property in the United States. The order also froze Kuwaiti assets to prevent takeover by the invading Iraqi forces. Britain also froze Kuwait's substantial assets.

(AUG. 2) UPI - The American Legion is suing the federal government for the first time in the group's 71-year history. The nation's largest veterans group filed a suit calling for the completion of a study ordered by Congress on the health effects of Agent Orange on Vietnam veterans. As many as 36-thousand Vietnam veterans have filed claims contending they were medically disabled by the defoliant.

A lawmaker and ordained minister, Flake denies the charges.

(AUG. 2) UPI - Workers off the coast of Galveston, Texas, today began the careful task of refloating a mangled barge involved in a 500-thousand-gallon oil spill in Galveston Bay. The process was expected to take all day because of fears the vessel could spilt apart and spill more oil into the bay. The heavy crude forced officials to declare the bay a disaster area, closing it to fishing and shellfish harvesting.

A weak demand for military hardware and other durable goods caused a dip in U-S factory orders last month. The Commerce Department says factory orders fell one-and-a-half percent in June... to 237-point-four-BILLION dollars. Many economists expected the three-point-seven-BILLION-dollar decline. New orders for non-durable goods were unchanged at a little more than 112-BILLION dollars.

(AUG. 2) UPI - Iraq drew almost universal condemnation Thursday for its invasion of tiny but oil-rich Persian Gulf neighbor Kuwait, and the United States, Soviet Union and Britain backed up tough words with action.

President Bush froze all Iraqi property and assets and U.S. officials called on NATO allies to join in sanctions against Baghdad.

Washington - quickly followed by Britain - also froze all Kuwaiti assets on their territories to protect them against any attempted transfer by a possible puppet regime installed in Kuwait by Iraq.

An additional 12 American warships sailed from the Indian Ocean to join the seven ships already in the Persian Gulf region.

The Soviet Union, Iraq's main arms supplier, demanded the immediate unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait and suspended arms shipments.

French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas told a television interviewer in Paris that France would support sanctions against Iraq and any other action called for by the U.N. Security Council.

Dumas said France had already suspended arms shipments to Iraq because it has not paid for previous deliveries and he saw ''no reason in the current circumstances to restart them.''

Arab radical Libya, meanwhile, did not condemn Iraq and clearly supported Baghdad's previous charges that the oil policies of Kuwait and others had ''harmed the economic interests of the Arab homeland.''

A Libyan Foreign Ministry statement distributed by the national JANA news agency also warned against outside intervention.

''Foreign intervention on the part of the imperialist powers is something which we utterly reject because the Arabs are capable of resolving their problems on their own,'' the statement said.

Switzerland urged Swiss banks to exercise ''increased diligence'' on Kuwaiti assets and ''carefully control the identities of the owner and the beneficiary'' in any withdrawals and transfers.

Turkey closed its border with Iraq and expressed deep concern about the invasion by Iraqi forces, official sources said.

The U.S. ambassador in Ankara met with Turkish officials but details of the conversation were not immediately released. The United States has military bases on Turkish soil.

Turkey shares a border with Iraq along its southeastern tip and an oil pipeline runs from Iraq's northern oilfields to a terminal in the Mediterranean.

Kuwait supported Iraq in its eight-year Persian Gulf war against Iran, which ended when both sides accepted a U.N.-sponsored cease-fire two years ago. Iran and Iraq are holding low-level discussions aimed at establishing a durable peace between them.

Citing concerns about U.S. dependence on oil from the region, Bush said he was considering a host of other possible responses. He offered no details, and called for international condemnation of the Iraqi blitz against the oil emirate that has been closely identified with U.S. interests in the area.

''We do not rule anything in or anything out,'' deputy White House spokesman Roman Popadiuk also said. ''Options are something we do not discuss.''

The U.N. Security Council adopted a unanimous, and in principle, binding resolution at dawn denouncing the invasion and demanding the ''immediate and unconditional'' withdrawal of Iraqi forces.

Iraq responded by saying it was an ''internal matter'' and Iraqi troops had been requested by a ''free, provisional government.'' They would be withdrawn when order is restored, which could be ''a matter of days or weeks.''

Oil prices soared as much as $5 a barrel on fears of possible disruptions in Gulf supplies. Gold jumped as well.

The ailing U.S. dollar also regained some strength because dollars are used to purchase petroleum.

In freezing Iraqi property and asets in the United States and overseas territories, Bush called on others to do the same because of the ''outrageous'' military action by Iraqi president Saddam Hussein.

Bush's executive order also froze Kuwaiti property and assets ''in order to prevent their takeover,'' presumably by a possible Iraqi-installed puppet government.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - The House voted Thursday to hit airline passengers with an airport user fee that could add up to $12 to the cost of a round-trip ticket, rejecting arguments it amounts to an unfair and regressive $1 billion tax.

An amendment to eliminate the user fee from the aviation reauthorization bill was defeated, 252-171, after spirited debate.

The House then passed the bill, 405-15, and sent it to the Senate. The legislation authorizes $18.3 billion in 1991 and 1992 for Federal Aviation Administration programs to operate and develop the airway system.

The ''passenger facility charge'' would affect millions of consumers while adding $1 billion a year to the Airport and Airway Trust Fund, which currently has a surplus of about $7.6 billion. The law would allow more than 70 major airports - many of them congested and experiencing long and expensive flight delays - to charge a head tax on each passenger to help pay for airport improvements and expansion.

The bill, including the user fee, is needed ''to modernize the air traffic control system (and pay for) airport development, runway improvement and building gates to have some competition at hubs dominated by single carriers,'' said Rep. James Oberstar, D-Minn., the bill's sponsor.

The bill's basic airport fee would be up to $3, which could be charged by no more than two airports on any one-way trip. The maximum round-trip tax would be $12.

The fee was proposed by President Bush earlier this year as part of a five-year plan for improving the nation's commercial aviation system. Critics said it amounts to an unfair burden on consumers, who already pay an 8 percent federal tax when buying airline tickets.

The user fee is ''a $1 billion tax on the traveling public,'' said Rep. Douglas Bosco, D-Calif., and is unnecesary, since the aviation fund has a bulging surplus.

Said Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif: ''We're talking once again about taxing consumers. ... Airline travelers once again are about to be taken for a ride by the White House and Congress.''

Bob McIntyre of Citizens for Tax Justice agreed.

''If they're going to have a user fee, you couldn't think of a worse way to impose it,'' said McIntyre, who described the charge as regressive. ''The equivalent of this would be every time you get into the car, you have to send the government another dollar.''

The Airline Passengers Association of North America complained that the fee would force consumers to bear the brunt of paying for airport improvements.

''The premise is that airline passengers are being asked to pay for everybody's costs,'' including runway construction that should be underwritten by airlines and private-plane users, said association spokesman Jack Corbett.

The new fees would have to be approved by the Department of Transportation. Airports that charge the fees would have other federal funding reduced by 50 percent of what they collect from the passenger fee.

Oberstar said the money is needed to address monumental bottlnecks that can only worsen at the nation's airports. Oberstar noted the 117 million hours of airport delays that cost the economy an estimated $3 billion in 1989.

Twenty large commercial airports already are operating beyond their designed capacity, according to the FAA, which estimates passenger traffic will soar to 775 million by the year 2000, up from 480 million last year.

(AUG. 2) UPI - A Kuwait envoy in Washington says his country doesn't stand a chance against Iraq without help. The Kuwaiti ambassador's plea to President Bush for military assistance fell on deaf ears, as Bush says he is NOT considering sending in U-S forces. Heavy casualties were reported in Iraq's pre-dawn invasion of its neighboring oil emirate. Kuwait's troops are out-numbered 5-1.

NATO held a special meeting in Brussels, Belgium, today to discuss the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. The United States urged its NATO allies to join a commercial boycott of Iraq and freeze assets of the Gulf nation in response to the attack. The group is preparing a paper on the economic consequences of a commercial boycott of Iraq. The Western military alliance says the invasion violates the United Nations Charter.

charged and he should be acquitted on those grounds.

(AUG. 2) UPI - Getting a shuttle launched from Cape Canaveral has proved to be a difficult task... but getting a Delta-2 rocket off the ground is proving to be much easier. The Air Force launched a Delta-2 early today, with the rocket later boosting a 65-Million-dollar satellite into orbit. Today's launch is the 11th success in a row for the Delta a perfect record.

The Senate today passed a 20-point-nine-BILLION-dollar spending bill that includes funds for the super collider project. The measure would allocate 318-Million dollars for the giant particle accelerator- one of the most ambitious scientific projects ever undertaken. But the project's funds may be hit by automatic spending cuts due if Congress fails to trim the deficit.

Louisiana's attorney general is calling on the state's 144 legislators to return to Baton Rouge to over-ride vetoes of two anti-abortion bills. ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, IL (AUG. 2) UPI - Sunday Silence, last year's Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner and Horse of the Year, Thursday was retired to stud after tearing a ligament in his leg.

Trainer Charlie Whittingham said the 4-year-old could still run, but might suffer a life-threatening injury should he race again.

''I've never had one like him before,'' Whittingham said. ''I'll be lucky if I ever have another one.''

The injury to the left front leg marks the racing end for the big black horse who last year captured two jewels of the Triple Crown as well as the Breeders' Cup Classic and Horse of the Year honors.

The retirement comes just 15 days after a similar decision from the handlers of Easy Goer, who with Sunday Silence formed one of thoroughbred racing's great rivalries.

''It's the end of a wonderfully blessed racing career and the beginning of a new one,'' Sunday Silence co-owner Arthur Hancock said in a statement from Stone Farm in Paris, Ky. ''He's been a wonderful horse and he'll be a wonderful stallion. He'll be right here at the farm where I'll be able to see him every day.''

The son of Halo-Wishing Well will be shipped to Stone Farm, where he was bred and raised.

''We're very disappointed but we'll try to dwell on the positives,'' Hancock said. ''We're very sorry it happened but very thankful it wasn't more severe. We couldn't have asked any more of him.

''He did wonderful things for himself and for us and it was a blessing to have him. It's too bad he can't race Saturday or in the Breeders' Cup, but we could not put him in any jeopardy.''

Sunday Silence was the heavy favorite in Saturday's Arlington Challenge Cup at Arlington International Race Course. His retirement prompted trainer D. Wayne Lucas to withdraw Steinlen from the field for that race, leaving only three starters for a reduced purse of $250,000.

Arlington President Ken Dunn said the track hoped to attract as many as three other starters before drawing for post positions later Thursday. The race originally was conceived as a showdown between Sunday Silence, the 1989 Kentucky Derby winner, and Easy Goer.

However, Easy Goer suffered a career-ending ankle chip. Thus began a series of mishaps and defections that caused the Challenge Cup field to unravel. Shortly after word came of Sunday Silence's retirement, ABC announced it would abandon its telecast.

Clever Trevor, a local handicap favorite, was withdrawn earlier because of a leg injury and faces the second knee surgery of his career. Opening Verse, who finished a close second in this year's Michigan Mile, was withdrawn earlier Thursday after a good workout on the turf and will be pointed toward the Sept. 2 Arlington Million, Arlington officials said.

Steinlen, the 1989 Turf Horse of the Year, also will be trying for a repeat victory at this year's million.

''Horse racing is a very risky type business,'' Arlington owner Richard Duchossois said. ''Everything changes from day to day. That's part of what makes it so exciting.''

It was Duchossois who devised the Challenge Cup as a way to promote world class racing in the Midwest.

''It's unfortunate,'' Whittingham said. ''It's something I never do, but I was already counting the money,''

Sunday Silence is owned by Hancock, Dr. Ernest Gaillard, Whittingham and Japanese horseman Zenya Yoshida, who paid a reported $2.25 million for a 25 percent interest in the colt in March.

Sunday Silence won nine of 14 lifetime starts and finished second in his five other starts. He earned $4,968,554 and is the third leading earner in thoroughbred racing history. He earned two Eclipse Awards - best 3-year-old colt and 1989 Horse of the Year.

This from a horse that attracted little interest at first and twice nearly lost his life - once from a virus and another time as a 2-year-old when his van flipped.

Sunday Silence was foaled March 25, 1986 at Stone Farm and went unsold at the 1987 Keeneland summer yearling sales. He was consigned by his breeder, Oak Cliff Thoroughbreds, with Stone Farm as agent, and Hancock bought him back for $17,000.

Eight months later, Hancock tried to sell him as a 2-year-old in California, but again there were no takers. Hancock decided to keep Sunday Silence and sold half interest in the colt to Whittingham for $25,000. Whittingham later sold half his interest in the colt to Gaillard for $25,000.

RENO, NV (AUG. 2) UPI - One of two young men who entered a suicide pact after listening to a Judas Priest album was not suicidal and shot himself only after he feared he would be a suspect in the other youth's death, a behavioral expert testified Thursday.

James Mikawa, director of the psychological service center at the University of Nevada, Reno said his ''psychological autopsy'' concluded that Raymond Belknap was suicidal but James Vance was not when the two shot themselves on Dec. 23, 1985.

Mikawa, a director of the Suicide Crisis Center in Reno for seven years, said Vance was surprised when Belknap shot himself.

Vance, who felt he would be charged with the killing of Belknap, then shot himself in such a way that would not kill him, Mikawa said.

''He (Vance) didn't have any intention of following through,'' he said.

Belknap, then 18 and Vance, 20, drank beer, smoked marijuana and listened to the Judas Priest album ''Stained Class'' several hours before they got a shotgun and ran to a nearby playground from the Vance home.

Belknap pushed the shotgun up against his chin and said, ''I sure f--- up my life'' and pulled the trigger, dying instantly. Vance grabbed the gun and blew away part of his face but lived for three more years before he died of complications from the wound and prescriptions drugs.

The families of the two men claim that subliminal messages on the album pushed the two to suicide. Judas Priest members have denied there were any concealed messages on the album.

The trial, expected to conclude next week, has turned into a battle between experts on sound and psychologists and psychiatrists. Attorneys for Judas Priest and CBS Records presented witnesses who testified there were no subliminal messages and that the reasons for the suicide effort was a myriad of problems confronting the two men. Family lawyers have called witnesses to testify there were messages on the records, both hidden and played backwards and that the final thing to push the two over the edge was the repeated commands of ''do it.''

Mikawa testified he has never come across a case where a subliminal message caused a suicide.

In this case, Mikawa said these two men did not confront their stresses but used and ''escapism'' by listening to heavy rock music and using drugs and alcohol.

He said both young men had a variety of past behavioral problems that contributed to the action, including loss of jobs, family violence and problems in school.

In at least three previous cases - in California, Georgia and New Jersey - fans of heavy metal have killed themselves after listening to the album ''Suicide Solution'' by the rock singer Ozzy Ozbourne, another artist who has recorded for CBS.

The California case was dismissed before coming to trial when a court ruled that song lyrics were protected by the free speech provisions of the First Amendment. The Georgia case is still pending, and heavy metal is no longer a factor in the New Jersey case.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) UPI - The final defense witness Thursday testified his teenage son signed a confession admitting he helped gang-rape and beat a woman jogger in Central Park because ''he didn't understand what he was saying.''

The father of Raymond Santana Jr., 15, one of three youths on trial for rape and attempted murder, also said he never read his son's confession - which police took down in English - before he too signed it.

Santana was the final defense witness in the six-week-old trial.

Police grilled the youth for more than 24 hours following the rape of the 30-year-old investment banker the night of April 19, 1989. At 1:30 a.m. on April 21, detectives told the father and son to read the last of three written confessions and sign it, testified Raymond Santana Sr..

''He told me to sign it,'' the short, stocky man testified in broken English with a thick Spanish accent.

''Did you read it?'' asked Peter Rivera, a lawyer for the skinny youth.

''No, because he read it,'' said Santana, explaining his son looked over the document and then a detective read it out loud.

With their signatures, the youth and his father authorized one of the most powerful tools the prosecutor has used against him: his written confession which was followed by a videotaped version.

Santana is on trial with Yusef Salaam, 16, and Antron McCray, 16, for the ''wilding'' rampage by a gang of youths through Central Park that left the woman battered and near death.

In his videotaped confession, Santana admitted, ''I was grabbing the lady's teats'' during the gang rape in a muddy gully in the park.

During cross-examination, the father was asked again about the written statement.

''And your son signed it voluntarily?'' asked Assistant District Attorney Elizabeth Lederer.

''No. He didn't understand what he was saying,'' the father said.

''Did someone force him to sign it?'' she pressed.

''No,'' Santana answered.

''Did someone force you to sign it?''

''No.''

''Did you understand that statement when it was read to you?''

''Yes.''

The father, a patient aide at Cardinal Cooke Health Care Center, also testified that he was at work part of the time his son was in police custody. He left the boy's Spanish-speaking grandmother, Natividad Colon, at the precinct with him.

Under state law, youths under 16 must have a parent or guardian present during questioning.

Colon, testifying earlier Thursday through an interpreter, said she did not understand what the detectives were saying when they questioned her grandson in English.

The father testified that by the time he returned to the precinct at 4:30 p.m. on April 20, police said his son had already confessed to participating in the violent two-hour rampage.

''I asked to talk to Raymond,'' Santana testified. ''The officer said 'I got his confession all ready. You can talk to him.'''

Santana said his son ''didn't act like Raymond. He was weak from hunger and sleepy.''

The father said police decided to ''redo'' the confession at 10:10 p.m. in his presence, asking the youth about ''a pipe and a knife. They were asking about names. They were screaming names into the room.''

Throughout the hours of questioning, Santana claimed, his son was never read his Miranda rights.

However, the father was forced to back down during cross-examination when Lederer wheeled out a video cassette recorder and played the taped confession. On it, the youth tells Lederer he was read his rights.

MONTREAL (AUG. 2) UPI - The Canadian government cancelled a $1.19 million land deal, sending negotiations to end standoffs between Mohawks and Quebec authorities ''back to square one,'' a spokesman for a local council involved in the dispute said Thursday.

The Canadian government had hoped to use 67 acres of land in Oka, which includes 14 homes and forest, along with another 30 acres purchased from a developer last week, as a bargaining chip with Mohawks to end the three-week standoffs.

But negotiations stalled after the Oka council voted Tuesday night to refuse to sell the land it owns until the Mohawks remove their barricades on a planned golf course extension, Oka council spokesman Josee Beliveau said.

In the wake of that decision, the federal government called off the deal, Beliveau said.

''We're back to square one,'' Beliveau said. ''We're coming back to where we were this week last time.''

There was no immediate reaction from the Canadian government on Beliveau's claim the land deal had been cancelled.

A policeman was killed July 11 in an abortive police raid on a roadblock erected four months ago by Kanesatake Mohawks on a golf course expansion site on Oka land they claim is theirs.

A Mohawk spokesman, meanwhile, said Mohawks are still waiting for Quebec's Indian Affairs Department to comment on their proposal to set down three conditions before further negotiations are held to settle the standoffs at Kanesatake and Kahnawake Indian reserves near the U.S.-Canada border.

The conditions include installing members of the International Federation of Human Rights as independent observers and free movement of food, supplies and people across the barricades.

On Wednesday night, angry Oka residents also joined a 12,000-strong march at Chateauguay, Quebec, the site of a secondary standoff at the Kahnawake reserve by Mohawks who support the Kanesatake land dispute.

Residents reportedly marched 3 miles to Chateauguay City Hall, chanting ''we want our bridge'' and ''bring in the army'' to protest the Mohawk block of the Mercier bridge connecting Montreal to Quebec, where many residents work.

Many of the Mohawk Warriors guarding the barricade at Kanesatake and the bridge barricade are members of the Warriors Society from the troubled St. Regis Indian reserve that straddles the U.S.-Canada border near Massena, N.Y.

The St. Regis Mohawk Warriors sided with pro-gambling forces and against traditional chiefs when pro and anti-gambling factions clashed in May, leaving two dead. Canadian government officials have accused the Warriors of being criminals who are holding the reserves hostage.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - The Bush administration Thursday opposed a bill to require the recycling of newspapers, old tires and used motor oil, saying the proposal's regulations would be ''cumbersome and intrusive.''

The legislation, introduced by Sen. Timothy Wirth, D-Colo., would set up a system of financial credits as part of a government program to enforce the bill's recycling goals.

Wirth said, ''The scrapping of old tires, the dumping of used motor oil and the dreadful glut of old newspapers convince me that we must develop market mechanisms to stimulate recycling of these products.''

''We've got to get these products out of the landfill and into the living room as new products and new supplies of energy,'' he said.

But B. Reid Detchon, a top Energy Department official, told a Senate Energy and Natural Resources subcommittee the administration opposes the Wirth plan.

''We applaud the intent'' of the measure, Detchon said. ''However, the approach proposed is so cumbersome and intrusive into the marketplace that we must oppose the bill.''

Detchon said Energy Department officials ''recoil at the prospect of creating the kind of bureaucratic infrastructure that would be required to monitor compliance'' with the bill, which sets up a series of credits for recycling efforts.

Detchon added, ''We believe that a preferable solution is to develop technologies that can make reuse of these materials more economically attractive and thus achieve the same goal at less cost and disruption to the economy.''

Wirth's bill would establish a system of recycling credits, approved by the EPA. The value of the credits would be set by the market.

An oil recycler, for example, would receive credits based on the amount of oil reprocessed. He could sell the credits to other oil producers or importers who otherwise would not comply with levels of recycling established in the measure.

Wirth said that reusing scrap tires would save 69 million barrels of oil every year. Another 10 million barrels of used motor oil is improperly discarded when most of it could be reprocessed and reused, he said.

''And we intuitively know that more old newspapers can be used to produce our newsprint and other paper products,'' Wirth said. ''It has been said that the United States is the Saudi Arabia of wastepaper.''

The subcommittee also heard from Sonny Bono, the mayor of Palm Springs, Calif. Bono, who gained fame in the 1960s singing duo Sonny and Cher, said Palm Springs has made major strides in using scrap tires in asphalt paving products.

(AUG. 2) UPI - Arab League ministers are meeting for an emergency session in Cairo this morning to formulate a collective response to Iraq's military invasion of Kuwait. Officials from the occupied country have NOT only asked the United States for military intervention, but are asking the Arab League to inaugurate a joint defense pact against Iraq.

The European Community responded to the invasion by condemning Iraq and calling for it to immediately withdraw its troops from Kuwait. The 12-nation group said the invasion ''constitutes a breach of the United Nations Charter'' and warned that E-C nations may consider ''further initiatives'' unless the matter is resolved.

For the first time in its 71-year history, the American Legion is suing the federal government on grounds it failed to complete a congressionally ordered study about the effects of Agent Orange. A spokesman says the suit asks the government be forced to finish a wide-scale study of the toxic chemical's impact on Vietnam War veterans.

The barge responsible for spilling most of the 500-thousand gallons of oil in Galveston Bay is slowly being refloated today. Coast Guard officials in Texas say they are proceeding with extra caution to keep the barge from splitting in two and spilling the estimated 10-thousand gallons of oil remaining aboard.

Survivors of a Greek freighter that sank yesterday in high seas triggered by Hurricane Bertha are on their way to Maine aboard a Soviet fishing ship that came to their rescue. The 21 survivors include the ship's captain. Six other sailors died. The Soviet ship is expected to arrive in Portland tomorrow.

WICHITA, KS (AUG. 2) UPI - Learjet Inc. said Thursday it would add more than 200 jobs in engineering, engineering support, and tooling for new aircraft development programs at its Wichita plant.

President and chief executive officer Brian E. Barents said increasing the company's workforce results from the recent acquisition of Learjet by Bombardier Inc. of Montreal.

Bombardier bought Learjet, a subsidiary of Integrated Resources Inc. of New York, for $75 million in cash.

Barents did not identify the company's new programs, but said they involve product improvement and product development.

Learjet has hired 50 engineering personnel, Barents said, and will add 100 employees in engineering and 60 in tooling.

The company's Wichita employment is 2,058. Total company employment, in Tucson, Ariz., and at 15 air bases in the United States and abroad, is 2,507.

Learjet produces light business jets and a medium jet. The company also is a subcontractor for commercial and government programs.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - The presidential order freezing Iraqi assets imposes a sweeping trade embargo on imports of oil and other goods from the Persian Gulf nation and bans nearly all U.S. exports, a government official said Thursday.

Iraq is the sixth largest supplier of oil to the United States, providing an estimated 450,000 to 500,000 barrels per day - accounting for 8 percent of all imports in the first five months of the year, government figures show.

In 1989, Iraq provided 6 percent of U.S. oil imports.

''Imports of goods and services would be blocked'' by the order issued in retaliation for the Iraqi's lightning invasion of Kuwait, the senior Treasury Department official told reporters.

Although he declined to comment on the effects of blocking the Iraqi oil imports to the United States, the official insisted, ''Our goal is not to injure U.S. parties or other innocent parties.''

The Treasury official, who requested anonymity, was not able to detail the amount of Iraqi assets, such as bank accounts, securities accounts and real estate, that will be frozen by the order but said, ''I believe it's significant.''

As for the freezing of Kuwaiti government assets in the United States, the Treasury official said that action was taken at the request of the Kuwaiti government to protect it from possible Iraqi seizure.

The official also said a decision has yet to be reached on whether the trade embargo applies to Iraqi imports under contract and in transit, such as oil loaded on tankers steaming toward the United States.

He also said he was unable to determine whether the ban would apply to any seized Kuwaiti oil that Iraq tries to export.

Norman Robertson, chief economist at Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh, said it is difficult to determine how the trade embargo - especially the oil ban - will affect America's weakening economy and inflation.

''It all depends on the extent to which that shortfall is made up by other areas,'' Robertson said. ''If we import oil from Saudi Arabia, Venezuela, Mexico, Malaysia or whatever country it shouldn't have a material impact.''

But ''if the shortfall couldn't be made up, the consequence would be one of pushing prices higher,'' Robertson said.

Robert Dederick, chief economist at Northern Trust in Chicago, agreed, saying: ''The key thing is not the availability of oil. The key thing is the price that's going to have to be paid.''

''We're not vulnerable to any supply shock, it's a price shock that we're vulnerable to,'' Dederick said.

Covered on the ban of U.S. exports to Iraq are all goods with the exception of published material, relief supplies and ''medical supplies intended strictly for medical purposes,'' the presidential order said.

It also prohibits anyone in the United States from acting as an agent for Iraqi imports, and for arranging exports to the country.

The penalty for criminal violation of the ban includes prison sentences of up to 12 years, fines of up to $500,000 for corporations, and up to $250,000 for individuals, the official said.

There are also stiff civil penalties.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - Members of Congress who have been pressing President Bush for sanctions against Iraq had a message for the administration Thursday after the invasion of Kuwait: We told you so.

The administration as late as Wednesday sought to stem a congressional tide supporting trade sanctions against Iraq as a way of ending what some members called the appeasement of the ''new Hitler,'' Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

Bush's decision Thursday to suspend all trade with Iraq after the invasion was welcomed by Democrats and Republicans and incorporated into a sanctions bill approved 416-0 by the House. A Senate resolution headed for floor action later in the day also supported the president's sanctions.

But members of both parties asked why the administration did not act after Iraq massed troops on the Kuwaiti border, used poison gas against its citizens and compiled a human rights record the State Department has called ''abysmal.''

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said he thought it was ''very foolish'' to claim sanctions would have deterred Iraq, but others in Congress suggested the penalties under consideration - such as cutting off the credit guarantees that Iraq uses to buy U.S. farm goods - would have helped.

''Our inaction helped make him feel he could get away with this kind of thing. He's moving troops up and we're talking nicey-nicey with him,'' said Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., a sponsor of sanctions legislation.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., Foreign Relations Committee chairman, called the invastion of Kuwait ''no surprise'' and added, ''If the administration had acted earlier, Hussein may have gotten the message that his lawlessness would not be tolerated.''

Rep. Howard Berman, D-Calif., also a sponsor of a sanctions bill, went further, saying that if sanctions had been imposed after Iraq used chemical weapons two years ago, ''Hussein would not today be occupying

Kuwait City.''

''The president tragically misunderstood the nature of this regime,'' he said.

Republicans were less anxious to criticize Bush and focused their ire on what D'Amato referred to as ''those wimps'' at the State Department.

''I hate to throw rocks at the administration,'' said Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., who proposed a bill in May seeking to cut off sales and credits to Iraq. ''But if I saw this problem two months ago, why didn't the State Department?''

Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., also called the Iraqi invasion ''the logical consequence of State Department appeasement.''

Members of both parties said the flaw in U.S. policy could be traced back to the Persian Gulf war, when American officials tilted toward Iraq, which began the conflict, as a buffer against the Islamic fundamentalist regime in Iran.

They also agreed that the next step for the United States was to rally support among U.S. allies for economic sanctions and diplomatic action.

Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., calling Hussein a ''tinhorn son of a bitch,'' sought to require Bush to impose an economic embargo against any country that traded with Iraq, but was rebuffed by the Ways and Means Committee. Instead, the House bill only gives Bush the flexibility to impose such sanctions.

Although D'Amato said the president should consider a blockade of Iraq, members of Congress generally reacted cautiously to using military force unless Iraq were take other action such as attacking Saudi Arabia.

''I think any talk of military is premature,'' said Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich., ranking Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

House Republicans also argued the invasion shows the need for continued high levels of defense spending, while representatives of oil states said it showed the need for the United States to encourage domestic oil production.

Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, whose state produces 25 percent of domestic supply, said the United States is Iraq's largest customer at 600,000 barrels a day and wondered how that oil would be replaced.

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., predicted that if the United States were to intervene to assure oil supplies, ''just see how fast the environmental crowd around this Congress will disappear.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - After seizing the National Bank of Washington, federal regulators undertook Thursday the difficult task of trying to sell - rather than liquidate - the 181-year-old institution.

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency took over the National Bank of Washington late Wednesday and appointed William S. Ogden conservator. Earlier, Washington Bancorporation, the bank's holding company, filed for Chapter 11 federal bankruptcy protection from creditors after failing to find investors to bail out the money-losing company.

Ogden took office Thursday morning in a ''smooth transition,'' bank officials said.

Ogden, 62, retired as vice chairman and chief financial officer of Chase Manhattan Bank in 1983. From 1984 to 1987, he served as chairman and chief executive officer of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co.

Bank Comptroller Robert Creighton said Ogden ''is trying to sell the bank rather than liquidate it.'' It is too early to report on the status of his efforts, Creighton added.

''Regulators are anxious to see the bank in the hands of an institution with adequate capital. They do not want to liquidate, they want to sell it '' he said.

But unloading the bank is going to be difficult, as any potential buyer will likely ask regulators for guarantees against legal problems and the possible deterioration of the institution's assets, said John Bailey, analyst with the local brokerage Ferris, Baker, Watts Inc.

Bailey said that at the bank ''things are probably worse than declared, and the real estate slump means that more loans will go bad.''

Washington Bancorporation is ''gone, dead, evaporated, since its main asset, the bank, has been seized,'' the analyst said. ''It is very unlikely that they will come out of Chapter 11.''

A bank liquidation would be costlier to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. the agency in charge of insuring bank deposits. The FDIC has seen its insurance funds diminish in the wake of numerous bank liquidations in 1989.

According to Creighton and other bank officials, activity was normal Thursday at the institution, which, with $1.6 billion in assets as of June 30, is one of the largest in the District of Columbia area.

''Activity is pretty normal, with not much traffic at the branches, only slightly more than usual,'' Creighton said. ''There is not much of a deposit outflow as the seizure came on the heels of the bankruptcy petition, easing the fears of depositors.''

In a statement, the comptroller's office said deposits at the bank remain insured up to $100,000 per customer.

John Mason, chairman and chief executive officer of both Washington Bancorporation and the bank subsidiary, and Michael Ryan, president of both, resigned their positions at the bank but kept them at the parent, said Pamela Calloway, an officer in the bank's legal department.

Mason and Ryan, as well as all other senior managers and employees, are collaborating with Ogden in trying to sell the bank, she said.

Calloway said the bank, which laid off 150 employees two weeks ago after Washington Bancorporation declared $86 million in losses for the first six months of 1990, has no plans for additional layoffs.

On Wednesday, Washington Bancorporation said that, ''after extensive study '' it decided National Bank of Washington ''will be unable to restore its capital to required levels.''

Mason, who took charge of Washington Bancorporation May 30, noted the bankruptcy petition did not include the National Bank of Washington or other subsidiaries, such as Washington Bank in Virginia and Washington Bank in Maryland.

(AUG. 2) UPI - U-S Secretary of State Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze agreed today on a break-through formula to end 12 years of war in Afghanistan. The plan calls for a transfer of power from the Soviet-backed Afghan government to an interim authority while the country holds open, U-N-sponsored elections.

A third New York City congressman will soon be facing charges. Democratic Representative Floyd Flake says authorities plan to indict him on tax violation charges stemming from the church he heads in Queens, New York. Flake denies charges that he siphoned federal funds for a church housing project for his personal use.

81-year-old mercy killer Roswell Gilbert says that if given the choice again he would NOT shoot to death his ailing wife. Gilbert served five-and-a-half years of a life prison term for the 1985 slaying before being freed today from a Lake Butler, Florida, prison. Gilbert was given clemency because of his poor health.

New York City police today charged a homeless man with the killing of a television advertising executive who worked on a dial-in T-V show dealing with unsolved crimes. John Reisenbach was shot to death Monday night as he talked on a pay phone near his Greenwich Village home. Police arrested William Emerson after receiving tips from ''street people.''

Officials at New York's Kennedy airport are reporting yet another incident involving an Avianca jetliner that was low on fuel. Air traffic controllers handling the Tuesday night flight declared an emergency after the pilot reported having only 15 minutes of fuel. The jet was rushed into priority landing.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 3) UPI - The White House is using trumped-up figures as a gimmick to force cuts in the new farm policy law, Senate Agriculture chairman Patrick Leahy said Thursday as the battle over the bill entered a new phase.

House and Senate negotiators are expected to meet after Labor Day to write a final version of the bill. The White House has threatened to veto the bill unless costs are cut substantially and a dozen policy changes made.

The conferees will have the authority to act on many of the demands, if they wish, because the House and Senate bills contain different language on them. A key House Republican, for instance, says he will try to blunt a move to raise crop loan rates.

At the moment, the bills would spend about $54 billion or $55 billion on farm subsidies over five years. That is the same amount as if there were no change in current law.

''Our budget problems are real ... but we need to be honest with each other,'' Leahy, D-Vt., said in a luncheon speech to lobbyists. ''The administration should stop using the budget as a bogyman.

''The numbers that are being suggested - anywhere from $8 billion to $20 billion over five years - are trumped up.''

In his text, Leahy did not suggest the likely magnitude for budget cuts but called for ''fair numbers.'' He also suggested that if the farm bill was rewritten to ensure long-term savings, there should be a commitment that agriculture would not be asked for additional cuts in later years.

In the speech, Leahy blasted the adminstration as a ''bench warmer'' and a Johnny-come-lately to the farm bill debate and said it ''cooked up new numbers'' on the cost of the bill as a ploy to win policy changes.

However, the administration is not alone in saying there must be cuts. House budget leaders have called for a $8.6 billion cut in the farm program.

Leahy has declined to say how budget cuts might be implemented. There have been predictions by House members that Congress will adopt a ''triple base'' approach that would reduce the number of acres eligible for crop payments but allow farmers latitude in what they grow on them.

Rep. Edward Madigan, R-Ill., the GOP leader on the House Agriculture Committee, said he hoped the House-Senate negotiators would remove provisions that could hamper the competitiveness of U.S. commodities.

''I'm hoping we'll move it (the bill) more toward'' the market-oriented policies now in effect, Madigan said.

Madigan won House passage of an amendment that would restore some of the government's authority to unilaterally reduce loan rates.

House Agriculture chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, said he believed the Senate would accept a House proposal to limit farmers to receiving a maximum of $200,000 in farm program payments. The limit now is $250,000.

De la Garza said the lower limit, which was proposed by Agriculture Committee members, could be viewed as a concession to reformers although the committee itself believed tighter payment rules were needed.

Leahy's complaint about administration tactics, including the veto threat issued just before Senate debate opened, also has been voiced by Republicans.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said the White House comments ''were astounding'' and ''not helpful to me.'' Lugar played a pivotal role in the Senate decision to freeze commodity support rates, rather than raise them.

UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 2) UPI - Kuwait called Thursday for worldwide pressure on Iraq to end its "total occupation" of the small Persian Gulf nation after the U.N. Security Council condemned the invasion and demanded withdrawal of Iraqi troops.

Iraqi forces, backed by tanks and artillery, swiftly occupied Kuwait at dawn Thursday after failed negotiations to resolve disputes over oil production and the border of the Gulf neighbors.

The Iraqi action was condemned by the 15-nation Security Council, which held nightlong consultations and a formal meeting hours after the invasion to adopt a resolution that condemned Iraq and demanded its troops withdraw "immediately and unconditionally."

"It was a total occupation of Kuwaiti territory," Kuwait's U.N. permanent representative Mohammad Abulhassan said. "The world community should exert pressure on Iraq to halt its invasion and withdraw" according terms of the resolution.

Abulhassan said the next step should be to apply sanctions against Iraq, but he proposed to give that country "ample time" to meet the Security Council's demands before other measures should be imposed.

Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar warned that the Iraqi invasion will have the "gravest consequence" to the United Nations. And he urged member states to honor the U.N. Charter by seeking peaceful settlement to their disputes. The Security Council planned no further meeting on the events in the Persian Gulf Thursday.

Abulhassan told the Security Council meeting that his government is "bitter and embarrassed" Kuwait was invaded by a "friendly nation." He called on the Security Council to halt Iraq's military action, warning if Iraq cannot be stopped, "No country will be safe after this." "It is appalling indeed that the invasion came from an Arab country with which we have a number of ties that go back into history," Abulhassan said.

Despite condemnation by all members of the council, Iraqi deputy permanent representative to the world body, Sabah Talat Kadrat, said his government rejected the council's action and called the military action an "internal matter."

Kadrat said Iraqi troops were sent to Kuwait at the request of a "free, provisional government" in Kuwait to provide security in that country. "Iraq will withdraw its troops as soon as order is restored ... it is a matter of days or weeks," he said.

The council's 15 members were summoned to meet at U.N. headquarters at 2 a.m. Thursday after Iraqi forces crossed into Kuwait when talks between the two nations broke down over oil and border disputes.

The United States and Kuwait immediately requested the council's president Romania's U.N. Ambassador Aurel Dragos Munteanu, to convene the body and diplomats drafted the resolution to condemn Iraq.

The U.S. permanent representative, Ambassador Thomas Pickering, told the council that Iraqi troops professionally carried out their carefully planned attack of the neighboring country. He called the attack "completely unprovoked."

But he said Iraq made a "serious mistake" by invading before setting up the so-called provisional government in Kuwait. He said the Emir of Kuwait and members of the government were all safe and in control of the government. "The United States stays shoulder to shoulder with Kuwait," Pickering said.

Pickering told reporters earlier the call for Iraq to withdraw its troops will be the first action by the council. "It appears that there has been a complete takeover" by Iraqi troops of the government in Kuwait, Pickering said.

The council's five permanent members - the United States, the Soviet Union China, France and Britain - were all present in private discussions with Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

Attending the meeting also are the ten non-permanent members: Colombia, Canada, Finland, Malaysia, Ethiopia, the Ivory Coast, Cuba, Yemen, Zaire, and Romania.

The Security Council is the highest political body in the United Nations, charged with maintaining peace and security around the world. Its decisions are binding.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) UPI - Iraq's invasion of neighboring oil-producer Kuwait propelled the dollar higher in heavy New York trading Thursday, particularly against the Japanese yen, although it retraced from its earlier highs.

Currency traders said the dollar rallied for several reasons. Many bought the U.S. currency as a safe-haven amid turmoil, and as the pricing unit for oil, whose market value surged. Dollars also were bought to cover short positions - trading commitments made earlier to sell them.

But the New York market mainly witnessed the dollar's decline from the lofty levels of 1.62 German marks and 151.50 Japanese yen to which the U.S. unit rocketed on first news of the Iraqi incursion.

''I think that the majority of the dollar move occurred in the Asian-European market with the invasion of Kuwait by Iraq,'' said Charles Spence, a currency vice with First Interstate Bank Corp. in Los Angeles.

Speculators bought the dollar on expectations Japan, reliant on imported oil, would need the currencym, but ''got ahead of themselves'' and took profits when they saw the sharp downturn in U.S. financial markets.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 1.5908 German marks, ahead from 1.5875 marks Wednesday, and at 149.25 Japanese yen, up from 147.20.

Trader Radhika Rajan of Manufacturers Hanover said the dollar lost its upward momentum on news the Soviet Union had joined the United States in demanding that Iraq pull out of Kuwait.

''Mostly it was a realization that this is not likely to be a major conflict involving the superpowers,'' Rajan explained, ''so therefore there is no real reason to seek safe-haven.''

She said the dollar was additionally constrained by market caution ahead of a critical U.S. government employment report due out in the morning, which could confirm market perceptions of a badly weakening economy.

Commented another New York trader, ''The biggest problem now is getting past these employment numbers in the morning.''

Other New York dollar rates: 1.3520 Swiss francs, off from 1.3535; 5.3300 French francs, up from 5.3195; and 1,164.50 Italian lire, up from 1,162.25.

The British pound slipped to $1.8540 from $1.8555.

In Europe, the dollar advanced in heavy trading against all main currencies except the British pound sterling, driven by Iraq's military move.

Dealers said the dollar surged in Continental markets on safe-haven purchases as the world's major reserve currency despite recent dollar weakness.

''It's been a very hair-raising day because of problems in Middle East,'' said Alan Chase, head of strategic dealing at National Westminster in London.

''The dollar was trading in very wide ranges with lots of volatility,'' he said. But dealing stabilized later as traders took a ''wait-and-see'' attitude towards the Middle East situation.

The dollar strengthened in Frankfurt at 1.6035 German marks against 1.5920 at Wednesday's close, and also rose in Zurich to 1.3650 Swiss francs from 1.3525 Tuesday, the last trading session before a holiday Wednesday.

The U.S. unit moved ahead in Paris and Brussels, to 5.4270 French francs from 5.3395 the previous day, and 32.99 Belgian francs against 32.71.

In Milan, the dollar jumped 20 points against the Italian lire to close at 1,185.20 lire from Wednesday's close of 1,165.35.

Only sterling defied the trend. The dollar closed lower in London at $1.8498 against $1.8450 after heavy profit-taking of its gains.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar advanced sharply against the yen, closing at 148.90 yen, up 2.25 yen from Wednesday's close of 146.65 yen.

''Market players jumped to safety,'' said Sumitomo Bank director Tetsuya Taura.

In Zurich, gold moved up $8 to close at $380.50 an ounce from $372.50, helped by widespread buying as an inflation and currency hedge. Gold was also up in London, closing at $378.75 an ounce against $373.25.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $377.50 an ounce, up $4 from $373.50 Wednesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled gold at $376.80 an ounce, up $3.50 from $373.30.

Silver was also stronger, closing in Zurich at $4.90 an ounce against $4.85. It rose in London to $4.87 an ounce against $4.84.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.86 an ounce, slightly ahead from $4.845 the day before. Comex silver ended at $4.835 an ounce, up from $4.805.

PORT-OF-SPAIN, TRINIDAD (AUG. 2) UPI - The government of Trinidad and Tobago said Thursday it struck no deals to get Moslem rebels to surrender unconditionally from their six-day standoff and that the hostage takers will be brought to trial.

"The government tried to whittle away at the nerve of the captors and yesterday (Wednesday) they surrendered unconditionally," Chief Government Public Relations Officer Gregory Shaw told reporters.

Police and troops arrested 111 rebels of the Libyan-backed Jamaat Muslimeen Wednesday after the insurgents released all their hostages from the state-owned television station and the Parliament building.

The release of all hostages brought to a virtual end the nationwide crisis that erupted Friday when the rebels stormed Parliament and the television station, taking captive Prime Minister Arthur Robinson and some 45 others, demanding Robinson resign and calling for new elections.

"Agreements were signed by the prime minister stating that he would have resigned and that the group would have been given amnesty, but this was done under duress, at gunpoint," Shaw said. "There is no question of amnesty. Any agreement that was signed is totally invalid."

Shaw said charges of treason, murder, and kidnapping will brought against members of the group, led by Yasin Abu Bakr, who was arrested Wednesday after surrendering to army troops. The charges the group's members will face carry a penalty in Trinidad of death by hanging. There have been no executions in Trinidad since 1975.

Shaw said according to the official casualties list 30 people have been killed and 150 people wounded, but added that this figure is expected to rise as bodies are collected and counted. Many rotting corpses still lie on the downtown streets of the capital, which are in disarray after stores were looted and gutted by fire.

Other reports said as many as 300 people were reportedly killed in the coup attempt, among them Parliamentary Secretary Leo Desvignes, who died in a hospital Wednesday from bullet wounds.

Army troops sealed off a 12-block area around the national television station Wednesday to search for explosives believed to still be in the area. Some 3,000 people were evacuated from the surrounding streets. The government made an announcement on state-owned radio warning people to leave to area around the television station for their own safety.

Army Major Dave Williams said one of the rebels defused explosives packed in trucks near the television station, just after they abandoned their hold on the station Tuesday and freed the hostages.

He said the army is also searching for arms cachets that they suspect could be stashed somewhere in the area and explosives that may have been planted inside the television studios.

"These are more sophisticated weapons than we have and not the kind we see and use in Trinidad and Tobago, but we don't know their origin," Williams said.

He said they didn't know whether Abu Bakr has ties to Moslems in the United States, but said "Bakr has said openly he has ties with Libya and other radical organizations."

Rebel leader Abu Bakr and 68 others surrendered about 1 p.m. Wednesday after releasing 29 hostages from the television station. Abu Bakr rested his AK-47 rifle on the ground and bowed to the east, apparently toward the Moslem holy city of Mecca.

The rebels inside the Parliament building, including Abu Bakr's second-in-command, Balil Abdulah, surrendered a few hours later and released the 17 remaining hostages, including Cabinet members, and legislators. Robinson, 63, had been released Tuesday and taken by ambulance from Parliament suffering from bullet wounds in the legs.

Shaw announced that the 24-hour curfew in Tobago had been relaxed and will now be in effect only from dusk to dawn. He said a similar measure will likely be applied Friday on the island of Trinidad. Shaw said arrangements have been made with foreign governments, including the United States, to fly in emergency food and medical supplies.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) UPI - Stock prices tumbled Thursday in the heaviest trading since the aftermath of the October "mini-crash" in a sell-off triggered by Iraq's overnight invasion of Kuwait and the resulting surge in oil prices.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 5.94 Wednesday, sank 34.66 to close at 2864.60.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 2.02 to 192.36 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 4.04 to 351.48. The price of an average NYSE share slumped 36 cents.

Declines pummeled advances 1,209-458 among the 2,016 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Big Board volume totaled 253,090,000 shares, compared with 176,810,000 shares traded Wednesday.

Turnover was the heaviest since the 416.3 million shares that changed hands Monday, Oct. 16, 1989, in the market's 90-point rebound from a 190-point plunge the Friday before.

Iraq's troops invaded Kuwait before dawn Thursday and seized control of its smaller neighbor hours after talks between the two Persian Gulf nations collapsed over Iraq's oil and territorial claims.

Kuwait's ambassador to the United States said Kuwait's ruler fled to Saudi Arabia and confirmed that Iraq "is commanding the whole country with their fingers." He said his country sought U.S. military assistance but President Bush said he was not considering military intervention.

The news sent oil prices soaring. Futures for September delivery jumped $1.46 to $23.00 on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The U.S. dollar rallied, since it is used to make oil purchases. Gold, which investors flock to in times of turmoil, rose sharply but Treasury bonds tumbled since higher oil prices have inflationary implications.

It was the inflationary implications that sent stocks into a sell-off, but some analysts said the sharp rise in oil prices in a weak economy may speed an interest rate cut by the Federal Reserve.

"If anything, this will hasten the easing process by the Fed," said Don Hays, director of investment strategy at Wheat, First Securities Inc. in Richmond, Va.

"Recession worries have more to do with it than anything else," he said. "Some think if consumers have to spend additional money on oil that it will rob the consumer sector, they'll be able to spend less on other things. I'm confident the Fed will move to ease interest rates."

On the trading floor, oil issues dominated the action. Chevron was the most active issue, up 1 5/8 to 80 3/8. Texaco followed, rallying 2 5/8 to 66 5/8. Boeing was third, tumbling 2 1/4 to 53 1/2.

Also active was Exxon, up 1 1/8 to 53 1/4, and oil-services company Global Marine, which gained 1/8 to 5 1/4.

Among the other blue chips, Du Pont, parent of Conoco, rose 3/8 to 41 3/8 and USX, the parent of Marathon Oil, added 1/2 to 34 5/8. AT&T rose 1/4 to 37, IBM fell 1 7/8 to 109 3/4, General Electric fell 1 3/8 to 70 5/8, Merck sank 2 5/8 to 87 1/4, consumer giant Philip Morris lost 1 1/4 to 46 5/8, and General Motors tumbled 1 3/8 to 43 7/8.

In the gold sector, Battle Mountain Gold rose 1/4 to 12 1/8, Homestake Mining rose 1/4 to 20 1/8 and ASA Ltd. added 3/4 to 49 1/2, trimming sharper early gains.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 302,714,960 shares, compared with 216,027,550 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices closed broadly lower in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index fell 1.15 to 352.15. Declines pounded advances 409-199 among the 821 issues traded. The price of an average share eased four cents. Composite volume totaled 23,561,700 shares, compared with 12,913,200 shares traded Wednesday. Echo Bay Mines led the Amex issues, up 1/2 to 13 3/4.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index plunged 7.01 to 428.90.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 2) UPI - With the administration pressing for changes in the bill, the House opened debate Thursday on a measure to reverse several Supreme Court decisions that narrowed civil rights in employment discrimination cases.

''Without amendments, we can pretty much expect this bill to be dead on arrival at the White House,'' said Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., warning of a veto by President Bush.

Solomon charged that the Democratic leadership ''wants to posture rather than get a bill'' that can be signed.

Republican opponents of the bill urged adoption of a subsitute amendment they said would limit damages in discrimination cases and eliminate the threat of job quotas.

Arguing for the original measure, Rep. Alan Wheat, D-Mo., said the bill is ''the single most important civil rights legislation since the 1964 Civil Rights Act.''

The bill is similar to one that passed the Senate two weeks ago over administration opposition.

The legislation would reverse or modify a series of 1989 Supreme Court rulings that made it more difficult for women or minorities to prove job discrimination, and also restricted the remedies available to them.

The administration, in threatening a veto, has complained that the measure would lead to job quotas and to a wave of lawsuits.

Backers of the bill have denounced both concerns as unfounded. ''There is no reference to quotas in this bill,'' said Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich. ''As a matter of fact we have gone out of our way to continue a Supreme Court decision that ... had no quota result whatsoever.''

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said of the Supreme Court rulings last year, ''In a few short months ... the accomplishments of years of strufg'e have been placed in grave jeopardy'' by the court, which ''has veered away'' from congressional intent.

Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., said the court ''basically sent two messages. First, that it's o.k. to discriminate if you have a good lawyer. Second, it's o.k. to discriminate if it's bad for business. Today we vote on whether we go back or we go forward.''

Rep. James Sensenbrenner, R-Wis., opposing the Democrats' measure, said ''This bill could do a lot of good for a lot of people. It could meaningfully address discrimination in our society. But it's going to be vetoed. It's going to be vetoed because the ugly head of partisantship has gotten into the consideration of this legislation.''

Sensenbrenner said the Democrats' bill would ''turn employment discrimination cases into a plaintiffs lawyers full employment act. It encourages lititation, and it makes quotas as the only effective defense to a law suit that might be brought either with merit or without merit.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 3) UPI - Researchers tinkering with a new breed of designer AIDS drugs reported Thursday they may have found a way to make such compounds more stable and better absorbed by the body.

In a study published in the journal Science, a team from Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago, Ill., said it has improved on a recently developed class of promising AIDS drugs called protease blockers.

The compounds unveiled by Abbott and many other leading drug firms in recent months would attack the AIDS virus on a different front than the only government-approved AIDS drug, zidovudine, or AZT.

AZT and related drugs, which causes serious side effects like anemia or inflammation of the pancereas in some patients, attack reverse transcriptase, an enzyme crucial to the early stage of AIDS viral reproduction. Protease blockers, which in the test tube show promise of being more powerful and thereby less toxic than AZT-type drugs, target protease, an enzyme the AIDS-causing human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, needs to form new, infectious virus particles.

One possible problem with protease blockers is their similarity to peptides, which are tiny protein fragments that are relatively unstable and difficult for the body to absorb through the stomach.

Now, John Erickson and his colleagues at Abbott think they have managed to get around that potential obstacle to effective therapy. Based on complex X-ray studies of protease's structure, the Abbott team designed a protease blocker that had a symmetrical shape that makes it less like a peptide, and should also enhance its ability to ''lock'' into the active part of protease and inhibit enzyme activity.

The new compound, called A-74704, was able to prevent HIV replication in cells grown in the test tube at concentrations 1-500th the level that would be toxic to the cells.

Erickson said that potency is comparable to protease blockers under development by other firms.

So far, no protease blockers have been tested in humans. But Erickson said he expects such trials to begin ''in the next year or so.''

''Our evidence indicates these compounds are going to be not very toxic at all,'' said Erickson, who is the firm's director of anti-viral research. ''I haven't heard any suggestions that any major stumbling blocks have appeared (in protease blocker research). I still think it is a good target.''

Preliminary results of studies in laboratory animals show the new Abbott compound appears to have ''enhanced metabolic stability'' compared to earlier versions of protease blockers, the researcher said.

As for cost, Erickson said the symmetrical nature of the A-74704 should make it less costly to produce than earlier protease blockers since that shape cuts the number of steps in its chemcial synthesis.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) UPI - Assets of the nation's 521 money market mutual funds rose by $800.1 million to a record high of $395.42 billion in the week ended Wednesday, the Investment Company Institute reported Thursday. Average fund yields declined.

The Washington-based institute said the assets of broker-dealer funds increased $258.7 million to $161.01 billion and those of general purpose funds rose $541.5 million to $136.44 billion. Institutional funds' assets were virtually unchanged at $97.97 billion.

"Several consecutive weeks of solid inflows into money market funds brought their assets to the highest level ever," said Jacob Dreyer, vice president and chief economist at the institute.

"Recent increases in assets occurred despite a gradual easing of short-term rates and some steepening of the yield curve," Dreyer said. "Nonetheless, money market funds succeeded in maintaining their competitive yield relative to alternative short-term investment vehicles."

Mutual fund figures were revised back to July 4 to reflect eight newly reporting institutional funds with assets of $2.8 billion, the institute said.

On a revised basis, total assets for money market funds were $394.62 billion for July 25, $392.74 billion for July 18, $389.07 billion for July 11 and $385.56 billion for July 4.

The Investment Company Institute, a national association of the American investment company industry, reports money market funds' assets to the Federal Reserve each week.

The Donoghue Organization, of Holliston, Mass., said average seven-day simple yields were at 7.56 percent, down from 7.59 the previous week, and 30-day simple yields stood at 7.62 percent, down from 7.65. The average maturity of fund portfolios was unchanged at 44 days.

The Bank Rate Monitor, of North Palm Beach, Fla., gave average rates as follows: money market deposit accounts, 5.94 percent, down from 5.95; Super-Now accounts, 4.97 percent, down from 4.99; six-month certificates of deposit, 7.61 percent, down from 7.65; 1-year CDs, 7.72 percent, down from 7.77; 2 1/2-year CDs, 7.77 percent, down from 7.80; and five-year CDs 7.85 percent, down from 7.88 percent.

The average rate for a one-year, adjustable-rate mortgage was 8.32 percent down from 8.41 percent.

The average rate on a 15-year, fixed-rate mortgage fell in the latest week to 9.52 percent, against 9.62 percent, while the average rate for a 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage was 9.74 percent, down from 9.81 percent.

The average rate for a four-year automobile loan was unchanged at 12.26 percent.

NEW YORK (AUG. 2) UPI - The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that the basic U.S. money supply, narrowly defined under the name of M1, rose $0.1 billion in the latest reporting week. The broader aggregates M2 and M3 respectively fell and rose in the period. M2 decreased by $5.4 billion and M3 increased by $2.9 billion.

M1, which is made up of cash, checking accounts and NOW accounts - money that is available for immediate spending - rose to a seasonally adjusted average of $808.0 billion in the week ended July 23 from a revised $807.9 billion the week before. Over the latest 13 weeks, M1 averaged $807.9 billion, a 2.2 percent rate of increase from the previous 13 weeks, the Fed reported.

The broader measure of money, M2, averaged an estimated $3,268.5 billion in the latest week, down from a revised $3,273.9 billion. M2 includes M1, plus passbook savings, small time deposits, including money market deposit accounts, consumer money market mutual funds and certain other short-term assets.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 3) UPI - The Agriculture Department, in line with U.S. policy over Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, suspended Iraq from programs Thursday that offer cut-rate prices or export credits for agricultural exports.

Iraq bought nearly $800 million in U.S. farm exports in fiscal 1989. Sales slumped this year due to an Agriculture Department decision, as part of an investigation, to limit Iraq's access to export credit guarantees.

One official said Iraq had a small amount, perhaps $5 million, left in export credit guarantees. The Middle Eastern nation also was eligible to buy wheat flour, wheat, poultry and eggs at subsidized prices.

The Foreign Agricultural Service said it had suspended Iraq from the export credit guarantee program, the Export Enhancement program - the major U.S. export subsidy program - and the Targeted Export Assistance program, which is a market development program.

However, it said the credits would remain valid for goods shipped before Thursday.

The House and Senate, during debate on the new farm bill, voted last week to impose trade sanctions on Iraq. The House voted to cut off agricultural export credits although exceptions would be possible. The Senate approved a broader package that would end access to agricultural and Export-Import Bank credits and shut off military sales and export of technology with military uses.

The U.S. agricultural attache in Baghdad reported two weeks ago that Iraq was turning to other suppliers in reaction to the Agriculture Department decision. He forecast a complete loss of wheat, corn and barley sales in the 1990-1991 marketing year and a 50 percent loss of rice sales.

MIAMI (AUG. 2) UPI - Tropical Storm Bertha pounded Newfoundland with 70-mph winds Thursday as it dissipated over eastern Canada, while Tropical Storm Cesar formed off the African coast.

At least eight deaths were attributed to Bertha, which disabled a Greek cargo ship in the Atlantic off Massachusetts and triggered deadly riptides on Florida's Atlantic coast.

At noon Thursday, Bertha was centered near latitude 49.5 north, longitude 59.5 west, or just south of Harrington Harbour, Canada. By then it had turned into an extra-tropical storm with maximum sustained winds near 55 mph and the National Hurricane Center stopped monitoring it, forecaster Miles Lawrence said.

Meanwhile, Cesar was spinning west northwest across the Atlantic at about 13 mph with maximum sustained winds near 40 mph and was expected to approach the Americas in about four days, Lawrence said.

At 6 p.m. Cesar, the third tropical storm of the 1990 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, was centered at latitude 17.8 north, longitude 36.7 west or about 740 miles west of the westernmost of the Cape Verde Islands.

Maximum winds had diminished some 5 mph from earlier in the day, but Lawrence said he expected some strengthing.

''We have backed off on intensification, but there is nothing obvious to prevent significant strengthening during the next three days,'' he said. ''In fact, convection has increased markedly over the past couple of hours.''

Lawrence said Bertha was a large weather system and its slow movement allowed the hurricane to generate persistent waves and swells.

The 593-foot Greek freighter Corazon foundered in towering waves whipped up by Bertha. Six crew members were killed and 21 others abandoned ship and were rescued by three cargo ships.

Swells off the Florida coast punched through sand bars and triggered deadly riptides that were blamed for two drownings Tuesday.

Bertha formed as a tropical depression June 29 and grew to hurricane strength Saturday. It weakened Sunday to a tropical storm, then was re-born Monday. Bertha was the first hurricane of the Atlantic-Caribbean season, which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30.

Forecasters also were monitoring a strong tropical wave Thursday that produced heavy thunderstorms over the Lesser Antilles. A reconnaissance plane found that it had not developed the circulating winds of a tropical depression but forecasters said there was still a chance it could do so.

Arthur, the first tropical storm of the season, dissipated in the western Caribbean south of Jamaica June 29.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 3) UPI - First Dog Millie, whose lethargy in recent weeks prompted concern at the White House, is suffering from lead poisoning, President Bush disclosed Thursday.

Bush, in Aspen, Colo., to speak about the nation's defense, told reporters the 4 1/2-year-old springer spaniel is a casualty of renovation work at the executive mansion.

Asked about Millie's lethargy and medical tests, Bush disclosed her illness as ''lead poisoning,'' calling it a ''terrible thing.''

The president said the ailment was caused by Millie ''licking the paint, licking her toes. ... She's licking her feet, she ingested lead.''

There is no word on the recovery period, but Ana Perez, Barbara Bush's press secretary, said all are hopeful that Millie will be in top shape by Sept. 12.

(AUG. 2) UPI - The State Department says NONE of the nearly three-thousand Americans in Kuwait were injured in this morning's blitz of the Arab nation by its neighbor, Iraq. An official in Washington says, however, Iraqi troops took several U-S oil workers ''under protection.

The border conflict took place after several weeks of tension between the two OPEC members. Iraq has based its raid in part on what it says is Kuwait's UNreliability with respect to abiding by production quotas set by the oil cartel.

Moscow issued harsh criticism of the Iraqi action, and urged an immediate withdrawal. The Soviets also responded by suspending arms shipments to Iraq. Moscow is the primary supplier of military hardware to Iraq.

President Bush condemned the Iraqi invasion. Ironically, the blitz fell on the same day Bush chose to announce his endorsement of a 25 percent cut in U-S military forces. Bush pointed to the Iraqi situation as he said future American military forces should be mobile to meet emerging challenges.

The Senate has voted unanimously in favor of an oil spill bill that places the financial burden of a spill on the spiller. The legislation also calls for the government to direct cleanups of major spills. The House is expected to give final approval to the bill this week.

ENGLEWOOD, CO (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - U S WEST (NYSE:USW) said Friday that Jack A. MacAllister has announced plans to retire as chief executive officer, effective Dec. 31, 1990.

MacAllister, 63, will remain chairman of the board.

Richard D. McCormick, 50, president and chief operating officer, was elected by the company's board of directors as president and chief executive officer, also effective Dec. 31, 1990. McCormick will not be replaced as chief operating officer.

''U S WEST is in good hands with Dick McCormick,'' MacAllister said. ''He's proven to be a strong and capable leader in his four years as president of U S WEST. The board and I have complete confidence in his ability to continue the progress U S WEST has made. ''Dick is ready for this job, and with the strong management team behind him, he'll take U S WEST well beyond where we are today.''

McCormick said he looks forward to the challenges ahead. ''We're going to build our core and related businesses by continually improving products and services for our 25 million customers. We'll continue to work with state and federal regulators to improve our regulatory environments.

'' At the same time, we'll continue to be a major participant in the global marketplace. And we'll aggressively pursue new opportunities, while developing the activities we already have underway,'' he said.

''My confidence in the future is further strengthened by the exceptional people of U S WEST. Our talented and diverse workforce is the real key to meeting the challenges of the marketplace,'' he said.

McCormick began his telecommunications career as an engineer with AT&T in Kansas City, Mo. in 1961. He held a variety of positions with AT&T before moving to Northwestern Bell in 1969. He worked in South Dakota, North Dakota and Minnesota before being named president of Northwestern Bell in 1982. He moved to U S WEST in 1985 as executive vice president.

McCormick, a native of Ft. Dodge, Iowa, holds an electrical engineering degree from Iowa State University. He is a director of Norwest Corp., Super Valu Stores and the Principal Financial Group.

He and his wife, Mary Pat, have four children.

MacAllister was named to head U S WEST shortly after the break-up of the

In his 40-year career, which started as an installer/repairman in Council Bluffs, Iowa, MacAllister held a number of operations and executive positions at Northwestern Bell and AT&T.

MacAllister, who has been a strong advocate for educational excellence and active in seeking employment opportunities for the economically disadvantaged, said he plans to focus his energies on those issues and spending time with his family. ''I'm in good health and plan to enjoy myself,'' he said.

Looking back on his career, MacAllister said he was most proud of the company's progress in equal opportunity, its international direction and its moves to serve customers better. ''I'm particularly proud of the men and women of U S WEST, who have built the company into one of the best in the communications business,'' he said.

MacAllister is active in a variety of civic activities and serves on a number of community advisory committees and boards of directors. He is also a director of the First Interstate Bancorp, the St. Paul Companies, the National Park Foundation and Osage Initiatives, an employability center in Denver, which he helped found.

He serves as co-chairman of the Business Partnership of the Education Committee of the States and is co-chairman of Colorado Governor Roy Romer's Education Advisory Council. He is the honorary 1990 chairman of the Colorado PTA Association.

MacAllister is a graduate of the University of Iowa. He and his wife, Marilyn, are the parents of three children.

Perrette, chairman of the board of Worth Corp. ''Keegan's operations were negatively impacted by the adverse publicity and Congressional hearing surrounding the weight loss industry and positively impacted by the sale of 31 Nutri/System Weight Loss Centers in the San Francisco Bay Area, resulting in net income after taxes and minority interest of approximately $4.2 million,'' he stated.

''We believe that the visibility of the NASDAQ listing will enhance the liquidity of Worth Corp. as well as attract the professional investment community,'' he added.

WAKEFIELD, MA (AUG. 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Xyvision Inc. (NASDAQ:XYVI) Friday announced a net loss for the first quarter of fiscal 1991.

''As we expected, Xyvision's revenues continue to be adversely affected by our transition from proprietary hardware platforms to open-architecture publishing systems based upon RISC computing technology from Digital Equipment Corporation,'' said Laurence S. Liebson, Xyvision chairman and chief executive officer. ''We anticipate that this condition will persist until our new publishing products begin volume customer shipments later this fall.''

Specifically, Xyvision reported a first-quarter net loss of $2,856,000, or 51 cents per share, compared to a larger net loss of $3,626,000, or 67 cents per share, for the same period a year ago. Revenues decreased 18 percent to $6,709,000 for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 from $8,174,000 in last year's first fiscal quarter.

Liebson noted: ''In spite of the decrease in first-quarter revenues, our cost-control programs enabled us to reduce the size of our net loss, as compared with the previous quarter, while conserving as much cash as possible. As of June 30, 1990, Xyvision has cash, short-term investments, and accounts receivable in excess of $23,000,000. These results are fully in line with our expectations.''

He added, ''We continue to be encouraged by the confidence shown by the marketplace in both our current products and our emerging technologies. Our Contex line of color pre-press systems attracted a number of new customers worldwide during the first quarter, including Chesebrough-Pond's in the United States, Novacel in Mexico, and DRP Studios in England.

''On the publishing side, additional investments were made by a number of our existing customers, including McDonnell Douglas Aerospace Information Services, the Defense Systems Division of General Electric Aerospace, and Sandia National Laboratories.''

Xyvision designs and markets open-architecture systems for publishing, document management, color design and pre-press production. These systems are used in a broad range of technical, business and graphic arts applications by some of the world's most distinguished corporations, publishers, printers and pre-press services companies.

VALENCIA, CALIF. (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Huntway Partners L.P. (NYSE:HWY) Friday said its first half net income was up 304 percent to $767,000, or 7 cents per unit, compared with 1989's first half restated net income of $190,000, or 2 cents per unit.

First half revenues increased 20 percent to $50.3 million, compared with $41.8 million a year ago, as a result of higher prices for refined petroleum products and a 17 percent increase in sales volume.

The 1990 volume increase of approximately 410,000 barrels is entirely due to sales of 660,000 barrels by Huntway's Arizona refinery. Arizona's total more than offset a sales volume decrease of some 250,000 barrels in the Southern California market.

''The decrease in Southern California was caused by lower liquid asphalt sales, as well as reductions in other product sales and lower production levels at that facility,'' said Juan Forster, chief executive officer.

Second quarter net income was $3.4 million, or 29 cents per unit, compared with a restated 1989 second quarter net loss of $475,000, or 4 cents per unit.

Second quarter revenues rose 24 percent to $29.9 million, compared with $24.1 million during 1989's comparable quarter. Sales volume increased to 1.7 million barrels from 1.3 million barrels a year ago.

''Liquid asphalt demand in Southern California declined significantly when compared with the first half of 1989,'' Forster said. ''Several factors caused this decrease, including weaker commercial and residential building activity and diversion and shortage of state highway funds.''

Prices for liquid asphalt have declined in Southern California as a result of lower demand and a decrease in crude oil prices during the second quarter.

Price deterioration in the liquid asphalt market has reduced margins significantly since mid-June.

Huntway Partners L.P. owns and operates three crude oil refineries, two in California and one in Arizona, which primarily produce liquid asphalt for use in road construction and repair. Its preference units are traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

ORLANDO, FL (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Gencor Industries Inc. (NASDAQ:GCOR) Friday announced the results of operations for the quarter ended March 31, 1990, reporting a profit of $244,000, or 15 cents per share, vs. a net profit of $641,000, or 40 cents per share for the like period in 1989.

Sales remained relatively unchanged at $18,621,000 in 1990's first quarter vs. $18.4 million for the like period in the prior year.

Gencor's increase in U.S. sales was offset by lower foreign shipments; however, increased production costs resulted in lower margins. These higher production costs have not yet been offset by recent sales price increases.

Lower administrative costs resulted from operational efficiencies stemming from the 1989 closing of Gencor's Indianapolis facility and its consolidation into other units of Gencor. Lower interest costs, stemming from lower borrowing levels, also improved results.

Gencor also recognized an extraordinary credit of $83,000 which resulted from the anticipated use of a portion of the company's tax loss craryforward.

Gencor Industries is based in Orlando, Fla. Other substantial manufacturing facilities are maintained in Iowa, Ohio and England. Products include thermal fluid heat systems, soil remediation machinery, combustion systems, hot mix asphalt production plants, electronic process automation systems, and other related construction and environmental machinery products.

MIAMI (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Today, I have submitted my resignation as chairman and as a director of AmeriFirst Bank and the board of directors has accepted it.

This resignation comes with great regret, but the truth of the matter is that this grand American institution, founded in 1934 with the first Federal savings and loan charter and with the Americn Eagle as its symbol, was in grave difficulty when I was drafted to be chairman in the spring of last year.

It is estimated that the savings aand loan crisis will cost this country more than the entire U.S. financial cost of World War II -- a half a trillion dollars. Unfortunately, the tide of current American financial history is against us in our efforts to save AmeriFirst.

And, more important than my own personal loss, AmeriFirst's shareholders, employees and management have suffered dearly.

Even with the stringent capital requirements imposed under FIRREA, tremendous progress was made by AmeriFirst over the last year. Expenses were slashed some $33 million, roughly 25 percent, on an annualized basis.

All $300 million in brokered CD's were eliminated. And, in a difficult and declining real estate market, about $150 million in commercial real estate was sold or returned to performing status.

Unfortunately, these, as well as scores of other cost cutting measures, were not enough to rescue AmeriFirst from its former disastrous venture into commercial real estate.

During my tenure as chairman, a special committee of the board and a new mangement team, assisted by respected and highly qualified attorneys aand accountants, uncovered massive problems. These problems were not disclosed by AmeriFirst's prior management or by its former outside auditors.

An extensive investigation led to the commencement by AmeriFirst of litigation in the Federal District Court in Miami, which is currently pending, against members of prior management and the former outside auditors.

Numerous shareholder lawsuits alleging, among other matters, faulty disclosure by prior management were settled on terms that the board believed to be in the best interests of AmeriFirst and its shareholders.

The board of directors recently announced that it had concluded that the implementation of a capital plan based solely on an infusion of private capital appeared infeasible, and that the Office of Thrift Supervision has accordingly rejected the capital plan submitted in January 1990.

Having lost some $8.5 million of my own investment, having spent some 14 months working intensively with the board and new management to understand and find solutions to AmeriFirst's problems, having incurred significant legal, accounting, travel and other expenses, and having done all that I feel was in my power to do, I have decided, based in significant part on the advice of my personal legal counsel, to resign.

Quitting is not my nature, and I originally thought I could help to return AmeriFirst to its former vigorous health, built under the prudent management of the Walker family into a crown jewel. If I thought I could make a further contribution to this end by remaining as chairman, I would stay.

My resignation does not mean the end of my support for this old and venerable Miami institution, as I continue to hold a substantial block of AmeriFirst common stock.

However, I do not know whether I will have the opportunity to participate in an eventual solution to AmeriFirst's problems. That remains to be seen since this possibility rests largely in the hands of the regulators.

But one thing is clear: I will not participate in any future plan relating to AmeriFirst unless that plan includes the right of all shareholders to participate pro rata, as contemplated in the Partial Settlement Agreement approved by the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida in April 1990.

With South Florida's past or potential losses of many other great business institutions, it would be another community tragedy to lose AmeriFirst.

I am sincerely grateful to my fellow directors, to the AmeriFirst officers with whom I have worked and to each and every other member of the AmeriFirst family for their fine efforts and for all the support given to me during my tenure as chairman.

Year-to-date product revenues were $11,271,000 (excluding development and technology licensing revenues) compared with $5,550,000 for the same period last year.

The company did not report development and technology licensing revenues for the nine months ended June 29, 1990, but in the same period in 1989 reported $825,000 under terms of development and licensing agreements. Total revenues as of June 29, 1990 (year to date) were $11,271,000 compared with $6,375,000 for the same period last year.

Net losses for the third quarter and the year to date (as of June 29, 1990) were $722,000 and $2,438,000 respectively, vs. $908,000 and $1,195,000 for the previous comparable periods. LITTLE ROCK, AR. (AUG. 4) BUSINESS WIRE - Worthen Banking Corp. stock (ASE:WOR) has received the highest rating of any Arkansas bank stock and is rated second only to Wal-Mart among all publicly traded Arkansas stocks according to an independent appraisal of stocks published in the Aug. 7 special issue of Financial World (FW).

Worthen and two other Arkansas stocks received an ''A, very high'' rating, with only Wal-Mart receiving an ''A+, superior'' rating. The FW appraisal produced in conjunction with Investor's Daily, rates the stocks of the 3,000 largest U.S. companies. Only 216 (7.2 percent) of the 3,000 largest U.S. stocks received the A+ rating; 270 (9 percent) of the top 3,000 received the A rating.

''We have not had any direct contact with Financial World, but it is always gratifying when an outside appraisal recognizes that we are creating value for our stockholders,'' ssaid Curt Bradbury, Worthen chairman, president and chief executive officer.

''This very high rating is particularly timely and meaningful for us because of the adverse way the stock market has been treating bank stocks in general recently, which seems to be showing a concern for deteriorating real estate loans and the general condition of banks nationally,'' Bradbury said.

''Financial World apparently recognizes that our positive performance trends are contrary to those of other banks in general,'' Bradbury said. Worthen recently reported that its second quarter earnings increased 132 percent over last year, representing the highest operating earnings in its history and the seventh consecutive quarter of increasing earnings.

The FW stock ratings are based on five equally weighted factors: three-month percent change in stock price; percent change in sales in the last four quarters vs. one year ago; percent change in earnings per share in the last four quarters compared to one year ago; long-term debt as percent of shareholders' equity; and return on total capital.

The ratings emphasize recent growth and profitability rather than size or dividends.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - The Citizens Commission on Human Rights is appealing to all investment bankers, analysts and advisors to help pull the psychiatric drug Prozac off the market and thereby save lives.

Neither the general public nor investors have been adequately informed of the true dangers of this drug, and psychiatrists and the drug's manufacturer, Eli Lilly, are continuing to push this drug on an unsuspecting public.

This is not the first time Lilly has failed to adequately inform the public of dangerous side effects caused by one of their drugs. In 1985, the U.S. Justice Department reported that Lilly knew of and did not report 28 deaths linked to its arthritis drug Oraflex while seeking FDA approval for the drug.

Lilly pled guilty to 10 criminal charges of failing to report deaths and illnesses linked to Oraflex, and 15 counts of failing to place labels on the drug's packages warning that liver and kidney failures had occurred in association with the drug. Unfortunately, the government's reaction was only a $25,000 fine.

A 10-month investigation into Prozac reveals:

-- In the 31 months Prozac has been on the market, there have been 9,973 voluntary reports to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) of adverse reactions including agitation, akathisia (a side effect which has been associated with violence), anxiety, convulsions, death, hostility, psychosis, sudden death and suicide.

As a comparison: In 20 years, the FDA received only 6,343 reports of adverse reactions on Valium, a very widely prescribed and abused psychiatric drug, and only 2,923 reports on the anti-depressant drug Elavil -- Prozac's prime competitor.

-- The number of voluntary reports to the FDA of suicide attempts by people having taken Prozac increased 372 percent in the last eight months.

-- People who have been given Prozac for reasons other than depression, such as to lose weight, have also become suicidal, with their suicidal thoughts subsiding after the drug was withdrawn.

-- This past Friday, Harvard Medical School researcher Dr. Martin H. Teicher stated on ABC's ''Nightline'' that the suicidal thoughts of those patients given Prozac during his research were ''something outside of the realm of the normal suicidal thoughts that depressed patients can have, and were outside the realm of what's previously been reported in other studies.

These patients that we saw became obsessed, preoccupied with suicidal thoughts.''

Note: According to Dr. Teicher's study published in the February issue of The American Journal of Psychiatry, the estimated incidence of obsessive, violent suicidal thoughts ranged from 1.3 percent to 7.5 percent of those people taking Prozac. Eli Lilly claims more than 2 million people have taken Prozac.

This means that there are as few as 26,000 or as many as 150,000 people who could develop or may have already developed intense, violent suicidal thoughts.

-- Especially frightening for the general population are the reports of murders committed by people on Prozac. These include the murder of eight people by mass-murderer Joseph Wesbecker in Louisville, Ky., a murder-suicide in Wisconsin and homicides in New York and Florida.

(The widows of three of Wesbecker's victims have each filed suit against Eli Lilly and Wesbecker's psychiatrist, asking for $50 million in punitive damages against Lilly.)

-- Persons taking Prozac have developed permanent neurological disorders characterized by uncontrollable muscle twiches, shakes, spasms and contractions which can disfigure the face and immobilize the body.

Lilly has not warned people in its side-effect profile on Prozac that their lives can be destroyed in this way, and at least two lawsuits have already been filed by people who have been permanently disfigured with this condition.

SUNNYVALE, CALIF. (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - MASS Microsystems (NASDAQ:MMIC) Friday announced it is shipping the new ColorSpace Plus/SE multimedia system, the industry's first professional-quality desktop video production system for the Macintosh Plus and SE platforms.

An external SCSI device, ColorSpace Plus/SE uses proprietary keying technology (patent pending) to overlay the black-and-white Macintosh-created text or graphics in color on full motion, full color, live or recorded composite NTSC or S-Video. Results are then output to any consumer or professional video recording or display device.

''Since we first began demonstrating ColorSpace Plus/SE, there has been tremendous interest from schools, small businesses, and corporations who can now take advantage of the power of multimedia without having to purchase a Macintosh II system,'' said Adel El-Shimi, president of MASS Microsystems.

''ColorSpace Plus/SE now offers the highest quality multimedia solution on the low-end Macintosh Plus or SE.''

ColorSpace Plus/SE is used for creating sales, training or promotional videotapes, interactive learning systems, interactive video information kiosks, multimedia presentations, or even titles for home videotapes.

ColorSpace Plus/SE also ships with TitleMaker, a HyperCard stack that allows users to easily do high-quality titling over video. SALT LAKE CITY (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Evans & Sutherland Computer Corp. (NASDAQ:ESCC) confirmed Friday that it is a member of the Loral team which was awarded the initial contract for the United States Air Force Special Operation Forces Aircrew Training Systems (SOF ATS) Program.

The contract calls for development of aircrew training systems for the MC-130H Combat Talon II and MC-130E Combat Talon I aircraft. Loral's initial award was for $71.5 million.

This is a very strategic win for Evans & Sutherland. The company will provide visual and display systems, which will include the recently announced ESIG-4000 image generator, in completing its part of the project.

The ESIG-4000 is an ideal tool for the mission rehearsal community with its rapid database generation and high degree of visual realism over large areas.

The ESIG-4000, through ''parallel database development,'' eliminates one of the most time-consuming aspects of image generation. This capability provides for the rapid turnaround needed to rehearse missions with little advanced notice.

Work will begin immediately on the initial development contract, with delivery of major training devices scheduled for 1993. Evans & Sutherland states that this program will be a significant factor in revenues over the next several years. Additionally, it provides great optimism for the future of the company's new products, the ESIG-4000 and ESIG-3000, both announced in June 1990.

Evans & Sutherland designs, builds, sells and services interactive computing systems for vehicle training and for general engineering and scientific applications.

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Grubb & Ellis Co. (NYSE:GBE) Friday announced a program of significant expense reductions that will result in a $7 million savings from planned expenditures for the remainder of 1990 and a full-year savings of $11.5 million in 1991.

''The real estate services industry is in the midst of a difficult economic period and we need to adapt to changing market conditions,'' said Harold A. Ellis Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of the real estate services firm.

''We are implementing these measures in response to reductions in revenue expectations due to softness in real estate markets nationwide. These expense reductions significantly lower our break-even revenue point.''

Ellis said the reductions include office closures, the downsizing of some operations, the elimination of a number of staff positions and major reductions in travel and advertising. Commercial brokerage offices in Southeast Denver, Detroit, Atlanta suburban, Princeton, N.J., and downtown New York have been closed and four others have been downsized in accordance with reduced market activity.

''While decisions of this kind are never easy, they are a necessary and continuing part of effectively managing our company,'' Ellis said. ''We are confident that the measures we are taking will bolster us through this difficult time and that we will emerge from this challenging period with a greater market share and an improved position as the industry leader.''

Grubb & Ellis Co. is the largest independent real estate services firm in the country with offices nationwide.

For the three months just ended, net income reached $267,877 or 9 cents per share on revenues of $2.69 million compared to net income of $387,211 or 12 cents per share on revenues of $2.71 million for the same period a year ago.

FRAMINGHAM, MA (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Perini Investment Properties Inc. (AMEX:PNV) announced Friday that net cash flow per share for the second quarter declined to $.03 from $.23 for the second quarter of 1989.

The company attributed the decline to a reduction in distributions from joint ventures (largely a timing item), increased interest payments in the 1990 second quarter compared to a year ago, and a decline in cash flow from certain operating properties.

The company expects these conditions to affect operating cash flow for the remainder of the year, although certain planned transactions could significantly improve anticipated results.

In accordance with the company's stated policy of paying out 50 to 60 percent of current cash flow, PIP's board of directors has elected to suspend dividend payments unitl operating cash flow can again support such payments.

At the same time, the board reaffirmed its belief that the net current value per share of the company's assets is substantially in excess of the current market price per share of its common stock.

Revenues for the quarter increased 23 percent to $4,942,897 from $4,031,590 recorded for the same period last year.

In the first half of 1990, consolidated earnings of $4,122,359 or 86 cents per share increased 39 percent as compared to $2,969,783, or 73 cents per share, in the first half of 1989. Revenues for the six month period were up 31 percent in 1990 to $10,485,472 from $7,975,035 for 1989.

Commenting on these results, Swift said, ''The company was able to achieve these results by posting increases in the three major lines of business which are strategic to our continued growth and profitability. ''Approximately 59 percent of the total revenues for the first six months of 1990 were attributable to earned interest from the acquisition of producing property interests by Swift Energy on behalf of its limited partnerships and a third party investor. The company continues to be an industry leader in the formation of limited partnerships organized for the purpose of acquiring and operating producing oil and gas properties.

SEYMOUR, CT (AUG. 3) BUSIESS WIRE - TIE/Communications Inc., a leading designer, manufacturer and distributor of advanced telecommunications systems, reported a $7,947,000 income for the second quarter 1990.

The income includes the gain on the sale of the TIE European group made in April 1990. This income compares to a loss of $3,443,000 for the comparable period of 1989. Sales for the second quarter of 1990 were $36,793,000 compared to $61,190,000 for the second quarter of 1989.

Net income per share was $.23 for the 1990 second quarter and includes the effect of preferred dividends and accretion for the quarter of $66,000. Losses for the comparable 1989 quarter were $.14 including the effect of preferred dividends and accretion of $1,303,000.

The company's lower sales reflect the loss of revenue generated heretofore by the European division, lower domestic sales in the distribution arena and losses and restructuring costs in the Canadian subsidiary. The company took a $3,120,000 writedown of inventory during the quarter to adjust certain items to their net realizable value.

These writedowns were necessitated because of the re-valuation of some inventories which the company received as a result of certain recent acquisitions. TIE will continue to expand its sales efforts through acquisition of installed TIE base, introduction of a new digital key system to the distribution side of the business and the return to profitability of TIE Canada as its own direct sales and service network expands.

Operating losses continue to decline, and cash has built to $15 million. The long term debt of $36.3 million predominently reflects the monies due on the note to HCR Partners.

Although operational profitability is coming more slowly than anticipated, the company remains confident that it will be able to return to profitability this year, as previously indicated.

SHREVEPORT, LA. (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - Arkla Inc. (NYSE:ALG), Friday reported financial results for its 1990 second quarter and year-to-date.

Net income available to common stock for the second quarter was $5.9 million, or 7 cents per share compared to $2.2 million, or 3 cents per share in 1989. For the year-to-date, comparable figures were $59.9 million, or 69 cents per share, compared to $54.0 million or 64 cents per share in 1989. Second quarter earnings in 1989 included a loss from discontinued operations of $1.4 million, or 2 cents per common share.

The increase in second quarter net income reflects significantly higher pipeline throughput and improved pipeline margins. Pipeline operating income was up 71 percent, primarily due to increases in throughput at both AER and MRT, the addition of LIG operating results, and the restructuring moves made last year to reduce pipeline costs. Increased distribution volumes at both Entex and ALG also contributed to the earnings rise.

Mack McLarty, Arkla's chairman and chief executive officer, said: ''Our earnings for the quarter are particularly encouraging when you consider the lingering industry-wide pressure on wellhead prices and pipeline margins caused by this year's unusually warm winter weather. We are especially optimistic about the success of our pipeline efforts.

''The actions taken last year to address take-or-pay and our success in expanding total pipeline throughput have been significant. With Line AC on schedule, we believe that our pipeline group will realize even more of its potential over the next year.

Arkla Inc. is a balanced gas company engaged in the transmission, distribution, exploration and production of natural gas. Its stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol ALG.

NEW YORK (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - National Fuel Gas Company Friday announced a loss of $360,000 or $(.01) per share for the third quarter of fiscal 1990. This compares with earnings of $834,000 or $.03 per share for the corresponding period in 1989. Revenues for the quarter were $155,356,000 this year compared to $148,058,000 in 1989.

Earnings for the first nine months of fiscal 1990 were $51,575,000 or $1.82 per share compared to $57,324,000 or $2.14 per share in 1989.

The 12 months ended June 30, 1990, produced earnings of $46,671,000 or $1.65 per share compared to $48,761,000 or $1.83 per share last year.

Share amounts for the nine and twelve month periods reflect a greater number of shares outstanding resulting mainly from the sale of 2 million shares of common stock in March 1989.

Earnings for the first nine months of fiscal 1990 include an adjustment made in the quarter ended March 31, of $8,274,000 or $.29 per share which revised the Supply Corporation's estimated provision for refund, net of income tax effect. As previously reported, this refund provision adjustment related to a Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) order regarding a Supply Corporation rate increase, filed in 1986, which was effective, subject to refund, from January 1, 1987 to June 30, 1989. A Supply Corporation request for rehearing of the FERC's order is pending. However, since the request for rehearing was made, Supply Corporation and the FERC staff have agreed to a Settlement resolving not only the 1986 rate filing but also two later rate filings. In addition, the Settlement provides that Supply Corporation will accept a blanket certificate to become an open access pipeline.

Based on comments received in response to this Offer of Settlement, Supply Corporation filed a Revised Settlement on July 19, 1990. The active parties will file comments by August 6, 1990 on this Revised Settlement and no parties currently oppose the certification by the Presiding Judge of this Revised Settlement to the FERC. Of course, the FERC must then approve the Revised Settlement before it becomes binding.

Cash from operations was 56 cents per share for the three months ended June 30, 1990, compared to 48 cents per share for the same period last year and 92 cents per share for the six months ended June 30, 1990, compared to 81 cents per share for the same period last year.

Included in cash from operations was $479,000 (19 cents per share) from a one-time prepayment penalty from the early payoff of a mortgage note receivable. Cash from operations is defined as cash from operating activities before changes in accrued assets and liabilities.

The trust's net income for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, was $947,000 (38 cents per share). Excluding gains or losses, $955,000 (38 cents per share) was income from operations. These figures compare with net income for the second quarter ended June 30, 1989 of $8,305,000 ($3.29 per share). Of this amount $697,000 (28 cents per share) was income from operations and $7,608,000 ($3.01 per share) represented the trust's gain on sales of investments.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990 and 1989, the trust reported net income of $2,349,000 (94 cents per share) and $15,340,000 ($6.07 per share). Of these amounts, $1,423,000 (57 cents per share) and $1,070,000 (43 cents per share) were from operations and $926,000 (37 cents per share) and $14,270,000 ($5.64 per share) were from gains.

During the second quarter, the trust sold the Nashville Bell Road Travelodge for $1,150,000 and deferred a gain of approximately $100,000. In July, the trust sold the Jacksonville Travelodge for $1,350,000 and deferred a gain of approximately $145,000 and also sold the Nashville Plus Park Travelodge for $1,100,000 and recognized a loss on the sale of approximately $500,000.

The trust now has completed the sales of all five of the motel properties acquired in the 1989 foreclosure proceedings for a total net gain of approximately $2,000,000 which does not include approximately $250,000 of deferred gains. These motels generated operating losses of $113,000 (5 cents per share) in the second quarter and $405,000 (16 cents per share) in the six months ended June 30, 1990.

David H. Hoster II, executive vice president of the trust, stated that the sale of the motels had taken longer to accomplish than originally anticipated due to the deteriorating market for this type of property. He added that the sales will have a very positive effect on recurring earnings because the motels were experiencing operating losses.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - A new report by the federal Environmental Protection Agency says the western United States could face up to 25 percent more pollution from power plants by the year 2010 under the Senate's version of the pending Clean Air Act.

The EPA study said that if a national parks protection amendment added to the House of Representative's Clean Air bill in May is accepted by the Senate, sulfer dioxide pollution in the 11 western states will be reduced by 20,000 tons per year. Under the Senate bill, EPA says, sulfer dioxide emissions from power plants in the West would increase 130,000 tons to a regional total of 680,000 tons by 2010 regardless of the rate of the nation's economic growth.

Sulfer dioxide, created by coal-burning power plants, is a chief cause of acid rain and visibility degredation in the West. The National Parks Service reported that half of the visible haze that blocks scenic vistas in the West is caused by sulfer pollution, and that the severe pollution episodes in national parks such as the Grand Canyon are usually caused by sulfer pollution.

Seven Senators and 40 Representatives are currently meeting in a conference committee to resolve differences in the two bodies' version of the pending Clean Air Act.

An amendment aimed at protecting national parks in the West, added to the House version of the bill by Rep. Ron Wyden (D. Ore.), would require sulfer dioxide emissions controls on power plants that are found to be polluting national parks and wilderness areas. According to EPA, the amendment would require sulfer dioxide emissions in western states to be cut by 200,000 tons per year more than the Senate's version of the legislation.

The EPA study was performed to assess the costs of the power plant control programs in the two bills. The study shows that additional pollution reductions required by the Wyden amendment in the West would not cost western ratepayers more than the Senate bill because of emission trading allowed under the bills. On net, the EPA study says the cost of either bill to western ratepayers is about a 1 percent increase in utility rates.

The comparable cost of the two bills to western ratepayers is due to the ability to obtain marketable emission credits, called ''allowances,'' for the emission reductions required by the parks protection amendment. Under both bills, reductions required by the Wyden amendment in the West could be sold to meet the allowances needed by new plants, which are required to offset their emissions by obtaining equal reductions elsewhere.

The Wyden amendment would produce excess allowances in the West, resulting in the sale of allowances to eastern utilities. Revenues from these sales would cover most of the cost of controls on western plants. Under the Senate bill, western utilities would be required to purchase offsets from eastern utilities to cover increased emissions from new plants built in the West.

''Some western Senators have long insisted that the spectacular scenic vistas of the American West be sacrificed to pollution in order to avoid the costs of emission control equipment on western power plants,'' said Bob Yuhnke, a senior attorney with the Environmental Defense Fund and a spokesperson for the Clean Air Coalition.

''The EPA study makes clear that western ratepayers will pay the same for pollution control under both bills, but with the Wyden amendment we buy cleanup and clear blue skies in the West. Without the parks amendment, western ratepayers will pay for scrubbers in the East and pollution in the West,'' he said.

The National Park Service has said a 25 percent increase in western sulfur dioxide pollution would cause visibility to deteriorate by 300 percent in the Grand Canyon and by as much as 500 percent in Montana's Glacier National Park.

''The West has a huge stake in the parks amendment,'' said Larry Mehlhaff, regional spokesperson for the Sierra Club. ''EPA's report shows the parks amendment will achieve real protection for air quality for the West.

''Without it, the Clean Air Act amendments will do little to slow the growing pall that already shrouds the Grand Canyon and other national parks in impenetrable murk on high pollution days.''

''Emissions in the West are likely to be much higher under the Senate bill than EPA estimated,'' warned Clean Air Coalition spokesperon Yuhnke, ''because EPA's study does not account for the large increase in emissions that woudl be allowed by another provision of the Senate bill.

''A provision added by Senator Alan Simpson weakens the requirements for emission controls on new power plants by changing the definition of ''best available control technology.''

''The ''BACT'' amendment could allow new coal-burning plants to be built with little or no control on S02 emissions, resulting in emissions ten to twenty times larger than those EPA assumed would be emitted by each new plant,'' Yuhnke said.

The House bill makes no change to the current definition of ''BACT'' enacted in 1977.

''If the conference committee adopts the weaker requirement for controlling emissions from new plants,'' Yuhnke reported, ''sulfur dioxide emissions in the West would likely double to over one million tons by 2010.''

Approval of this amendment should change the character of the Partnership from a depleting entity to an ongoing entity engaged in the acquisition, development and production of oil and gas properties. Approval of the amendment requires the approval of persons holding more than 50 percent of the Partnership's Voting Units.

Callon Petroleum Co., General Partner of the Partnership, is soliciting proxies in favor of the proposed amendment. According to John S. Callon, chief executive officer of the general partner, the recommendation of the proposed amendment is based on various factors, including:

-- The Partnership's Units do not trade at a market price representative of the underlying value of the Partnership's oil and gas properties due in part to its depleting nature;

-- The Partnership's current oil and gas reserves are rapidly depletiing;

-- The General Partner of the Partnership is in the business of acquiring and developing producing oil and gas properties for its own account and the account of institutional investors and should be able to acquire such properties for the Partnership;

-- Under current market conditions, the General Partner believes the Partnership should be able to replace its future production through investment of a portion of cash flow, supplemented by financing.

The partnership produces oil and natural gas from domestic onshore properties located primarily in the Gulf Coast region. The partnership's 5.9 million depositary receipts for units of limited partnership interest trade on the NASDAQ National Market System.

GREENWOOD, SC (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - United Financial Corporation of S.C. Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:UNSA) Friday announced that the recent court order approving the sale of bankrupt Heritage USA (PTL) to MCWE will result in a potential gain on sales of real estate for United Financial.

The sale will include several parcels of PTL-related real estate, the loans for which were previously written down by United Financial's subsidiary, Home Federal Savings Bank of S.C. (Home Federal), located in Rock Hill, S.C. If the sales agreement is completed as it was announced, the pending sale would result in a potential gain on sales of real estate of approximately $2.5 million in 1990.

On an after-tax basis, the recovery will add approximately $2.3 million, or $1.07 per share, to the corporation's 1990 earnings. If the contract closes, payment is expected to be received during the fourth quarter of 1990.

United Financial's President and Chief Executive Officer, Lynn W. Hodge, said, ''Although the final details have not been completed, we are pleased that this situation is being resolved. The recovery, although not one hundred cents on the dollar, will further strengthen our already sound capital position and enable us to take advantage of growth opportunities.

''On a related issue, Home Federal intends to continue its suit against another lender which failed to perform according to the terms of a participation loan agreement on one of the PTL-related loans.''

United Financial Corporation of S.C. Inc. is a savings and loan holding company consisting of two subsidiaries: United Savings Bank, Inc. of Greenwood, and Home Federal Savings Bank of S.C. Inc. The subsidiary banks serve Greenville, Greenwood, Rock Hill and the surrounding area through 13 full-service and two limited-service offices.

CLEVELAND (AUG. 3) BUSINESS WIRE - TransCapital Financial Corporation today reported a net loss of $1.6 million, or $.17 per share, for the quarter ended June 30, 1990. This compares with a net loss of $14.3 million, or $1.50 per share, for the corresponding 1989 quarter. Included in the second quarter results for 1990 is an extraordinary charge of approximately $154 thousand, net of tax, or $.01 per share, relating to the early retirement of certain debt. The Company expects this charge to be more than offset in the future by the interest savings from the use of lower cost funding sources. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the Company reported a net loss of $5.0 million, or $.52 per share, compared with a net loss of $13.1 million, or $1.37 per share, for the first six months of 1989 include the nonrecurring write-off of $9.4 million after tax, relating to the Company's termination of the proposed acquisition of AmeriFirst Bank in Miami, Florida.

Assets at June 30, 1990 totaled $5.0 billion and shareholders' equity amounted to $165.1 million, compared with $6.3 billion in assets and $191.1 million of shareholders' equity at June 30, 1989. The significant decline in the asset base has facilitated the Company's compliance with the current capital requirements under the Financial institutions Reform, Recovery & Enforcement Act of 1989 (''FIRREA'').

Commenting on the results, Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer of TransCapital Jack D. Burstein said, ''TransCapital's wholly owned subsidiary, TRANSOHIO Savings Bank, recorded provisions for losses on loans of $5.7 million in the second quarter and $9.4 million during the first half of 1990. The additional provisions are due to unfavorable trends in the commercial real estate market and changes in the methodology historically used to determine allowances. Both resulted from the more stringent regulatory environment which evolved subsequent to the enactment of FIRREA. In particular, we responded to recommendations made by FDIC representatives which indicated a stricter methodology for evaluating loss allowances would be required than has historically been the case.''

Burstein added, ''Although we have not received the written report detailing the final conclusions from the FDIC examination which began in the first quarter, we have anticipated a more conservative approach because of the changing regulatory environment. We felt that the additional loss provisions are prudent. Pending receipt of the report, we have not determined the adjustment, if any, that would be made in response to FDIC recommendations regarding classification and charge-offs of certain assets.

TransCapital Financial Corporation is Ohio's largest savings and loan holding company with approximately $5.0 billion in assets.

GROUP LED BY WALSH GREENWOOD & CO OF NEW YORK, NY OWNS 18,650 SHARES (11.90%) OF SIGNAL APPAREL CO INC (TICKER: SIA) OF CHATTANOOGA, TN.

ANNOUNCEMENT:

On July 25, 1990, Walsh Greenwood assigned the option to WG Signal as part of Walsh Greenwood's capital Contribution. WG Signal was created on July 30, 1990 to exercise the option and hold the class B shares thereto. In connection with the exercise of the option, the 1951 Clairmont Trust waived the requirement of the purchase agreement that Walsh Greenwood provide the holders of class B stock with an opportunity to dispose of their shares at the option price within 60 days of the closing of the option exercise. Because WG Signal was a permitted transferee of the 1951 Clairmont Trust, the exercise of the option did not result in a conversion of the class B shares into class A stock. PARIS (AUG. 3) - France will keep two warships in the Gulf, following Thursday's Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, acting French prime minister Pierre Beregovoy said Friday.

France already had one escort vessel in place and another would join it, Mr. Beregovoy told RTL radio.

The economy minister refused to speculate on France's reaction in the event of a military strike by the United States against Baghdad, but he stressed that Paris planned to act "in the greatest solidarity with its allies and under U.N. auspices".

France on Thursday joined the United States and Britain by announcing a freeze on Iraqi assets here, totalling 7.5 billion francs (1.3 billion dollars) in bank deposits.

NAIROBI (AUG. 3) - Rival rebel forces fought street battles in Monrovia Friday, with neither side making headway in dislodging embattled Liberian President Samuel Doe from his fortified stronghold in the executive compound, according to reports reaching here.

Disciplined rebel forces under the command of Prince Johnson were forced to relinquish some hard-won neighbourhoods of the capital to less disciplined but more numerous fighters led by Charles Taylor.

Doe and a few hundred loyal troops remained ensconced in the eight-storey presidential compound.

The streets of the once-prosperous capital were strewn with bodies, and most residents were staying indoors to escape being captured or shot by either rebel fighters or government troops.

Even looters had taken flight, with radio reports saying all shops had been plundered and nothing remained to be looted. Food and drinking water were in short supply.

Only hours earlier, Taylor had predicted victory for his forces within 10 days. Johnson, however, has vowed to thwart Taylor, whom Johnson has called a potential dictator only interested in seizing power for himself and not in restoring democracy.

JAKARTA (AUG. 3) - Indonesia's state oil company Pertamina signed production-sharing contracts with the U.S. firms Conoco Indonesia Inc. and Mobil Exploration Bomberai Inc. here Friday.

The contracts brought to 14 the number of production-sharing deals which Pertamina has signed with foreign companies so far this year, a spokesman said.

The director of exploration and production G.A.S. Nayoan, said the company expected to sign three more production-sharing contract agreements next month.

The agreements signed Friday covered the amendment and extension of a contract agreement with Conoco for the exploration and production of oil in Natuna, offshore in the South China Sea.

Conoco is committed to a 35 million dollar investment for exploration of the area during the first ten years of activity.

Mobil Exploration Bomberai, under its contract was committed to pay 70 million dollars to Pertamina for exploration and production in a concessional area in Irian Jaya onshore covering 15,875 square kilometres during the first ten years of activities.

Mines and Energy Minister Ginandjar Kartasasmita said Indonesia was increasing is crude oil production to exceed 1.35 million barrels per day in December from 1.28 million barrels per day last month in order to utilise completely the allotted quota of 1.374 million bd under a recent Opec decision.

He said indonesia was actually capable of producing up to 1.4 million bd. About 40 per cent of Indonesian oil exports go to Japan.

TEL AVIV (AUG. 3) - Israeli officials voiced concern Friday that, following his conquest of Kuwait, Iraqi ruler Saddam Hussein will now turn his sights on the Jewish state.

Quoting ''senior government sources'' the respected Ha'aretz daily and Israel television said Iraq could now aim to move forces into Jordan - an act seen by Israel as a serious threat to its security.

''Israel will have to resist this incursion by diplomatic means and if necessary via military means,'' the sources told Ha'aretz. The paper also quoted intelligence officials as saying that the Iraqi secret service is misleading Hussein by passing him information ''proving'' Israel's agressive inclinations, ''because this is what he likes to hear''.

Israeli chief of staff General Dan Shomron claimed that Israel has ''varied answers to chemical weapons'' in which the deterrence factor played an important part.

Speaking to the mass-circulation Yediot Aharonot, Shomron said Saddam Hussein knew enough to guess ''that he will pay a heavy proce'' for any attack on Israel.

''He is an impulsive, violent and extreme man,'' continued Shomron. ''But I estimate that he knows to be careful from blows he will receive in return. ''

Shomron said Israel was not surprised that Saddam had moved against what he called ''weak Kuwait''. Israel was currently analysing the significance of Saddam's military strategy and was conducting a ''constant transfer of information with the U.S.''

LONDON (AUG. 3) - Barclays Bank, Britain's largest clearing bank, said Friday its taxable profit rose two per cent in the first half of this year to 602 million pounds (1.11 billion dollars) from 590 million (1.09 billion dollars) in the first half of 1989.

The result was in line with that of the three other major clearing banks -- National Westminster, Lloyds and Midland -- for the first half, and below market forecasts of profit of between 630 and 680 million pounds.

Interim dividend was set at 9.15 pence, up 12.4 per cent from the 8.14 in first half 1989, while earnings per share dropped eight per cent to 23.4 pence from 25.4.

Barclays shares were down three pence at 379 in early trading in London.

The slight profit improvement was due to the fact that no provision was made for doubtful Third World loans, against 263 million pounds in the same period last year.

But like the other major banks, Barclays sharply increased its provisions for bad debts in Britain, from 244 million pounds to 290 million.

The bank's domestic performance was particularly disappointing in the first half, with operating profit plunging to 275 million pounds (509 million dollars) from 519 million (961 million dollars).

Income from Barclays de Zoete Wedd and the bank's credit card operation was also down.

The profit increase was largely due to an increase in overseas profit from 63 million pounds to 73 million and the resale on the secondary market of 600 million pounds' worth of debt. The sale of a U.S. subsidiary also brought in exceptional profit of 32 million pounds.

AMMAN (AUG. 3) - Jordan's King Hussein, less than 12 hours after his return from a lightning visit to Egypt and talks with President Hosny Mubarak,

Hussein, current chairman of the four-member Arab Cooperation Council, which groups Jordan, Egypt, Iraq and Yemen, is expected to hold talks in Baghdad on ''ways to limit the damage resulting from Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and the western outcry over the attack'', an official source said.

He said the king was ''deeply concerned with the Gulf developments and hopes that certain arrangements can be made to stabilise the situation in Kuwait and defuse the crisis''.

The official did not elaborate, but he explained that ''despite the initial feelings of solidarity with Iraq throughout most of the Arab world, a second-day analysis of the situation forces a more sober and realistic approach in the region''.

Due to the Gulf crisis, Prime Minister Mudar Badran has decided to ''indefinitely postpone'' a visit to Syria he had planned to make on Saturday, which would have been his first since taking office in December.

Badran was expected to discuss preparations for the convening of the forthcoming Arab summit conference in Cairo in November, economic cooperation and bilateral security arrangements to stop cross-border infiltrations.

Last month, Jordanian troops killed four heavily-armed infiltrators belonging to a Damascus-based extremist organisation.

Syria, at loggerheads with Iraq, has called for the convening of an emergency Arab summit conference to discuss Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. But there has been no response to the call by President Hafez Assad.

BANGKOK (AUG. 3) - U.S. Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher told U.S. businessmen here Friday that Washington's trade embargo against Vietnam could be lifted shortly.

But Mr. Mosbacher stressed that the key word was "could" when he addressed the American Chamber of Commerce in Thailand (ACCT) at a special luncheon.

He said the lifting of the ban "was over the horizon and could -- and I repeat could -- appear shortly."

His remarks came only three days before the United States and Vietnam open key talks on Cambodia in New York.

Last month U.S. Secretary of State James Baker said in Jakarta that Hanoi's cooperation in the talks could lead to full-scale normalization, including the lifting of the trade embargo.

The ACCT, in a letter to Mr. Mosbacher, said it was urgent the government lift the embargo, claiming that U.S. businessmen were being left behind.

"Our 'allies' are freely trading with Vietnam, including those countries most vociferously against lifting the embargo. Singapore for example has a yearly trade with Vietnam of some 200 million dollars.

"Japan now accounts for one-third of Vietnam's total trade, ranking just behind the Soviet Union," the ACCT said.

Mr. Mosbacher is on a five-day visit to Thailand, accompanied by the managing directors of some of the United States' largest corporations, in a bid to increase trade between the two countries.

PRAGUE (AUG. 3) - Two were slightly hurt when a home-made bomb exploded on a nudist beach on the Vltava river outside Prague, the CTK news agency reported Friday.

The blast Thursday came two months to the day after an attack in the centre of Prague wounding 20, one week before Czechoslovakia's first free elections in over 40 years.

No one has claimed responsibility for either attack, and no arrests have been made despite a high-profile investigation and a published photo-fit of one suspect.

Police said the two explosions have several common features. In both cases the explosive was placed in a piece of steel tubing and the fuse system was the same.

The type of explosive which caused the first blast was still not known, the agency said.

PIRMASENS, West Germany (AUG. 3) - Authorities rerouted a U.S. nerve gas convoy Friday after security checks uncovered a suspected explosive charge along one of the highways normally used, a senior state-level official announced.

Rudi Geil, interior minister of Rheinland-Pfalz, said police altered the route for the transport of 3,500 chemical-laden artillery shells from their American-operated storage dumps near Pirmasens after the suspected bomb was sighted.

On closer inspection by West German police specialists the object turned out to be ''a type of practice ammunition'', Geil said.

The 20 heavy trucks and 60 escort vehicles moving the shells to a U.S. Army rail depot on the first leg of the weapons' removal from West Germany then carried out the 50-kilometre transport without incident on an alternative route, the minister said.

The transports, which got underway last week, are the first step in the removal of the entire U.S. nerve gas stockpile from West Germany. In subsequent steps, the munitions will be shipped to Johnston Atoll in the Pacific for destruction in Army incinerators.

The West German Army meanwhile confirmed Friday that officials involved in the transport imposed stricter safety guidelines for the removal operations after a forklift dropped a load of chemical-filled shells on July 23, three days before the convoys began.

No leakage of gas occurred, and officials decided the incident was of ''too little significance'' to be made public immediately, a spokesman said.

LONDON (AUG 3) - Fierce fighting between Kuwaiti and Iraqi forces was taking place in Kuwait City Friday and there was a "large number" of casualties including civilians, Kuwaiti Ambassador Ghazi Al-Rayes said here.

"There is a push back with fierce fighting in Kuwait City itself," Mr. Ghazi said, adding: "There have been a large number of casualties including civilians."

Mr. Ghazi, speaking in Arabic to a crowd of about 200 Kuwaiti demonstrators gathered outside the embassy here, said that "although there is fighting still in our country we will continue our resistance."

MANAMA (AUG 3) - Iraqi invasion forces Friday were reportedly consolidating their hold inside Kuwait despite some reports of pockets of Kuwaiti resistance.

Reports reaching Bahrain said Iraqi forces had moved to take control of oil fields south of Kuwait city, and there were rumours that Baghdad's troops might even have penetrated some kilometres into Saudi Arabia.

Lebanon's Voice of the People radio, citing telephone contacts in the Kuwaiti capital, had earlier reported some resistance in two areas of the city, the Shuwair area and the Ahmadi district where the Defence Ministry is located.

In an independent confirmation of the fighting, the West German airline Lufthansa, citing information received from employees in Kuwait, said that after a quiet night, machinegun and artillery fire broke out around 4 a.m. local time.

The Lebanese radio station had said that some 500 persons had been killed and 600 wounded since the smoothly-executed Iraqi invasion in the early hours of Thursday.

The exact whereabouts of the Kuwaiti ruling family remained the subject of contradictory reports.

Some said that the Emir, Sheikh Jaber Al-Sabah and Crown Prince and Premier Saad Al-Sabah were in Saudi Arabia, while others said they may have remained on Kuwaiti territory near the border with Saudi Arabia.

Kuwaiti Defence Minister Salim Al-Sabah was reportedly still in Kuwait, but his whereabouts were unknown.

Meanwhile reports said there could be a ''mini-summit'' involving Iraq's number-two leader, Izzat Ibrahim in Jeddah with Saudi King Fahd, Egyptian President Hosny Mubarak and Jordanian King Hussein.

VILA (AUG 4) - China warned the South Pacific Forum here Friday against recognising Taiwan.

In a post-forum dialogue between three forum representatives and officials of invited major powers, Chinese assistant foreign minister Liu Huaqiu accused Taiwan of pursuing "elastic diplomacy" and dual recognition in trying to join regional and international organisations.

His comments followed a forum decision earlier this week to consider inviting Taiwan to future dialogue meetings.

China was already a dialogue partner, he said, adding that it would be unacceptable if the forum tried to achieve the same relationship with Beijing's rival government in Taipei.

"We appreciate the 'one China' policy pursued by the majority of the forum member states and hope that the South Pacific Forum will guard against any political plot by Taiwan to undermine the friendly relations between China and the forum and all its member states," Mr. Liu said.

Vanuatu foreign minister Donald Kalpokas told a press conference after the first session they had had a "fair discussion" with the Chinese delegation.

China understands that some forum members have relations with China and others with Taiwan, he said.

"China is concerned about their policy that there is only one China, and that the forum should continue to pursue that idea," Mr. Kalpokas said.

The dialogue sessions, which end Saturday, make no formal decisions.

China, Canada, Japan, the United States, France and Britain are attending the sessions, and the United States is to face the dialogue Saturday.

FREETOWN (AUG 3) - Police in Freetown on Friday were guarding the Liberian Embassy here after an unidentified group threatened to attack the building.

Police said they were treating the matter seriously.

Diplomatic sources linked the threat to rivalry betwen supporters of President Samuel Doe and the National Patriotic Front of Liberia who are among the hundreds of refugees now in the neighbouring state.

Police guards were also posted at the residence of Liberian Ambassador Major-General Albert Karpeh.

Callers at the embassy on Friday were told by police that the embassy was closed.

The ambassador was not available for comment at his residence. Aides said he was "away on routine matters".

Police also declined to comment on the issue, stating only that there was "no threat to public safety."

FRANKFURT (AUG 3) - West German Foreign Minister Hans-Diedrich Genscher Friday sharply condemned the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and blamed Western Europe for its part in exporting weapons to Baghdad.

This invasion is ''a classical example for what happens when (Western) Europe sells weaponry it does not need any more to build up the military potential of a country'', he said in a radio interview.

Genscher called on all nations to stop exporting arms to the Third World.

Iraq was put in a situation enabling it to wage two wars within recent years, he said in an allusion to the Iraqi attack against Iran in 1980 which triggered the eight-year Gulf War.

Military factories should be converted into ones producing consumer goods and soldiers should be trained for work as civilians, the minister added.

STRASBOURG, FRANCE (AUG 3) - A powerful earthquake measuring 6.9 degrees on the open-ended Richter scale hit mountainous border regions between northwest China and Soviet central Asia on Friday, the French Physics Institute of the Globe here said.

The Soviet nuclear testing site at Semipalatinsk is located in the Kazakhstan republic where the quake shook the Soviet Union. China's own testing site is meanwhile situated in Sin Kiang province which was also affected.

The quake was first detected by the Uppsala seismological observatory in Sweden, which gave its intensity as 6.3 on the Richter scale which effectively measures up to nine.

KUWAIT (AUG 3) - Official Kuwait radio went off the air Friday after repeated appeals for Arab and Western help to drive out invading Iraqi troops from this Gulf emirate, residents said.

The radio, staffed by loyalists to the government, had been broadcasting calls for resistance, appeals for help and patriotic music since Iraq's invasion of Kuwait at dawn Thursday.

It went off the air at 2.30 p.m. (1130 GMT), residents said.

"The radio was not broadcasting from Kuwait but from a neighbouring country that could very well be Saudi Arabia," a reliable source here said.

Crown Prince Saad al-Abdallah al-Sabah, who is also prime minister, on Thursday came on the air to urge the people to resist.

Reliable sources in Riyadh later said that Prince Saad and Kuwaiti ruler Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah had fled to Saudi Arabia before Iraqi troops attacked and overtook the Dasman royal palace on Thursday.

The state-run Kuwaiti television also abruptly stopped its programmes at 10.00 a.m. (0700 GMT).

VATICAN CITY (AUG 3) - The official programme for Pope John Paul II's 7th African visit from September 1 to 10 issued here Friday retains a controversial engagement to consecrate a gigantic church in the middle of the African bush.

The edifice, three times the size of St. Peter's in Rome on which it is modelled, is in the Ivory Coast at Yamoussoukro, the birthplace of octogenarian President Felix Houphouet-Boigny. He has donated the church to the Vatican, and insists the cost of 180 million dollars was met out of personal and family funds.

Critics suspect government money was used and decry such lavish spending in a country where the economy is faltering and Catholics comprise barely 10 per cent of the populace.

The papal trip is to take in Tanzania, Burundi and Rwanda in East Africa, and then Ivory Coast, which the pope has visited twice before.

He will be giving 38 sermons and visiting 10 towns.

TOKYO (AUG. 3) - Japanese purchases of foreign securities rose from 5.61 billion dollars in May to 6.3 billion in June as increased buying of stocks offset declining purchases of bonds, the Finance Ministry said Friday. The ministry said that net purchases of foreign stocks jumped from 624 million dollars the previous month to 1.58 billion dollars in June.

Net buying of foreign bonds fell from 4.9 billion dollars to 3.8 billion dollars in the same period, although purchases of yen-denominated foreign bonds issued in Japan jumped from 80 million dollars to 895 million.

Foreign purchases of Japanese securities rose from 2.05 billion dollars in May to 2.24 billion dollars in June, the ministry said. Transactions in Japanese stocks swung from net purchases of 1.51 billion dollars in May to sales of 380 million dollars in June.

ANKARA (AUG 4) - Worried about an international crisis building up close to its borders, Turkey took care Friday to stick to its measured reaction to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Called to emergency session Thursday by President Turgut Ozal who cut short his vacation, the National Security Council urged the implementation of the U.N. Security Council resolution condemning the invasion and calling for the restoration of Kuwait's sovereignity.

The top advisory body bringing together state, government and military leaders, debated the developments and policy options for Turkey, a communique said Friday.

Foreign Ministry undersecretary Tugay Oezceri discussed the situation with Soviet ambassador Albert Chernishev, having met with U.S. ambassador Morton Abramowitz the day before. Iraqi ambbassador Tariq Abdul Jabbar Jawad was told of Ankara's ''serious concern''.

The discounting of military action by the United States and its western allies relieved Turkey where Washington maintains 26 ''joint installations'', including electronic intelligence bases and an air base, under a Defence and Economic Cooperation Agreement.

But foreign policy experts still predict difficult times under counter pressures. They say calls from the U.S. and the European Community - which Ankara wants to join - will present an impasse.

For, despite Iraq's payment difficulties which affected bilateral trade in recent years, Turkey still sees its southern neighbour a promising market for exports and contracting business.

More importantly, 1000-kilometre twin pipelines linking Kirkuk oilfields with the Turkish Mediterranean terminal of Yumurtalik is not only a source of revenue, but also it gives Ankara some leverage as Baghdad depends on the outlet for the bulk of its exports.

But for Turkey, importing 18 million tonnes of its annual 21-million-tonne consumption, the Gulf crisis will inevitably translate into a bigger bill and the public was already warned of price hikes on oil products.

For policy experts, one benefit from the Iraqi invasion is the almost certain crumbling of the unified Arab bloc which Baghdad took behind it when it confronted Turkey with a demand for a larger share from the waters of the river Euphrates.

But the relief is predicted to be short-lived, since Turkey obviously shares the concern of other Gulf states about Iraq's ability to produce long-range missiles and lethal chemical weapons.

The ties, now icy due to the Euphrates dispute, came under additional strains recently when Turkey intercepted parts of Iraq's suspected ''super cannon'' and sent them back to Britain.

BEIJING (AUG 3) - Warclouds over the Gulf might have a silver lining for China's merchants of death, who sold billions of dollars in arms to Iraq and other Middle East nations in the 1980s, diplomats here said Friday.

But Beijing's establishment of diplomatic ties with Saudi Arabia on July 21 -- 11 days before Iraq invaded Kuwait, as it turned out -- could prove to be a deterrent to renewed Chinese arms peddling in the region, they added.

"They are in a very awkward position. ... They used to send a lot of arms in the past, and we don't know if they are still going to continue to do so," one Western diplomat said.

China's fledgling arms export industry -- which finances the modernization of its People's Liberation Army -- came of age during the 1980-88 Gulf War, when it supplied both Iran and Iraq with a wide range of weapons.

Total sales to Iran alone were 3.27 billion dollars in the 1982-89 period, according to one Western estimate.

In 1986, China also secretly delivered CCS-2 nuclear-capable, medium-range missiles to Saudi Arabia, despite the absence of so much as a trade agreement between them at the time.

Overall, the Iraq-Iran war accounted for 70 per cent of Chinese arms sales, Western defense experts have said. Most of the rest went to other Middle Eastern states, and South Asia -- chiefly Pakistan and Bangladesh.

When the Gulf War stopped, Chinese arms sales plunged to 1.1 billion dollars in 1989, off by more than 50 per cent, according to estimates by the Washington-based Congressional Research Service.

Yet China continued to deliver weapons to Iraq under contracts signed during the war, including Shenyang F-7 fighters, Badger bombers and Silkworm anti-ship missiles, according to the authoritative Jane's Defence Weekly.

Other weapons shipped to Iraq have reportedly included T-69 main battle tanks, plus nuts-and-bolts needed for any armed conflict -- small arms, ammunition, spare parts and the like.

But as the world reels over Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, diplomats here see a new dimension to the geo-political puzzle: the fresh establishment of Sino-Saudi ties.

When it was announced July 21, the move was seen as a coup for Beijing, which had been smarting for more than a year because of its isolation by the West after its crackdown of the Tiananmen Square democracy movement.

Foreign Minister Qian Qichen, upon his return home Tuesday from a Middle East tour that included Saudi Arabia, boasted that Sino-Saudi ties would "contribute to peace and stability in that region."

Now, as the ink dries on their pact with Beijing, Saudi Arabia's ruling sheikhs are in a better position to pressure China not to rush back into the lucrative Middle East arms trade, diplomats said.

China, for its part, might be reluctant to take any such action which might infuriate Riyadh, so soon after Saudi Arabia has handed Beijing its biggest diplomatic coup in years, they said.

The situation in which the Chinese find themselves appears to be reflected in the cautious tone of its initial reaction to the Iraqi invasion.

On Thursday the foreign ministry called for an immediate halt to hostilities. It described Iraq and Kuwait as "China's friends," and argued that there is "no fundamental conflict of interest" between Third World states.

But diplomats noted that the statement did not condemn Iraq by name for launching the invasion. By late Friday, China had also not declared whether it would follow the lead of the Soviet Union -- Iraq's premier source of weapons -- in halting arms sales to Baghdad.

HAMBURG (AUG 3) - Industrialised nations around the world ordered the freezing of Kuwaiti assets Friday in order to remove them from Baghdad's reach in the wake of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Following a similar decision by Britain and France on Thursday, West Germany, Japan, Belgium and Italy ordered a freeze on Kuwait's assets, while other governments told banks to exercise stepped up prudence concerning any movements of Kuwaiti funds.

West German government spokesman Dieter Vogel said the freeze on Kuwaiti assets would prevent Iraq, with foreign debts estimated at 70 billion dollars, from gaining any access to the funds.

Vogel also announced that Bonn was suspending official export guarantees under the federal Hermes insurance system on West German company deals with Iraq.

Austria and Switzerland on Friday both ordered their banks to exercise increased caution in approving any transfers of Kuwaiti money. In Vienna, bank sources said they expected Austria would soon join other Western nations in freezing Kuwait's assets.

The Netherlands and Spain were still withholding a decision, pending emergency discussions in Rome by foreign ministers of the 12-nation European Community on Saturday to discuss possible punitive measures against Iraq.

According to the Kuwait Investment Office in London, total Kuwaiti assets in Britain amount to some 50 billion pounds sterling.

Kuwaiti assets in France were put at nearly 2 billion dollars, while those in Swiss banks were estimated at over 2 billion dollars.

In a symbolic act, the government in Paris Friday froze 280 million dollars of Iraqi assets in France. The Iraqi debt to France ammounts to an estimated 5.25 billion dollars.

ANKARA (AUG 3) - The 1000-kilometre twin pipelines providing Iraq a main outlet for oil exports via Turkey are still open, Foreign Ministry Spokesman Murat Sungar said here Friday.

He was responding to western media reports that the pipelines, linking Kirkuk oil fields to the Turkish Mediterranean port of Yumurtalik, had been shut by Ankara following the invasion of Kuwait.

Contrary to reports, there had been no official calls from the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation or elsewhere for the severence of the outlet within the context of international sanctions.

''Any such request will be evaluated only after then,'' Sungar said. State Minister Mehmet Kececiler also confirmed the pipeline was open, although the invasion of Kuwait ''could not be approved in any way''.

70 million tons of oil a year are pumped through the pipelines. Royalties paid to Turkey amount to some 300 million dollars a year.

LONDON (AUG 3) - Abd al-Rahman Bin Salah from Saudi Arabia looked depressed Friday as he saw television news on the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait at Heathrow Airport here.

The 34-year-old, on his way home with wife and daughter from a holidy in Florida, pointed to a map and said: ''My family lives not far from the Kuwaiti border. Are we the next target?''

The distance from the Kuwaiti border to Bin Salah's hometown is to overcome for the Soviet-made T-55 and T-72 tanks of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

But the Saudi calms himself by saying that Saddam does not have any ambitions against his country yet.

In order to cope with the the fact that mighty Iraq invaded tiny Kuwait the day before, people in the Gulf simply tend to suppress the bad news in order to cope with the situation.

However, they have suddenly realised the vulnerability of their rich societies - Saudi Arabia with a per capita income of 6.500 dollars per year, Kuwait with 14,600 dollars a year.

For years, the 18 million Gulf Arabs believed their kings and princes would be able to maintain stability in their region - in a balance act between the fundamnentalist Moslem Shiite rulers of Iran and the socialist-oriented Baath regime in Baghdad.

BANGKOK (AUG 3) - Factions in Cambodia's uneasy resistance coalition were showing differences Friday over peace moves on Cambodia as the United States and Vietnam prepare to open crucial talks on the country.

The differences emerged in statements by the Chinese-backed Marxist Khmer Rouge and one of its two non-communist allies on a potential role of the United Nations in resolving the country's dragging civil war.

The powerful Khmer Rouge, in a statement by its nominal leader Khieu Samphan over the faction's radio monitored here, called for the establishment of a Supreme National Council (SNC) to become "the sole authority" in Cambodia and "cooperate" with the U.N. during a transition period.

But the faction led by Prince Norodom Sihanouk, in a statement released by the former monarch's office here, expressed support for "an enhanced U.N. role" as outlined by the world's leading powers in discussions on Cambodia.

The five permanent members of the U.N. Security council took this stand in talks to be continued in New York, August 27-28.

The five are China, the guerrilla coalition's main military supplier, the United States, which has given aid to the non-communist resistance factions, and the Soviet Union, which backs Vietnam, as well as Britain and France.

The United States last week withdrew diplomatic support for the U.N.-recognised guerrilla coalition, and is to open talks Monday with Vietnam on Cambodia.

Those talks, also in New York, are likely to be followed by direct contacts with Phnom Penh and could eventually lead to normalised ties between Washington and Hanoi.

The diplomatic agenda is to include a visit by a senior Japanese diplomat to Phnom Penh, despite Tokyo's formal relations with the guerrilla alliance.

ROME (AUG 3) - Senior national officials of European Economic Community (EEC) members are to meet here Saturday to decide on "concrete measures" to put "the greatest possible pressure on the Iraqi government" to withdraw from Kuwait.

Italian Foreign Minister Gianni De Michelis, announcing the meeting of foreign ministry political directors, said the purpose was to bring about "immediate and unconditional withdrawal of Baghdad's troops" from Kuwait following the invasion Thursday.

"We will be able to bring Europe's weight to bear" in the conflict, he commented. Italy is the current EEC president.

Without anticipating EEC decisions, Mr. De Michelis said the measures would not be "confined to an embargo on military supplies, where there are any", but might also include a freeze on "political contacts and trade relationships".

The minister also expressed Italy's "firm condemnation" of the Iraqi invasion and his "great concern" in the face of risks of an aggravation of the situation.

The Italian cabinet has decided to freeze Kuwaiti assets in Italy as a precaution, as several other Western countries have done.

WASHINGTON (AUG 3) - The United States and Vietnam open key talks on Cambodia in New York Monday that could lay the groundwork for a future normalization of their relations.

More than 15 years after the end of the Vietnam war -- which claimed 58,000 U.S. lives and spawned communist regimes in the three Indochinese countries -- Hanoi and Washington still have no diplomatic ties and a crippling U.S. trade embargo against Vietnam remains in force.

The upcoming talks, to be held in a one-day session at the Vietnamese mission to the United Nations, grew out of a dramatic shift in U.S. policy on Cambodia announced by Secretary of State James Baker in Paris July 18.

Under the new policy, the United States announced it was withdrawing its diplomatic support for the tripartite Cambodian resistance at the United Nations and was also considering establishing direct contacts with Phnom Penh.

The New York discussions will be at a relatively low level. Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Kenneth Quinn will represent the United States while Hanoi will be represented by its ambassador to the U.N. Trinh Xuan Lang.

U.S. officials say the agenda will be restricted to Cambodia. Hanoi has been the main backer of the Phnom Penh government that Vietnamese forces installed in January 1979 after ousting the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge.

But Mr. Baker himself said in Jakarta late last month that Hanoi's cooperation in the talks could lead to a full-scale normalization, including the lifting of the U.S. trade embargo against cash-strapped Vietnam.

With Mr. Baker having acknowledged that the bulk of Vietnamese troops are now out of Cambodia, a settlement in Cambodia remains the only substantive obstacle to a U.S.-Vietnamese normalization.

Vietnam has welcomed the new U.S. stance on Cambodia and has pledged full cooperation in the talks for the common goal of holding free and fair elections under international supervision.

Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach said last week that Hanoi's main interests in Cambodia were two-fold: the emergence of a neutral, independent and non-aligned country that posed no threat to its neighbors, and internationally supervised elections to settle the conflict and end external arms supplies to the warring factions.

But he also made it clear that Cambodians should be allowed to decide their own internal affairs, hinting that Hanoi would resist suggestions that it put pressure on its Cambodian ally.

GENEVA (AUG 3) - The plight of 400,000 Liberians who have fled from seven months of civil war to neighbouring Guinea, Ivory Coast and Sierra Leone was "worrying", the office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees said here Friday.

The current rainy season was making it difficult to get relief supplies delivered, and a UNHCR appeal for 11 million dollars to cover refugees' needs until the end of the year had raised only four million dollars, a spokesman said.

He put the refugee numbers at 255,000 in Guinea, 110,000 in Ivory Coast, and 30,000 in Sierra Leone.

BAGHDAD (AUG 3) - Iraq renewed verbal attacks on Kuwaiti Emir Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed as-Sabah and his government Friday, accusing them of ''corruption and plundering Kuwait's national wealth''.

The ruling Arab Baath Sociliast Party, in a communiuqe read over Iraqi television, called on Arab countries to back the ''uprising'' and the new ''provisional free government of Kuwait''.

The ''uprising'', it said, was ''a natural outcome of the suspension of democratic life, supression of popular movements, waste of the national wealth and smuggling of capital abroad and using it in the service of the system of world monopoly''.

The communique added: ''All these factors combined prompted the people of Kuwait to revolt to change the internal political situation, protect the national security of the country, and ensure new foundations for safeguarding pan-Arab security.''

The communique charged that ''the hint'' by the United States to intervene militarily in Kuwait ''has confirmed beyond doubt the close links between the former Kuwaiti rulers and America''.

Iraq's action was at the request of ''nationalist Kuwaitis'', and reflected ''Iraq's deep commitment to Kuwait's national security and that of the Arab nation''.

PARIS (AUG 3) - French conservative leader Jacques Chirac, the mayor of Paris, has sent a message of condolences to British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher saying he was "deeply troubled" by the assassination of politician Ian Gow.

Mr. Chirac's office said Friday that on the day of the attack by the Irish Republican Army last Monday, he wrote to Mrs. Thatcher about the "particularly cowardly and odious attack" against Mr. Gow, a close Thatcher colleague who was chairman of a parliamentary committee on Northern Ireland.

Mr. Gow would be remembered for his "courage and moral rigour," Mr. Chirac said.

TOKYO (AUG 3) - Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu said Friday that Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev might visit Japan as early as March.

"Negotiations (between Tokyo and Moscow) are under way to enable Mr. Gorbachev to visit Japan in March for the promotion of friendly talks," Mr. Kaifu said at a seminar.

The conference was sponsored by the Tokyo Chamber of Commerce and Industry in the resort of Karuizawa, north of Tokyo.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Taizo Watanabe told reporters here that information through official channels did not specify the exact month of Mr. Gorbachev's planned trip to Japan in 1991.

After returning to Tokyo from Karuizawa, Mr. Kaifu told reporters he had simply expressed a hope at the seminar for Mr. Gorbachev's early visit to Japan.

The Soviet president has made public his plans to visit Japan sometime next year.

ROME (AUG 3) - The European Economic Community said Friday that it expected Burma's military junta to transfer power following the sweeping opposition victory in elections on May 27.

In a statement issued in Rome by the Italian Foreign Ministry, the 12 EEC nations said they "were pleased that the Burmese government kept its promise to organize elections," but expected it to "recognize the results and proceed towards a transfer of power to a civilian government within a reasonable length of time."

The EEC also expressed its "satisfaction that the Burmese people were allowed to demonstrate, through free elections, their desire for the establishment of a democratic regime."

LONDON (AUG. 3) - Alan Bond's Bond Corporation has issued a writ against the four main shareholders in British Satellite Broadcasting (BSB) following their decision last week to dilute its stake in the television venture from 28 to 7.5 percent.

A statement from the troubled Australian group here said that the writ had been issued against Granada Group, Pearson, Reed International, and Chargeurs, claiming damages for "breach of express and implied obligations under certain agreements relating to BSB".

A 450-million-pound (840-million-dollar) rights issue was 95 percent taken by the four main shareholders early in June, effectively diluting the 150-million-pound (280-million-dollar) Bond stake, but the four granted Bond Corp a grace period during which time a suitable buyer would be permitted to take up the company's original rights and maintain the stake's importance.

Because of its own dire financial position, Bond Corp was unable to take up the issue itself. Last week, the shareholders declared that this period was over. Media magnate Robert Maxwell had been the leading contender to buy the stake.

SINGAPORE (AUG. 3) - Singapore's Far East Levingston Shipbuilding (FELS), a subsidiary of Keppel Corporation, posted a post-tax profit of 7.8 million U.S. dollars in the first half of the year, up 33.5 percent from the same period last year.

The ship and rig builder said in a statement that turnover was up 33.1 percent to 64.8 million U.S. dollars during the period, from 48.6 million U.S. dollars in the first half of 1989.

Among several large repair jobs contributing to the 33.5 percent jump in profits was a 4.4 million U.S. dollar contract to build a 3,000-ton deck for the Dubai Petroleum Company, FELS said.

The company said seven major works-in-progress contracts were due for completion between the second half of the year and 1992 and this "reflects the improved market conditions." The firm also recently won a 16.2 million U.S. dollar contract to build a car factory in China by November.

FELS said it was confident earnings in the second half of the year would be even stronger than in the first six months.

MOSCOW (AUG 3) - Lithuanian Premier Kazimiera Prunskiene met here Friday with Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov for talks on future economic ties between the secessionist Baltic republic and Moscow, the semi-official Interfax news agency said.

She also met earlier with Russian Federation Premier Ivan Silayev to prepare for a bilateral economic treaty between the two republics, Tass news agency said.

Mr. Silayev told Tass afterwards: "We have reached an agreement on all the key issues that interest our republics."

"Members of both governments have been given a week to prepare a draft treaty," he said, adding that he and other Russian officials would travel to Lithuania on August 15 and 16 to sign the treaty, the first between the two Soviet republics since they proclaimed their sovereignty.

Lithuania, in addition, has proclaimed its independence, which Moscow has not recognized. Vilnius and Moscow are to open negotiations on the issue shortly.

Interfax said Mrs. Prunskiene had told Mr. Ryzhkov that members of a Lithuania delegation charged with negotiating an independence deal would travel soon to Moscow to sign a protocol on beginning the talks.

Vilnius has agreed to a 100-day moratorium on its independence declaration from the time negotiations with Moscow begin.

PRETORIA (AUG 3) - President Frederik De Klerk Friday named four senior cabinet ministers as his team for the second round of preliminary talks Monday between the government and the black nationalist African National Congress.

The talks here, Mr. De Klerk said, will focus on the progress made on the implementation of agreements in accordance with the Groote Schuur Minute, reached after the first ground-breaking talks between the government and an ANC delegation on May 2-4.

"These include instructions to the working group on political offences, as well as the implementation of undertakings regarding violence, intimidation and destablilisation, as contained in the Minute," Mr. De Klerk's statement said.

Both the ANC and government have pared down their teams from the 11 and nine members respectively who took part in the Groote Schuur talks.

Mr. Botha will be assisted by Foreign Affairs Minister Pik Botha, Constitutional Development Minister Gerrit Viljoen, Justice Minister Kobie Coetsee, Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok, and "some officials", he said.

The ANC team comprises its deputy president Nelson Mandela, South African Communist Party general secretary Joe Slovo, ANC international relations chief Thabo Mbeki, Joe Modise, commander-in-chief of the ANC's military wing Umkhonto we Sizwe, and ANC secretary-general Alfred Nzo, an ANC spokeswoman confirmed Friday.

Mr. Mandela, who went to Durban Friday to address the National Association of Democratic Lawyers, told a press conference on arrival in the eastern port city that the Zulu civil war in Natal province would be on Monday's agenda.

Clashes in Natal and KwaZulu tribal homeland between the pro-ANC United Democratic Front and Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi's Inkatha party have killed more than 3,000 people in less than four years.

"Our leadership has visited this area before on countless occasions, and I thought I should visit the province myself and study the situation on the ground," Mr. Mandela said.

Asked whether he would meet Mr. Buthelezi while in Natal, Mr. Mandela said: "We are addressing the question of black unity and have appointed a top committee of various members of the national executive committee to address the whole question of how violence could be ended."

Mr. Slovo and ANC internal leader Walter Sisulu are also in Natal for a top-level conference this weekend between the ANC and its affiliates in the million-strong Congress of South African Trade Unions and the anti-apartheid United Democratic Front which have been at loggerheads with Inkatha.

MANILA (AUG 3) - A presidential panel investigating the slaying of two Philippine military officers by lawmen said Friday it was seeking the testimony of three U.S. narcotics agents allegedly involved in the incident.

The body, named by President Corazon Aquino, "decided to reiterate its invitation to three American agents ... Philip Needham, Andrew Feinrich and Jake Fernandez to testify before it to help establish the true facts of the alleged frustrated drug transaction" on July 10, a statement by the panel said.

Panel head Magdangal Elma said in the statement that "no matter where Mr. Needham, Feinrich and Fernandez may be located now, the committee is willing to meet with them at any time and place, mutually acceptable to all concerned."

The three U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) agents and 13 members of the Justice Department's National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) and Manila police force were charged by the paramilitary Philippine Constabulary (PC) with murder after a military colonel, a major and a civilian PC agent were shot dead by Manila policemen.

The State Department said the three U.S. agents have left the country and do not plan to return. The investigating committee ordered all prosecuting agencies Thursday to suspend any charges filed against the 13 lawmen and the three DEA agents.

The NBI and police charge that Colonel Rolando De Guzman, Major Franco Calanog and the PC agent were trying to sell a disguised U.S. narcotics agent a suitcase full of heroin in a "buy-bust" operation on July 10 and were killed while resisting arrest.

The PC however say the three men were executed. The Constabulary had previously insisted the two officers and the agent were on a secret mission when they were slain.

Defense Under-secretary Leonardo Quisumbing has stressed "the essentiality of the Americans' testimonies" in the investigation of the incident, which has strained relations between the military and the NBI and police.

NEW DELHI (AUG 3) - Indian Prime Minister Vishwanath Pratap Singh emerged unscathed Friday from a confidence vote ordered by his ruling Janata Dal (People's Party), the party announced.

The Janata Dal, the largest component of the five-party National Front government, unanimously expressed "full confidence" in the leadership of Mr. V.P. Singh, a party official said.

The party decided to take the vote after Mr. V.P. Singh sacked his belligerent deputy, Devi Lal, from his eight-month-old government, triggering fears that the act could lead to his downfall.

The Janata Dal in a formal resolution expressed full confidence in the leadership of Mr. V.P. Singh, 59, Textile Minister Sharad Pawar told reporters after the 40-minute session.

Mr. Devi Lal, whose sacking Thursday prompted the emergency assembly of MPs, said no one had challenged the prime minister's leadership.

"A situation of confidence arises only if someone has expressed no confidence," Mr. Devi Lal, 75, was quoted by party leaders as saying at the meeting.

The meeting was attended by the premier, his cabinet, chief ministers of the state governments controlled by the ruling alliance or its allies and the MPs.

Mr. V.P. Singh, who faced his first vote of confidence since his fragile minority government came to power in December 1989, said whatever poll promises the ruling alliance has made would be fulfilled.

The motion seeking the party's reaffirmation of Mr. V.P. Singh's leadership was moved by Industries Minister Ajit Singh and approved by Law Minister Dinesh Goswamy.

GENEVA (AUG 3) - Negotiations on the repatriation of Vietnamese boatpeople remain deadlocked because of differences between the United States, Vietnam and southeast Asian countries, a spokesman for the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) said Friday.

"All efforts to bring together the points of view of the U.S., Vietnam, and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) have proved futile," spokesman Sergio Vieira de Mello said. "We are where we were back in January."

On July 11, the UNHCR postponed an executive committee meeting on the boatpeople question due to the same lack of agreement.

The United States remains firmly opposed to the forced return of the boatpeople to Vietnam.

Britain, whose colony Hong Kong already hosts some 54,000 Indochinese refugees in crowded camps, favours forced repatriation.

On July 24, ASEAN countries denounced the "intolerable burden" of the swelling influx and threatened to stop offering asylum to the refugees.

The UNHCR, which puts the number of boatpeople in refugee camps in the region at 120,000, has noted an increasing number of Cambodian refugees, many of them in Thailand and Indonesia.

Mr. Vieira de Mello said the 4,000 voluntary repatriations to Vietnam was "not negligible" and said he expected thousands more to follow.

Thorvald Stoltenberg, the U.N. High Commissioner, is still working on a solution to the boatpeople crisis, Mr. Vieera de Mello said.

One option unlikely to spark U.S. opposition would be to offer material aid to boatpeople "who are not candidates for repatriation, but who wouldn't be opposed to it."

Mr. Vieira de Mello praised offers of aid from European Economic Community nations and said increased aid to Vietnam was needed to encourage its nationals not to flee.

ADDIS ABABA (AUG 3) - Ethiopia and the Organisation of African Unity (OAU) Friday condemned Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and called for the immediate withdrawal of Baghdad's occupation forces.

The foreign ministry said in a statement that the Ethiopian government "had learnt with shock about the invasion which was a flagrant and clear violation of international law."

"Ethiopia condemns this totally unwarranted step, which is fraught with dangerous consequences for international peace and security," the statement said, underlining that the disruption of peace and security in the Middle East, the Gulf and the Red Sea regions affected the security of Ethiopia.

Recourse to use of force to settle international disputes could reverse the current positive trends of dialogue and reconciliation in inter-state relations so visible at the global level, the statement added.

In statement issued from its headquarters here, the OAU called for the immediate withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait and urged the use of dialogue to settle their differences.

The OAU appealed to the international community to use all means at its disposal to maintain the territorial integrity of Kuwait, saying that the invasion "was a flagrant violation of international law" and was dangerous to the already fragile security situation in the Middle East.

TOKYO (AUG. 3) - The volume of cocaine confiscated in Japan during the first half of this year jumped by some 46 times from the same period last year to 62.3 kilograms (137 pounds), police said Friday.

A total of 1.3 kilograms (2.86 pounds) of cocaine was seized in the January-June period of 1989, the National Police Agency said.

Cocaine-related arrests in the six months totaled 52, five more than during the corresponding period in 1989, the agency said.

Agency officials said they believed that cocaine syndicates in South America were trying to make inroads in the Japanese market.

"We sincerely hope that Iraq would soon withdraw its troops," it added.

NAIROBI (AUG 3) - The United Nations is about to launch a peace initiative in Liberia, U.S. Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs Herman Cohen said here Friday.

Mr. Cohen, addressing a press conference in Nairobi, where he has held talks with Kenyan President Daniel arap Moi, said: "within a matter of days if not hours, I believe that the U.N. will be taking some initiative."

He said there was a consensus among African nations on the need for U.N. peace moves in Liberia, wracked by bitter fighting between rebel groups and government forces. He said he did not know what form such an initiative would take.

Mr. Cohen said he would try to persuade the Organisation of African Unity (OAU) to take a "more active role in Liberia." He is to leave here Sunday for Kampala, where he will meet the new chairman of the Organisation of African Unity, President Yoweri Museveni of Uganda.

Mr. Cohen said the OAU could help to find a "non-violent solution" to the Liberian conflict.

ACCRA (AUG 3) - Ghana urged the Iraqi government Friday to immediately withdraw its forces from Kuwait.

In a statement, Information Secretary Kofi Totobi Quakyi said the Ghana government also urged all powers within and outside the Gulf area to refrain from any action that might aggravate the conflict between Iraq and Kuwait.

"The government of Ghana feels compelled to address an urgent appeal to Iraq to exercise restraint and to return to the negotiating table with Kuwait in order to bring about a peaceful settlement," the statement said.

It said the appeal is in accordance with the spirit of the Non-Aligned Movement and the United Nations Charter "particularly the principle of non-use of force in the settlement of disputes."

Iraq invaded Kuwait on Thursday after the breakdown of Iraqi-Kuwaiti talks in Saudi Arabia on an oil and territorial dispute.

PARIS (AUG. 3) - France continued to bask in a heat wave Friday as temperatures rose still further, but four Swiss mountaineers and a Briton were killed in the French alps by falling rocks loosened by melting glaciers.

Mountain guide Daniel Meot in Chamonix, eastern France, said the temperatures were currently so high in the mountains that even at night, apparently-solid glacier walls "are just piles of rock waiting to fall at any moment".

A British mountaineer, 21-year-old Jonathan Smith from Kettering, Northamptonshire (central England), was killed on Thursday in a similar incident, authorities said Friday.

Paris sweltered in 36 degrees Centigrade (97 degrees Fahrenheit) registered at 4.00 p.m. (1400 GMT), compared with 34 degrees (94 F) on Thursday. The meteorological office predicted record temperatures of around 39 degrees in much of France on Saturday.

WASHINGTON (AUG 3) - An invasion of Saudi Arabia by Iraqi forces that took over Kuwait cannot be ruled out, David Boren, chairman of the U.S. Senate Intelligence Committee, said Friday.

Senator Boren spoke to reporters after receiving a briefing from the Central Intelligence Agency on the situation in the Gulf, where Iraqi forces were reported to be consolidating their hold of neighboring Kuwait, the tiny oil-rich emirate which shares a border with Saudi Arabia.

Some sources said that President George Bush's daily intelligence briefing was believed to have focused Friday on a possible Iraqi incursion into Saudi Arabia, which has close ties with Washington.

Unconfirmed reports circulating on Wall Street said the Iraqi forces, which swept across the Kuwaiti border early Thursday, had now crossed into Saudi Arabia. The Saudi Embassy here said it had no information on the report.

Meanwhile, the speaker of the House of Representatives, Thomas Foley, said on the NBC Television network: "If there's an intention of Iraq to overrun Saudi Arabia, then I think this would call for a direct military response by the United States, Western Europe, maybe even the Soviet Union."

"This would be an action that could not be ignored," he added.

However, analysts said U.S. military options in the Gulf appeared limited because U.S. forces lacked sufficient attack power and bases in the area to deal with the battled-hardened Iraqi forces.

GENEVA (AUG 3) - Some 500 Kuwaitis demonstrated in front of United Nations headquarters Friday, demanding that the United Nations put pressure on Iraq to withdraw its forces from Kuwait.

A delegation of five representatives from the protestors was received by a senior U.N. official.

The demonstrators waved pictures of Kuwait's emir, Sheikh Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah, and carried banners saying "No to aggression, no to the violation of international law," and "Long live Kuwait."

The crowd, some of whom said that they were tourists in Switzerland, also chanted "Iraqi army out."

"We call for help to force the Iraqi to withdraw unconditionally," declared Ahmed Al Rifai, a demonstrator, while another Kuwaiti demanded outside military intervention.

Shortly beforehand, the demonstrators had been received at the Kuwaiti mission to the UN by Salem Jaber Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah, the son of the Kuwaiti emir.

In the Hague, a group of some 60 Kuwaitis, who had been in the Netherlands for several weeks as tourists, demonstrated in front of the Iraqi Embassy.

Carrying pictures of the Kuwaiti emir, they condemned the Iraqi invasion and called for outside intervention.

LONDON (AUG. 3) - Natural rubber prices eased over the past week on the London physical market, as recently-firmer higher grades were hit by profit-taking, traders said Friday.

The price for Ribbed Smoked Sheet No. 1 (RSS 1) for September delivery closed at 517.5 pounds per ton against 525 pounds the previous Friday.

Traders were expecting the International Natural Rubber Organisation (INRO) indicator price to fall to its may-buy level of 176 MalaysianSingapore cents per kilo, at which the buffer stock manager is authorised to buy supplies in a bid to support the market.

Industry sources in Indonesia said that the market's weakness could cause the world's second-biggest producer to stockpile output while waiting for a recovery.

PRETORIA (AUG. 3) - South African Foreign Minister Pik Botha on Friday joined the worldwide condemnation of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. In a statement here, Botha said the government had noted events "with grave concern," adding that it "condemns the invasion by Iraqi forces of Kuwait."

"These events are made all the more regrettable in the face of the efforts made by a number of parties in the region to settle the Iraq-Kuwait dispute peacefully through negotiations," he said.

"In the new spirit of conciliation now prevailing throughout the world, based on South Africa's own successful experience in resolving disputes through negotiation, the South African government calls on Iraq to cease all military actions, and to withdraw its troops from Kuwait immediately."

Botha said Pretoria would "under no circumstances ... consider recognition of the so-called provisional government installed by force in Kuwait."

MOSCOW (AUG. 3) - Doubts were expressed in Moscow on Friday over surprise proposals to bring pan-German elections forward seven weeks, with an official saying the "unexpected development" risked disrupting work on external aspects of German unification.

East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere proposed moving the election from December 2 to October 14 at a press conference in Berlin earlier Friday, and hours later West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl supported the move in a statement released in Bonn.

Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gremitskikh said the parties to the "Two-plus-Four" talks, the Soviet Union, United States, France, Britain and the two Germanies, were already stretched to complete their workload before the original election date of December 2.

The Soviet spokesman added that the new date would bring the elections ahead of a Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe summit scheduled to be held in Paris on November 19.

Mr. de Maiziere has said he wants the polls moved up in the interests of "political clarity and economic security".

ATHENS (AUG 3) - The Greek Government said Friday that two U.S. military bases on the Greek island of Crete, in the southeastern Mediterranean Sea, could not be used for a possible military move by the United States in the Gulf region in response to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Government spokesman Byron Polydoras said the question of U.S. intervention was "hypothetical", but, in any event "the U.S. bases on Crete will not be used for military actions in the Gulf."

After the signing in early July of a new military accord between Greece and the U.S., Greek opposition leaders claimed the conservative government of Prime Minister Constantin Mitsotakis had agreed the United States could use the bases on Crete as a launch pad for strikes in the Middle East.

The Kuwait crisis dominated discussion at an inner cabinet meeting here Friday.

Mr. Polydoras said Greece's position on the crisis "is identical to the views expressed by the European Economic Community, with which we are in constant contact."

Mr. Polydoras said the Greek Government was monitoring the Kuwait crisis closely as some 200 Greek nationals live in the emirate.

He added that Greeks in Kuwait were "fine" so far, and that the government was prepared to repatriate them if necessary.

CARACAS, (AUG 3) - Venezuela may boost its oil production and exports to the United States and Europe to fill the void in supplies caused by the Gulf conflict, but government officials Friday denied that negotiations were under way.

Venezuela, in accord with the system of oil quotas set by the Organization of Petroleum Producing Countries (OPEC), produces 1,945,000 barrels of oil a day, of which it exports 1,600,000 barrels a day.

It can boost its production to a sustainable level of 2,500,000 barrels a day, according to the state-owned monolopy, Petroleos de Venezuela (PDVSA).

PDVSA and Energy Ministry officials have denied that there have been discussions with consumer nations on an imminent increase in the Venezuelan supplies after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait Thursday.

But a top-level source in the energy ministry told Agence France-Presse that "undoubtedly discussions were being stepped up with Washington on a contingency plan for oil supplies in the hemisphere."

The energy official recalled that, through the initiative of U.S. President George Bush and Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez, their respective energy ministers, James Watkins and Celestino Armas, had met in June and July to discuss a plan for energy security in the hemisphere.

Mr. Armas proposed that the United States develop investments in Venezuela to prepare an oil-production potential of a million barrels a day, in addition to the estimated 2.7 million barrels daily that Venezuela can extract on a sustained basis.

This high-production level would only be implemented as a security net, Mr. Armas suggested.

The United States imports 750,000 barrels of oil a day from Iraq and Kuwait.

Thursday Washington declared a virtual trade embargo against Iraq, blocking Iraqi oil imports.

The energy official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said, "These conversations have now taken on a sense of urgency, and in general the position of Venezuela as a secure oil provider is going to be strengthened."

"We ought to make the most of this situation, although the ministry acts with prudence and we cannot make hurried decisions," he said.

Venezuela, as well as Iraq and Kurwait, are founding members of OPEC. Caracas was expected to act in accordance with other moderating forces within the organization.

Humberto Calderon, energy minister from 1979 to 1983, said that Venezuela should increase its oil production to avoid skyrocketing prices, to demonstrate itself as a secure and responsible oil producer, and because "we are not obligated to meet OPEC quotas."

"The use of force is a new element and absolutely unacceptable," Mr. Calderon said.

"It is unlikely that Iraq will be satisfied with devouring Kuwait. Next it will go for Qatar and the (United Arab) Emirates. Venezuela should not feel obligated to this OPEC, and if the situation continues, it should withdraw from the organization," he said.

An influential oil expert, Alberto Quiros, former president of the PDVSA worker organizations, said that Venezuela should learn from this situation to insist on a preferential oil treaty with the United States.

The Caracas media, for its part, published unofficial reports on the ability of Venezuela to increase quickly its production to 600,000 barrels a day and articles on increases in crude oil prices since the Iraqi invasion.

BELGRADE (AUG. 3) - Hunger strikes and revolts have erupted in prisons across Yugoslavia after new non-communist authorities in the republic of Croatia passed a law reducing prisoners' sentences there by one-fourth.

Rebellions aimed at winning pardons broke out Thursday at two prisons in Montenegro, in the southwest, as well as at jails in Sresmka Mitrovica, in Serbia, and Idrizovo, in Macedonia.

Justice Minister Vlado Kambovksi called an urgent meeting of justice ministers from the republics Thursday and afterwards announced that from Monday procedures would start to reduce sentences for prisoners condemned under federal law.

Earlier in the week, inmates staged hunger strikes at prisons in Stara Gradiska, northwestern Croatia, and Novo Mesto, Slovenia.

The wave of revolts began when Croatia's new non-communist authorities adopted legislation reducing by a quarter sentences of prisoners convicted under Croatian law.

Croatia adopted the law after a prison revolt at the Stara Gradiska penitentiary sparked by inmates impatient to see Croatian President Franjo Tudjman put into effect an amnesty campaign promise.

Under the new Croatian law, 327 prisoners were released early this week and 2,500 others are expected to be set free by the end of the year.

NEW YORK (AUG 3) - The United Nations Security Council may meet Friday again and debate whether sanctions should be clamped against Iraq which invaded Kuwait the day before.

The council Thursday passed a resolution calling on Iraq to pull out its troops from Kuwait at once and unconditionally. Should Iraq not comply, the council would ''meet again to consider further steps to ensure compliance with this resolution''.

According to article 41 of the U.N. charter, the council can ''make recommendations or decide what measures shall be taken to restore international peace and security''.

The measures may include ''complete or partial interruption of economic relations and of rail, sea, postal, telegraphic, radio and other means of communication, and the severence of diplomatic relations''.

Article 42 says that if these measures proved inadequate, any action by air, sea, or land forces may be taken as necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security.

PRAGUE (AUG 3) - The governments of Czechoslovakia, Poland and Italy all announced Friday that they were halting arms shipments to Iraq in response to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

A communique issued by the Czechoslovak government and carried by the news agency CTK said that in addition to military supplies, the cutoff also applied to "all other shipments which might be used by Iraq for military purposes."

CTK said the Iraqi charge d'affaires in Prague had been summoned Friday to the Czechoslovak Foreign Ministry, where a Czechoslovak official communicated to him a "vigorous protest against the Iraqi aggression against Kuwait."

The Iraqi charge d'affaires refused to accept an official note of protest addressed by Prague to Baghdad.

In Warsaw, Foreign Minister Jan Majewski summoned the Iraqi ambassador to inform him that the Polish government was cutting off all exports of military materiel to Iraq and demanded the "immediate withdrawal" of the Iraqi army from Kuwait, according to the Polish news agency PAP.

Poland also announced that it was ready to "cooperate with the international community and work in favor of the respect of Kuwait's sovereignty," PAP said.

In Rome, the Italian government decided Friday to suspend delivery of arms and military materiel to Iraq, according to a statement released by the Council of Ministers.

HANOI (AUG 3) - Vietnam's communist leadership plans to tighten its already strict press controls, the official Nhan Dan daily said Friday.

The party secretariat will strengthen state and party controls on publishing and the press at a time when "imperialism and hostile forces are using them to incite political and ideological trouble," the Communist Party newspaper said.

Authorities believe the country is the target of a "plot by imperialists and reactionary Vietnamese" to overthrow the communist system, the paper said. Hanoi has condemned the recent wave of political liberalization sweeping socialist countries.

Newspaper editors and publishers must now "be members of the party and responsible for carrying out the party's political and ideological orientations," Nhan Dan said.

The rule was apparently directed at the press in Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon, which has become increasingly independent in recent years.

Tighter restrictions were necessary to stop "the circulation of reactionary and decadent publications" opposing "party lines, falsifying history and repudiating revolutionary gains," Nhan Dan said.

Friday's announcement followed several months of tighter political and ideological controls, particularly over intellectuals.

KUWAIT (AUG 3) - Iraq on Friday blatantly defied denunciations of its invasion of Kuwait and extended its control over the emirate with attacks on strategic installations as an Arab summit to resolve the Gulf crisis was shaping up.

Iraqi troops, now in full control of Kuwait City, had Friday afternoon blocked off most roads with buses and were patrolling streets of the capital and its suburbs, residents said.

Nervous tension gripped Kuwait Friday afternoon after a lull in the fighting between Iraqi troops and loyalist Kuwaiti forces and amid reports that the interior and defense ministers had been wounded during the combat.

"There is no curfew in town but nobody is risking going out on the street," one resident said.

Almost two days after Iraq announced the installation of a provisional Kuwaiti government, there was still no word on its composition or tendencies.

"In any event, it will be a government installed in the wake of the invasion troops, that will have no legitimacy," a Gulf-based Western diplomat said.

On Thursday, Baghdad said the new government which announced the overthrow of the emir, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah, had appealed for Iraqi military assitance. But Kuwaiti radio, which went off the air Friday, denied the new government's existence.

"The Iraqis didn't bother to form a government in advance," the diplomat said. "They seem to be having difficulties forming it from figures that are more or less credible."

Arab leaders meanwhile engaged in a flurry of diplomatic activity to defuse the Gulf tension while Egypt, a key ally of Iraq's in its eight-year war with Iran, called for the immediate withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait and condemned the invasion.

An Egyptian foreign ministry communique said the lightning operation "was a flagrant violation of international law in general and of the Arab League charter, which stipulates that member states pledge not to interfere in each other's internal affairs."

It was the first official Egyptian reaction and came as Arab foreign ministers were resuming their meeting in Cairo late Friday to review the Gulf crisis.

Also in Cairo, Kuwait's Minister of State for Cabinet Affairs, Abdel Rahman al-Awad said forces from the Gulf Cooperation Council -- which groups Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Oman and Qatar -- would intervene to salvage the situation.

He added that a mini Arab summit this weekend in the Saudi city of Jeddah would include the leaders of Egypt, Saudi Arabia, the ousted Kuwaiti emir and Jordan's King Hussein.

King Hussein made a brief stopover Friday in Baghdad for talks with President Saddam Hussein following similar discussion on Thursday with the Egyptian President, Hosni Mubarak.

The king announced the mini summit in Amman after his return from his trip but gave no details on which Arab leaders would attend.

The vice president of Iraq's Revolutionary Command Council, Izzat Ibrahim, meanwhile met with Saudi Arabia's King Fahd in Jeddah, the official Saudi SPA news agency reported.

The Kuwaiti ambassador in London, Ghazi Al-Rayess, said earlier that fierce fighting took place Friday in Kuwait City between Iraqi and Kuwaiti forces and that there had been a "large number" of casualties, including civilians.

Fear of an escalation came after the Washigton Post, citing unnamed U.S. officials, reported Tuesday that Iraq had deployed as many as 100,000 soldiers in the invasion.

Friday's reports of fighting coincided with widespread speculation here that Defense Minister Sheikh Nawaf al-Ahmad, whose whereabouts have been unknown since Thursday, had been wounded in fighting with Iraqi troops and hospitalized.

Interior Minister Sheikh Salem Sabah al-Ahmad is also believed to have been wounded while the Kuwaiti ruler's brother, Sheikh Fahd al-Ahmad al-Sabah, was killed.

Several members of the Kuwaiti ruling family, including the emir and Crown Prince Sheikh Saad al-Abdallah al-Sabah, managed to flee Kuwait.

The emir's son said the ruler was in southern Kuwait near the Saudi border while other reports said he had sought refuge in Saudi Arabia after fleeing his palace by helicopter before the Iraqis overran his residence.

Despite Iraq's military and technological power, it is burdened by a 70 billion dollar debt incurred during its war with Iran, a battered economy and an ageing petroleum infrastructure.

It has also been engaged in a bitter row with Kuwait over what it charges is Kuwait's deliberate exceeding of its oil production quota which Baghdad says has undermined Iraq's economy.

TEHERAN (AUG 3) - The Iraqi invasion of Kuwait has left its former Gulf war foe Iran in an awkward position, undermining the government's diplomatic efforts in the region.

At home, hardliners who oppose the moderate policies of President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, will see the Iraqi operation as proof of the need to use force with Baghdad.

The Iraqi military intervention came nearly two years after Iran agreed to endorse a United Nations-sponsored truce in its eight-year war with Iraq, which had accepted the peace call in 1987.

President Rafsanjani was the architect behind Iran's acceptance of a cease-fire with Iraq that took effect August 20, 1988 with the deployment of U.N. observers along their common borders.

Since his election one year ago he has irked his detractors with his policy of openness and for accepting to meet Iraqi President Saddam Hussein on neutral ground to discuss a peace settlement.

Mr. Rafsanjani had made the comment in response to a letter he received in May from the Iraqi president containing peace overtures.

Two months later Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati paid the first visit in 10 years by an Iranian official to Kuwait and shortly after that he met his Iraqi counterpart Tareq Aziz for first-ever direct talks between them to find a settlement to their countries' endemic dispute.

The Iranian president has sought better ties with the West and Arab states, particularly the six wealthy nations that form the Gulf Cooperation Council (Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Qatar, Bahrain, Oman and the United Arab Emirates) that would provide Iran with funds to rebuild its economy.

If the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait were to destabilise the Gulf, Iran's foundering economy would be severely hit and its oil exports, already crippled during the Gulf war, could be threatened again.

This would also play in the hands of his opponents who could use any further worsening of the economy to stir popular discontent with the government's policies.

Thus, the Iraqi invasion could put into question Mr. Rafsanjani's efforts to date to turn a new page in Iran's history and secure a rapprochement with Iraq as well as Kuwait.

This would then explain why the foreign ministry failed to make any comments immediately after the dawn invasion of Kuwait by Iraqi forces.

But on Thursday evening the comment did come.

The Iranian Foreign Ministry denounced the Iraqi operation and deplored the "grave consequences" it could have on the "national security of Iran, the security of the region and peace in the world."

But the ministry, in an apparent bid to avoid taking sides, stressed that Iran's condemnation merely reflected its commitment to principles of territorial sovereignty and non-interference in the internal affairs of other countries.

President Rafsanjani had earlier met with members of the Supreme National Council, responsible for Iranian defense and security policies.

At the end of the meeting official Teheran Radio issued a terse statement: "The necessary decisions have been taken" lending weight to belief that Teheran fears the invasion will yield unpredictable and destabilising effects both for itself and the Gulf region.

WASHINGTON (AUG 3) - Iraqi troops have come to between five and ten miles of the Saudi border in the invasion of Kuwait, the U.S. State Department said Friday.

''Their presence there is of course a matter of significant concern,'' said deputy State Department spokesman Richard Boucher.

Asked if there were plans for U.S. action should Iraqi troops march into Saudi Arabia, he gave no direct answer, but mentioned the ''long-standing ties and friendship'' between Riyadh and Washington.

Earlier reports from Brussels quoted U.S. officials at the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation headquarters as saying the United States was taking measures to prepare itself in the event of Iraq attacking another Arab state after Kuwait.

Informed sources said U.S. officials had informed the Nato political Committee accordingly. ''The United States would not look on idly if Iraq widens the conflict,'' the officials were quoted as saying.

The sources said the other members of the western military alliance had supported the U.S. stance in principle although no concrete decisions had been made at the committee session.

Meanwhile in London the British Defence Ministry said two more frigates were being sent to the Gulf, whewre Britain had only one destroyer at present.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater later said of the reports of Iraqi troop near the Saudi border: ''We are extremely concerned about Iraq broadening its expansion.''

He, too, declined to comment about any possible U.S. counter-action. ''We don't discuss specific options,'' he said.

Fitzwater confirmed that the aircraft carrier ''Saratoga'' would shortly head a flotilla into the eastern Mediterranean, where the carrier ''Eisenhauer'' and accompanying vessels already were.

However, instead of relieving the ''Eisenhauer'' as originally planned, both carriers would stay in the area.

Fitzwater said U.S. President George Bush had a series of long telephone calls since the Iraqi invasion with the leaders of Egypt, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Yemen.

Main concerns had been securing shipping routes in the Gulf area, friendly ties with countries in the region and security considerations, securing oil supplies, and the safety of 3,800 U.S. nationals in Kuwait and 500 in Iraq.

Fitzwater said the Arab leaders had stressed that the crisis was an inter-Arab affair which needed time for a negotiated settlement.

MOSCOW (AUG. 3) - Police reinforcements have been sent to the autonomous Soviet republic of Tuva, northwest of Mongolia, following inter-ethnic clashes between indigenous Tuvans and ethnic Russians, Soviet newspapers said Friday.

Tuvans accuse the Russians of plundering their natural resources, gold and cobalt.

Police from the Russian Federation, of which Tuva is a part, were sent to the region after clashes erupted repeatedly since May, but the situation remains tense, according to Sielskaia Jizn, a Soviet Communist Party newspaper.

Tuvans recently held the local deputy interior minister, M. P. Badiunuv, hostage for two days in the village of Elegest until they won the temporary release of a Tuvan family jailed for bombing the home of a Russian family in late May, the newspaper Komsomolskaia Pravda said.

In the capital Kyzyl, an anti-tank mine was found at a barracks housing reinforcement troops from the Russian Federation.

Tuva, with a population of 309,000, was incorporated into the Soviet Union as an autonomous region in 1944, and made an autonomous republic in 1961.

Some 36 percent of the population is now Russian.

"This is a sensible precaution and will provide additional reassurance to our friends in the Gulf and British shipping interests," it added.

The destroyer York and the support vessel Orangeleaf are already in the Gulf region.

AMMAN (AUG 3) - King Hussein of Jordan said here Friday that any foreign intervention in the Gulf region would not be welcomed and could be "devastating to the interests of all."

"I believe that any outside actions in any part of the Arab world are not going to be very welcomed and I believe when it was suggested that such an option has been ruled out, it does not mean it is still there," the king told Jordan television's English service on his return from visits to Iraq and Egypt.

King Hussein was referring to a statement by U.S. President George Bush who did not rule out the possibility of direct intervention in the Gulf after Iraqi troops invaded neighboring Kuwait in a lightning operation on Thursday.

The king's comments came as the aircraft carrier the USS Independence and its battle group were steaming full speed toward the Gulf Friday from the Indian Ocean and amid reports from London that Britain was to dispatch two frigates to the region to back up a destroyer and support vessel already there.

The United States has six warships and two ammunition supply vessels in the Gulf.

King Hussein made a brief stopover in Baghdad on Friday for talks with President Saddam Hussein following similar discussions on Thursday in Alexandria, Egypt, with President Hosni Mubarak.

The monarch announced the convocation of a mini Arab summit this weekend in the Saudi city of Jeddah to discuss the conflict between Iraq and Kuwait over oil production quotas and border markings, but gave no details on which Arab leaders would attend.

"Our approach is to try to resolve this problem and any other problem within the context of the Arab family," he said.

CAIRO (AUG 3) - Arab foreign ministers meeting here late Friday condemned Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and called for the "immediate and unconditional withdrawal" of Iraqi troops, Arab League secretary general Chedli Klibi announced.

The condemnation came in the wake of worldwide criticism of Iraq and a swipe by Egypt, one of Iraq's key allies during its eight-year war with Iran.

Iraq invaded Kuwait in a lighning operation on Thursday after the collapse of Iraqi-Kuwaiti talks in the Saudi city of Jeddah over a bitter oil production and territorial dispute.

PARIS (AUG 3) - Telephone lines between Kuwait and the West have been cut off since Friday morning, the French national telephone company France Telecom said.

A France Telecom official said it was impossible to phone Kuwait from France, other European countries, and the United States.

Telephone lines to Iraq were still open but overloaded as telephone calls must go through an operator in Baghdad, the France Telecom official said.

Communications between other Gulf states and Kuwait were intermittent on Friday, although not totally cut off, but contact with Baghdad was next to impossible, residents in the region said.

BAGHDAD (AUG 3) - Iraqi Deputy Foreign Minister Nizar Hamdoun met with diplomats from India, Pakistan, Thailand, Sri Lanka and the Philippines here Friday to assure them that their nationals would be protected in Kuwait.

The official INA news agency said Mr. Hamdoun assured the diplomats that Iraqi troops in Kuwait had clear instructions to protect the welfare of all civilians in general and foreigners residing in Kuwait in particular.

The ambassadors of India, Pakistan and Thailand and the charges d'affaires of Sri Lanka and the Philippines attended the meeting.

The report came amid tension and fighting in Kuwait a day after Iraq invaded its Gulf neighbor and announced the formation of a new provisional government and as Arab leaders geared up for an emergency mini-summit this weekend in Saudi Arabia.

Iraq announced late Friday that it would begin withdrawing its troops from Kuwait on Sunday.

On Thursday, the new authorities issued a communique urging foreigners "to maintain self-restraint and abide by decisions and instructions issued by the government."

SANTIAGO (AUG. 3) EFE - Chilean President Patricio Aylwin has pardoned two more political prisoners jailed under the previous right-wing military dictatorship, Justice Minister Francisco Cumplido said.

Cumplido Thursday declined to give the names of the two prisoners, but said they were not accused of murder or other serious crimes exempt from the government's amnesty program.

Since taking office in March, Aylwin has pardoned nearly 50 political prisoners accused of non-violent crimes under the near 17-year rule of Gen. Augusto Pinochet.

But 261 leftist activists accused of political crimes are still jailed.

Relatives of the inmates have staged sit-ins at jails to demand the release of the remaining political prisoners.

The government has said it will not bow to pressure tactics to change its policy.

LIBREVILLE (AUG 3) EFE - After months of protests, the one-party government in Gabon have set a date for the nation's first free elections in over 26 years, Gabon Radio announced Friday.

President Omar Bongo of the ruling Gabonese Democratic Block (BDG) party agreed Thursday to hold free elections on Sept. 9 and 23, the radio reported.

Efforts to create a more democratic government in this West African nation have steered a rocky course since the National Conference on Democracy attended by some seventy political groups last March made strong demands for political reform.

The democratization process seemed endangered in April, after the murder of one of the main opposition leaders, Joseph Renjambe of the Gabonese Progress Party (PGP), a crime many blamed on Bongo.

But the recent refusal of the opposition parties to join Bongo's BDG for five years and the general trend towards democracy in West Africa over the last few months have increased pressure for multi-party elections.

Gabon has been in severe economic difficuties since the government clashed with opposition groups in Port Gentil, forcing the French-run oil company ELF and Anglo-Dutch Shell to stop oil production, Gabon's most important source of revenue.

A former French colony and one of the weathiest West African nations, Gabon has been controlled by the BDG for over 26 years.

Bongo, 54, has been the absolute ruler for 22 years.

TEHRAN (AUG 3) EFE - An Iranian religious leader Friday expressed his approval of the new British position on the Rushdie case which led to the breaking of relations between Iran and Britain in 1989, the Iranian news agency IRNA reported.

During Friday prayers at Tehran University, Ayatollah Mohammed Emami Kashani referred to recent statements by British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd who had criticized British writer Salman Rushdie's Satanic Verses, considered by many Moslems as blasphemous to Islam.

"By condemning the Anglo-Indian author of the controversial book Satanic Verses, and declaring its respect for Islam, England has nearly fulfilled the conditions exacted by the Iranian Majlis (parliament)," Kashani said.

The conditions exacted by Iran in 1989 also said that Britain should not protect Rushdie against whom the late Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini issued a +fatwa+, or death sentence.

Hurd has said on three separate occasions that London wanted to normalize relations with Iran and that Britain had not meant to offend Moslems.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher professed respect for the "great religion of Islam" and said she understood that Moslems considered the book an "insult" in an interview two months ago with the British Broadcasting Corporation.

The full normalization of ties between Iran and Britain is closely linked to the fate of three British hostages, Jack Mann, Terry Waite and John McCarthy, and one British-Irish hostage, Brian Keenan, being held in Lebanon by pro-Iranian militias.

In his speech, Kashani also condemned the Iraqi government and Baghdad's invasion of Kuwait Thursday.

Jerusalem (AUG. 3) EFE - Many Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territories have applauded the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, viewing it as a sign that Baghdad has the military power to aid Palestinians against Israel.

"We have to be patient. Soon it will be Israel's turn," Palestinian Mohammed Abu Yaman, 28, said when asked his opinion of the invasion of Kuwait.

"I doesn't matter to me if Iraq conquers Kuwait, or if they start the third world war," said Salakh Abulaui, 35, a doctor at a refugee camp in the occupied Gaza Strip.

"What I want is for the Arab world to cooperate with the Palestinians who are suffering under Israeli occupation," Abulaui told EFE.

The Tel Aviv daily Haaretz said Friday that the Palestinians see Iraq as a power that can intimidate Israel, reducing Tel Aviv's freedom to act against Palestinians as it might wish.

Palestinians also view Iraqi President Saddam Hussein as their main ally following a recent rapprochement between Baghdad and the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

Relations between Iraq and the PLO improved amid a dispute between Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and PLO leader Yasser Arafat.

The PLO has not publicly commented on the invasion.

Haaretz said many Palestinians view Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates as illegitimate states resulting from British colonial policies of the past.

CHICAGO (AUG. 3) UPI - Soybeans traded higher most of the day while grain futures were under pressure and closed lower Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The tension in the Middle East provided much of the support for soybeans. Professionals were aggressive buyers on lighter-than-expected deliveries of August beans, a firm export line-up and strong domestic demand.

November beans traded above $6 for a time, then retreated and closed at $5.97 1/2 per bushel. Soybean meal was moderately higher, although gains were limited by the lack of activity on European markets.

Corn futures were lower on forecasts for showers and warm weather during the weekend and the lack of export business. Losses were limited by light professional buying throughout the day.

Traders look for processor bids for corn and soybeans to remain strong during the coming week. Commercial selling pressured wheat futures in relatively light activity. Country movement was light.

At the close, corn was off 1 1/4 to 3 1/4, soybeans up 2 to 6 1/4, wheat off 1 1/2 to 4 1/2 and oats down 4 3/4 to 7.

ISTANBUL (AUG. 3) XINHUA - TURKEY'S FOREIGN CURRENCY DEFICITS ON INTERNATIONAL ACCOUNTS ROSE TO 1.67 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS IN THE FIRST FIVE MONTHS OF THIS YEAR, UP 455 PERCENT FROM 265 MILLION DOLLARS IN THE SAME PERIOD OF LAST YEAR, LOCAL NEWSPAPERS REPORTED TODAY.

ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL FIGURES REVEALED BY THE TURKISH CENTRAL BANK, THE CURRENT ACCOUNT BALANCE IN MAY THIS YEAR INDICATED 506 MILLION DOLLARS IN THE RED, COMPARED WITH 179 MILLION DOLLARS IN MAY LAST YEAR.

THE DEFICITS MAINLY RESULTED FROM A RAPIDLY WIDENING FOREIGN TRADE DEFICIT TURKISH EXPERTS SAID.

FIGURES FROM THE CENTRAL BANK SHOW THAT THE COUNTRY'S FOREIGN TRADE DEFICIT IN THE FIRST FIVE MONTHS ROSE FROM 1.29 BILLION DOLLARS TO 3.27 BILLION DOLLARS THIS YEAR, A 153 PERCENT INCREASE.

THE GOVERNMENT ONCE THOUGHT TURKEY'S LARGE FOREIGN CURRENCY RESERVE OF 7.763 BILLION DOLLARS LATE LAST YEAR WOULD CONTINUE TO INCREASE, SO IT "WENT TOO FAST IN CONVERTIBILITY AND FOR AN IMPORT TAX REDUCTION SCHEME," SAID THE EXPERTS.

IN EARLY APRIL, THE INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND (IMF) DESIGNATED TURKISH LIRA AS A FULLY CONVERTIBLE CURRENCY WHICH WAS SAID TO HAVE FULLY MET THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE IMF FOR CONVERTIBILITY.

EARLY THIS YEAR, THE TURKISH GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED AN IMPORT TAX REDUCTION SCHEME, IN WHICH TAXES OF ALMOST ALL IMPORTED ITEMS WERE REDUCED, SOME EVEN TO ZERO.

MEANWHILE, THE CENTRAL BANK'S FIGURES ALSO SHOW THAT TOURISM EARNINGS IN THE FIRST FIVE MONTHS ROSE FROM 651 MILLION DOLLARS IN 1989 TO 743 MILLION DOLLARS THIS YEAR.

SIMILARLY, WORKERS' REMITTANCES FROM ABROAD, ANOTHER KEY SOURCE OF TURKEY'S FOREIGN CURRENCY INCOME, ROSE FROM 947 MILLION DOLLARS TO 1.116 BILLION DOLLARS.
